VERDICT FOR PISARKO, DEFENDANT IN $10,000 SUIT FOR BOY'S DEATH

A verdict for the defendant, Mike Pisarko of this city, was returned at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by the jury in the superior court that has been hearing the suit brought against Pisarko for $10,000 damages by Andrew Satkowski of New London, as administrator of the estate of his ten-year old son, Walter, who was instantly killed when struck by Pisarko's automobile on June 26, 1926, near the corner of Everett and West Thames streets.

The verdict was returned after the jury had been out about 40 minutes. Edward A. Bishop, of Bozrah, was foreman of the jury and when he had presented the verdict it was accepted by Judge Allyn L. Brown, who then adjourned court till the next day and informed the jurymen that they were excused till next Tuesday as there are no more jury cases this week.

When trial of the case was resumed in court Wednesday morning, counsel for the plaintiff, Attorney J. T. Barry, called Officer Patrick Murphy to the stand and he was followed by Wesley A. Gordon, claim agent for the Connecticut company. He denied seeing William Mileski at the scene of the accident and said that when he drove to the place the horse and wagon were on the westerly side of West Thames street and across the trolley track, heading towards New London. This was on the opposite side of the street and heading in the opposite direction from what the witnesses for plaintiff had maintained was the position of the wagon on which the boy Walter had been riding before the fatal accident.

When the case for the defendant, Pisarko, was taken up by Attorney V. P. A. Quinn, witnesses who were called presented testimony that was diametrically opposed to testimony given by witnesses for the plaintiff. They placed the wagon turning out of Everett street towards New London, whereas witnesses for the plaintiff had it turning towards Norwich.

A different version of how the boy came to be hit was presented by defense witnesses, who stated that he jumped off the wagon into the path of the automobile in contraction of the claim of the plaintiff that he was hit while he was standing on the edge of the sidewalk near a telephone pole.

Pisarko, the defendant, who was driving the machine that hit the boy, testified that he was the one that picked the boy up, but he fled from the place after the father of Walter had threatened to kill him. He claimed that the wagon was on the westerly side of the road and that the boy jumped off it into the path of his machine. In this he was supported by two people who were passengers in his car, Mr. and Mrs. Roman Rfedorcak of Jersey City, N. J.

Officer Frank Gwizdowski of the Norwich police force, who had testified Tuesday, was recalled Wednesday by the attorney for the defendant and testified that when he arrived at the place of the accident he heard two men saying to each other in the Polish language that the boy had jumped off the wagon. When he asked them further about it, they stopped talking and would tell him nothing.

Arguments by the two attorneys were made soon after court opened the afternoon session.

"WHITE WAY" BATHES FRANKLIN ST. IN LIGHT

Franklin street, from Franklin square to the Boswell avenue park, was bathed in light Wednesday night when the city gas and electric department turned on for the first time the section of the "White Way" which has been extended to this part of the street. Only the lights on the easterly side of the street are so far in use, but when the installation on the westerly side is completed so that the entire illuminating plan is in operation, the street promises to have a flood of light that will make it the most brilliantly illuminated street in the city and well deserving of the name "White Way." This happy result is promised by the department for the Christmas holidays.

Sixteen pairs of poles have been set from Franklin square to the Boswell avenue park. The wiring and hanging of the lamps on the easterly side of the street has been pushed along first so that this circuit could be completed and put into use, making it easier to go ahead and complete the circuit for the other side. The poles, brackets and the other side. The poles, brackets and lamps are the same type as were used in the Main street "White Way" but the wiring is overhead instead of underground.

BIG REFERENCE BOOK ON OTIS LIBRARY SHELVES

Among the new books recently received at the Otis library, Norwich, is a copy of the new, consolidated edition of two well known reference works, MacRae's Blue Book and Hendrick's Commercial Register, hitherto published separately. The new book is briefly designated as "MacRae's & Hendricks, Consolidated" and is commonly known as "The Buyer's Blue Book."

A large, substantially bound volume of 2264 pages, measuring 8 1-2x11¼ inches and weighing nearly 12 pounds, it contains a vast amount of detailed information of interest to business men. Three main sections comprise the book, as follows:

The address section in the forepart of the book which consists of an alphabetically arranged list of approximately 75,000 important manufacturers, their home office addresses and, in many instances, the names and addresses of the local distributors for their products.

The classified material section of nearly 1700 pages which lists approximately 15,000 different kinds of material, equipment and supplies from abrasives to zobos, with the names of prominent manufacturers listed alphabetically beneath each classification.

The trade name section in the back of the book which contains the trade-names of approximately 75,000 products and the manufacturers thereof, thus enabling those who remember only the trade-name of a product to find the source of supply.

Those seeking information as to industrial materials and equipment and the manufacturers of such products can save much time and labor by consulting this comprehensive volume, now on file in the trade and technical publication section.

PLAINFIELD TOWN TEAM EVENS SERIES WITH STATE CHAMPIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 8—In the fastest game of many seasons ever witnessed on the Plainfield floor the Plainfield Town team came out victorious over the New Departure team of Bristol, state champions, here tonight by a score of 32 to 18. In a delayed game with the crowd on edge the local boys showed passwork and shooting equal to that of the Bristol outfit and in taking advantage of the breaks were able to maintain the lead most of the game. The score favored one team and then the other with no more than four points difference at any time.

At the end of the first half the score was 13 to 13 in favor of Plainfield. In the last quarter with one basket to tie the score Bristol made a fierce attempt to even matters but Plainfield outplayed the visitors and caged two more baskets, each time taking the ball on the Bristol pass.

In the preliminary game the Buddies smote the Jewett City team with an overwhelming score to 57-21. Jewett City's only points were made in the last half of the game when Plainfield played only substitutes. The summary:

ACADEMY LETTER MEN TO BE GIVEN GOLD FOOTBALLS

Ten letters were awarded to nine students at a meeting of the "N" club of the Academy held Tuesday afternoon at the school. Six "NCC's" were given to members of the cross country squad and four plain "N's" to cheer leaders for their work during the past year. Clare Brewer received two letters, as a cheer-leader, one for baseball and one for football.

Those receiving the NCC's were as follows: John Spotton, Mgr. Clinton Robinson, captain; Joseph Sadinsky, Louis Greene, Roy Carpenter, and John Dynon.

The N for work as cheer leader was given to Clare Brewer and James Moore in baseball and to Brewer and Daniel Madio in football.

It was also voted at the meeting that 24 quarters or the equivalent of six games will be necessary for a basketball letter. Basketball has been named a minor sport and will remain as such until its future at the local school is definitely determined. Cross country, for the same reason is also named a minor sport.

Sport Emblems

The N club has also decided to give every graduating member a symbol of the sport in which he earned a major letter. That is, each player earning his letter in either of the two major sports, baseball or football, will be awarded either a gold baseball or football upon his graduation from the school. It is planned to make the award at the annual graduation exercises. This action of the club should tend to increase interest in the sports at the school and make the candidates for places on the various teams work just a little bit harder. In accordance with a custom established last year, sweaters are given to a student when he earns his letter for the first time.

To Issue Paper

Another forward move on the part of this progressive club at the Academy is the plan by which a paper will be issued under its auspices. The club has been hard at work for some time on this project and expects to successfully put it through. It is planned to present the first issue shortly after the start of the second semester, late in January. According to present tentative arrangements this new paper will make its appearance every two weeks and should well take the place of the defunct Academy Journal, which passed out of existence some months ago.

The N club, composed entirely of students who have letters, either in a major or minor sport, is doing much toward the general welfare of the school and is daily increasing in strength. Edward Brewer, captain of football the past season, is president of the club.

RODA AND MISHEL TO PLAY ON ALL-EASTERN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 8—(AP)—Captain Hal Broda, all-American choice of a majority of sports critics, Orland Smith, all-American tackle, and Dave Mishel, star halfback, three members of Brown's undefeated eleven iron men, decided tonight to accept invitations to play on Bill Ingram's "all-eastern" eleven against an "all-western" combination in San Francisco, New Year's day. Lieutenant John W. Beckett of Annapolis, manager of the proposed trip, has assured the Brunonians that the game will be conducted on strictly amateur basis, their expenses will be paid. The three Rhode Islanders and the men selected by Ingram from other sections of the east are to meet in Chicago December 20 and start for the west coast from there.

C. F. C. FIVE CLASHES WITH WARRIORS TONIGHT

The C. F. C. quintet will clash with the Warrior five on Thursday night at 8.30 on the Y. M. C. A. court. The C F C team is somewhat handicapped by not having "Zeke" Leffingwell, who was injured in the Academy game in their lineup, but they will try to stop any losing streak that may have started by the two-point defeat that the Nordis gave them last Sunday. They will probably line up as follows: Forwards, Lambert and Jakson; center, Ludlow or Neil; guards, Brown and Armstrong.

Will all teams playing amateur rules and desiring to be on the C. F. C. schedule please write the manager, Ledlie C. Pitt, 177 Broadway, Norwich.

PUTNAM TO HAVE BASKETBALL LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 8.—A basketball league has been formed in Putnam and consists of five teams and the plans for the sport for the winter have been almost completed. The organizations that have signified intentions of competing in the league have all been sending representatives to the meetings called by those connected with the general organization.

Stanley Shaw, who is well known as one of Putnam's best court performers to be the president. His acceptance solves more or less of a problem as a local man with a complete knowledge of the game is desirable and necessary as the head of the league. Minot Horne has been chosen as secretary and treasurer. Games are to be played on Tuesday and Friday nights. Instead of a single game, it has been agreed that a so-called double header or two full games are to be played each evening, thereby giving the fans a chance to see at least four of the league games on the same program. Admission prices are to be fixed at a very low rate as the boys are not desirous of clearing more than is actually necessary for the expenses.

The Headquarters company will have about the same roster of players as last year and should make a good showing in the league games. Omer Valade is the newly appointed manager of the Headquarters team and he promises to uphold the colors with very promising material. The Knights of Columbus will undoubtedly have a very strong backing as Manager Hannifan of that organization boasts of some of the best players in this section. Charlie Murphy with his fast Mechanicsville team lines up as the strongest five at present and it remains to be seen if the change from strict amateur rules to professional regulations will affect his team. The Belding-Hemingway company will have a team for the first time this season and Manager Francis Murphy has not as yet disclosed his lineup but as the silk mill has a lot of good athletic material, the Silk Sox will undoubtedly have a strong team. The fifth team is a strong combination from Woodstock and Dudley known as the Black and White Collegians and Manager Frank Joes of Dudley promises a surprise when his team makes its first local showing.

A set of rules coming under the so-called pro status has been agreed upon by the board of managers, as the fans seem desirous of more action than is usually produced in the amateur games in this section. These rules which have been adopted will not tend to encourage any additional roughness but will eliminate to a certain extent the rulings regarding personal fouls which of late years have been very strict in the amateur game.

If everything goes as it now looks, the Putnam fans will see a very interesting season on the basketball court and if the interested fans will show the play their liking for the games by attending there is no reason why this league should not compare favorably with the surrounding town in athletics as in other lines.

McLAUGHRY WOULD ABOLISH POINT AFTER TOUCHDOWN

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Dec. 8—(AP)—The moulder of Brown's eleven "iron men" one of the new undefeated football teams of 1926 season, today declared his support of "honest" scoring, but advocated abolition of the point after touchdown gained by the placement or dropkick.

Speaking today before the Pawtucket Lion's club at a testimonial to two of the "iron men" whose homes are in this city, Head Coach De Ormond "Tuss" McLaughry said it did not seem fair that the final result of a football game should depend on the ability of one man to score a dropkick or placement kick point after a touchdown.

"The team with the best dropkicker or placement kicker has the advantage under the present system," the coach said. "The final result of a game should depend upon the ability of every member of the team against every member of the opposing eleven, in my opinion."

McLaughry said he would recommend that the extra point after touchdown be the result of a scrimmage, team to team, either by forward pass or rushing. Or scouting he said:

"There has not been any criticism of scouting and I do not think it will ever be abolished. Everything done by the scouts is above board. It is honest. Coaches of each team notify their opponents of their intention to scout and then receive tickets for the game. The coaches know that scouts are present. If there are no scouts then some alumni will see a game and advise the coach of the team representing his alma mater. In this way bad feeling between colleges will be engendered."

MUCH INTEREST IN PERSSON-M'CARTHY BOUT

HARTFORD, Dec. 8—Harry Persson, Swedish heavyweight champion, takes his first bow in a New England ring up at the Hartford state armory Monday evening, Dec. 13 when he meets Pat McCarthy of Boston in the star bout of George Mulligan's first winter boxing show.

Persson rated by the experts as a real heavyweight contender, meets a real ring general in Pat McCarthy, a big boy whose footwork is a treat and his boxing the last word. Connecticut fans, who saw Pat hook and jab Johnny Risko at the Harford Velodrome last summer, will attest to that.

Persson has tremendous hitting power however and McCarthy will need all his ringcraft to elude the big Swede when Harry uncorks his deathdealing lefts and rights.

The show, which will be at popular prices, will offer this under card:

Semi-final: Georgie Lamson vs. Battling Thomas, eight rounds; Nick Fidel vs. Prince Tooma, eight rounds; Joe Smith vs. George McRae, four rounds.

WOJICK ELECTED CAPTAIN OF WINDHAM ELEVEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 8—The Windham high school football squad for the season of 1927 elected Stanley Wojick its captain at a meeting of this year's letter men. The election was contested by meritorious candidates. Wojick is considered an ideal choice. He is a junior and played a splendid game as guard last season and during the previous year, his first, he was an ace end-man.

Windham stands to lose three members of the backfield quartet through graduation. Ahern, quarterback, Haggerty and Rood, halfbacks will get diplomas this year. From the line graduation will take Captain Buck, Dawson, Storrs, Garrigus and Connor. Although these losses are keenly felt there remains a promising outlook for next season's football accomplishments. Announcement has been made that Macomber, who played center with Garrigus, has been included in the list of players who received the coveted "W" letter this year.

LATZO RALLIES IN LAST FIVE ROUNDS TO BEAT OFF ATTACK OF SIMONICH

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 8—(AP)—Rallying gamely in the last five rounds, Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., world's welterweight champion slugged his way to a ten round victory over Joe Simonich of Butte, Mont., in the Newark armory tonight.

The titleholder, apparently affected by six months' absence from the ring as a result of sickness and injuries, appeared unable to strike his stride in the early rounds. The Butte miner repeatedly drove him to the ropes and turned him around with terrific right handers.

The turning point came in the fourth round, when the two boxers collided beadon in the center of the ring. A deep gash was opened over the champion's right eye, and for a moment he appeared stunned. He soon recovered, however, rallying sensationally near the close of the round and then carrying on to the finish with his winding spurt.

Latzo, whose title was not at stake fought with old time aggressiveness in the last five rounds after holding his foe even in the fifth.

Toward the finish Simonich had to retreat and hold under the champion's gruelling attack. Frequently driven to the ropes, the westerner weathered with difficulty a final round assault which left him groggy.

Tonight's victory was Latzo's third since he lifted the welterweight crown from Mickey Walker last May. The titleholder fought as a middleweight, however, scaling 154 pounds, Simonich weighed 153.

In two defenses of his title last summer, Latzo knocked out Willie Harmon in five rounds and won on a foul from George Levine in the fourth.

Latzo, fighting his first match in six months, was content to stave off Simonich's running attack that did little damage in the first session. The champion broke up Simonich's body attack in the second with a sharp rally that drove the Montana battler to cover. The westerner tore back in the third, pummeling Lato severely with a heavy body attack.

Lato could not seem to strike his stride after the long layoff. The battlers smashed head on in the center of the ring in the fourth round. Latzo suffering a gash over his eye that spouted blood, but he rallied with a furious two fisted attack Simonich nipped into the champion with a fierce body assault in the fifth, but Latzo fought back gamely. The champion drove Simonich to cover in the sixth, with a volley to the head and body.

The champion, apparently fighting his way to old-time form, scored heavily to the Montana boxer's head and body as the latter tired in the seventh. Simonich rushed again to the attack in the eighth but Lato scored repeatedly with both hands to the head.

Rugged body punching at close range carried them both around the ring on even terms in a fierce exchange in the ninth session. Latzo spun Simonich around with a sharp right at the bell. A battering two-fisted attack drove Simonich to the ropes and had him hanging on in the final session. Latzo landed almost at will.

The Preliminaries

Monte Munn, former Nebraska football star, stopped Gordon Mune of New York in the 2nd round of a ten round heavyweight math preliminary to the Pete Latzo-Joe Simonich fight at the Newark armory tonight.

The referee interrupted hostilities to save Munce from further punishment after he had been felled eight times by the mid-western heavy clouts Munn weighed 213 1-2; Munce 205 1-2.

In the second 10 round match, Benny Bass, Philadelphia, featherweight carried off the honors over Benny Cross of Newark. The heavy artillery of the Quaker contender kept his Jersey foe on the defensive from start to finish. Cross's flinching drawing the displeasure of the crowd.

The semi-final produced ten rugged rounds of slam-bang fighting with Phil McGraw of Detroit outpunching Johnny Ceccoli of Scranton, Pa., in the opinion of newspapermen. Both fighters received a big ovation from a crowd of 8,000 at the finish.

McGraw weighed 134 3-4; Ceccoli 135 1-2.

BROOKLINE GOLF COURSE TO BE MADE 27 HOLES

BROOKLINE, Mass., Dec. 8.—(AP)—The country club golf course, scene of many national and international tournaments, is to be extended from 18 to 27 holes. The decision of the membership, based on a desire to do away with congestion on the links, was made public today. A special committee appointed a year ago to study the problem recommended the 27-hole plan, said to be a novelty in the east.

The course will be of three nine-hole units, interchangeable in order of play. The nines will so fuse that there can be three starting points and the golfer can have his choice as to which consecutive 18 he wishes to play, or may play the entire 27 in rotation without long walks being units of nine. The work will be started immediately on clearing the 35 acres of land necessary for the extension, and the new holes will be ready for play in the fall of 1928. The development will cost $200,000.

RED SOX TO ESTABLISH CAMP AT NEW ORLEANS

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—New Orleans has been selected as the spring training camp of the Boston Red Sox, according to word received here Tuesday from President Quinn. The message also announced the release of Catcher Bischoff to the Fort Worth team of the Texas league.

A trade of three Red Sox players to the St. Paul American association club was reported earlier today from Asheville, N. C., where the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues was in session. By that deal Pitchers Zahniser and Heimach and Catcher Gaston go to the Saints in payment for Shortstop Winninger and Catcher Hoffman.

LANDIS SAYS HE DID NOT SEEK RE-ELECTION

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Commissioner K. M. Landis told the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues today that "it makes no material difference to me whether I am re-elected commissioner of baseball or not." Speaking vigorously, and interrupted often by outbursts of applause, the commissioner said that if he were re-elected, he would try to perform his duties with the "same impartiality I have tried to show the past six years."

He appeared before the body by invitation after it had gone on record in an executive session during the meeting as endorsing him for re-election with no curtailment of authority.

"I wish to thank you gentlemen," he said, "for your splendid support in the difficult duties I have been called upon to perform during the past six years. You have stood by me, have worked with me and when a ruling has come from me you have observed it with utmost fidelity.

"In my dealings with baseball during these past six years I have tried to do what seemed to me the fair thing for major leagues, for minor leagues and most of all for that great unnamed part of our business — the public.

"I warn you gentlemen that if I am re-elected, and it makes no material difference to me personally whether I am or not, I shall continue to guard the interests of the great unnamed body. On it you depend for support and I shall protect it in every way humanly possible."

The minor league owners and managers greeted the speech with frequent shouts of "Atta boy judge."

Doak Roberts, president of the Texas league, was elected a member of the national board of arbitration to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dan O'Neil, late president of the Eastern league.

The salary of the association secretary, J. H. Farrell was raised to $12,500, an increase of $5,000.

Emil Fuch, owner and president of the Boston Braves, asked the association to set one day during the season when the gate receipts would go to a fund for the erection of a memorial to Chrisley Mathewson.

"He was one of the finest men and one of the greatest ball players of the age. To him goes much of the credit for the fine spirit which is evident in baseball today. I think it only proper that we do something in his honor," Mr. Fuch said.

It was announced that the Philadelphia Athletics have sent Shortstop Engle to Memphis.

YALE-HARVARD TRACK MEN TO COMPETE IN ENGLAND

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 8—(AP)—Twenty-four Yale and Harvard track stars will meet a joint Oxford-Cambridge team at Stamford Bridge, England, on July 9. Decision to accept the invitation of the English institutions was reached last night at a meeting of the board of control of the Yale University Athletic association. Harvard authorities also decided last night to accept.

The athletes to make the trip will be chosen in the dual meet between Harvard and Yale in this city May 21. Freshmen of both institutions will be permitted to challenge varsity men selected, and trials will be held, in the event of such challenges, soon after the dual meet.

Besides the track men, three tennis players representing each institution will go to England during the summer to meet teams representing Oxford and Cambridge. The date of this trip is not settled, since the American intercollegiates will keep the men on this side of the water until late in June Captain Charles Watson, of the Blue racqueters will act as captain of the joint team for the trip.

A conference of Yale and Harvard athletic authorities will be held soon to arrange details for the trip of the track men, including the date of sailing.

Two years ago the American teams won the event in the Harvard stadium 7 1-2 to 4 1-2, second places deciding the winner. In the meet in England four years ago the British athletes won 6 1-2 to 5 1-2. Second places will again be counted next summer in the event of a tie in first place.

Stamford Bridge, where the meet will be held, is just outside London. Last year 20,000 persons saw the meet between the English universities and an American squad representing Princeton and Cornell. The Americans will occupy university dormitories while in England.

SPORTING NOTES

(By The Associated Press)

George Sisler, deposed playing manager of the St. Louis Browns, positively will play first base for that club next summer, says Dan Howley, his successor as pilot. Although reports have had Sisler slated to go to the Athletics, Howley says that "George wants to stick—and where could I get a better man?"

His quest of heavyweight honors in America temporarily terminated, Frans Diener today is returned to his native Germany. Diener was decisively beaten last week in a ten-round bout at New York by Jimmy Maloney of Boston.

Barney Dreyfuss will stand pat on his present Pirate team for the 1927 race. "Nothing to buy and nothing to sell," says the Pittsburgh National owner. "There will be no change, except that we'll win the pennant."

Jeff Smith, looked upon a few years ago as an uncrowned champion among middleweights, is not too blind to fight, the New York state athletic commission has ruled. Complaint was made that Smith's vision had been impaired by his 15 years of war on the ring-coated battlefields, but a commission physician pronounced him fit for further action.

Army has erased Lafayette from its tentative 1927 football schedule. Finding that the Leopards will retain almost intact the powerful team which swept through the past season without a defeat, West Point decided the Lafayette wall would be too tall to scale on the Saturday before the Yale game.

PaoNni went into training yesterday afternoon without his axes. The Basque woodchopper, hacking away only with padded mittens, slung hefty blows at a batch of sparring partners in preparation for his debut next month. His first major battle has been set for March 4 at Madison Square Garden, with Jack Sharkey of Boston as his opponent.

Although the amateur athletic union has put the lid on international track and field competition for next year, Edwin Wide is coming to the United States anyway. The Swedish distance runner and schoolmaster has received a traveling scholarship and will look over school conditions here even if he doesn't get a chance to limber up on the tracks.

Tennis critics say Bill Tilden, who will soon invade Europe, to regain some of the prestige he lost last summer through defeat by Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet, has regained old time form. The dethroned champion recently has displayed no effects of the knee injury which apparently crippled his title defence efforts last summer.

CONTEST IS CLOSE IN STORRS EGG LAYING

Usually the management of the Storr egg laying contest have an uncanny way of knowing who's who and what's what, but the current competition has got Professor Kirkpatrick buffaloed. He isn't saying a word. Interviewers find him entirely non-committal, when asked what pen or what breed is going to set the pace for the next few weeks. There's a reason for his silence. At the end of the first five weeks the records show two Connecticut pens of White Wyandottes exactly tied with 229 eggs each. One finds further that a pen of leghorns from Connecticut and another from New York state are exactly tied with 249 eggs and a third pen of leghorns lagging by the wholly negligible margin of one egg. In the Rhode Island Red class a Connecticut pen is leading with 266 eggs, but these is another Connecticut pen only three eggs behind, and three New England pens that are within one egg of each other are all clamoring for first place. No wonder the professor is reticent about picking winners in a lot of checkers lined up in this fashion.

In spite of the vicissitudes of unfavorable weather the hens at Storrs have held their own. As a matter of fact they laid eight eggs more last week than in the previous week and 713 more than for the corresponding week a year ago. The total lay for all pens for the fifth week was 4,162 eggs, or a yield of over 43 per cent. As a class White and Buff Rocks and Rhode Island Reds raised the ante a little. Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes were barely steady, as they say in the market reports, while White Leghorns were firm.

When it comes to discussing the performance of particular pens, Rocks and Reds seemed to have the edge on the rest of the outfit. Harold G. Colt from West Hartord, Conn., was at the top of the pile with his Rhode Island Reds that came across with 61 eggs for the week. White Rocks entered by E. A. Hirt of South Weymouth, Mass., were second high scorers with a total of 58 eggs. Hall Brothers at Wallingford, Conn., made third place with a pen of Reds that laid 56 eggs. R. W. Davis & Sons of Rockland, Maine, were in fourth position with a pen of Barred Rocks that did 55 eggs.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

WAYS TO CLEAN WROUGHT IRON

Now that wrought iron is so much in vogue, and everything from chairs, tables, benches and lamps to pieces of bric-abrac are made of these strips of iron, the housewife is wondering how to clean it. Some of the articles are waxed, painted or finished in some other manner which makes them very attractive but apparently would seem harder to take care of without harming the finish.

For the every day cleaning, dusting with a soft brush is sufficient, but an occasional cleaning of a more thorough nature is of course commendable. Make a suds of luke-warm water and a good neutral soap. Apply the suds with a soft brush so that it will reach every crevice and corner. Dip the brush in clear water of the same temperature as the original washing mixture and rinse well the piece being cleaned. Dry thoroughly with a soft cloth and it is best to let stand in the open air to finish drying. It can now be polished with a furniture polish or wax, if desired.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON MANUFACTORY TO ISSUE NEW STOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 8—The consolidation of the Paco Manufacturing company operating mills in this town and of the Powdrell and Alexander company, an affiliated concern, is announced through banking circles, together with a new issue of 16,000 shares of stock.

The new stock, without par value, is being marketed at $41.50 a share and the present basis of the corporation earnings with yield 8.43 per cent. annually.

It is understood that much of this stock is being taken by Chicago interests.

The Powdrell and Alexander company, through the initials of its principals, furnishes the name of the Paco company. Paco became known to Danielson in 1921, when the Danielson Development association was formed—made up of local business men—to bring a small but promising industry to this community. A property was purchased on Furnace street, a building on it originally used as an armory, and it was remodeled and enlarged to suit the purposes of the new textile company, engaged in the manufacture of window curtains. To facilitate the early beginning of operations the Windham County National bank, with abundant security, advanced $10,000.

This small industry has grown by leaps and bounds until today it is operating five mills in this town, two here and one each at Attawaugan, Ballouville and Pinevilla. Its gross business is now figured in millions of dollars a year and its products have a nation-wide distribution, its distributors including the largest mail order and chain store organizations in the world. It has probably as efficient a sales organization as there is in America and it is doing a tremendous volume of business.

After the consolidation herein mentioned is completed the concern will be known as the Powdrell and Alexander company. It is understood that the money derived for the present financing operation will be used in part to purchase properties in this town it now holds on a lease and option of purchase basis—the Main street plant, owned by the Connecticut mills—and for discharging the obligation incurred by the taking over of the Attawaugan properties in September last.

The general public of Killingly will have from this mention its first knowledge of the new stock issue. No special effort is being made to dispose of the stock here, though it was stated Wednesday that is available through local banking institutions.

A banker said Wednesday that the consolidated company's earnings, on the basis of business done the past few years, should make the stock yield 9 per cent. annually within a very short time.

SUGGESTS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PAY SECRETARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 8—If the very good suggestion of the retiring president of the chamber of commerce of Danielson, William Sangster, is adopted, the local business men's organization will employ a paid secretary the coming year, at least a secretary given a definite amount of salary for giving a definite amount fo his time each day to the furtherance of this community's business interests, its manufacturing interests and its prospects for obtaining new industries and a comfortable place in the sun.

The years have demonstrated that the average man who accepts a secretaryship of a chamber of commerce like that of Danielson is too busy with his own affairs—the art of getting a living—to spend much of his valuable time, if he has any at all to spare, on prompting the general welfare of the community. The alternative, it seems, is to pay a live and efficient secretary—not merely give someone a job—to give the time and attention required to the chamber's secretarial work.

President Sangster feels certain that a paid secretary would be well worth while. In that he has the endorsement of many of the borough's business men. Possibly at its January meeting the chamber of commerce will decide about that.

President Sangster suggested that general business for merchants would be aided here by an acitve and regular program of advertising, possibly an arrangement under which a group of business men would buy a page of advertising, each taking a part, and telling the world through accredited publicity mediums what bargains these houses are offering from day to day or week to week.

The meeting named as a nominating committee for officers of the chamber for the ensuing year Walter Anderson, representing the manufacturing interests, Clifford H. Starkweather, representing the banking interests and Sidney P. Marland representing the business men. They will submit a proposed list of officers to the January meeting of the chamber of commerce.

An abusive "writeup" that Danielson suffered the past week in a state journal that specializes in such things rankles more bitterly as the days go by in the hearts of the people of this community who know it as it really is.

And this fact—actually injurious to this community in an industrial and business way—suggests an idea.

The idea has to do with the taking of the alleged journalist who prepared the poisoned concoction for his readers and giving him a real job (or position if one prefers) here in Danielson and letting him act as spokesman for one of this community's industrial concerns that is not going south.

He begins his broadcast, and tells the truth:

"Yes, Danielson has the largest window curtain company in the United States and likely in the world. It operates six factories five of them in the town of Killingly, of which Danielson is a part. This company of ours has a payroll of $20,000 a week in Killingly alone and never yet has been able to keep abreast of its orders for its products. It employs hundreds of people. Its plants are running, in some instances, day and night. If our concern continues to prosper as it has prospered since it was established in 1921, it will mean the placing of Danielson in a pre-eminent position in the New England textile field as specialists, and as textile specialists New England's manufacturers will go forward to successes not approximated in all its long history in the manufacturing field. We are doing splendidly here. We could not do so well in the south as we can in New England, because the south could not give us such an organization as we have assembled here. Its operatives are lacking in the skill, energy and experience that our workers have, though the south has earnest workers. No, we are perfectly satisfied to remain in Danielson—and grow with it. There never was a period, even during the hectic days of the World war, when we were doing so well. And we find, too, that we are located in a community that has various other busy textile plants and a variety of other activities; Danielson, to a man who is familiar with this state, rates close to first place in communities of its size for industrial success, for financial resources, numeer of people who live comfortably and peacefully and who have the ability to carry on of any place in Connecticut. Our concern contributes only partly to this success. There are other good concerns that make Danielson as happy and prosperous as it is. We are glad to be here."

When there is sufficient snow to allow of tracking a rabit, rabbit hunting must cease. That is a ruling of the state fish and game commission, it was stated here Wednesday on official authority. The ruling has been made after consultation with legal authorities by representatives of the commission. This means of course, that at this time rabbits cannot be hunted legally, and that hunting of them is liable to bring down upon one the strong arm of the law. The ruling will be enforced, Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey said Wednesday.

Boy Scouts of Danielson have taken up the Red Cross roll call work in Danielson and for the next few days will be about the borough seeking memberships. The Scouts have been called in to help out a campaign that needs additional energy and effort, and they will do their best to make a real showing for Danielson in this campaign, which is an annual event.

A band of 23 members of Killingly grange accompanied the Connecticut grange traveling gavel to Columbia last Wednesday night where with an appropriate ceremony the gavel was turned over to the Columbia grange. Killingly grange received the gavel from Highland grange of South Killingly, it being presented to them at their meeting Nov. 1st, thus having the gavel just 30 days the maximum limit. Heading the delegation to Columbia was Harriet L. Wood master of Killingly grange, and Flora Kennedy, the overseer. The travelers being welcomed the gavel was passed from the lecturer of Killingly to the lecturer of Columbia with an appropriate speech by each. In connection with the presentation ceremony Lecturer Charles A. Downs of Killingly put on the literary program for the evening it being considered one of Killingly's best. The program was as follows:

Piano solo, Miss Helen Kelley; readings, Miss Helen Heath; vocal solo, Miss Yolando Camerlo; character song (duet), Mrs. Charles A. Downs, Mrs. Maude Keech, Frank L. Bennett.

Columbia served excellent refreshments at the close of the meeting.

The first and second degrees were conferred on a class of thirteen at Killingly grange, Dec. 6th. The regular officers conducted the work. The third and fourth degrees will be given Dec. 20th.

An adjustment of the loss sustained in Sunday's fire at the home of Oliver A. Downs on Riverview has been made by the insurance companies interested. Mr. Downs said Wednesday that the home will be restored to good condition.

Habitually late trains on the New Haven road through Danielson have thrown mail deliveries out of kilter in some degree and created other difficulties for those depending on these passenger and mail trains for one sort of service or another.

Anyone who might like one of the snowy or Arctic owls that are making an invasion of this territory from the north this season for mounting likely would secure one by hunting woodland territory heresbouts, especially in the vicinity of East Killingly. The visitors from the far north are said to be quite plentiful heresbouts.

State highway department plows continued in service in Killingly during Wednesday, pushing back onto the shoulders of the road the accumulations of snow that came in Sunday's storm and through which a way for traveling was opened during Sunday night and Monday.

PUTNAM

NOT IN FAVOR OF ROAD REPAIRS AT THIS TIME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 8.—The city council at its meeting last night voted to lay on the table a petition signed by numerous property owners in the neighborhood asking that the Little River road be widened and graded. In a brief discussion it was conceded that it would be a desirable improvement but the cost of it, estimated at $10,000 led the councilmen to take the action they did. There is, of course, no money in the treasury to pay for this improvement and it was not deemed advisable to make a special levy at this time.

The city and the state highway department finally got together on the purchase of a strip of land near the pumping station of the water works. The department needs it in order to widen the road at this point and as the city will naturally be benefitted the nominal offer of $50 was accepted.

Allan B. Lincoln of Ashford declares that there is no truth in the report that the people of Ashford are contemplating asking for a receiver. He says the town has never thought of giving up its right of self government by asking the state of Connecticut to step in and administer its affairs, as a receiver. He further says that such a thing could not be done and any story that the town of Ashford contemplated such a thing was purely "fiction". The town is not in the financial condition which would require a receiver, Mr. Lincoln said. With a population of 673 at the last census its grand list in 1924 was $433,285 and its indebtedness only $9,306.13. Its tax rate is 36 mills and is high because of the increasing expense of the highways.

In agricultural ways, Mr. Lincoln says, the town is better off than it was 20 years ago and conditions are steadily improving in spite of highway handicaps.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

WESTERLY

WILL OF CHARLES A. MORGAN CONTAINS MANY BEQUESTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 8—Filed for probate at the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the last will and testament of the late Charles A. Morgan, who during his lifetime gave $100,000 to the Westerly hospital and $1.25 numerous other bequests to Westerly individuals and societies. The death of Mr. Morgan, who conducted the largest insurance business in Westerly, having been in business at 16 Broad street for nearly 50 years, occurred at his home, 13 Elm street early in the morning of Dec. 5th from a third shock, he having been at his place of business on the afternoon of the previous day.

Much interest has been manifest in the probable provisions of his will and his further generous provision in his will for expenses of patients unable to pay, merits the interest taken. The will covered 11 typewritten pages with nine clauses. It was signed by Charles A. Morgan on Oct. 30, 1924 and witnessed by Mabel A. Saunders and Ruth F. Wilcox, of the Westerly town clerk's office at that time. Various estimates place the amount of the personal property to come before the Westerly probate court as approximately $225,000 on which a bond of $350,000 may be required, but it is generally known that much personal property was distributed by Mr. Morgan in his lifetime. The will is to be presented for probate at the regular session of Westerly probate court in the Westerly town hall on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 21st and will be read at that time.

The will directs that sickness, funeral expenses, etc., be paid from the principal as an expense of administration, to the end that the legacies may be received by the beneficiaries without deduction and the executor is given authority to liquidate as much of assets as may be necessary to meet them, without necessity of application to any court.

The second clause bequeaths to his clerk, Jessie M. Surber, all his stock in the corporation, C. A. Morgan, Inc.

Elizabeth F. Tennant, of New York, his friend, is bequeathed his automobile, accessories and his diamond ring, in the third clause.

Charles P. Cottrell, Jr., of Westerly, a nephew, is given his watch.

In the fifth, his housekeeper, Martha Barber, and is friend, Elizabeth Tennant, are given a joint tenancy during their joint lives to his real estate at 12 Elm street. To Martha Barber, during her lifetime, the contents of the dwelling house, for her sole use. If the decease of Martha Barber should occur before Elizabeth Tennant, the house at 12 Elm street is bequeather her and her heirs forever, together with the contents. On the death of Martha Barber, should it follow that of Elizabeth Tennant, the property reverts to the trustees to become a part of the residue of the estate to be disposed of by the trustees according to the seventh clause of the will.

The sixth clause sets up 135 shares of stock of Great American Insurance company as a special trust fund with interest to be paid during the lifetime of Martha Barber to her and to have the trust end at her death.

The rest and residue of the estate is bequeathed to the Industrial Trust company in special trust, from which shall be taken during the lifetime of Martha Barber and Elizabeth Tennant for the expenses and upkeep of the property at 12 Elm street. Following their demise, the income is set up as a new principal, perpetual in trust, to pay over the income annually or oftener to the Westerly hospital to be used by the Westerly hospital for the furnishing of free hospital service to such member of the public as may be in need thereof, and unable in whole or part to pay for such service.

Under the eighth clause the trustees are instructed as to the definition of trustees; power of possession and management; power of sale, etc., power to invest; power to make deeds, etc.; transfers; third person relieved of inquiry; continuing investments; the stock dividends to become principal and not income; reorganization, etc.; general powers resignitions; and the liability of the trustees.

The Industrial Trust company is named in the ninth clause as appointed to be the executor of the last will and testament.

A trio of young Westerly boys ranging in ages from 10 to 12 years, appeared beore a session of juvenile court and were taken to the Sockonosset school for boys as a result of being implicated in the breaking and entering of the office of the Westerly Grain company on Friendship street a couple of weeks ago. Two of the boys were apprehended at one time for stealing a quantity of lead flashings when repairs were being made on the state armory on Dixon street.

Westerly Lions club held its luncheon at the Elm Tree inn in Pawcatuck on Wednesday noon, with President Willard H. Bacon as toastmaster. INJURIES PROVED FATAL TO CAPTAIN ROBINSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 8—Capt. Frank Howad Robinson of 40 Summer street, Westerly, who was critically injured shortly after noon Tuesday in the performance of his duties as captain of the towboat Westerly, by being thrown to the floor of the pilot house, and was taken to the Westerly hospital, died at that institution about 2 a. m. today. Death resulted from a fracture at the base of the skull, his case being on the danger list from the time he entered the hospital.

Followinghis bringing the coal barge, Harry A. Keeler with a load of anthracite up the Pawcatuck river on Tuesday morning in tow of the tug Westerly, Capt. Robinson had left the barge at the American Thread mill dock, and then proceeded up as far as the Commerce street dock. While at the wheel he was about to turn the craft about in the river opposite the Commerce street dock and as the tug backed the rudder came in contact with a large piece of ice, causing the steering wheel to make a quick turn and twisting it from the grip of the master. One of the spokes struck Capt. Robinson in the forehead and he was thrown backwards in the cabin striking on the back of his head against the bunk board. It was the fall that caused the fracture of the skull. At the hospital an X-ray was taken and everything possible done to revive the patient. Death came within 14 hours from the time he was injured.

Frank Howard Robinson was the son of the late William S. and Elisabeth H. Robinson. He was born in Lower Pawcatuck, Conn., Sept. 6, 1863, and was married in 1887 to Anna I. Dodge at Block Island, who survives him. He is also survived by a son Clarence H. Robinson of Boston, Mass., and two sisters, Mrs. J. William Vincent and Mrs. A. V. Phelps of Lower Pawcatuck.

He had been a captain for 43 years and was the last of the Pawcatuck river steamboat captains. At one time he was the master of passenger boats running between Westerly and Watch Hill and between Watch Hill and Stonington. He held a license covering the waters from New York to Providence. Capt. Robinson piloted many excursion parties down the Pawcatuck river.

He became the successor of the late Capt. William Greenman in piloting steamcraft on the Pawcatuck river and was captain of the old tug Westerly and the new Westerly tug which belong t othe Westerly Tow Boat company.

SUDDEN DEATH TUESDAY OF MRS. ANDREW W. FISHER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 8—The sudden death of Mrs. Mary Jane Fisher, wife of Andrew W. Fisher, of Westerly, occurred just before 11 o'clock last night at her home at 31 Chestnut street, following a shock. Mrs. Fisher's health has not been of the best for the last year, but she had been at the dry good store of her husband, on the last week end. Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church, of which Mrs. Fisher was a member had called and had left the home about 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon when Mrs. Fisher appeared in average health. Upon returning home at 6:30 Mr. Fisher did not find the porch light on or the dock unlocked, which was Mrs. Fisher's custom. On entering the house Mrs. Fisher was found unconscious upon the floor and never regained consciousness.

Previous to Mr. and Mrs. Fisher's coming to Westerly in 1908, they resided in Putnam, where Mr. Fisher was the assistant manager and buyer for Bugbee and Wulf of that city, and previous to which time following the death of her first husband in Providence, as Mrs. Johnson, she became the wife of Andrew Fisher.

Mrs. Fisher was in her 66th year. She is survived by a daughter by former marriage, Mrs. C. F. Wood of Hughertford, N. J.; a sister in Canada, and two grandsons. She was born in Gunfreea, Scotland. She has made her home in Westerly for the past 17 years. Out of respect for Mrs. Fisher, the dry goods store did not open on Wednesday morning.

An effort is being made by the high school faculty to obtain closer co-operation between the business men of the borough and the pupils who are training for commercial work. Stop Bad Breath

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

STATE BOARD MUST KNOW IF TRADE SCHOOL IS WANTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 8.—Specific facts must be furnished to the state board of education, before a recommendation can be made for the establishment of a trade school in Windham, according to a communication read at the town school committee meeting held in the school office tonight. In order to meet this requirement, Secretary Egbert A. Case has prepared a circular letter and plans, which will be distributed throughout this vicinity with a request that those desiring instruction in some specific trade return the blank signed.

Should a trade school be established here, it would be open to students from all surrounding towns without tuition charges to them or the towns in which they reside.

The final enumeration report was read, showing a decrease of 102 children since last year. There is, however, an increase over the total of 3,464 children appearing on the 1925 report. Enumeration is taken of children between four and 16 years, and a slight decrease in the total shows an increase of over 50 attending the public schools of the town. Last year's report was not considered a reliable one, through the constant removal from or entrance of families to the city during the turnover of help following the general strike at the American Thread company plant.

Town Counsel John E. King rendered a decision on the case of a child attending Natchaug grammar school, whose home is in Columbia, making it compulsory for the parents to pay a tuition fee. But five members of the board were present. Chairman John Reilly presided. The minutes and report were read by Secretary Case. The school physician, Dr. W. F. S. Keating read his report, which showed general good health among the town pupils.

Walter Stemmons of C. A. C., Storrs, delivered an address on the National View of Prohibition, at the weekly meeting of Willimantic Exchange club in the Nathan Hale hotel, Wednesday evening. President Sherman P. Hollister presided. The speaker was presented by Allen B. Lincoln, chairman of the programme committee. A forum was held following the talk.

LIBERTY HILL

Mrs. J. George Clark visited her cousin, J. Colt Harris and family of New London also her niece, Miss Marjory F. Bass at West Mystic over the week end.

About six inches of snow fell Sunday afternoon and night with the mercury at about 15 above zero. Monday and Tuesday morning the mercury hovered around zero. The road is open for travel.

Although it was cold and snow was falling there were 16 persons at the Sunday morning church service. There was no evening service.

Milo S. Davoll performed his usual kind service of path making with his one horse snow plough Monday morning.

In an old thermometer record of 1843 there was a snow fall of nine inches the 7th of December, mercury standing at 26 above zero.

The Man's club held its monthly meeting Monday evening. Sixteen members were present. The speaker for the meeting, Dr. George E. Wilcox of Willimantic, was detained on account of the weather and traveling. Lunch was furnished by George Caldwell and the Haddad brothers. There were informal talks by the members. Three new names were proposed for membership, Henry LaFlour and son Eugene and Robert Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Borgeson have the sympathy of the community in the loss of their son, Clarence, whose death occurred last week Wednesday at Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich.

Winthrop D. Davoll and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Goodrich attended the funeral of Mrs. Josephine Elliott Smith in Hampton Thursday. The service was held at the home of her son, Albert Smith.

George III and Franklin

George III disliked Franklin's political opinions and was anxious to discredit his scientific discoveries as well, says John o'London's Weekly. He therefore ordered the lightning conductors on Kew palace to have blunt instead of pointed ends. When he asked Sir John Pringle, then president of the Royal society, what he thought of the change, Sir John told him plainly that "the laws of nature are not changeable at the royal pleasure." This annoyed his majesty so much that he suggested Sir John had better resign his presidency of the Royal society. He did so, and the breach between them was never healed. Sides were taken over the controversy, the court naturally supporting the king, while the wits sympathized with Sir John.

CHEMISTRY IS CLEVER DETECTIVE FOR FRENCH

PARIS, Dec. 8 (AP)—Chemitry is one of France's most clever detectives. Three laboratories at Police headquarters play as great a part in the detection and especially the conviction of crimes as any squad of the brightest sleuths on the force.

Forgery and murders are Detective Chemistry's specialty. So perfected are the instruments used that their work practically amounts to the weighing of atoms.

The other day an envelope supposed to contain 25 one-thousand franc bills reached a Paris banking house. The wax seals were intact but the notes were missing. Three days later the thief was behind the bars. A pin prick in the envelope had given him away.

"Our instruments made the hole in the envelope look like the crater of Vesuvius," said M. Edmond Bayle, chief of one of the laboratories, "and that crater simply belched out the name of the faithless employe."

The body of a murdered man was found in the Bois de Boulogne. The trail led to a bootlegger bookmaker who, outside the law, had his office in his cellar. Blood stains were found on the body. The laboratory established that although it was human blood, it differed from that of the dead man. Arrested, the bookmaker denied stubbornly.

"Have you ever had typhoid fever?" the chief detective asked the man under arrest casually in the course of a three hour grilling.

"Yes about a year ago," replied the accused in an unguarded moment.

"Then thou art the murderer!" shouted the police official in that dramatic French way, pointing an accusing finger at the bookmaker. "The typhoid germs in that blood are healthy enough to plant."

"All right, I give in, I did it," admitted the murderer.

Ultra violet rays are used with great success in the detection of washed and surcharged cheques, national defense bonds and other securities. The original writing suppressed by the forgers with acids is made to reappear under the glare of the rays.

The proprietor of a dive in the slums was found behind his counter with his throat slit. One of the habitues of the place was placed under arrest.

Violently he denied having been in the place for several days. "Take his shoes and clothes off," ordered the chief. Sent to the laboratory, the wearing apparel was found to show signs of the very dust which had been picked up behind the counter of the dive a few minutes previously.

MATCH HAS LONG TRIP FROM TREE TO POCKET

WADSWORTH, O., Dec. 8 (AP)—"Got a match?" A simple request easily complied with, but not so prosaic is the story of the making of the wood sliver with its inflammable tip.

The match starts its journey to somebody's vest pocket in a towering pine forest, hundreds of miles away from the final center of manufacture. Forests, railroads and sawmills are owned by the match companies, which have great factories here.

One company owns a great tract of timber in the Coeur d'Alene mountains of Idaho. A company railroad, 24 miles long, takes the logs to the main line of the Spokane International railroad, which hauls them to Coeur d'Alene lake, where they are put into booms and towed to the company's sawmill on the Spokane river.

The logs are sawed into two-inch planks and seasoned for a year or 18 months. When ready for use, they are sent to the company's block plant at Spokane. Selected lumber there is cut into blocks 3 3-5 inches long, which is the exact length of a match. The blocks are sent to the factory here, a 3000-mile journey.

The first manufacturing step is to feed the blocks into a match machine, which cuts them up and forces the sticks into holes in an iron plate, holding 500 sticks. It takes an hour from then until the match comes out a finished product.

Over sprays and brushes, the plates are carried and all the weak and imperfect ones are automatically culled.

Next comes treatment by paraffin and chemicals. Then the first composition is put on the head. The sticks pass over a roller which turns in a box containing the composition. The ignition tip is applied the same way.

The use of phosphorus as an active ingredient in match making was barred by congressional act in 1913. The poisonous phosphorus used to affect the bones of the jaw of workers. Sesqui sulphide of phorphorus now is used, which is non-poisonous. TEDL

Eight hundred employes of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad yesterday demanded that their wages be restored t othe level of 1920, when they were receiving 13 cents an hour more than at present.

GIRLS! RADIANT BEAUTY CAN EASILY BE YOURS

There is no secret about it nor is there any doubt about the results—it's just common, ordinary buttermilk in the form of a wonderful cream. The directions are simple and it costs so little that any girl or woman can afford it. Simply ask at your favorite drug or toilet goods counter for a tube or jar of Howard's Buttermilk Cream. Lee & Osgood Co. sells lots of it.

Women Want "Nice" Jobs

Women workers are more interested in office environment than in salaries and opportunities for advancement, according to a study made by an employment agency which questioned 1,000 applicants for positions.

It was found that about 60 per cent. of the women and girls who were interrogated reported that the reputation of the firm, its convenient location in a modern office building, with interesting work, regular hours, congenial co-workers and a kind and considerate employer, meant more to them than the immediate salary or future possibilities, says the Thrift Magazine.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Spies on Buster Bear

The truth of this none can deny,
Few people ever like a spy.
—Old Mother Nature.

Neither Peter Rabbit nor his cousin, Jumper the Hare, ran very far from Buster Bear when he surprised them over in the Green Forest. They knew he was too fat to catch them. Even had he not been fat they would have felt that they could keep out of his way. But because he was so fat they simply hopped off a very short distance and sat up, and Peter was almost impudent the way he talked to Buster Bear.

But Buster, having failed to catch either Peter or Jumper, paid them no more attention. He rumbled and grumbled to himself and shuffled away between the trees. Such footprints as he left behind him! My goodness, such footprints! You know, Buster Bear puts his whole foot on the ground, just as a human being does. Black Pussy and Bowser the Hound or Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote or Yowler the Bobcat would leave a print which would show only a little more than the toes, for they walk on their toes. But Buster Bear plants his whole foot flat, showing the mark of the heel, and this makes his footprint very big. There is no trouble following Buster in the snow.

Peter Rabbit at once became all curiosity. He wondered when Buster Bear would go to bed for the winter, and he wondered where he would go to bed for the winter. At a safe distance he followed Buster. He was too wise to let Buster know he was being followed. He kept far enough back to be out of sight. He didn't need to be in sight of Buster because those big tracks would lead him right straight to wherever Buster might choose to go. He thought if he followed long enough he might find out where Buster Bear would spend the winter.

Buster was up later than usual. You see, the winter was later than usual in coming. Buster doesn't like to go to bed until he is obliged to. He isn't obliged to go to bed until he can no longer get food to eat. You know Buster eats as he goes along, for he has no way of storing up food excepting under his skin. As long as there is no snow Buster usually can find some food. But when the snow comes it is time for him to retire, and he knows it.

Peter followed Buster's tracks in the

At a safe distance he followed Buster

snow. "He's wandering around rather aimlessly," thought Peter. "He acts as if he didn't know where to go. I must see to it that he doesn't know I am following him."

Just then there was a yawn from behind a young hemlock tree that Peter was just going to run around. It sounded sleepy, did that yawn. But sleepy sounding or not, it made Peter's hair stand right upon end. That yawn had come from Buster Bear, and in two or three hops more Peter would have been right around there where Buster was. So Peter sat tight and held his breath. He could hear Buster rumbling and grumbling to himself down in his throat. It was quite clear that Buster was sleepy, but it was equally clear that he didn't want to go to bed. I wouldn't be surprised if you know just how that is.

Buster sat there and grumbled. He didn't need another mouthful of food. No, sir, he didn't need another mouthful. Stored away under that black coat of his was fat enough to take him through the winter. But Buster somehow couldn't make up his mind to stop eating. He couldn't for a fact. "I want just a bit more," he grumbled. "I won't be able to get anything, not even a bit, for weeks after I go to bed, and I certainly do like food. Yes, sir, I certainly do like food. If I could find a nice tender rabbit now I could go to bed very comfortably."

Once more all the hair on Peter Rabbit stood on end.

Artificial Gold Exhibit

The first sample of synthetic gold which has reached this country is to be an exhibit in the collections of elements at the American Museum of Natural History in New York. Dr. George F. Kunz, the well known gem expert, who has the difficult task of gathering together samples of as many of the 92 elements as can be obtained or exhibited, states that the sample of what is said to be synthetic gold is a tiny speck.

It is a product from the laboratory of Prof. Hantaro Nagoska of the Tokio Imperial university who obtained microscopic quantities of what he reports to be artificial gold from mercury by running a mercury lamp over a long period and employing extremely high voltage. Dr. Kunz has in his collection the first crystals of pure fluoride of hafnium and metallic hafnium. He has not yet obtained samples of the two new elements, rhenium and masurium.

To Prevent Window Frost

The formation of frost on windows can be reduced materially by rubbing the inside of the glass with a solution of glycerin and alcohol. The solution is made by dissolving a teaspoon of the glycerin in half a pint of alcohol Apply the mixture to the glass with a clean rag.

Rheumatism the enemy of advancing years

HAD SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH RHEUMATISM

Tried many remedies—Simple home treatment brought relief

A sufferer from acute rheumatism for many years, a Winchester, N. H., man at last found that he could always get rid of the pain, and relieve the swelling and stiffness by a simple home treatment.

"After trying various remedies," he writes, "Sloan's Liniment was recommended to me, and it stopped the pain."

What is the reason for these remarkable results?

Simply that Sloan's doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up your own forces to get rid of the conditions that are causing the pain.

Apply lightly without rubbing, and at once you'll feel the comforting warmth as fresh, healing blood begins circulating through the affected spot. The stiff, swollen tissues relax, the inflammation goes down, the pain stops, and soon you feel normal again. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

TIMELY ADVICE ABOUT COUGHS AND COLDS

In damp, cold or changeable weather, people who "catch cold" easily should use extra care to avoid bronchial affections or pneumonia. A wise precaution at this time of year is to keep on hand a mixture of Eucalyptus, pine tar and creosote, and take a few drops at the first sign of a cough or cold. This recipe has been prescribed by physicians for years and nothing has ever been found to surpass it for quick relief. The ingredients can be obtained at any drug store, ready prepared in a perfect emulsion pleasant to take. To get it merely ask for Lee's Creo-Lyptus. A large bottle costs only a few cents and it is sold everywhere under a money back guarantee.

POETRY

Little Lost Pup

He was lost—not a shade of doubt on that;
For he never barked at a dinking cat
But stood in the square when the wind blew raw
With a drooping ear and a trembling paw
And a mournful look in his pleading eye
And a plaintive sniff at the passerby
That begged as plain as a beggar could me
"O Mister, please may I follow you?"
I love a wee waif of a tawny brown
Adrift in the roar of a heedless town
Oh, the saddest of sights in a world of sin
Is a little lost pup with his tail tucked in!

Call, he won my heart (for I set great store
On my own red Rute—who is here no more)
So I whistled clear, and he trotted up,
And who so glad as that small lost pup!

Now he shares my board and he owns my bed;
And he fairly shouts when he hears my tread.
Then, if things go wrong, as they sometimes do,
And the world is cold, and I'm feeling blue,
He asserts his right to assuage my woes
With a warm, red tongue and a nice cold nose,
And a silky head on my arm or knee,
And a paw as soft as a paw can be.

When we rove the woods for a bagful about
He's as full of pranks as a school let out;
For he romps and frisks like a three-months colt,
And he runs me down like a thunderbolt.
Oh, the silliest of sights in the world so fair
Is a gay little pup with his tail in the air!

—Arthur Guiterman.

Why

Why should I grieve at sorrow?
Why should I hold a fear?
I've faith in Love's tomorrow,
I know life's skies are clear.
Because some gray goes creeping
Between the sun and me;
That's not a cause for weeping,
Dark days are Love's decree.
If one's life were sunshine
The whole long journey through,
I know we soon would weary
And long for something new.
Between me and the sun
And so when clouds are hovering
I search for silver linings,
And treasure every one.
The brave heart fears no sorrow,
The hero sheds no tear,
But trusts in God's tomorrow,
And stands without one fear.

From there it had climbed to a warm cubby hole under the front seat, on which the woman was sitting.

It has ordered members to abstain from long-distance cycling, cross country racing, football and other games which are eyed with disapproval. JOHN S. GORTON DIES AT NEW LONDON STRICKEN AFTER SHOVELING SNOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8—John S. Gorton, 69, died this morning at the residence of his brother-in-law, Richard W. Mansfield, 48 Franklin street, death resulting from a shock. Mr. Gorton is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Ernest E. Rogers of Pequot avenue, Mrs. Richard W. Mansfield, of Franklin street and Miss Elizabeth Gorton of Pequot avenue and by two brothers, George A. Gorton and Charles E. Gorton of this city. Mr. Gorton was born in East Lyme, but had resided in New London the greater part of his life, for many years residing on Hempstead street. He was stricken Monday evening in the cellar of his home, following strenuous exertion in shoveling snow from the sidewalk. A short time after being found he lapsed into unconsciousness and in which condition he remained except for brief intervals, until the end came at 10 o'clock today.

CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER AGAINST GEO. J. WASHINGTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8—George J. Washington, colored, mess attendant at the United States Coast Guard section base, 4, state pier, is a prisoner in the brig today having been formally charged with manslaughter, in causing the death of Gorman Wilson, 39, colored and a cook on the destroyer, 133, stationed at this port. This morning Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky issued a warrant for the arrest of Washington, after he had considered the report of Sergeant Nelson Smith, who investigated the facts relating to the assault upon Wilson at the home of Alice Marks, of 338 North Bank street, where Wilson, Washington and others were assembled on the night of Nov. 5. Sergeant Smith served the warrant on Commander Frank S. Young, commandant at the section base, and that official immediately made a request of the war department for permission to deliver Washington to the city authorities. The request will, undoubtedly be granted and it is expected that Washington will be presented in the police court the latter part of this week or early next week. Prosecuting Attorney Hollandersky is in possession of affidavits and sworn statements of the New York hospital authorities and of the medical examiner's force of New York showing that Wilson died of septic peritonitis following the fracture of his skull by a blunt instrument, Washington, it is claimed by witnesses of the fight at the Marks home, seized a milk bottle from an ice box and dealt Wilson a blow on the head, the scalp being laid open so that seven stitches were required to close it. Neither the Marks women, who furnished Wilson with funds to have the wound treated, nor the coast guard officials, informed the police of the attack upon Wilson and it was not until he had been admitted to the New York hospital following being taken ill at sea, that the statement was received from Wilson that he had been assaulted in New London. Upon Wilson's death an autopsy was performed and it was determined that death was due to the poison, which had its seat in the wound caused by the scalp being infected through the laceration.

City Manager William A. Holt has instructed Captain of Police Charles A. Finney to have patrolmen assigned to duty on several streets where the coasting is to be permitted that the children engaged in the sport may be afforded the greatest possible protection against injury by automobiles. The city manager has designated Alger, Hempstead and Vauxhall streets and Crystal avenue as the highways where coasting is permitted.

Ellen Cheeebre of Waterford, has sold a house and lot on Harris street to Annie L. Herrick.

Mrs. Edward Pierson of 12 Woodbridge street and John Fritts, 194 Willetta avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Ruth May Saunders, two months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Saunders of 2 Starr street, died last night at the residence of her parents. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in St. Mary's cemetery.

CORNELL, CALLED BIGAMIST, SUPPOSED HE WAS DIVORCED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8—Albert Frank Cornell, a motion picture operator and machinist at the Liberty theatre, Staten Island, learned something about marriage and divorce that he did not know, when he went to one Hobert S. Miller to secure the severance of the bonds that bound him to H. Madeleine Cornell, whom he married at Jersey City on the 16th of August, 1914. Albert listened to the glib tongue of Miller after the latter had been told that Mrs. Cornell had been faithless, and Albert had expressed a desire to abandon his relations as husband to her. The story was such that Miller promised to secure a divorce for Cornell, but he insisted that the latter pay him in advance and exacted $450 from him. Cornell produced the cash and Miller said he would do the rest. He represented that he would go before Justice Lewis L. Forsythe of the New Jersey supreme court and at a hearing in chambers the divorce would be granted. That looked easy for Cornell, so he produced the generous fee that Miller demanded. In due time it was represented that the justice had granted an interlocutory decree of divorce, and Miller produced the papers that so stated. The decree was not to become operative for three months, as Mrs. Cornell did not appear to defend the case. The necessary papers were produced by Miller and in a legal cover were handed to Cornell. They stated that a decree had been granted as is said here. Cornell did not examine the papers more than to see that they stated what it was agreed they should state. The signature was in the initial of Justice Forsythe, instead of the name appearing, something that is unheard of in this section. But Cornell accepted them as bona fide. Some weeks ago Mrs. Madeleine Cornell appeared here and stated her case to Prosecutor Hollandersky, claiming that her husband had married another woman, Theresa Moroni, in New London, in July, 1921. That was bigamy, if the statement of wife No. 1 was correct. The prosecutor investigated and found that Cornell had married here. He was located at Staten Island and there an officer was sent to bring him to New London on requisition. Cornell explained in court today the situation and showed his divorce papers, or the papers that were represented to be a decree of separation. The disclosure was in the nature of a surprise, for it gave the case a turn that was not anticipated. It was then disclosed by the prosecutor that Miller is the lawyer who ran a divorce mill in Providence and did a big business in securing divorces that were not of any value. They were bogus divorces. Anyhow Cornell must answer in the superior court at Norwich next month, for he is held in a bond of $500 to appear then. Cornell is the father of several children.

BARGEMEN OFF WATER WAGON GIVEN ADVICE IN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 8—Two bargemen fell off the water wagon when they came to New London last night and today they had landed in the police court. They are Christian Neilson and Henry King, the latter from the barge Hope. He said he had sustained the fracture of two ribs and had been under treatment. The past two or three weeks had been such on the barge that he was discouraged, so when he came ashore he met friends and took a few drinks more than he could take care of. He was fined $10 to remind him that he had been in court, but the execution of judgment was suspended that he might use the money his fine represented to have his ribs attended to.

Nelson is a state of Washington man. He, too, had fooled with liquor, became intoxicated and could not navigate. He was advised as to the course he should sail and then he was released. He said he was a Swede and that he was employed on an Irish tug. Perhaps that accounted for his predicament.

City Manager William A. Holt has caused a small section of the north side of State street to be restricted against parking and to carry out that order the police have placed conspicuous signs designating that section of the street where parking will not be allowed. The restricted section is in front of the Crown theatre and for a distance of 60 feet.

William Z. White, acting clerk at a meeting of the council of the Second Congregational church, held last night, was instructed to cause a letter to be forwarded to the New London police department and New London fire department, extending to each the appreciation of the church trustees and council for the highly efficient work performed by each when fire attacked and gutted the church a week ago.

Mrs. J. V. Lawrence of 60 West Colt street, was walking along Blackhall street last night when she was attacked by a dog, but she was not bitten to the extent that her flesh was broken. Mrs. Lawrence reported the matter to the police this afternoon and it was turned over to Dog Warden John Sweeny for investigation.

George A. Shaw, 185 Bank street, was arrested by Patrolman Henry Sylvia this afternoon charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinance whereby automobiles are prohibited from parking in the highway longer than 12 hours. It is claimed that Shaw's automobile was parked in one place more than 24 hours. He was ordered to present himself in the police court Friday morning.

Patrolman William Graham reported at the police station this evening that a hole and a dangerous one, exists on the north side of Main street, near Richards street and that pedestrians are in danger of being injured by falling. The property is owned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Patrolman Graham also reported that the sidewalk in front of property owned by the Billings Crandall estate at 435 Main street, has not been relieved of snow and that another danger spot is created by the snow being allowed to remain there.

Mrs. Nathan Lubow of 37 Alger street, made complaint to the police this afternoon that boys from Perry street entered her premises and struck her little daughter.

Mrs. Michial Durady and infant daughter, 175 Montauk avenue, and Mrs. Charles Newell, 44 Franklin street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Frank M. Tow, 74, died this morning at his residence, 181 Connecticut avenue, after an illness of about three weeks. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. J. A. Kinmay of this city. Mr. Tow was a mechanic and was last employed in Fulton, N. Y. He was born at Scituate, R. I., and had resided in New London 46 years.

Mrs. Eliza Beckwith, formerly of Niantic, widow of Charles D. Beckwith, at one time freight agent at Niantic of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died yesterday at the residence of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Julius Beckwith in New York. Mrs. Beckwith was of advanced years and resided practically her entire life at Niantic. Following the death of her husband two years ago, Mrs. Beckwith resided with her sister, Mrs. Augusta Quigley of Niantic, and about four months ago moved to New York. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Charles Leonard and Mrs. Augusta Quigley, both of Niantic. Mrs. Beckwith's son, Julius Beckwith died about five years ago and her daughter, Miss Maude Beckwith died 25 years ago.

Mrs. Jennie Fischer, 69, widow of Jacob Fischer, formerly of Boston, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Fischer, 578 Bank street, after an illness of but three weeks. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Fischer is survived by two sisters and a brother, all residing in Boston.

Director of Finance Carey Congdon, is confined to his home, Highland apartments, Granite street, by a severe attack of grip.

George H. Gallup of Jordan Village, underwent an operation at Lawrence-Memorial hospital yesterday for appendicitis. His condition is reported as favorable.

Members of the committee on home missionary work of Star of the Sea branch, Ladies Catholic Benevolent association, met at the home of Mrs. Julius A. Koch in Bank street yesterday to pack a barrel of clothing to send to the Sisters of the Sacred Heart in Montana. It is the custom of the group to send such a gift semi-annually. The members of the committee are: Mrs. Koch, president; Mrs. Thomas Cahey, Mrs. Conrad Stick, Miss Mary Conden and Mrs. Frank E. G. Douglas.

FIVE YOUTHS WERE GIVEN STATE PRISON SENTENCES

HARTFORD, Dec. 8—(AP)—Seven youths were sentenced to the state prison by Judge Edwin C. Dickenson in the superior court today. State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn referred to the probation law as a joke when applied to criminal characters and advocated prison sentences to stop "this avalanche of crime." These were the features of the second day of the superior court on the criminal side.

George Lynch, 20, Hartford, was sentenced to one year in jail for having in his possession burglar's tools in West Hartford.

On a plea of guilty to assault, Dock Harris, 34, Negro, Hartford, was sentenced to jail for one month.

A third offender on the charge of violating the liquor laws, Stanley Trbaska, of New Britain, was sentenced to jail for three months.

Pleading guilty to theft of a doctor's car on Adams street, New Britain, November 29, Albert Markus, 17, of New Britain, was sent back to the Connecticut reformatory from which he was on parole and Anthony Fedorcak of the same city, was put on probation until the next term of the superior court.

Walter O'Mara, Hartford, pleaded guilty to assaulting a Hartford doctor October 17, while he was drunk. He was sentenced to the Connecticut reformatory, execution of the sentence suspended, and was put on probation.

Stanley Jenkowsky, of Bloomfield, was fined $25 for tampering with an automobile.

For a breach of the peace in Berlin, Rinaldi Romegially was fined $25 and costs and was given a suspended sentence of 30 days.

Frank Jackson, 24, Hartford, was sentenced to jail for six months on a plea of guilty to aggravated assault on a companion.

NO MILITARY SECRET IN ITALIAN-ALBANIAN TREATY

ROME, Dec. 8—(AP)—The recently signed Italian-Albanian treaty contains no secret military clauses and in no way can be considered injurious to peace in the Balkans, Italian officials stated today.

The treaty, it was asserted, is merely a pact of friendship and arbitration between Italy and Albania, insuring peace, guaranteeing absolute sovereignty and territorial integrity to Albania, and confirming and emphasizing the principles upheld by the league of nations.

Instead of being a means of penetration into Albania, it was described as a solemn proclamation of Italy abstension from internal Albanian affairs. Finally, it was stated, the treaty was within the Adriatic radius, did not regard or affect the policy of the Balkans and that therefore it was absurd to describe it as injurious to Balkan peace.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

For the last half of this week on the stage and screen of the Strand theatre will be seen celebrated stars of both forms of entertainment.

Keith-Albee Vaudeville stars will grace the boards and footlights—five acts, each one of which is a big time feature act.

Missing bonds—fleeing thieves—cops in hot pursuit—an idling son covering himself with glory in the final climax!

For swift-moving comedy melodrama with thrills and laughs vieing from the first scene to the last fade-out, it would be difficult to improve upon "The Broadway Gallant," in which Richard Talmadge is bombarding local audiences with grenades of entertainment at the Strand theatre where his latest production is being screened under the auspices of F. B. O.

"The Broadway Gallant" is a triumph of derring with Dick Talmadge taking greater chances in the execution of stunts than ever before. The stunts in question are better seen than described. Dick discloses many of his old ones and dozens of new ones in the bargain. The chase for the bonds produces any number of startling thrills.

Breed Theatre

Throbbing with some of the greatest football scenes ever put on the screen Greater F. B. O.'s famous production of "One Minute to Play," starring Red Grange, will be shown at the Breed theatre for three days, beginning today. The noted University of Illinois "Galloping Ghost," probably the most wonderful player who ever donned moleskins, gives a remarkable exhibition of his versatility and extraordinary broken-field running in the brilliant climax of the film, as well as proving himself a splendid actor, with a great screen versatility. The direction by Sam Wood is an achievement in itself, and an excellent cast, including Mary McAllister, Ben Hendricks, Jr., Lincoln Steadman, Edythe Chapman, Lee Shumway and Jay Hunt, handle the supporting roles convincingly. George Wilson, the famous All-American halfback from the University of Washington squad, leads the opposing team in the picture, and does much to make the gridiron scenes realistic and vivid. The story and continuity were both written by Byron Morgan, noted for his work on the late Wallace Reid's racing tales.

Herbert Campbell Going to Detroit

Herbert Campbell will leave Sunday evening for a trip to Detroit, Pontiac and Milford, Mich. He is one of the many salesmen leaving Connecticut by special train out of Springfield Sunday evening. The trip includes a stop at Niagara Falls, St. Johns, Canada and Detroit where they will inspect the General Motors building, then on to Pontiac, where a general inspection of the factory will take place. Thence the party will go to Milford, Mich., where they will look over the General Motors proving grounds, where all General Motors cars are tested. They will also be the main topic of a motion picture which will be taken while they are there and which later will be shown at the New York Automobile show.

Palace Theatre

The Palace theatre opens this afternoon with the usual week end program of big time acts, a show that will long linger in your memory, with offerings of high class singing, comedy dancing, and music, a bill that will dispel all doubts as to why the Palace theatre is becoming the ideal vaudeville playhouse of Norwich. Topping the show, Mademoiselle Andre & Co., with a cast of 10 capable artists, in a melange of melody, music and some nifty stepping, an abundance of real entertainment. Another big feature of the show in the offering of the Billie Goldie revue peopled by pretty girls, alive with sprightly dances, and specialty contributions. The real comedy of the evening will be furnished by Pierce Arrow, with clever chatter and gags about automobiling, two other big acts will complete the vaudeville program that will satisfy the most skeptical of vaudeville fans. The chief film attraction in addition to the big show today, Florence Vidor in "The Popular Sin" a tense, interesting drama of marriage and divorce, laid against a background of Parisian stage and society life. In loving two women at the same time the Popular Sin? A picture you will heartily enjoy, because it involves a subject of today.

METHOD FOR COMPUTING R. R. OPERATION COSTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(AP)—Testimony regarding the method by which railroads should compute operating costs fairly was given here today at the hearing of the interstate commerce commission on complaints against the petition of New England railroads to increase milk transportation costs.

John H. Libby, expert statistician of Washington, D. C., representing the milk interests of New England, said the "car foot mile" plan of computing operating costs, upon which the railroads base their petition for a higher milk transportation rate, is not a fair way to estimate charges.

The commission's investigation started last April after the Boston and Maine, the Rutland, the Delaware and Hudson, and the Greenwich and Johnsonville railroads declared intentions of boosting the milk rate. Hearings have been held by the commission in Boston, Plymouth, Mass., and Portsmouth, N. H., today's session will be continued during the week and probably the first part of next week, either in New York city or Boston.

CAMPAIGN STARTED TO STOP THE USE OF "XMAS"

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—(AP)—Youngsters may not mind whether it is spelled "Xmas" or "Christmas" as long as Santa Claus makes his annual visit with toys and candies, but a campaign is to be started to eliminate the use of "Xmas" as being "contrary and alien to the reverence" due the word.

Several clergymen will speak against use of the abbreviated word from their pulpits in this city, on December 12 and there will be radio addresses for the same purpose. The sponsors of the move hold that "Xmas" has a "subtle tendency to destroy the beautiful thoughts in connection with Christmas as well as to bring the name of Christ to the very brink of contempt." Cardinal Hayes and Bishop William T. Manning were named as churchmen who have endorsed the campaign.

$500,000 BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT READY FOR THE JURY

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 8—(AP)—John W. Hubbard, had his day in federal court today in defending himself against the $500,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Anne Caldwell, New York show girl.

The wealthy shovel manufacturer made a general denial to charges by the musical revue actress that he proposed marriage, gave her an engagement ring or introduced her to his friends as his intended wife.

The defense rested when Hubbard left the stand. Miss Caldwell in rebuttal denied statements by defense witnesses that she ever said she did not mean anything more to Hubbard than any other girl or that she had "flirted" with the manufacturer in an Atlantic City cabaret at the time they met.

The case will go to the jury tomorrow.

Far-Sighted Eyes.

A common error concerning the eyes is, that if the child can see clearly, his eyes are all right and are fit for school work without glasses. Far-sightedness, unless of unusually high degree, allows clear vision at near and distant points.

A far-sighted eye may be able to see perfectly at six inches, and an eye with perfect focus can be made to do so at four inches. Either distance is closer to the eye than objects that are looked at for more than an instant should be held. But the far-sighted eye sees clearly only by making an extra effort. It has to work just as hard to focus at six inches as the perfectly focused eye does at four. It is far-sighted, not in the sense that it can see things farther away than the perfectly focused eye, but in the sense that it is more handicapped for near seeing than for seeing at a distance. Even for seeing at a distance it has to keep up the focusing effort, and it has to keep up the focusing effort even at a time when the eye with perfect focus, or the eye with its correcting glass, can relax entirely, says the Hygeia.

Even if the defect of focus is the far-sighted eye is not very great, the constant need to make up for it is a cause of nerve strain that frequently results in headaches. If astigmatism is added to far-sightedness, an additional strain is caused.

Uncorrected far-sight, with or without astigmatism, is often the origin of distaste for reading and other school work. The healthy child does not like to be punished by eyestrain and, without talking much about what his sensations are, he avoids instinctively those sensations which are unpleasant. This may cause his entire education to be a failure, but it does save his eyes and nervous system from harm. If the instinct is the only safeguard afforded, nature falls back on it even at the cost of sacrificing educational opportunities. The boy who will not study is sometimes nearer right than are parents or school authorities who will not have his eyes examined to see if glasses are needed.

Woodpeckers are ruining the tallest flagpole in the United States. It is 346 feet high and is at Camp Lewis, Wash. A thick coating of tar will be smeared on the pole to discourage the birds.

MARITIME PATROL ON DAILY WATCH OF SEAS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP)—While seas quietly lap the shores of the world, a vigilant maritime patrol, unknown to most "landlubbers," busily stalks the silent but treacherous foes to commercial shipping.

Icebergs, floating debris, land abutments, drifting buoys, derelicts and opaque fogs are constant menaces to navigation against which war must be waged. The nerve center of operations the world over is the hydrographic office of the navy department.

This bureau tries first of all to keep a finger on the whereabouts of all dangers to shipping about which it is imperative, in safety's cause, to know. An elaborate intelligence service, enlisting cooperation of hydrographic services of other countries, assists the bureau to chart known impediments to water traffic, and send out warnings.

Constant communication with ships at sea, advising them of newly sighted derelicts, rafts, and other things is maintained. The bureau supplies all navigators with information and asks their reciprocation by advising of the longitude and latitude if icebergs and other straylings. It immediately disseminates the news over all ocean highways.

Meanwhile the navy and coast guard annihilation squadrons are notified and patrols sent to visit the scenes of drifters and remove them.

A task which the coast guard tackled last July was to find and destroy 37 steel cylindrical pontoons which were lost from a barge that broke adrift off the coast of North Carolina, menacing coastwise shipping.

A target raft which had to be abandoned during a hurricane while it was being towed caused "policemen of the main" some trouble. After a 10 day search it was located, the position signaled to the hydrographic bureau and six destroyers were sent to look for it. The minesweeper "Raif" eventually picked up the tow, and hauled it into port.

Reconnaissance patrols are maintained along water highways in the spring months to look out for errant icebergs. The patrols are withdrawn June 30 when it is assumed the shipping lanes are safe. The duty of patrol boats is to report daily the situation in their territories to the hydrographic office which rebroadcasts twice a day warnings to mariners.

Invaluable service is carried on by radio from the hydrographic office for the guidance of open-sea navigators who may lack knowledge of conditions on approaching American shores. Radio compass bearings are broadcast to aid them.

Food of Fishes

Keeping track of the one-celled plants and animals, too small to be seen except with a microscope, yet vastly important as the ultimate food of fishes and all other sea life, is the task of W. E. Allen, of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, La Jolla, Cal. Though these minute plants, belonging mainly to the diatom family, are too small to be eaten directly by fishes, they form the food of tiny shrimplike creatures that in their turn form the food of fishes. An understanding of the effects on the diatoms of light, temperature, chemical and other conditions is therefore important in building up an eventual complete understanding of fisheries and other sea industries, Mr. Allen explains.

MARKET WAS SPECULATIVE

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Frequent shifts of speculative sentiment gave today's stock market the appearance of irregularity throughout most of the session, with final quotations generally lower on the day. The selling was not influenced by any change in the business situation which, in the main, continued favorable, but rather by the allure of the public to respond to reent "melon cutting" and "Christmas dividends" by entering the market on the long side.

While money rates ordinarily stiffen at this season of the year, due to the heavy year-end demand for funds, the fact that the new treasury financing is on a 3 1-4 per cent basis was accepted as evidence that no permanent credit stringency was in sight. Freight car loadings continue to run well above those of the corresponding period last year, and the slackening in steel mill operations is off-set by the expansion in railroad buying for delivery in the first quarter of 1927.

The traditional "selling on the good news" followed the announcement of a 50 per cent stock dividend by the F. W. Woolworth company, the stock reacting from an early high of 194 1-2 to 188 3-8, closing at 189 for a net loss of 2 1-2 points on the day. The stock has fluctuated between 135 1-2 and 222 this year. U. S. Steel closed fractionally lower at 149 1-8 after selling as high as 150 7-8, despite predictions of a sizeable increase in November unfilled orders to be made public Friday noon. Fractional recessions also were recorded by General Motors, Chrysler, Allied Chemical and a number of other recent favorites.

Selling pressure was particularly acute against such recent strong spots as International Harvester, Porto Rican Tobacco, and Case Threshing, all off 3 to 5 points. Independent strength was shown by a few high priced industrials. National Lead and Lacede Gas each scored extreme gains of over 9 points, the latter touching a new high record at 196 1-4. Loose Wiles Biscuit, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, South Porto Rican Sugar, Atlantic Refining, Green Cananea Copper and Remington Typewriter all closed 3 or more points higher.

Eureka Vacuum was bid up to a new peak price at 63 on reports of record breaking holiday sales. Among the score or so other issues to break through their previous 1926 high prices were Coca Cola, Wilson Co. A., Texas Co. (new), U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Otis Elevator and Vivadou common and preferred.

Rails displayed a firm undertone with the best buying in the northwestern carriers. Atchison preferred, Lehigh Valley and Great Northern preferred touched new peak prices.

Steadiness of cotton prices in the face of another upward revision in the government's cotton crop estimate to 18,618,000 bales, not including linters, featured the commodity markets. Cotton futures actually rallied on publication of the report, but lost their gain and closed 3 to 5 points net lower. Decembder wheat declined about a cent a bushel, but the more distant options showed little change. Raw sugar eased 1-16 of a cent a pound and coffee prices showed slight improvement.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent and held steady at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Another outburst of buying in French francs, which carried them above 4 cents to a new high level for the year, overshadowed all other developments in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around $4.84 1-2 but most of the continental rates were slightly firmer.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A strong market for foreign bonds stood out in contrast to the irregular price tendencies of domestic issues today. Trading continued to expand in volume but firmer time money conditions caused some profit taking among obligations which had been prominent in the recent advance.

The satisfactory operation of the Dawes plan and the improved outlook for currency stabilization in Europe created a better demand for German and Belgian issues, several of which sold at new high levels for the year German government 7s held above 106 and both the Belgian 7s and 6 1-2s worked into new high ground, gains of a point or so were recorded by the Berlin and

TAFTVILLE

Ponemah hall was crowded to capacity Tuesday evening, the opening night of the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church, when "June Time" a comedy in three acts was presented by some of the members of the Dramatic club. The players carried their parts to perfection, and the audience was generous with applause. In fact, the comedy was one of the cleverest plays ever produced locally. It would have been difficult to pick the star of the caste.

The caste of characters follows: Constance Wilbur, Miss Elsie Heap; Florette, Miss Wilbur's maid, Miss Dorothy Campbell; Mabel Brown, Miss Blossie M. Meyer; Oliver Cromwell Brown, her husband, Oscar E. Mathewson, Jr; Dr. Curtis Brown, a young physician, Harold E. Linderson; Elouise Mitchell, a nurse, Miss Louise Sigrist; Dr. Jeremiah Rust, a specialist on contagious diseases, Robert E. Cooper. The comedy was presented under the direction of Miss Gertrude M. Young, and before the curtain and during the intermissions between the acts there were piano selections by Miss Alma Boutilier of Occum.

Attractively decorated booths about the hall did a rushing business, and the committee in charge feel that the fair this year will be a great success. At the apron booth were Mrs. John Wohlleben and Mrs. Harold E. Linderson.

Mrs. Elsie K. Pingree, Mrs. George J. Meyer, Mrs. George Helmholdt and Mrs. John Volkman were at the fancy work booth. The candy booth was in charge of Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis, Miss Edith Heap, Miss Dorothy M. Aberg, Miss Mildred Terrington, Miss Dorothy Hunt and Miss Ruby Houston.

At the quick lunch counter were Alan Bogle, Earl Mathewson, Laughlin Houston, Ralph Hunt and James Heap. The home cooking booth was in charge of Mrs. Adam Leupold, Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears, Mrs. Arthur E. Atkins, Mrs. Eugene N. Nafie and Mrs. Clarence J. Nagle.

Ice cream was sold by Mrs. Selena R. Adams, Miss Melba Monty and Miss Edna Krodel. Mrs. Allan Bogle acted as cashier at this booth. The tickets and door were in charge of Gustave Hedler and Martin Wohleben.

Wednesday being the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, patronal festival of the United States and holy day of obligation of the Roman Catholic church throughout the world, there were special masses at Sacred Heart church. At 5:30 a. m. Rev. John Malley read a low mass, and at 7, Rev. Henri F. Chagnon was the celebrant. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, the pastor was the celebrant at the high mass sung at 8 o'clock. In the evening there was the annual reception of new members of the Children of Mary society, followed by benediction of the blessed sacrament. The Sacred Heart school held no sessions Tuesday. During the early part of the week the three priests of the local church have been assisting at the forty hours devotion at St. Mary's Memorial church.

Hormidas Gladue and family of South A street have moved to a house on North Third street.

Meyer Blumenthal of Norwich was a business caller in the village Monday.

Edward Barnes and family of Westerly have moved to the house at 25 South Second avenue.

Emery Bellerose of Terrace avenue has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

A meeting of the Sunbeam class of the Taftville Congregational church school was held at the home of Miss Stephania Horoszko of South Third avenue Friday evening. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. John Wohlleben.

SPEAKER TELLS ROTARIANS OF HIS HOPES FOR DEVELOPMENT OF CHINA

China and Its Possibilities was the topic of a very interesting talk given by Frank B. Lenz, director of the educational activities for the foreign division of the Y. M. C. A. at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Lenz, who is a native of California, substituted on the program for another speaker, who was unable to be present.

For six years Mr. Lenz was secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Nangchang, China, a tremendous inland capital remote from the pressure of western business enterprises. In this great interior city Mr. Lenz, through his sincere and wholehearted brotherliness, was able to establish friendships with all the chief officials of the province. He was a welcome caller and guest at the homes of both military and civil governors. He was acquainted with the provincial chief of police, the leading bankers and business men. All of these were drawn into keen support of the Y. M. C. A. heading the list of finance membership campaign workers and following with great interest the association developments among the young men of the city.

In his talk Mr. Lenz said that from his observations China is just emerging from a long sleep and if left alone will take her place among the great nations of the world. China holds America in great respect and looks to this country as the greatest in the world. At the present time there are four distinct revolutions going on in China. There is the political revolution with the revolutionists trying to establish a republican government. Then there is the industrial revolution, the intellectual revolution and the moral and spiritual revolution. China is waking up and becoming modernized. Some say that this internal stirring up will be the death of China, but let me tell you that a civilization that has continued for 4,000 years does not die easily. We must be patient with China and let her set her house in order.

It is a wonder to me that there has not been more bloodshed in China than there has. Certain parts of China are not governed by Chinese law which is a thing that distresses the citizens. A number of countries have treaty ports or concessions where Chinese law does not exist. A criminal of any of these nations can only be prosecuted by his own country's courts and not in the Chinese courts.

The Chinese are practical idealists and teaching them the story of Christ is not so hard provided we start where Confucius left off. In this way they readily accept Christ as a second Confucius, and our Y. M. C. A. work goes on with little trouble. China is going to be one of the great nations of the world, if all other nations will adopt a hand-offs policy and let them work out their own problems.

Judge Nelson J. Ayling spoke on the work of the newly organized civic council explaining the purpose of such a council. Judge Ayling said that the organization was made up of the president and secretary of each of the civic organizations in the city with the purpose in view of promoting community interest and welfare. At the meeting of Nov. 29th the matter of a town and city planning board was discussed and highly advocated by the members of the council. He said that this was a matter in which all citizens of Norwich should become interested.

At the business session President Edwin A. Harris presided and Flint Brayton acted as song leader. There were selections by the guests and visiting Rotarians and a novelty song by Mr. Brayton. Matters of a routine nature were considered and the program was turned over to Lucius Briggs who introduced the speakers of the day.

MEASLES IN STATE INCREASE 100 PER CENT

According to the morbidity report of the state department of health for last week there has been an increase in the number of cases of some preventable diseases during the period for which the report was made, as compared with that of the previous week. New cases of diphtheria increased from 25 to 32, and those of scarlet fever from 44 to 58. In 69 cases of measles there was an increase in the number of new cases of over 100 per cent. But cases of whooping cough fell from 52 to 33. The report makes special mention of the fact that "no cases of typhoid were reported this week." There were 143 new cases of chicken pox reported.

The department also issued its report for the month of November. In the report attention is called to the continued decline in the birth rate of the state. The report predicts that as compared with 1924 the birth rate will have declined 3 per 1,000 population below that of 1924 and that the number of births this year will be 4,600 less than the number of 1924. The report adds that the marriage rate is also decreasing. There has been some lowering in the death rate. It is especially gratifying, says the report, to note the entire absence of deaths from diphtheria. Influenza has also decreased, "and it is now doubtful if any serious epidemic will occur this year."

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH HOLDS HOLIDAY SALE

From 9 o'clock on Wednesday, the annual Christmas sale of fancy articles, food, candy and holiday novelties for the benefit of the Parish Aid society, Girls' Friendly society and Junior auxiliary of Christ Episcopal church was held at the office of the Norwich gas and electric department, Shetucket street, being liberally patronized.

The chairmen of the three organizations interested, Mrs. Francis Gilman, Mrs. C. Montgomery Budlong and Miss Mary L. Osgood had the assistance of Miss Katherine A. Kent, Miss Mary E. Richards, Miss Susan L. Gallup, Mrs. Gardiner Greene, Mrs. Fred G. Prothero, Mrs. Laura Williams and Miss Louise Robinson.

A specialty was made of Christmas cards, decorations and favors, and on this table as well as in the varied assortment of dainty articles of needlework there were many novelties, which met a ready sale. By mid-afternoon the stocks were practically disposed of.

The members of the committee expressed acknowledgment to the gas and electric officials for the generous loan of the accessible and well lighted office space for the sale.

Dentists of County Met

Dr. Frank Lena and Dr. Max Hertz of New London were elected into membership of the New London County Dental association at the regular monthly meeting at the Wauregan hotel, Tuesday night. The meeting is intended to an interesting lecture by Dr. Paul McGowan of Boston on removable bridge work.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES IN PROVIDENCE TO MERGE

A decrease in the membership of the Union Congregational church, Providence, R. I., has resulted in the merging of its congregation with that of Plymouth Congregational church and the abandonment of the old church building which has served the community for the past 55 years, Rev. Theodore Bacheler, pastor of Union church, has worked continually for the amalgamation of the two churches, believing that such a course would work for the best.

The plan of the merger as adopted calls for a new organization to be known as the Plymouth-Union Congregational church, for equal representation from both bodies on all official boards of the church and for the creation of a memorial which will commemorate the 55 years of service given the city by Union church.

Rev. Theodore Bacheler was formerly the pastor of the Federated church of Willington, composed of congregations of Willington Hill and South Willington. In 1920 he was unanimously chosen pastor of the Union Congregational church of Providence, which at that time had a membership of 870 and was the second largest Congregational church in that city.

Mr. Bacheler is a graduate of Roanoke college and the Yale School of Religion. He was ordained in the ministry in 1917 at North Madison. In college Mr. Bacheler distinguished himself as a debater and gave much time to public speaking. He entered the World war as a chaplain, having the rank of first lieutenant, and was awarded the chaplain's bronze medal by the government.

Rev. Mr. Bacheler is the nephew of Miss Mary M. Bacheler of 22 East Town street, Norwich Town, and the son of Rev. Francis B. Bacheler, pastor of the Talcottville Congregational church for many years.

THE MOTHER OF CHRIST REVERED AT ST. PATRICK'S

Three masses, at 5, 7 and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, commemorated at St. Patrick's church the feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Mass at 5 was read by Rev. Myles P. Galvin, that at 7 by Rev. John J. Reilly and at 8 by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May. At the last mass Organist Henry J. LaFontaine played, the singing being by Mrs. George Roberts and Roderick F. Sullivan. At the offertory, Mr. Sullivan gave Dr. Jules Jordan's Ave Maria, a composition which he always interprets in a manner which brings out its beauties of melody and phrasing. The altar hangings and vestments were white, and psalms and prayers all tended to accentuate the belief in the singular privilege by which, through the merits of Christ, the mother of Christ was preserved from taint of original sin from the very moment she was conceived.

At all the masses many went to holy communion, at 8 o'clock Monsignor May requiring the assistance of Rev. Father Reilly in administering the eucharist. Isaias, Proverbs, Canticles, Judith and St. Luke were the sources from which the epistle, prayers and gospel of the feast were taken. Flowers in white and gold were on the three altars.

Personal Tax Delinquents in Court.

At the city court session Wednesday morning several delinquent payers of personal taxes were presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby. They were fined $5 each and ordered to pay their back taxes. Others are to be summoned in for hearing on failure to pay their taxes. A Milford, Mass., man went to jail to work out a fine of $5 and costs for intoxication.

WARNINGS IN STATE OF BAD CHECK PASSER

Chambers of commerce around the state are issuing warnings to business men to be on the lookout for a clever fraudulent check operator, who has met with considerable success in Bridgeport and other cities of the state. In Bridgeport he presented the business card of Brewer & Co., Inc., Chemists, 100 John street, New York, with his name V. W. Brewer in the corner. He visited property owners there, seeking two acres of industrial land on the railroad where he proposed to build a new plant. He secured a 48-hour option on the property, planning to return the next day to close the deal.

Meanwhile, at his request he was introduced to some bankers, and with them planned banking connections. He also met officers of a reliable title searching concern. Then he visited a jewelry store, purchased articles of considerable value and offered a check of greater value giving the names of some of the influential people he had met, asking for the article and the difference between its value and the check in cash. As it happened in Bridgeport the jeweler called one of the bankers and the banker stated that he had just met him, but that the company which he represented was all right. On the strength of this, the jeweler delivered the merchandise. There are, of course, other ways in which the man might work, and local business men are being requested to notify the local chamber of commerce secretary if such an individual should put in an appearance in local stores. He is described as being 5 feet, 10 inches in height, and weighs about 150 pounds. He is about 40 years of age and when in Bridgeport wore a black overcoat, a black derby hat, spats and tan shoes.

TWO MONTVILLE ARRESTS ON LIQUOR CHARGES

State police of the Groton barracks arrested Ganis Bulik and Mrs. Annie Haininck of Montville on liquor charges Tuesday. Bulik was fined $100 and costs when later presented before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church and Mrs. Haininck's case being continued.

Armed with search warrants based on knowledge that liquor was alleged to have been located at houses of each of the accused, the state policemen swooped down suddenly on the two places.

A ten-gallon still and a quantity of alleged mash was found at the Bulik home and five gallons of alleged alcohol, three gallons of alleged wine, and a small quantity of alleged beer was found at the home of Mrs. Hainick. The latter was released on her own cognizance, pending her hearing of the case.

Rabbit Disease Hits Cotton-Tails.

The United States bureau of biological survey has issued a warning relating to the serious inroad on the cotton-tails of the west of a rabbit disease known as tularemia. It is a disease that not only may seriously affect the status of rabbits in this state, were it to become prevalent, but it may likewise cause sickness and sometimes death in humans, says a circular letter to fish and game clubs from State Superintendent J. W. Titcomb of this state, who advises that all should cooperate very carefully to avoid any new disaster by the importation of destructive diseases.

PROHIBITION SUBJECT OF BITTER DEBATE IN HOUSE

Wordy Battle Waged Over Proposed Appropriation of $13,000,000 For Enforcement by the Prohibition Unit and $15,000,000 For the Coast Guard to Combat Rum Runners—In the Discussion the Wets Outnumbered the Drys Four to Two—Wayne B. Wheeler Was Assailed and Defended.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A prohibition storm broke in the house today, the flood of wet and dry oratory unloosed almost submerging the measure that caused it, the treasury appropriation bill carrying approximately $13,000,000 for enforcement by the prohibition unit. The measure also carries over $15,000,000 for the coast guard to combat rum running.

Wets outnumbered the drys four to two before the speaker's dais, and between them they invoked virtually all popular arguments for or against the enforcement act.

The attack began with a scathing denunciation of prohibition in all its phases by Rep. Gallivan, democrat, Massachusetts, who was particularly vehement when he assailed Wayne B. Wheeler and the Anti-Saloon league.

Rep. Blanton, democrat, Texas, rose to the defense of prohibition and Wheeler. Rep. Luce, republican, Massachusetts, also upheld the dry side.

Declaring he owed it to his constituency, his conscience and his manhood to vote against the prohibition appropriation, Mr. Gallivan said he was opposed to giving "one single thin dime" for enforcement.

"Because I object to wasting money in feeding the jackals and turkey buzzards of prohibition," he said he would vote against any appropriation "designed to continue this futile farce of enforcing a non-enforceable law and taxing my fellow citizens to swell the volume of lawlessness, depravity, corruption and dishonesty now befouling and debauching the American republic."

To get the "prohibition alley cat off the backs of so-called American statesmen," Gallivan said he was willing to "compromise" and vote a liberal pension to Wheeler, provided he was sent to Mexico or Russia.

Referring to Mexico and Russia, Gallivan declared "the time is coming when we shall need all the money the taxpayer is sweating for." He charged that the "very elements that have engineered prohibition in this country" are helping to upset Russia and are assisting the "recrutive activities" of President Calles of Mexico.

Rep. Blanton said that while Mr. Gallivan "enjoys the respect of the 30 Bostonians of his district, Wayne B. Wheeler commands the respect of the entire moral forces of the United States."

Rep. Luce said democrats of his state had again demonstrated their capacity for blundering and pointed to his own victory with an overwhelming dry vote as indication that Massachusetts has not abdicated to the wets.

The contention that moral forces are not aligned with prohibition was expressed by Rep. Griffin, democrat, New York, who pointed to the overwhelming vote in the referendum in his state and in others in favor of modification of the Volstead act. In these referenda, he said, 40,000,000 people in recent years had directly or indirectly registered themselves as opposed to prohibition or in favor of modification.

Recalling the referendum in New York, Rep. O'Connor, democrat, of that state, declared his conviction that any "member of this body, who believes that prohibition as it exists in law today is contrary to the wishes of the majority of his constituents or the people of his country, is in honor bound to vote against this appropriation for enforcement."

He was supported by Rep. Connery, democrat, Massachusetts, who said the people of his state had sent Senator David I. Walsh back to Washington as a mark of their disapproval of the dry law.

NEW BRITAIN LINEMAN WAS ELECTROCUTED YESTERDAY

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—After six and a half hours of attempted artificial respiration by men working in relays, while an ambulance from the New Britain General hospital stood by and an electric store supplied warming pads and other accessories, physicians gave up hope that a spark of life might have been left in the body of Anton Babst, 45, through which 13,800 volts passed this morning when he accidentally cut into a high power wire.

Babst, for over 20 years a lineman for the Connecticut Light and Power company, was working on a temporary staging when the accident happened. He was taken to the ground at great risk by two fellow workmen, Earl Pierson and James McCarthy. Although there was no evidence of life, rigor mortis and other signs of death were equally lacking and it was not until late afternoon that he was pronounced dead.

Babst is survived by a widow and one daughter, Florance, also employed by the Connecticut Light and Power company.

BOAT WAS CAPTURED AFTER 21 MILE RUNNING BATTLE

SCITUATE, Mass., Dec. 9.— (AP) — After a 25 mile running battle from Cape Cod to Scituate, coast guardsmen today captured the swift motorboat Madee of Providence, with a cargo of choice liquors aboard. The crew of the Madee escaped by running the vessel into a shallow river where a coastguard destroyer could not follow.

The destroyer Wall picked up the Madee off the Cape Cod shore but the speed of the motorboat made it impossible for the pursuer to overhaul her. Six shots were fired and bullets scarred the hull of the Madee but failed to disable her. She put into Scituate harbor and up the North river, where the destroyer, of much greater draft, dared not follow.

By the time a small launch from the North Scituate Coast guard station had been pressed into service, to navigate the river, the Madee was tied up and her crew of six men had fled. The captive boat was under strong guard tonight while coast guardsmen awaited orders for disposal of the craft. The vessel, 50 feet long, carried three Liberty motors.

SPEECH FROM THRONE TODAY TO CANADIAN PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Canada's 16th parliament since confederation today was formally convened, and after election of a speaker of the house of commons adjourned until tomorrow, when Governor General Willingdon will read the speech from the throne.

The opening session was held in the senate shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon. The gentleman usher of the black rod, Colonel W. H. Thompson, then summoned the members of the house to the senate to meet Chief Justice Anglin, the deputy governor general.

The members of the house then returned to their own chamber where Rodolphe Lemieux, speaker of the house since 1921, was re-elected. Three new senators were formally introduced and took their seats today.

CHAPLIN WILL CONTEST FOR ONE OF HIS SONS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Charlie Chaplin would be satisfied to take one of his two sons and let his estranged wife, the former Lita Grey of the screen, keep the other if that would be an acceptable compromise in the marital difficulties of the comedian and his wife, Edward Manson, special representative of Mr. Chaplin, said today.

Mrs. Chaplin, however, denounced the plan as "absurd."

"I will never agree to the children being separated," she said, "and furthermore I am going to keep them both."

George Beebe, attorney for Mrs. Chaplin, said every effort would be made to settle the differences between the Chaplins out of court.

FRAUDULENT DEALERS IN STOCK WERE FINED $100

TORRINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—Harry H. Mitchell, of Watertown, and William Welch, of this city, were each fined $100 with costs in city court this morning on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Their arrests followed a series of stock transactions in which it is alleged they kept money, to the amount of about $500, which they collected for the Severin Manufacturing company. The man settled with that concern, however and Prosecuting Attorney Thomas J. Wall, recommended that the cases be nolled upon payment of the fines and costs.

EXPLOSION IN INDIANA MINE CAUSED 20 DEATHS

PRINCETON, Ind., Dec. 9.—(AP)—An explosion in the Francisco mine No. 1 near here today took a known toll of 20 lives. Fourteen other miners were still in the mine tonight and their fate unknown and of 37 others rescued many were so seriously burned they may die. Seventy one men were in the mine when the blast occurred, apparently from dust. Thirteen were uninjured.

The mine, one of the largest in the state, employed 300 miners. The explosion occurred in the southeastern part of the shaft shortly after five large loads of miners had been lowered for the day's work.

An emergency hospital was established at the mine washroom and physicians and nurses were hurriedly called from Princeton. After first aid treatment was given, the more seriously injured were rushed in ambulances to the Methodist hospital here. Most of those rescued suffered severe burns about the face and chest.

Word of the accident spread rapidly and roads leading to the mine were jammed with relatives of the workmen.

McPHERSON RADIO OPERATOR IN CUSTODY OF DETECTIVES

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Kenneth G. Ormiston, missing radio operator in the Aimee Semple McPherson case, was on his way to Chicago tonight in company with Chicago detectives, according to Detective Oscar Carson of the local police force.

Carson aided the Chicago authorities in the capture of Ormiston at his apartment here last night, where he was traced by a letter. He said that charges of conspiracy would be made against Ormiston upon his arrival in Chicago. Ormiston is wanted in Los Angeles on charges of "subornation of perjury" and "conspiracy to defeat justice."

Carson, while admitting that the trio were Chicago bound, asserted that he did not know their destination when the men left the Penn-Harris hotel where they spent the night. The getaway was made in an automobile hired by the Chicago operatives, who refused to divulge their destination to the taxi company.

Payment for the car was vouched for by Carson. It had not returned early tonight.

FIRST STEP IN FINANCING HUDSON RIVER BRIDGE

These bonds are the first instalment of an authorized issue of $50,000,000. The bid accepted was 96.6377 making the cost to the port authority the equivalent 96.64 per annually. It is said that the bonds probably will be offered to the public next Monday.

It is estimated that the bridge can be opened at a cost of $50,000,000 The excess in authorized bonds is expected to take care of contingencies and to provide for immediate enlargement of the bridge if this is necessary. The exact location of the bridge has not been settled.

FRENCH DEPUTIES VOTE BUDGET CARRYING SURPLUS

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(AP)—For the first time in many years the chamber of deputies, driven by M. Poincare, the indefatacable premier, has voted a budget with a substantial surplus before the end of the year. The chamber on Dec. 4 adopted the appropriations section of the budget, and tonight adopted by 410 to 115 the revenue section, which involves no new taxes.

The budget embraces the following: Expenditure 39,434,488,000 francs: revenue, 40,099,180,000 francs; surplus, 664,752,000 francs.

The senate will take up the budget coming ew.

NEW POLICY WILL RETARD FOREIGN LOANS TO GERMANY

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—German external financing, which has been unusually heavy since the Dawes plan was put into operation probably will be restricted in volume by a change in the tax policy of the German government prohibiting further exemptions on foreign loans, E. C. Granbery of Harris, Forbes & Co., said today upon his return from Germany.

The banker indicated that there would be a resultant appreciation in the value of foreign loans previously made or currently negotiated under conditions whereby the borrower agreed to assume the tax.

During the past two years in which Germany has been obtaining large American loans for the purpose of rehabilitation, the borrowing companies have been exempted from the 10 per cent tax. With their financial needs now generally satisfied, the government has indicated that it will be its policy to grant no further exemptions.

DETECTIVE SUMMONED IN DEFENSE OF McDERMOTT

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The defense in the trial of Patrick McDermott has summoned Detective Ora Slater as a witness in an effort to get him to admit that he does not think McDermott is the slayer of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher.

Homer Durand, defense attorney, making announcement of the purpose of subpoenaing Slater, said he has the word of witnesses that the detective who has aided the state in building up its case, has said he does not think "Pat" is the murderer. Durand said the defense will attempt to show that Slater sought McDermott as "key man" in the hopes of learning from him who the slayers were, and that when Pat failed to "squeal" the state asterised the defense's move as a dessas a last resort put him on trial.

Prosecutor C. B. McClintock characterized the defense's move as a desperate gesture to discount the state's case. Slater contends he still believes McDermott can "tell plenty" if he chooses.

$500,000 BREACH OF PROMISE CASE GIVEN TO THE JURY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A federal court jury tonight was deliberating the case of Miss Anne Caldwell, New York actress, in which she seeks $500,000 from John W. Hubbard, Pittsburgh manufacturer, alleging breach of promise. The case was given to the jury this afternoon after final arguments by both sides and an extended charge by Judge W. H. S. Thomson. When no agreement had been reached at adjournment, it was understood that if a verdict was reached during the night it would be sealed and opened in court tomorrow morning.

Judge Thomson said that if the jury found no marriage contract existed, it must find for Hubbard: if it found such contract, it must then determine where the defendant refused to carry it out without legal justification. In the latter event, he said, the plaintiff was entitled to damages.

BATTLE OVER SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The inevitable battle over senatorial campaign expenditures began today in the senate.

Unexpectedly, Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, opened the fight over the outlays in the Illinois and Pennsylvania republican primaries by offering resolutions, on which action was deferred, declaring William S. Vare and Frank L. Smith disqualified as senators-elect from those two states.

Earlier in the day the opening of a new field for investigation was proposed by John R. Neal, attorney, of Knoxville, Tenn., who charged in a letter to the senate elections committee that Senator Tyson, democrat, Tennessee, had spent $1,600,000 in his primary campaign two years ago. Neal requested an investigation.

MEMPHIS BANK DEFAULTER IS COMMITTED TO JAIL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Rush H. Parke, confessed defaulter, went back to the city jail tonight after a day spent in the offices of the American Savings Bank and Trust company where he aided state bank examiners to straighten accounts thrown into confusion by his flight last Thursday and the suicide of Clarence Henochsberg, assistant cashier, Tuesday.

Parke, bookkeeper in the bank, surrendered to police here early today, declaring that Henochsberg's influence had been responsible for his illegal acts and that he himself had received but a paltry part of the $105,000 shortage which examiners found in his accounts.

Belief of authorities that Parke was the tool of the assistant cashier was strengthened by the prisoner's statement to police that he had made improper entries in his books at Henochsberg's direction for some time before realizing that such conduct was illegal and thereafter he realized the gravity of his predicament and feared to rebel at his superior's bidding.

The American Savings Bank and Trust company, shaken by the shortage, admitted by Parke and the shortage of $300,000 confessed by Henochsberg before he shot himself, was in the hands of S. S. McConnell, state superintendent of banks as receiver today.

MOTORIST HAD DRUNK ORANGE JUICE AND GIN

HARTFORD, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Four orange blossoms, a popular drink of orange juice and gin, were drunk by Malachi Hackett of Meriden at the Waverly inn, Cheshire, March 1, 1925, shortly before he started to drive Georgianna B. Campbell of 30 Imlay street back to Meriden over the Cheshire road. This was a part of his testimony late today before Superior Court Judge Dickenson as he begun the defense to her suit for $20,000 damages against him for a fracture to her leg when his car collided with a telegraph pole at the intersection of the Cheshire, Waterbury and Meriden roads in Milldale.

HOW WEST POINT CADET SUFFERED BROKEN NECK

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Cadet Adrian J. Van Leeuwen, a first year man at the West Point Military academy, is at his home in this city recovering from a broken neck. War department records which have reached this city reveal that the injury was caused while the cadet was endeavoring to follow the instructions of an upper classman to stand straight enough to meet academy standards. The war department records show that this was in line with instruction and was not a hazing stunt.

Unqualified Denial By Edward L. Doheny

Of All Charges of Wrong-Doing or Corrupt Purpose in Leasing Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The defense played its trumps and aces today in the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial.

Edward L. Doheny, 70-year old multimillionaire oil man, in a four hour direct examination told the story of his life from the time he was a "shave tail mule driver" in the old west until he found himself defendant in a suit involving naval oil reserve leases in which he had estimated there might be a profit of $100,000,000.

His story was an unqualified denial of all charges of wrong-doing, or corrupt purpose in the leasing negotiations. He repeated what he told the senate oil committee three years ago concerning his $100,000 loan to Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, in November, 1921, when the oil reserves policies still were on the file in the navy and interior departments —"It was a personal transaction with an old prospector friend."

His personal interest in the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, oil storage project, which led to the leasing of the Elk Hills, California, reserves, grew out of the conversations with a naval officer which convinced him the "menace of Japan" in the Pacific was, in 1920, of vital importance, he told the jury.

Mrs. Doheny earlier in the day had described her husband's conversations regarding the loan to Fall and produced the missing note signature of Fall.

Edward L. Doheny, Jr., the defendant's son, also took the stand and told of delivering the $100,000 to Fall in Wardman Park hotel here on November 30, 1921, and of handing the note to his father in New York the next day with no writing in the space provided for the interest rate.

President Coolidge's name was brought into the proceedings with the offer in evidence of a letter Doheny had written him on March 8, 1924, regarding progress under the Pearl Harbor contract. Government objections to admission of the letter, on the ground that it had no bearing on the conspiracy charge, were sustained and the document did not go before the jury. In whispered argument over the bench it was stated by defense counsel that the white house never had replied to the communication.

HOUSE VOTES SALARY INCREASES FOR JUDGES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.— (AP) —The bill providing substantial salary increases for federal judges, hanging fire since last session, was approved today by the house, 295 to 39. It now goes to President Coolidge, who has advocated a higher pay schedule for the judiciary.

The measure, passed by the senate before the recent recess, drew the fire in the house of a number of farm bloc members, who expressed opposition to salary increases until something is done about farm relief.

It also came in for attack from Representative Rainey, democrat, Illinois, who objected to a provision raising Chief Justice's Taft's pay to $20,500. He said Mr. Taft was receiving an annuity of $10,000 from the estate of Andrew Carnegie, "a subsidy from the United States Steel corporation," he contended. His amendment to fix the chief justice's salary at $15,000, however, was rejected.

BONES OF THE TWELVE APOSTLES NOT FOR SALE

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Parts of the bones of the 12 apostles, said by the Chicago Historical society to be contained in an ornate leather reliquary, were withdrawn from a sale by the society today and turned over to officials of the Catholic church.

Part of the famous collection of Charles F. Gunther, candy manufacturer, the bones will be returned to Rome by representatives of Cardinal Mundelein, who felt they did not rightly belong in the possession of a private individual. A consideration for the relics remains to be determined.

Among the possessions in the collection, bought six years ago from Gunthers' heirs, and sold today, were the gown of Eugen Caroline and a carriage parasol of Empress Eugenie. The sale lists everything from horseshoes to ointments and octagonal Roman dice to Napoleon's fancy silk vest.

PROSPERITY REFLECTED IN REPORT OF U. S. TREASURER

Mr. Mellon Tells Congress There is Likely to Be No Ebbing of High Tide of Prosperity—Reports Industry is Active With Little Unemployment and Wages Good—Since the Close of the War the Public Debt Has Been Cut $5,841,289,845—A Reduction of $872,977,572 Was Made in the Last Year—Will Be No Revision of the French Debt Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The nation has attained a record level of income, and there is likely to be no ebbing of the high tide of prosperity, Secretary Mellon reported to congress today in his annual review of treasury activities.

At the same time he virtually closed the door to revision of the French debt settlement, and declared that prohibition enforcement, also a part of the work of the treasury department, was making good progress but should be stimulated by the passage of pending bills strengthening the enforcement statutes.

He also urged legislation to permit disposition of the sequestered German property and to renew the charters of the federal reserve system, and advocated passage of the McFadden branch banking bill without the Hull amendment restricting branch banking in the future.

The financial and industrial outlook received the lion's share of attention in the report. Mr. Mellon declared the domestic situation was such that "we can look forward to another satisfactory year." "The strength of the prosperity," he added, "is the broadness of its base" and while spending has increased, so have savings accounts, life insurance writings and the purchasing of sound securities by small investors.

The nation's prosperity is shared by the treasury, the secretary reported, but he again demanded a year's test of the new revenue law before sanctioning any revision of the tax rates. He endorsed as a permanent policy, however, the proposal of President Coolidge to return to the taxpayers the large surpluses of the government such as will be available this year.

In suggesting that congress make no move to continue the life of the war debt funding commission, which expires next February, Mr. Mellon declared the work of the commission has been virtually completed. He did not even mention the possibility of further negotiations with France, which appears dissatisfied with the agreement effected by her representatives in consultation with the commission and time not yet ripened it. He emphasized that this government has maintained a consistent policy against cancellation, and quoted at length the discussions between foreign representatives and American officials at the time the war loans were made, as well as statements by President Wilson, to show that there had been no thought of cancellation from the very outset.

The commission has negotiated settlements representing $9,111,046,084 or 97 per cent, of the total, the secretary said. While Greece has not concluded a settlement, he suggested that if negotiations are necessary these might be conducted by such members of the commission as are available.

Reporting "progress" in the enforcement of the prohibition law, Mr. Mellon declarde that if given the legislation requested, "the treasury feels confident that its reorganized force, given the essential cooperation and assistance of the department of justice, will be able, in the future, to achieve even greater effectiveness in the enforcement of this law."

He believed the reorganized prohibition staff under the direction of Assistant Secretary Andrews had in the last year effectively stopped rum smuggling and had gained the upper hand on the diversion of industrial alcohol and illicit distilling. He emphasized that the federal forces were centering their attention on the source of supply and expected local authorities to reassume their responsibilities of law enforcement.

Pronouncing the debt situation of the government sound, Mr. Mellon pointed out that in the seven years since the close of the war the public debt has been cut by $5,841,289,845 to $19,643,216,315 on last July 1. A reduction of $872,977,572 was made in the last year.

"We have worked hard and we have progressed," the secretary continued. "During the year commodity prices generally have declined slightly and farm prices have not yet been restored to their relative position as compared with all prices.

"There is little unemployment and wages are good. Industry is active. There is a close margin between costs and prices which has made competition severe, but due to the great volume of business and quantity production profits, small in each transaction, have been large in the aggregate. The most notable improvement has been the restoration of the railroads to their proper place in the community. The railroads are one of the principal factors in the strength of this country."

Mr. Mellon endorsed the principles of installment buying and the making of foreign loans, with proper caution in each. Installment buying is no menace, he said, if the article has a real and permanent value and if the payments are not much too light in an effort to stimulate consumption in times of decline.

He said the treasury was not passing upon the soundness of particular foreign loas, a problem entirely for private bankers.

"If a foreign loan is productive—and by that I mean that the debtor out of the use of the money borrowed can repay the principal, the interest and make a profit for itself—then I think foreign loans are sound," he said.

Warning against the trend in investments and loans on securities without a proportionate increase in short term commercial bills, however, he continued:

"Since it is the latter which are the most easily liquidated we are gradually noting a decline in assets which may be rediscounted at the federal reserve banks and thus in what may be called the liquidity of bank assets. This trend has in no way endangered the strength of our banking system, but it is a movement which may require care lest it go too far."

He also suggested that there might have been some overbuilding, but called attention that this and other unhealthy situations including the land boom in Florida, had subsided without serious injury. Likewise, the bumper crop may hurt the growers temporarily, he said, but on the other hand it will give the textile industry an opportunity for "recovery."

Urging the necessity for maintaining adequate tax rates until the real measure of present prosperity and power of the present revenue bill had been made, Mr. Mellon said he had no objection to returning this year's prospective surplus by a credit to income taxpayers of 20 per cent. on each of their first two installments next year, a proposal presented to congress by President Coolidge.

QUESTIONS COOLIDGE'S CLAIM OF ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. —(AP)— The concerted move by democrats in congress for tax reduction at this session was taken to the house floor today by one of the party's financial spokesmen, Representative Byrns of Tennessee, ranking minority member on the appropriations committee.

He accused republicans of "playing politics" on tax reduction, charged them with attempting to postpone a revenue cut until the eve of the 1928 presidential election, and indorsed the $335,000,000 democratic tax measure introduced yesterday by Representative Garner of Texas.

Byrns said tax rates "easily" could be raised or lowered by adoption of a joint resolution and that it was "ridiculous to say that it cannot be done at this session."

"The widespread impression" that national expenditures have decreased due to "alleged economy of the present administration" was declared falsely by Byrns who asserted all governmental departments except the interior had increased expenditures since President Coolidge took office. Reductions by the interior department were due, he said, to decreases in Civil war pensions.

Mr. Byrns asserted that while President Coolidge "is persistently pictured as the greatest economist who ever sat in the white house" he nevertheless "has spent more of the people's money for official household expenses, care, upkeep and policing the white house, and under the head of traveling expenses, than any of his predecessors."

"No president," he added, "has ever spent quite so much except in the one single instance and fiscal year when President Wilson made two trips to Paris to write a treaty of peace."

VALUABLE JEWELRY STOLEN FROM MRS. GEORGE R. BURGESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Police revealed today that on November 17, jewelry valued at several thousand dollars was stolen from the Hotel Belmont room occupied by Mrs. George R. Burgess, of Fort Adams, Rhode Island. Part of the jewelry has been recovered police said.

Varying reports of the Burgess loss placed the value of the jewels stolen as high as $100,000 and as low as $16,000

Mrs. Burgess formerly was Miss Barbara Sands, and is a granddaughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. She was secretely married to Lieutenant Burgess in Baltimore in October and started on a belated honeymoon almost a month later. After their honeymoor the couple will return to Newport where Lieutenant Burgess is stationed at Fort Adams. Ogden L. Mills is Mrs. Burgess' guardian.

Some of the jewelry has been recovered. A sneak thief is believed to have taken the jewelry, which included a pearl necklace, wrist watches, two diamond breast pins, and three bracelets, two set with diamonds. Police said no definite valuation had been set on the missing jewels.

This was the second jewelry robbery of society people reported during the past two days. It was learned yesterday that Mrs. George Treadwell of Albany, N. Y., was robbed of jewels and dresses valued at $35,000 on the evening of Nov. 30, upon her return to New York after accompanying Queen Marie of Rumania on her trip through West Virginia. The valuables were taken from her automobile.

STOLEN COAT FOUND ON WOMAN PROBATIONER

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The best defense in a virogous offensive, evidently believed Mary Tyz, 19, a prisoner from the state farm at Niantic.

While police were searching for a coat stolen from Mrs. Milton Berkowitz, Mary walked into the police station wearing the coat. Learning that Probation Officer E. C. Connolly, to whom she wished to report, was out in, she went away.

A detective recognized the coat and then the wearer, and took her to headquarters charged with breach of parole. Officers there remembered her previous visit in the stolen garment.

WILLIMANTIC MAY SOON HAVE MODERN WHITE WAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 9—Willimantic's new "white-way", the fondest dream of many citizens for years is here, or virtually so. The light committee of the common council comprising Alderman William E. Jackson, chairman, Aime J. Martineau and Charles H. Beebe met with officials of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company this week and approved plan for a white way which would be made up of 32 lights of 1000 candle power each to be placed on Main street from the New Haven railroad crossing to Windham street and on Union street from Main to Jackson streets. The recommendation of the light committee for the establishment of such a white way will be made at the monthly council meeting next Monday night. It is understood that one or two more of the council members are in hearty approval of the proposal which the light committee will make and this gives assurance of acceptance of the recommendation as the vote would stand at least four to three in favor. Opposition is not anticipated, however, as public sentiment has always been strongly in favor of such a project. It has never been a general question as to whether a white way was wanted or not but rather one of "how long, how long, must it be delayed?" Plans are now being considered to determine the style of standards to be used, the choice being between the tall standards set along the curbstone or brackets set on the telephone poles.

To the tune of charity, altruism and philanthropy the annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals which gives everyone an opportunity to be of assistance in waging the great fight to preserve the nation's health will start here today (Friday) and continue for ten days, closing Monday, December 20. Mrs. John Reilly is agent for the state tuberculosis commission and with a committee conducts the work in Willimantic, The Windhams and Mansfield. There is an agreement whereby seals sent to the above named places from other cities should be returned as 25 per cent. of sales is used in local work.

In line with municipal betterment of equipment a new two and one half ton Mack truck will be introduced to the street department within a few days. The purchase of the truck was consummated with a local concern this week by the street committee of the board of aldermen. The committee is composed of Alderman Charles H. Beebe, chairman, Arthur J. Dubreuil and William E. Jackson. The truck will come fully equipped with snow plow apparatus. Its arrival will give the department a total of three trucks, two of which are in fair condition. A well worn truck was given in trade for the new one. The new truck was made possible by an appropriation of $5,000 voted for this purpose.

The town school committee has drawn up a resolution requesting the New England Transportation company to make a special rate of fare for school children on all its lines entering this city. Dissatisfaction brewed after the removal of the South Coventry-Willimantic trolley line by the Connecticut company and the taking over o fthe route by the transportation company when the fares for school children residing to the west of this city were increased, to a considerable extent. The rate on the trolley was 25 cents per pupil between Perkins' Corner and the city for each school week. The transportation company, operating busses, gives as its best offer a ten-ride book for $1.10 for the school week. Efforts to secure a better rate have been unsuccessful. Secretary Egbert A. Case o the school committee states that ten pupils reside between the city line and Holbrook avenue, five of them being under twelve years of age. It was necessary to purchase books for the five over twelve years of age but the other five were taking advantage of the half fare rates between Perkins' corner and the city giving them transportation for 30 cents per week.

LONDON'S MEN SMOKE ROOMS BOW TO WOMEN

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP)—Feminine smoke rings are being blown with increasing defiance from heretofore exclusively masculine arm chairs in London smoking cafes.

Astonished glances and angrily rustled newspapers fail to disturb the innumerable lady nicotines who are slowly ousting men from their own strongholds.

"A few years ago no woman would ever have dared pass our doors," said the director of a firm which operates 50 smoking cafes in the London city district. "Today we could not keep them out if we tried! A few years ago if any woman did succeed in entering we certainly would not have permitted her to indulge in a cigarette—not even a scented one with a strip of pink satin around the end.

"But everything is different now. Women have been smoking for years—at homes, at dances and in the cafes and restaurants of the West End but lately they have even swarmed into the smoking cafes of the city which, even after smoking for women had received universal sanction, were by common consent regarded as the exclusive resort of man."

"Why not smoking cafes for women if they are so keen on their coffee and cigarettes," it was suggested.

He shook his head.

"Because they don't want it," he replied. "She wants to go where the men are. If anyone started smoking cafes for women you'd find they wouldn't go there and if they did the men would start a counter invasion. Mixed smoking cafes will be the recognized thing in the future—and a not very distant future either."

Many business girls in London are adopting the 11 o'clock coffee and cigarette habit and some employers allot them a ten minute interval definitely for this purpose.

BUTLER CHARGED WITH ROBBERY OF JEWELRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Joseph Fried, a butler with a 35 year police record, was held by police today charged with the robbery of jewelry from socially prominent guests of Mrs. Norman Williams in her Washington, D. C. home.

Fried was arrested after being implicated by Joseph Peter Davis, who is serving a 30-year sentence for the robbery.

The butler was convicted in 1920 of stealing $20,000 worth of jewelry from the Fifth avenue home of Mrs. Hamilton Fish, where he was then employed. He denied his guilt, saying that the jewelry had been stolen by a poor man he taken in for a night's lodging.

Police said Fried made a regular practice of getting jobs on faked references with wealthy persons and then robbing them. Twenty such references were found on him when arrested.

Besides Mr. Fish and Mrs. Williams, the butler told police he had been employed by "Ambassador Charles McQuay," a Mrs. Mayer of Hewlett, L. I., and W. W. Willet, of Lakewood, N. J., his last place of employment.

HARTFORD, Dec. 9—(AP)—Flying with his plane weighted down by ice, the result of rain through which he was flying freezing on the machine, Lieutenant Earl W. Ladd, his commander. Lieutenant Fleet, who is accompanied by Corporal Charles Arnold, expects to fly to San Antonio tomorrow, the mid-way point on his six thousand mile trip.

ARGUMENTS CONCLUDED IN COAST GUARD RUM CASE

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 9—(AP)—The court martial of Chief Boatswain's Mate Robert E. Taylor of the United States coastguard, charged with "scandalous conduct" and trafficking with rum runners, concluded today with the arguments of counsel. Defense counsel termed the charges "amazing and preposterous."

The court will report its findings tomorrow and then take up charges against a fourth coastguardsman, Chief Boatswain's Mate Frank T. McIntyre. The court in two previous cases found some charges unproven while it reported others to Washington for action.

The prosecution of Taylor hinged largely on an alleged rum punch party on board the patrol boat he commanded for which the ingredients were obtained from rum runners. The defense controverted this by showing that the rum runner in question had been confiscated months before the date of the alleged party.

WYATT S. EARP DEFENDS REPUTATION OF TOMBSTONE

BOSTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—The good name of Tombstone, Ariz., was defended in a deposition read in Suffolk probate court tolay, by the man who "arrested pretty nearly every man that done any killing there."

The deponent was Wyatt S. Earp of Los Angeles, deputy sheriff and United States marshal at Tombstone during the eighties, and his testimony was introduced in support of the contention of Mrs. Carlotta Cockburn of Esan Gabriel, Calif., that she was a niece of the late Lotta Crabtree and entitled to a share in the former actress' $4,000,000 estate.

Looking back on the days when he enforced law on the frontier, Earp declared that witnesses who have described Tombstone as a rough town were all wrong, and that in its wildest days it wasn't "half as bad as Los Angeles." In fact, he asserted, he could count all the killings of his fingers.

"The first man killed was Mike Killeen," he began. "Then City Marshal White. He was killed by Curley Bill. I arrested him and took him to Tucson and put him in jail. Then the next man was killed by a man named Bradshaw. He killed his partner, McIntyre.

"Bradshaw had bought a kind of funny looking shirt, a red striped shirt, and he went out in the street and everybody was making fun of it and saying, 'Where did you get that shirt?' and he got hot over it and he says, 'the next man that kids me about that shirt I am going to kill him.'

The next man he met was his partner, and of course he said to Bradshaw, 'Where did you get that shirt?' and he jerked out his gun and killed him.

"That's three. The next man killed was Storms, and he was killed by Rufe Short. That is four, and that's all except the Clanton-McLowry affair."

Earp denied that "Doc" Halliday was a notorious character," although, "of course, he killed a man or two before he went there." There was another little fuss in which "Doc" wounded a man named Joyce and the latter's partner, Earp recalled, and then there was the fight in which Billy Clanton and two of the McLowry boys were killed and two of Earp's brothers and "Doc" were wounded.

"Wasn't one of your brothers killed?" Earp was asked.

"Not in a fight. He was assassinated, shot through the window."

Earp said he remembered Jack Crabtree but did not know that he was related to Lotta, the actress. He knew that Crabtree had a child, but wasn't sure whether it was a boy or girl.

A deposition by O. Gibson, mayor of Tombstone in 1926, was offered to explain the common law marriage in Arizona, but was excluded on the ground that the court would take judicial notice of the laws of Arizona and that lawyers could file briefs on the question. Such parts of the deposition as referred to matters of fact were admitted. Gibson testified that assessors' records showed taht Mary A. Crabtree, presumably Lotta's mother, was assessed for 14 lots of real estate in Tombstone in 1881.

MARRIAGE ANNULMENT PROCEEDINGS SECRET

ROME, Dec. 9—(AP)—The sacred Rota tribunal, on the request of the interested parties, has decided that the entire proceedings for annulment of the marriage of William Marconi, the wireless inventor, to the former Miss Beatrice O'Brien, shall be carried out under a seal of secrecy.

This decision is understood to have been reached on the request of Signor Marconi and his former wife in order to avoid the unwelcome notoriety which attended the recent Marlborough-Vanderbilt annulment.

The presented for nullification of the marriage lies in a condition established between Marconi and his wife, before their wedding in 1906 that they could separate whenever they so wished. Marriage, being held by the Catholic church indissoluble, such a condition would make the Marconi marriage null in fact.

SCRATCHED ITCHING SKIN UNTIL IT BLED

Relieved at once by a simple treatment

Evens City, Pa., April 2:—"Some time ago I had a bad case of eczema and vine poisoning. At times I scratched my skin until the blood ran. Then our family doctor advised me to use Resinol Soap and Ointment. I obtained relief at once and before long new, smooth skin had taken the place of the old sores. If Resinol should cost me twice as much I would never be without it as I do not think there is a soap or ointment on the market their equal, and it seems to me I have tried almost all of them. Resinol Soap is most refreshing and pleasant to use, and Resinol Ointment has a quick healing power. I have recommended these products to many people and expect to continue to do so." (Signed) E. J. Eades.

NEW ENGLAND FARM MARKETING CONFERENCE

BOSTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—New England farmers must learn their own market, pursue an aggressive sales policy and must adopt a common grading and packing policy for their high-quality products. This was the advice given in addresses delivered today before agricultural leaders at the New England farm marketing conference.

I. G Davis, professor of agricultural economics at the Connecticut Agricultural college urged a complete inventory and classification of New England's land resources, and a study of those resources from the standpoint of their most advantageous use.

Such a survey, according to Professor Davis, would become the basis for a land utilization policy that would enable New England to locate her agricultural industries in the regions where enterprises might be conducted at lowest cost, and insuring the best economic use of each kind of land.

This would incidentally "prevent human suffering and economic losses which result from the haphazard selection of farms by city bred people who are ignorant of what constitutes a sound farming business opportunity, Professor Davis said.

Other speakers on the day's program were Willard A. Munson, director of extension service at the Massachusetts Agricultural college; John S. Lawrence, president of the New England council; Harry R. Lewis of Davisville, R. I., chairman of the New England council's agricultural committee and Lieutenant Governor Allen of Massachusetts.

DANIELSON

PEOPLE AROUSED AT NEW FLOOD OF UNWANTED GOODS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 8.—Postcards now coming to numbers of people in Danielson from the Yankee Division Veterans' association, 100 Huntington avenue, Boston, read as follows:

"Dear friend: Will you kindly let us know in the stamped envelope that was enclosed in the box of holiday greeting cards sent you recently if you desire to retain the same?

Thanking you in advance for your prompt attention to this small matter."

People here say that it seems a pity that this association should have adopted a system of sending out unsolicited merchandise that has created so much irritation here and in surrounding communities in other years. Danielson has its own members of the famous Yankee division and would go a long way for them or for any of their buddies.

But here is the situation: People here are getting requests to tell what they are going to do with packages of cards they never have had. Numbers of people declined to accept the packages when they arrived through the mails, and they were duly returned to Boston by the postoffice. It isn't at all pleasant for a person to be obligated to enter into correspondence and defend against an implication that one is keeping property that does not belong to him, especially when he placed no orders for goods, refused to accept them when sent unsolicited and has knowledge that they were returned. The system is just a plain nuisance and unfair treatment of the public.

One business man here, himself a member of the Yankee division, has been put in a more or less difficult position by reason of the fact that numbers of his customers believe he sent in the list of names used in mailing the cards here, and he did nothing of the kind.

The card incident recalls that officers of a certain fraternal order here, some three years ago, each received a very nice leather billfold, as did officers of all the lodges of the order throughout the state, and later a bombardment of requests to pay. State officers of the organization, after taking legal advice, informed the officers of all lodges to hold the billfolds, writing the firm that sent them out that they were keeping them until such time as a representative of the firm would call for them. In passing it may be mentioned they never have been called for.

Thursday morning the funeral of Frank Bibeault was held from his home in Moosup with funeal services at All Hallows church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Oscar Norman being the celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Members of the American Legion acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery at Putnam.

Mr. Bibeault, 33, was a native of Canada, but the greater part of his life had been a resident of the United States. He was a veteran of the Civil war. Mr. Bibeault leaves a son, Arthur, at whose home he died, and two daughters, Mrs. W. Roy of Danielson and Mrs. Amadee Vassar of Plymouth, Mass. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

From the home in Moosup Thursday morning the funeral of Mrs. Antonio Boigar, wife of Jacob Boigar, was held with a high mass of requiem with Rev. J. E. McCarthy celebrant at All Hallows church at 10 o'clock. Burial was in All Hallows' cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Tyreka, Peter Petras, John Krycha, Stanley Modlysewski, Joseph Goski and Peter Urban. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements. Mrs. Boigar was 41 years of age. She leaves her husband and six children.

Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood, funeral services for William H. Oatley, who died in Providence and who formerly was a resident of East Killingly, were conducted by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. The service was attended by a delegation of members from Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows, of which Mr. Oatley had been a member for many years. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. At the grave the committal service of the order of Odd Fellows was conducted. The bearers were Henry H. Starkweather, John E. Allen, Arthur Rainville, Alfred A. Ennis, L. A. Bradford and Herbert Lyman, members of Quinebaug lodge.

At 2:40 Thursday afternoon firemen answered a fire alarm only to learn there was no fire. Blowing of the sirens did not record any box clearly and this taken with the blowing out of a fuse in the fire alarm telegraph system was taken by Chief A. P. Woodward as indicating the lines had become crossed with some other line carrying electricity. Earlier in the afternoon a single blast of the alarm had blown out another fuse. Supt. Ira A. Warren in charge of the fire alarm system started immediately after the false alarm to trace out the trouble.

Quantities of wrist and strap watches now on hand, from $12.50 to $65. H. W. Chapin, Jeweler, 7 Center St.—adv.

A practice adopted by a considerable number of Danielson people is to drop a few coins each day into the receptacles to be found about town in which to deposit money for Christmas cheer for the needy.

A story gained currency here Wednesday that a motor car had plunged off the new bridge over Bishop's crossing in the town of Plainfield to the tracks below, evidently grew out of the fact that a car did go off a bridge over the railroad just north of Jewett City.

Uses of pages of publicity by Danielson's business interests was advocated to the chamber of commerce by President William Sangster as an effective means of boosting Danielson as a trading center.

TIMELY ADVICE ABOUT COUGHS AND COLDS

In damp, cold or changeable weather, people who "catch cold" easily should use extra care to avoid bronchial affections or pneumonia. A wise precaution at this time of year is to keep on hand a mixture of Eucalyptus, pine tar and creosote, and take a few drops at the first sign of a cough or cold. This recipe has been prescribed by physicians for years and nothing has ever been found to surpass it for quick relief. The ingredients can be obtained at any drug store, ready prepared in a perfect emulsion pleasant to take. To get it merely ask for Loo's Creo-Lyptus. A large bottle costs only a few cents and it is sold everywhere under a money back guarantee.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM LODGE TEAM WORKED DEGREE IN WEBSTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 9—A large delegation of Odd Fellows from Israel Putnam lodge of this city, accompanied by the degree team and two local candidates went to Webster, Mass., last night and at a largely attended meeting of Maanerir lodge, I. O. O. F., of that city worked the first degree on fourteen candidates. Two of them were local candidates, two from Southbridge and the remainder from Webster. There were also many members of the order from Southbridge in attendance and the affair will go down as a red letter night in the history of fraternal societies of the three cities.

An orchestra of seven pieces, all members of Israel Putnam lodge furnished music during the social part of evening, and a not less noteworthy feature was the supper provided by the Order of Rebekahs of Webster. The chairs were filled at different intervals by the presiding officers and their subordinates of the three lodges.

The annual meeting of the Putnam chapter of the American Red Cross is to be held at the Red Cross rooms on Front street on Monday evening, December 13th.

EXPECT MORE DIVIDENDS FROM FIRST NAT'L BANK

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 9—About $90,000 will be distributed in Putnam and vicinity before Christmas by the comptroller of the United States Treasury in another dividend from the First National bank of this city. The dividend will be for five per cent and the checks have been made out by the receiver and forwarded to Washington to be countersigned by the officials in the comptrollers office.

Receiver George M. Coffin says that he feels confident that the checks will be returned to him in ample time for distribution but that he can not tell absolutely as there may be some delay at the Washington office but that the checks had been made out in what he thought would be plenty of time and that they would be returned within a few days.

This coming dividend will bring the amount that has been paid to the creditors of the bank up to the 70 per cent mark. The first dividend was for 40 per cent and was paid in January 1925, a few months after the bank was put into the receiver's hands; the second dividend of 15 per cent was paid in April 1925 and the third one was paid in May of the present year and was for 10 per cent.

It is cheering news to know that there is to be another dividend if only for five per cent and that this brings the total to 70 per cent and that a further dividend of from 10 to 15 per cent is almost an assured fact. From the last quarterly statement published by Mr. Coffin, it is believed by those who are in a position to know that there will be from 10 to 15 per cent more paid Suits in the courts that are now pending against the receiver prevent the paying out of all cash on hand. Of the assets of the bank remaining in the hands of the receiver a great amount consists of notes or other paper of doubtful value.

At the regular meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R. to be held at Odd Fellows hall on Monday afternoon, December 13, the Rev. Robert N McLaughlin of Worcester will be the speaker.

Dr. McLaughlin is recognized as one of the foremost of American ministers and his books are found in both public and private libraries throughout the English speaking world.

NOANK

Boat Baby, coming from Montauk fishing ground with a good catch of fish, had a four hours' run to Noank, with Capt. Rosi Boccichi at the wheel Wednesday morning. The waves were high and the wind was blowing hard. When half way across, Mate Brocky saw something huge in the course and water spouting high in the air. It was a whale two hundred feet long. They claim it weighed close to 80 tons. The boat started to chase it and for a way kept pretty close to it. Then the whale turned and started after the boat. The captain put on full steam and soon lost the monster. When the boat tied up at packing house dock the men were telling the other fishermen about it; one old timer, who has been fishing for the last 25 years said he never saw a whale this time of year, but that the monster of the sea must have got lost on its way and thought it was going south.

TADPOLE BRIDGE CURVE CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 9—A Nash sedan owned and driven by Mr. Applestein of New York went off the north end of Tadpole bridge Wednesday evening. The road was new to the driver and when he saw the danger light he found the curve more abrupt than he expected. He had no chains on the machine and putting on the brakes quickly caused the car to skid on the slippery road. It struck the bridge fence broadside, and three wheels went off the bridge leaving the machine hanging by one wheel. In the car were a couple living near Colchester. No one was injured but William Bromley and his men worked until early Friday morning before the machine was safely landed on the bridge again. It was necessary to lower it first with block and tackle, before the wrecker could be used, or the machine would have been wrecked in extricating it from its position. The result is that about $150 will cover the damage.

THE BUDGET MESSAGE

In putting the budget before congress and in making his explanation and recommendations, President Coolidge disclosed what is needed, conditions which exist at the present time and the probable means that will be at the command of congress. This is the business method of handling the government's affairs and it has already accomplished much for the country, accompanied as it has been by the policy of economy and efficiency of the administration.

By the budget, which calls for an outlay of $4,014,571,124 for the next fiscal year, provision is made for the expenditure of $16,548,728 in excess of current appropriations. That doesn't mean rushing into lavish expenditures, or advocating such a move. What congress does with the budget in the way of respecting it or exceeding it, remains to be seen.

Likewise there is no certainty as to what it is going to do with the surplus which is now promised at the close of this fiscal year next June. This the president estimates will be just over $383,079,000, or more, than was expected at the beginning of the year because prosperous conditions have increased the income. But the revenue has been boosted this year from sources which cannot be expected to do the same thing in the succeeding year, so that while there may be a surplus of $383,600,000 for the current year it is estimated that it will be only just a little over $200,000,000 for the next current year.

That makes it evident that it would be grossly unwise to proceed to embark upon a permanent tax reduction policy that would threaten the treasury with a deficit in the next fiscal year. Such gambling with the future is bad business and the recommendations of the president are therefore against it. Instead of making the tax cutting permanent he favors giving a rebate, which is a reduction for one year and permits of action on permanent tax reduction at a later time when the facts are known regarding the operation of the present tax law.

Given the material and the pattern by the president it remains for congress to fashion the garment in accordance therewith.

THE MEMPHIS EXPERIENCE

A situation which seriously raises the question as to whether the institutions have been adequately protected by their superiors is furnished by the embezzlements which have taken place in Memphis within the past few weeks. A loss of something like $500,000, through the acts of three employes, has been sustained.

All the disclosures did not come at once but separately and yet the first arrest gave no suspicions that served to reveal the others. The dramatic revelation in the last instance came when an employe telephoned a friend that she was short $300,000 and unless he was able to get a loan he would take his life. He never got the loan and he carried out his threat. But this simply brought to light the fact that this was the very employe who had only four years ago pleaded guilty to forgery and paid a substantial fine. Regardless of that he was retained in a position of much responsibility, placed where he had access to large sums and apparently because of the lenient treatment he had received and the confidence which was still placed in him he was encouraged to play with money which belonged to other people.

In such an act he did no different than many others have done, but the fact that the institution gave him such opportunities in view of its previous experience and failed to keep a close watch upon him indicates gross laxity.

Honesty is something to be highly prized. Whatever may have been the actuating reason for displaying such confidence in him after his forgery case, it becomes apparent now that it was not justified. He was crooked in the first instance and the disposition to give him another chance was never appreciated. He wasn't honest and the faith in him was seriously misplaced. There's no excusing such embezzlement on the ground of small pay. It simply shows a tendency to take chances and honesty goes into the discard quite as quickly as safety and gratitude.

Memphis institutions have gone through the experience that others have. It is expensive and deplorable, and yet there are those who wonder these days why other institutions establish and maintain effective safeguards.

BETTERING THE ROADS

Not all the states have recognized the importance of good roads in the same way. There are those which have taken the lead in building excellent systems and there are others which have lagged behind. Those who have hesitated have invariably done so because of the unwillingness to pile up the indebtedness which such work seemed to require.

But while the demand for good roads existed many years ago it has been accentuated by the automobile. This has forced more serious consideration because of the realization that through the lack of good roads the backward states were missing the business which tourists were bringing to other commonwealths where good highways were available.

One of the latest to swing into line for better roads is the state of Virginia. Decision has been reached to develop a system that will cost $65,000,000, each expenditure to be distributed over a period of five years and provide 1200 miles of improved highways. Virginia is going to do this without piling up a debt. It will get the money through a state appropriation, from current tax levies and from the federal government, thus avoiding the bonding of the state which has faced strenuous opposition.

Virginia is aiming at getting away from that condition which motorists regard as unfavorable. Instead of causing the tourists to shun its roads, or to get over the necessary few of them as quickly as possible, it plans improvements which will cause them to tarry and enjoy the scenic and historical attractions of that commonwealth. This is an awakening similar to what has come to other states. Maine has also launched out into better highways for the purpose of inviting and accommodating those who would see more of the Pine Tree state and there are others which not only can devise methods but will recognize the importance of perfecting their highway systems as an inducement to those who travel by highways instead of by the railroads.

ILLEGAL SPENDING

On many occasions it has been shown that the selection of Controller General McCarl was an excellent piece of work. He likes the work and he is disposed to not only assume his obligations but exercise his responsibility. As a watchdog of federal expenditures his work has been so efficient as to create the criticism that he was paying too much attention to small details.

In his latest report to congress he calls attention to the increasing tendency of spending agencies to effect payments not authorized by law and relying upon congress to grant relief to the disbursing officer when his illegal payments are disallowed in the settlement of his accounts.

The controller general thinks there should be a special bureau to deal with the situation. He thinks the laxity should be checked. Whether the situation is one that means no such payments should be made, that they should not be made when they are just because through some slip or inattention appropriations were not large enough or that they should go through the right channel from start to finish needs to be fully understood but such difficulties could be straightened out without much difficulty if congress got about it.

When however he declares that there is a total annual loss of $300,000,000 through illegal spending it is a situation to which attention has been called before and which in the interest of good business should be stopped.

There is such a thing as actual waste which is decidedly different from the unavoidable exceeding of appropriations. However neither practice should be tolerated as a commonthing and congress will do well to look well into the controller general's report.

AMERICAN POTASH

In spite of our steadily growing population and the demands upon our resources we not only seem to be able to maintain our independence of other countries in many respects, but we are constantly discovering new sources of raw material. Strange as it may seem we are now and then bringing to light deposits of one kind or another for which we have hitherto been relying upon foreign production.

In this connection attention is halted by the report to the effect that a private oil concern, exploring in connection with the geological survey of this government in New Mexico, has disclosed such an extensive deposit of potash that it promises to make us independent of foreign supplies.

Potash has hitherto been found in this country but not in large quantities. The foreign potash trust has had a monopoly and made the most of it. The expense attached to utilizing American deposits would have been so great as to make it unprofitable, but if the quality is high and the quantity large in the newly discovered deposit it is certainly something to look forward to with keen interest especially among the agriculturists.

We haven't ever been able to show that our potash deposits warranted tariff protection against foreign products. Whether or not the New Mexico deposit will reach such a proportion remains to be disclosed, but even if there is no tariff on foreign potash the fact of there being a large and available supply within the country would tend to decrease foreign demands and likewise have the effect of price reduction. It will be well if it is.

EDITORIAL NOTES

BY ANY OTHER NAME

"Who is she?" asked the bootmaker. "That's the fourth necktie you've tried and discarded. Such choosing leads me to suspect that there's a lady in the case. Own up who she is, and I'll contribute a real tie. How's this one?"

"Thanks. You don't think it's too loud, do you?"

"No, just cheery. I'll guarantee it will catch the eye of any girl."

"You seem to be dead certain that there's a girl. Well you're right, there is, and I'm in pretty bad with her. Before she leaves town I aim to redeem myself, if it can be done. Not that it matters much, but I hate to have any girl think me a complete boob.

"You see it was this way. Hayes in our office told me the other day that his wife's cousin was visiting at his house and he wanted to get up a little party and he invited me to dine at a cafe with them. Hayes introduced the young lady to me merely as Annette. You know how careless people often are about mentioning the last names of their relatives.

I thought I'd get a chance later to ask him what her name was, but no opportunity came during dinner, which was a jolly little affair. We were having such a good time that I suggested that we stay and dance, but Mrs. Hayes vetoed that idea promptly.

"The fact is," Hayes explained, "we parked the infant with a neighbor, and the time limit's about expired. But you and Annette can stay, children, as you like." I looked inquiringly at Annette—she isn't hard to gaze upon—and she nodded her bobbed curls encouragingly. In a moment the Hayeses had left us.

"What am I to call you, please?" I questioned at the end of our first dance. She was as light as a fairy on her feet. 'All the league I know is Annette.'

"Why not call me Miss Fitznoodle?" she asked, and I fancied I caught eyes.

"Miss Fitznoodle!" I exclaimed. 'Can't you make up a funnier name than that?'

"Why should I?" she inquired coolly. 'Because you certainly don't expect me to tell you that?'

"I'm sorry that you don't like it," she replied.

'Would hardly expect me to, would you? What's the grand idea of making a joke about your name?'

"My name isn't a joke,' she said with mysterious dignity. She said with an odd little catch in her voice. I thought she was trying to quell her amusement at me, and I told her laughingly that I wasn't quite so gullible as she might think. That was neat of me. Then she proposed the old-fashioned waltz that the orchestra was playing. She's some waltzer, all right.

"Well, I said as we sat down for some ices later, 'you haven't told me yet, young lady.'

"Told you?' she asked.

"Your really, truly name.'

"Why bother about it?' she gave me an appealing glance. 'Just call me Annette.'

"That's mighty good of you, Annette. It almost stones for keeping me in the dark, my dear Miss—Fitznoodle.' I emphasized that word in a manner I intended to be highly humorous.

"Well, it doesn't take a Sherlock Holmes to guess that you learned from Hayes the next day that that was her actual name. Rather intriguing situation, I should say.'

"Intriguing nothing. She belongs to the ancient and aristocratic Fitznoodle clan of Albermarle court, Virginia, of which to my everlasting chagrin I never heard. How in thunder am I to square myself?

"That's simple enough. Persuade her to change her name.'

"By jinks I—I almost wish I could."

YOUR HEALTH

NO MORE GUESSING!

By Harry B. Knapp, M. D., Battle Creek, Mich.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

The saying that nothing is so sure as death and taxes soon will have to be modified, at least so far as the death statement is concerned. While ultimate death is fairly certain, the postponement of the coming of the undertaker is easily within the reach of everyone.

Public health laws, administered through the departments of public health in both city and state, and the practice of sanitation and hygiene, have been the factors in lengthening the span of human life from 33 to 58 years. But today we do have to wait until we actually feel the symptoms of disease before we may obtain reliable information relative to our physical condition. The detective machinery of science searches out our weak spots and puts us on guard to overcome them.

In the same manner that we throw safety devices about a machine that is likely to kill or maim a workman, just so should each one put on a safety program of health examinations by urging or requiring a periodic health examination at least once a year.

The state is doing excellent work in safeguarding human life, and the workmen's compensation laws have stimulated "safety first" methods. Contagious diseases and accidents, however, only partly account for the waste in human life.

Chronic degenerative diseases, such as cancer, Bright's disease, diabetes, heart disease, and other noncontagious affections, seem to be increasing. Early diagnosis is the most important factor in the cure of any disease, and this is particularly true in chronic diseases which produce changes in body tissues, often without causing any appreciable symptoms.

If one asks what is the result as to life saving where health examinations have been conducted, attention is at once called to the results obtained by one of the large life insurance companies in the saving of life among its policy holders by offering them free health examination. Of the 7000 persons were examined, only 217 died, whereas 412 of these persons should have died, according to the American experience tables, during the same period.

Earlier detection of the onset of disease is the goal of the Gorgas Memorial Institute. The result will be such a starting reduction in the sick and death rate as to be unbelieveable.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Alexander Zaimis, who again heads the government of Greece, is a veteran statesman whose long and successful experience may make it possible to navigate the angry sea of Greek politics. Several times before he has held the premiership, notably in 1873 when he was chosen to the office by the Revolutionists after they had ousted King Constantine. He has been a member and president of the chamber of deputies at different times, and was minister of justice in the cabinet of his uncle, the late Delyannis of Crete. His task has almost always been one of greatest difficulty and delicacy. The veteran statesman comes of a most distinguished Greek family, who for nearly a century has always been beside the tiller of the Greek ship of state. Born in Athens in 1855, he acquired a high education at the universities of Athens, Leipsic, Berlin, Heidelberg and Paris.

The Time o' Year for Me

You can talk about the gladness and the beauty of the Spring,
And the happy birds a-buildin' of their nests, an' songs they sing,
You may glory in the brooklets that is born of Springtime rains,
An' the many colored blossoms that is carpetin' the plains,
Of the bees a-makin' honey, an' the driftin' butterflies,
An' the little white clouds, lyin' snuggled up against the skies;
Spring has got unequalled glories, I admit it full an' free,
But the time that ends hay fever is the time o' year for me!

You can rave about the Summer, of the trumpet vines that climb,
Of the bumper crops a-growin' in the good of Summer-time,
Of the balmy nights and mornin's, and life dancin' to a tune
When the breeze out of the South is like a drink poured out by June,
When the Gulf lies in the sunshine, like an endless azure floor,
And the fruits of life are sweeter than they ever was of yore;
If you're crazy about Summer you have got a right to be,
But the time that ends hay fever is the time o' year for me!

I have sneezed, from where I live up north and east to Buffalo;
There ain't very many states that hasn't heard my bugle blow;
Down behind Nia'gra Falls I have turned loose this sneeze of mine
Till the fallin' torrent flung out like an apron on a line;
When I go out in an auto, as I do most every day,
And I honk-honk, all the autos scoot an' give me right of way!
Drivers think my sneezes blow-outs, and are startled as can be,
But the time that ends hay fever is the time o' year for me!

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Prefer Fact to Fiction

To keep up with the flood of modern fiction is impossible. There is a great gain if we can find amusement in reading books which inform as well as entertain. Prefer fact to fiction. Few are indifferent to the pathos of Dickens and Thackeray but there is a chord touched in reading of the natural heroism of brave men and women which no imaginary character can affect so strongly. When we read poor DeLong's record, in the midst of that terrible Arctic winter on the Jeannette, "for myself, I am doing all I can to make myself trust and respected, and I think I succeed. I try to be gentle but firm in correcting anything I see wrong, and always calm and self-possessed." We are moved by a real human sympathy. Yet it is one of the miracles of the masters of fiction that they make their characters so real to us. Lowell said he knew the sound of Squire Weston's voice, and for many people Baker street, London, is more definite as a landmark as the residence of the imaginary Sherlock Holmes than of the real Mrs. Siddons.

Stories That Recall Others

She Didn't Get By

Two young business women, who are living in an apartment were doing their Saturday shopping. Their basket was full but they decided it might accommodate a head of cabbage so the purchase was made.

They had just gone a few steps in the crowd when they saw a head of cabbage rolling on the sidewalk. Hastily picking it up one of the women decided to carry it in her hand.

She was astonished when a man hastening up took the cabbage from her hand saying, "You don't get by with that."

Looking in the basket, they found their cabbage in a paper bag.

Vacation Best

Little Jack was studying his lessons when his Uncle Bob walked into the room.

"Which do you like best, reading, writing or arithmetic?" asked Uncle Bob.

After a moment's thought Jack answered: "I like vacation best."

Tuberculosis Surgery

A surgical method of giving unfortunate tubercular lungs the rest cure is described by Prof. John Alexander of the University of Michigan, in the Journal of the Outdoor Life.

The "rib operation," as this method is called, is the most important surgical means of treating tuberculosis. It has passed the experimental stage and has been used by European surgeons with a remarkable degree of success.

It contains in removing from 1 to 8 inches of the 11 upper ribs where these are joined to the spinal cord. The pleural cavity is not opened and the lung is not touched. The gaps left by the removal of portions of the ribs are filled when the remaining ends come together, and the size of the chest is reduced on the operated side, compressing the lung and its activities.

Within a few months the cut ends of the ribs grow together and bony bridges form between them. The lung loses its power to function and has a chance to eliminate in time the diseased portions. After the tuberculosis is healed the lung cannot be restored. Experience has shown that one healthy lung is enough for the normal respiratory needs of any person.

After the wound is healed the deformity is very slight. Although the lung is greatly diminished in size the circumference of the chest does not appear much smaller because the collar bone holds the shoulder at its normal distance from the body. The range of motion and the strength of the shoulder and arm on the operated side are very little impaired.

Why Crosses Mean Kisses

Whatever your sex, at some time or other you have probably written a letter and put some "crosses" in it—for kisses. But have you ever wondered why a cross should be used as the written symbol of a kiss?

This story takes us back to the times when few could read, and still fewer could write, says London Answers. In that respect the nobility were no better off than those of a lower station in life, but deeds transferring property, wills and other documents had to be designed somehow. So those who could not write their names "made their mark." And this, in an age when religious symbolism was very much in evidence, almost invariably took the form of a cross. From motives of reverence the shape used was not that of the cross of Calvary, but the St. Andrew's cross, which resembles the letter "x."

Having duly made their mark, the signatories of a document then kissed it—partly as a pledge of good faith and partly as an act of reverence. And so cross marked on paper became associated with a kiss.

The International Tune.

The familiar melody of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," tradition says, was learned by the Crusaders from the Arabs in Palestine. Surviving in various forms, it sprang into great popularity in France in 1506 by being fitted to a lament for the Duc de Guise. A century and a half later a French officer, on the eve of the Battle of Malplaquet wrote a satirical poem on the English commander and wedded it to the old tune, "Malbrook s'en va t'en guerre," sung throughout the length and breadth of France. Beethoven used it in his Battle Symphony as symbolical of the French army. It came to England—and the English folk found that they had known it for a long time to the classic words which greeted the Prince of Wales at Monte Video. The Arabs, they say, still sing it, and it is the favorite air of the people of Hawaii.

Strength of Hyena's Jaws

The hyena is one of the strongest of mammals, but is known also as one of the most cowardly. A small dog has been known to send one flying. Only when cornered will it fight. Its jaws are strong enough to crush the shinbone of a horse. In Asia and Africa, where it is most commonly found, the animal is held in contempt because of its skulking habits.

The five day week will go into effect for 2,000 Chicago cloak makers December 15, officers of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union announced.

With Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke general chairman, a highly successful Christmas sale was held Thursday from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. by the Catholic Women's club of St. Patrick's parish, in the store at 74 Main street.

The decorations were holiday trimmings of poinsettias, miniature Christmas trees, red candles in silver holders and table appointments carrying out the idea of holly leaves and red berries.

At the domestic table Mrs. Nelson C. Dixon was chairman and was assisted by Mrs. Charles A. Chamberlain, Mrs. Annie Cunningham, Mrs. Thomas F. Burns, Mrs. John Kennedy and Mrs. John Eccleston.

At the cake and candy table, the chairman, Mrs. Mary McCarthy, had the assistance of Mrs. Dennis J. Hayes, Mrs. Joseph G. Crawford, Mrs. James A. Casey, Mrs. Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Mrs. Patrick M. Coleman, Mrs. William Fitzgerald, Mrs. John C. Cantlin and Mrs. John Murphy.

The tea tables were in charge of Mrs. John W. Brassill and assisting were Mrs. Charles F. Lee, Mrs. Patrick McNerney and Mrs. Tuerck.

The beautifully dressed Christmas doll was in charge of Mrs. James T. Woods and Mrs. William J. Farrell; this went to Mrs. John J. Hayes, of Washington street and the football, which Mrs. George F. Madden had in charge went to Mrs. John Fenton of Union street.

The effective decorations were arranged by Mrs. James J. Dutton and Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly.

Many dropped in for afternoon tea, as well as to purchase from the different tables, the stocks being completely sold out.

The officers of the club expressed indebtedness Thursday night to the Worth Specialty shop for the use of the store which they formerly occupied at 74 Main street, and which was heated and lighted for this sale in the interests of charity, to the Wauregan hotel, Ladies of Columbus, and to the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women. Cars were loaned by Mrs. Joseph W. Hourigan and Mrs. Mary McCarthy. The sale was the last event planned and well carried out by Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke, who is retiring as president of the society, after a very successful term.

In recognition of the charitable work done by the club, members of the parish and other friends were most liberal in donations toward the different tables, with cakes, jellies, fancy articles, homemade candy, fruit, etc.

PROVIDING MORE WORK FOR STREET DEPARTMENT

The street department on Thursday morning concluded its night work in clearing up the snow deposited by Sunday's storm. Street Commissioner John C. Donovan stated Thursday night that he is planning to clear up the snow at Union square today (Friday). This would have been done Thursday but there were so many machines parked there during the day that it was practically impossible to do much of consequence.

About 1 o'clock this (Friday) morning another snow fall started in and it is possible that the street department will have to start in working nights again. The weather prediction was rain for Friday, but the weatherman evidently slipped up on his temperature reading.

NORWICH HAS HAD FOUR CHURCH FIRES IN THE LAST FORTY YEARS

No church fire in Norwich of destructiveness equal to that which made a wreck of the Second Congregational church in New London this week has taken place in the last forty years, although there have been fires in four different churches in that time which the local department has fought.

The first church fire in that time was in the old Central Baptist church when its location was where the Central building now is on Broadway. This was on Jan. 6, 1887, a fire that broke out in the night and did damage of about $1,000.

On March 16 of the same year there was a fire in St. Patrick's church for which a general alarm was rung in, the fire taking place in the daytime and breaking out at the rear of the church in the rooms behind the altar. The blaze was held there and did not reach the main auditorium, but the damage amounted to about $15,000.

Then, there was an interval of 37 years, before another fire took place in a church, but this was one which many present members of the local department remember vividly. This was in the Swedish church on Bliekory street, breaking out just before midnight, Saturday, Feb. 21, 1914, on one of the bitterest nights of the winter. The thermometer was down below zero and the blaze gave the firemen a hard fight. The damage was about $6,500.

The last church fire was the well remembered one on Easter day, April 1, 1923, at Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town. Both the city department and the Yantic company were called into service here and the church was saved from destruction. The loss was about $15,000 to $20,000.

EXHIBITION OF ROSARIES IN CONVERSE GALLERY

Under the auspices of the Norwich Art association in the Converse Art gallery, on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, December 12 and 13, there will be on view from two until five o'clock an exhibition of 50 strings of prayer-beads, brought here from the collection of Miss Lucy A. Morse of Brookline, and shown under the auspices of the Norwich Art association.

These rosaries have already been exhibited at the Boston museum and at the Morgan Memorial in Hartford and certain of them shown in a collection at Fenway convent in Boston. An unusual opportunity is offered to the Norwich public.

The interest of the collection is from two angles. The significance of some of the prayer beads lies in their histories, others are objects of art. Some are very beautiful, some are grotesque. The beads were made from seeds, wood, shells, pebbles, bone, jade, turquoise, coral, amber, gold, silver and even gems.

A favorite material for Buddhist rosaries was the wood of Buddha's sacred tree. More highly prized in Thibet were those made from the bones of the holy lamas. In this collection, which Miss Morse has been 13 years in making, is a crystal rosary made from the chandelier of an old French church, the church having been destroyed by the Germans during the late war. Many people associate rosaries only with the Roman Catholic church. To them it is a revelation to find Hindu, Buddhist, Mohammedan and Oriental Christian rosaries, and to be told that three-quarters of the human race use prayer beads, and that the antiquity of rosaries is supposed to be almost as remote as that of organized religion.

The collection is put on view for two days preceding the paper which Miss Morse will read to the Norwich Art association on Monday evening in order that members may have an opportunity to examine the rosaries before hearing them discussed, and also in order that the public may see these rare and choice objects.

STATE'S BIGGEST YEAR IN HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

More than 206 miles of improved roadway were constructed in Connecticut during the last fiscal year—the largest road-building period in the history of the state. This is shown by a statement issued Thursday by the state highway department, which forms a part of the annual report to be submitted to the governor and the general assembly for the period from July 1st, 1926, to June 30th, 1928.

The previous year's activity had produced a total of 113 miles, while during the 1924 fiscal year about 132 miles were built. The past twelve months' work, therefore represents a large increase in the number of miles re-surfaced.

Ninety five miles of the total work finished during the period represented new roads added to the trunk line and state aid system. Roads reconstructed on the existing system aggregated 106 miles.

Concrete surfacing was the material used on about 45 miles of the work, while about 123 miles of macadam and bituminous macadam were laid. On the trunk line system, the report shows that 146.82 miles of new surfacing were added, 41 being new construction and 94 being roads reconstructed. On the state aid system, nearly 54 miles were built, 43 being roads newly built, and nearly 12 being reconstructed highway.

FURNISHINGS BROUGHT BACK FROM CONNECTICUT BUILDING

Three automobile vans reached the state library at Hartford Wednesday morning from the Connecticut state building at the sesqui-centennial, Philadelphia, bringing back all of the exhibits and furnishings of the Connecticut building with the exception of those of the highway and motor vehicle departments which were brought back by a highway department truck.

All that now remains in the Connecticut building are the silk window hangings, the electrical fixtures and the tower clock.

The furnishings for the exhibition and living rooms on the first floor has been returned. The disposition of the curtains, lighting fixtures and clock will be determined when the disposition of the building itself is settled.

Photographs have been taken of all the exhibits and the interior and exterior of the building, both by day and by night. These will be arranged in regular order on a screen in Memorial hall in the state library, in order to reproduce, as far as possible, the exhibit in Hartford. It was found impracticable to remove the entire exhibit to Hartford intact.

Maj. Gen. Morris B. Payne has been appointed by Governor Trumbull to take charge of the removal of the building.

SEE COMING IN FRONT SPOILED COMPENSATION CLAIM

When a bee enters a vehicle from the front and stings the driver or other passengers who may be employes engaged in daily work, the person so stung is not entitled to compensation Compensation Commissioner Leo J. Noonan in dismissing the claim of Frank Bloomfield of Hartford for compensation from the Coca-Cola Bottling works of that city.

Bloomfield admitted that the bee that stung him came through the open windshield of the truck he was driving, and not from the rear where syrup was being carried.

The commissioner held that if the bee had entered from the rear it might be assumed that the insect was attracted by the syrup and after being in the truck attacked and stung Bloomfield. The commissioner held that the bee came along and that Bloomfield was exposed to no greater danger than he would have been had the truck been entirely empty.

Swans and Ducks at Mystic

A large flock of wild ducks has been staying in the open water of Mystic river between Mystic and Old Mystic the past few days and have been watched by many passersby, on the road to the upper village.

It is estimated that there are nearly 100 birds in this flock, which is composed of mallardrakes, dippers and whistlers and what is more unusual, two swans are in the group.

It is almost as difficult to hide a cough as it is to hide love.

$500,000 TO START EAST HADDAM SCHOOL

An estate estimated at between $500,000 and $700,000 has been left to establish a manual training school in which tuition shall be free to residents of Haddam and East Haddam, as a memorial to the parents of Frederick L. Ray whose will has just been admitted to probate by Judge Walton Hall, Jr., at East Haddam.

The only other bequest is a trust fund of $50,000 for the life use of Bertrand A. Ray, late of Gloucester, brother of the testator.

The school is to be built within 20 years after the death of the testator, according to the will. It is requested that the school be located on the Ray estate at East Haddam, but the executor is given broad powers as to that and the management of the trust fund.

The United States Security Trust company of Hartford is named as executor. The will was executed November 1, 1926, and Mr. Ray's death occurred two weeks later at the New Haven hospital, following an operation. The witnesses to the will are Mildred M. Dillon and Wilbur C. Root of East Haddam and Maynard T. Hazen of Hartford. Elmer N. Peck and Wilbur C. Root have been appointed appraisers on the estate.

Frederick L. Ray was born in East Haddam, March 1, 1847. His father, James L. Ray, was one of the early manufacturers there, and the son was associated with him until the father's death in 1887. His mother, Mary H. (Gates) Ray, was descended from the early settlers of East Haddam. The school is given as a memorial to Mr. Ray's father and mother.

The Ray estate is situated overlooking the village of East Haddam, on one of the "Seven Sisters," a section of high bluffs on the Connecticut river extending from William Gillette's castle at Hadlyme to East Haddam. Mr. Ray, who never married, was born there and always resided on the estate.

In one section of the will the request is made that the trustee shall confer with Rollin U. Tyler and appoint him on the governing board provided for.

Another section of the will provides as follows:

"It is my request when said period of accumulation shall cease, or earlier at the discretion of said trustee, that a sum not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) shall be expended from said fund for the erection in said East Haddam of a building or buildings for said institution and that upon its or their completion the active function of said institution shall be inaugurated. Said building or buildings shall be maintained and the operation financed from the net income derived from the balance of said fund as then constituted. Any of said net income not required for said purposes shall be reinvested as an addition to the principal of said fund until the total, including gifts, if any there be, from other sources for the purposes of said institution, shall amount to one million, one hundred thousand ($1,100,000) dollars, when a further sum of one hundred thousand ($100,000) dollars may be expended for an additional building or buildings for the purpose of said institution. Further reinvestment of net income not required to maintain the buildings and organization as then existing may continue until a total sum of two million, two hundred thousand ($2,200,000) dollars is attained, when a further sum of two hundred thousand ($200,000) dollars may be invested in an additional building or buildings.

LEFTY DUGAS CHOSEN MOST VALUABLE PLAYER IN NORWICH TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Lefty Dugas, pitcher, outfielder and first baseman of the Eastern Conn. Power Co. ball team, was given the most valuable player award for the Norwich Twilight league at a meeting of the judges, Earle E. Brigham, Earl Mathewson and John E. Wilson, on Thursday evening. The vote on Dugas was unanimous and was taken only after careful study of the various players and their season's records. Dugas was one of the most popular players in the Twilight league and his playing was an inspiration to the team of which he was captain. He pitched nice ball and could play either the outfield or first base with equal ability. His hitting was exceptionally good and was one of the main factors of his club's success in the league. With all things considered the choice of Dugas as the most valuable player met with the approval of baseball fans who learned of the decision last evening. Lefty Dugas through this award becomes the possessor of the beautiful $65 strap watch which was the gift of the John and George Bliss Co., jewelers.

The prize of a fielding glove donated by Norwich Lodge of Elks goes to Stephen Cimikoski who had the best fielding average for the season. Cimikoski played nine games with the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. team and out of 36 chances that he accepted he made but one error for a fielding average of .970.

LEFTY DUGAS
Most Valuable Player

The hitting honors for the season went to that old veteran, Tim Coughlin, who played such a stellar game at the initial sack for the East Ends. Tim hit for an average of .536. He corralled 15 hits out of 28 times at bat, five hits being doubles.

The choice of leading pitcher was a tough proposition for the judges but the ultimate choice was Gil Jones. The judges took the earned runs as a basis for their choice, Jones having only four earned runs scored off him during the 46 innings that he pitched. The prize for Jones was $10, the same as the prize for leading hitter.

Joe Jackson was awarded the base-stealing prize as the fleet-footed Warrior pilfered ten sacks during the season.

In the awarding of prize money to the teams there was a lengthy discussion and many things had to be considered. First money of course went to the Eastern Conn. Power Co. team as this team had an undisputed claim to the title. The awarding of second and third money was the main problem of the evening. The St. Joseph team at the latter part of the season refused to replay a game with Yantic which the arbitration board ruled that they must play. As a result the arbitration board awarded the game to Yantic. Then Yantic refused to play a game with the Eastern Conn. Power team as directed by the arbitration so the board awarded the game to the Eastern Conn. Power team. This resulted in a triple tie for second place between St. Joseph, Yantic and the East Ends. As a result of the triple tie the arbitration board ruled that the prize money for second and third places should be distributed evenly among these three teams.

JOE JACKSON

The arbitration board was elected by the league managers at the beginning of the season and everyone agreed to abide by the decisions of this board.

This was all very good until the board had several questions to settle and then several teams refused to abide by the board and wanted everything their own way, with the result that the prize money is split three ways instead of two as would have happended had the teams done as the arbitration board ruled.

The final standing of the league after the awards made by the arbitration board is as follows:

	W	L	Pct.
Eastern Conn. Power	9	1	.900
St. Joseph	6	4	.600
Yantic	6	4	.600
East Ends	6	4	.600

NO MORE WINTER LEAGUE BALL PLAYING FOR PROS

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 9—(AP)—The National Association of Professional Baseball leagues selected Dallas, Tex., for its 1927 meeting and adjourned today after one of the most harmonious conventions since its organization 25 years ago.

Dallas, Toronto, and Richmond, Va., extended invitations for the next meeting.

The last day of the meeting saw the most radical ruling of the year passed. The association decreed that no more winter baseball could be played by players owned by clubs in the leagues, which make up its membership. Pacific Coast league players and those in a number of the eastern leagues will be affected by the rule. Commissioner K. M. Landis was given a rousing reception at the meeting here and yesterday received a vote of confidence which at the same time delivered "official notice" to the major leagues that the minors want Landis re-elected for a term of seven years at the next meeting of the big leagues.

With little going on at the sessions of the association of interest most of the managers and club owners left the league presidents to conduct business and established a player market in the lobbies of the convention hotel. Scores of trades, and sales were discussed but few were completed.

BRITISH CHALLENGE FOR INTERNATIONAL POLO CUP

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Great Britain may have completed plans to challenge in 1927 for the historic Westchester cup, emblem of international polo supremacy but the United States Polo association isn't yet officially aware of it.

According to cable dispatches today to the Associated Press from Bombay, India, a team of British army officers has been selected, their ponies booked for shipment here in April and the players due in July to prepare for international cup matches in September at Meadow Brook, Long Island.

Until the U. S. P. A. hears directly, however, from the Hurlingham club, governing body of British polo, no steps will be taken here to arrange for reviving one of the most colorful of all international sports events.

N. Y. COMMISSION "NOT INTERESTED" IN BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission, so far as Chairman James A. Farley is concerned, "isn't interested" in enforcing any arrangement for a speedy return match between Mickey Walker and Tiger Flowers for the middleweight championship.

Farley made this statement today in reply to inquiries as to whether the commission, at its meeting tomorrow, might delve, by request, into arrangements connected with the bout by which Flowers lost his crown to Walker in Chicago last week.

Returning to New York today, Walk Miller, manager of Flowers, declared he would open negotiations tomorrow with Promoter Tex Rickard with a view to obtaining a return fight with Walker in Madison Square Garden on March 3.

Miller declared he had an ironclad agreement with Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, calling for a return bout in 90 days.

DANIELSON TOWN TEAM WINS EASY GAME FROM NEW BEDFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 9—In a fast clean game of basketball the Danielson Town team added another victory to its list in the town hall tonight before a large crowd of fans by defeating the fast Orients of New Bedford, 49 to 26. The Orients played a very fine brand of ball but were outclassed by the speed of the local boys from the start of the game. The Danielson boys exhibited clever pass work and also in their shooting and were certainly deserving of victory. In the latter part of the game the Danielson substitutes went in and played nice ball. Every player on the local team is deserving of praise for the excellent showing they are making this season. ACADEMY IN FINE SHAPE FOR SUFFIELD GAME

The Academy quintet is rapidly rounding into shape for the coming clash with Suffield Prep at the Y. M. C. A. gym Saturday night. Coach McKean of the locals has been drilling his charges extra hard for this game, which shapes up as one of the most important on the entire schedule.

A squad of nearly 20 is now working out three days a week and in the drill on Thursday afternoon at the Y gym all candidates were sent through stiff scrimmages. A first team was formed and used during the afternoon against opposition recruited from the remaining members of the squad. The first stringers showed up exceptionally well and with a slight tapering off this Friday afternoon should be in the best of condition for their first scholastic game ever played by an Academy basket-ball team. New signals were also introduced in Thursday's practice by Coach McKean.

As far as is known, Saturday's game will also be the first scholastic basketball contest ever played in the city. The Suffield outfit, one of the fastest prep school fives in Connecticut, is reported as coming down strong for the game. A large band of rooters will accompany the team from the upstate institution and attempt to encourage their heroes to victory over the locals.

Bleachers capable of seating nearly 500 are to be put in place for the game, in anticipation of the large crowd that is expected to jam the Y gym to its capacity. The bleachers will afford a splendid view of the game and greatly eliminate the former inconvenience of standing during contests of this sort.

The Academy will present their full strength as the result of Les Pingree's return to center. His presence at the tapoff position was sorely missed last week in the Y. M. H. A. game and not a little strength, both offensively and defensively, will be added to the quintet by his return.

PRESERVATION OF YALE SPIRIT MOST IMPORTANT ELEMENT

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 9—(AP)—More fundamental than other element in the athletic situation is the preservation of the "Yale spirit," the Yale Alumni Weekly tonight said editorially.

"The university wants its athletics handled so that as many undergraduates as possible get into them as possible," said the editorial, "and the graduates wants its teams so coached as to carry on the tradition of taking as many scalps as possible from Princeton and Harvard.

"But there is a more fundamental element in it than mere victories, agreeable as they are. There is the Yale spirit. If this is going out of any one of our sports because conditions are not right to keep it, then we want to do something about it."

It is unquestionably the business of the school's and colleges to maintain the amateur basis on a high level, for if they do not, no one will. This is the conclusion of the editor after consideration of an agreement between Connecticut's "big three" prep schools—Taft, Choate and Loomis—prohibiting coaching during the progress of games, and the sending in of players from the side-lines except on the instruction of the physical director. The agreement also provide that once a game has started the captain will be supreme on the field, and cuts down the baseball schedule to nine games and the football schedule to six.

C. F. C. WINS EASY GAME FROM WARRIORS

The C. F. C. basketball team added another victory to their credit last evening at the Y. M. C. A. court by defeating the Warriors to the tune of 32 to 26.

Jackson, Brown, and Lambert excelled for the victors, while Burns and Hilderbrand for the losers.

The C. F. C. team journeys to Plainfield next Wednesday to match their skill with the fast Plainfield Buddies. The preliminary:

COLLEGE YOUTH LEADS FIELD AT PEBBLE BEACH

DEL MONTE, Cal., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Two youthful arms were raised today to check a host of veteran golfing masters of the nation when Harold Thompson, of Glendale, Cal., strode down the tricky pebble beach course for 69 to top a brilliant field and with his partner win the amateur-pro play—preliminary event to the $5,000 Monterey Peninsula open championship which starts tomorrow.

The 19-year-old amateur, a student of the University of California, southern branch, was paired with Cyril Walker, of Washington, D. C., National open champion in 1924, in the best ball 18-hole matches, and his 69, coupled with Walker's effort, gave the team a net 64 to finish in first place.

In was a stunning upset, as George Von Elm, national amateur champion, and Leo Diegel, professional at the Nueva Granada Country club, Los Angeles, were favored to come through for honors in today's event. The best the Von-Elm-Diegel combination could do was to tie for fourth place with four other teams at 69.

Second place honors fell upon the shoulders of John Black, Wichita, Kan., professional and Dr. H. L. Brownell, Monterey amateur, who turned in a 65. Third place went to Wallace MacDonald of Los Angeles and Ed Dudley, Oklahoma city professional, with 67.

A field of 153 started in the matches.

YALE HAS IMPROVEMENT ON CAMPS DAILY DOZEN

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—A variation of Walter Camp's daily dozen has come out of Yale. The new exercise, a stem might be called the early score.

Dr. William Gilbert Anderson, director of Yale's gymnasium, is the father of the new set of exercises for which he had a slogan—"Keep the back of your neck against your collar and relax now and then."

Dr. Anderson's system is directed at correcting posture and requires but five seconds 20 times a day. "Just lift your head, draw in your chin until the back of your head presses against your collar, arch your chest to its utmost and draw in the abdominal muscles," he advises. "Do this 20 times a day, holding the position for five seconds each time, and in a few weeks you will find that your posture will be greatly improved. You will look better, and feel better."

If in their youth men had been taught to relax a few minutes every hour they would last longer and be much more efficient, according to Dr. Anderson, who instructs his students to sit quietly a moment or two each hour, permitting every muscle to relax.

Both the leaders were able to grind out an extra lap on Petrilands and Winter-Stockholm, their closest rivals, during the feverish riding, running their margin to three laps over the second pair. Fiji Island Fossil Reefs

Believing that the fossil deposits in the raised reefs of Viti Levu, largest island of the Fiji group, may yield information in regard to its geological history and give science as well a few sidelights on the theory of evolution, Dr. H. S. Land, paleontologist and Yale university Bishop museum fellow for 1925-26, has left Honolulu for Suva and plans a six-month stay in the southern archipelago.

"In addition to the modern reef around the border of Viti Levu," Dr. Ladd points out, "there are two other series of elevated coral beds which were deposited in different geological periods and which are believed to have been raised by emergence centuries ago. These contain about 100 feet of fossil deposits.

"Fossils found in limestone usually consist of fish teeth and shells, and it is expected that there will be varieties in the raised reefs of Viti Levu which are not the same as those living today.

Porcelain Traffic Lines

A new idea for making permanent white lines for use at street crossings and for the direction of motor traffic is to be tried out soon in London, says Popular Science Monthly. White porcelain studs are inserted in holes drilled in wood paving.

The studs are imbedded in a line three abreast, making a strip of white wide enough to be seen readily. The chief advantage of the porcelain is that it is unaffected by weather, oil, or mud, and thus makes a line that cannot be erased by the constant beat of traffic.

Gas Bomb For Colds

Two San Francisco chemists have just perfected a chlorine gas bomb which makes possible the use of chlorine gas for the treatment of colds in the home, where the same results are obtained as with more elaborate apparatus, in fact, eliminates the necessity of going to some central source for treatment, with possible exposure to bad weather and further lowering of body resistance. The chlorine gas bomb is made of glass and contains nothing but pure filtered chlorine gas.

To use it, the patient takes the bomb in a closed room and breaks off the ends of the bomb, thus permitting the gas to escape and mingle with the air in the room. The patient remains in this gas-filled room for one hour.

Rob Safe by Water

Ingenious bank robbers looted a country bank, located 10 miles south of York, Pa. After breaking into the vault, but unable to reach the contents, they bored a hole through the top of the safe by using an acetylene torch. Then they filled the safe with water, and as securities and money floated past the opening the burglars grabbed them. The wafer was carried to the bank in milk cans stolen in the village.

Powerful New Gas

Manufactured gas that is said to give twice the heat and light value of any gas now used was announced recently by Col. E. E. Garrison, president of a New York gas company. It is made by vaporizing the heaviest oils obtainable, including sludge and tar in a column of superheated steam. It can be produced, it is claimed, at much lower cost than any gas manufactured today.

Desperate straits and crooked actions are often closely allied.

Remember How it Rained the Day of the Fight?

ON September 24th, the day of the Dempsey-Tunney fight, it rained on and off nearly all day. Toward evening, it held up and allowed the fight to more than half finish before it started to drench the thousands sitting out under the open skies—but that's another story.

Right now, we want you to recall how it poured rain during most of the day of the 24th, because the story of what happened during that rain—what happened during every rain or snow storm for many years past—is a story that directly affects your cost of living.

Every Truck Weighed Carefully

The next time you are near Central Wharf, look in at our driveway and attached to the red brick building, you'll see a shed and two truck scales. The man who operates these scales sits within this building uninterrupted from his careful watch on the automatic readings that flash on the scale chart before him carefully noting the everchanging weight of the empty trucks as they return for new loads.

The next time you see a three or four ton automobile or horse drawn truck, if it's a hot dry day, imagine how much more that truck would weigh if soaked with rain or covered with ice and snow.

Why We Are So Careful With Weighing

On the morning of the 24th day of September, our auto truck No. 6 thoroughly dry from the hot sun of the day before, drove out of the garage at 7:00 in the morning and on to the scales. Its net weight was registered in the scale office at 13,880 pounds.

Note that weight well, for even though this story is but a description of the daily routine at our yard, it recounts one of those business procedures that has made New England great.

After the preliminary weigh-in, during which the quantity of gasoline in the tank was carefully noted, and the radiator FILLED with water, truck No. 6 was loaded for its first trip with its quota of dry screened coal, again carefully weighed and sent on its way, the net weight of coal being charged to the customer.

Every Trip Calls For New Weight Record

At 9:15 A. M. truck No. 6 returned to the yard soaked with rain and spattered with mud. Its weight empty had increased to 13,897 pounds. Because of our infallible weighing methods, the next customer who received coal in that truck got 17 pounds more coal than he would have if the truck had not been weighed while entering the yard empty after its first trip in the rain.

At 10:15, this same truck No. 6, had gathered water and mud, weighing 46 pounds. Or, in eight trips during the day, our customers who received deliveries in this truck were saved paying for from 200 to 300 pounds of water and mud.

A Matter Of High Business Integrity

In winter, with ice instead of water, and on a 10-trip day, we could easily save ourselves a thousand pounds of coal a day on one truck or several tons on the fleet, were carelessness and neglect allowed to creep into our weigh-shed.

Stop in at our yard some day and watch the almost uncanny operation of this automatic scale. Sit in our office a while and feel as we feel the guiding presence of a great man and a great merchant—one of the founders of the New England spirit and American genius. Edward Chappell has left to us a great business. But he has also left us a greater gift—the unswerving habit of integrity in all things.

BIG FARM PROBLEM MADE UP OF LITTLE ONES.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

It beats all, the amount and variety of advice the farmer gets,—especially from men who don't know the difference between a farm and a "country estate."

If one of that sort has made money selling muslin or liver pills or ironmongery or legal advice or other like commodity, he thinks himself thereby qualified to tell farmers how to make money at farming.

If he has invented a process for making shingle-nails faster and cheaper, he takes it for granted that every farmer-man in the land wants him to tell, also, how to make farming easier and more profitable.

If he has engineered himself into a lucrative place as efficiency expert in a machine shop, he is cock-sure that he could turn an abandoned Tolland county farm into a paying proposition with ease and celerity.

Though he may not know the difference between timothy and pussley, or between Holstein and Jersey, or between muck and mud, he is, nevertheless, confident that he would be assured and instant success on the farm. Not necessarily on some selected and superior land but on any old farm, anywhere.

If, in addition to this conceit of his own abilities, he also happens to have a super-abundance of leisure, he seems impelled to spend it in propagandising for his particular theories or in painting his own pipe-dreams.

You see, it is so very much easier to tell someone else how to do it than to do it yourself. It is also more satisfactory to a certain grade of minds because, if the other fellow doesn't win out by doing it, you can stand off and criticize his mismanagement and denounce his laziness and sneer at his incompetence in a way which would never do, at all, if you had been the failure, yourself.

It is a little curious and more than a little suggestive that most of these people who profess to have bullet-proof plans for transforming farming into a ten per cent industry begin by asking that the said farmers at once invest five or 50 or 100 dollars each in some sort of stock of some sort of corporation which is to be managed by the disinterested (?) promotors.

As one disgusted farmer said to me, "According to these chaps all farming needs is a lot more bonded issues; things to pay for three times in interest before the principal is paid once."

The favorite war-cry of this class is the hackneyed phrase: "You must begin by spending money if you expect to end by making money." Which may be true in some cases, and may not be true in others. One thing is always true, however, it is, that the more money is borrowed the easier times are for those who have it to lend, and the harder they are for those who haven't it and must borrow. Harder by the full measure of the interest they must pay.

It would be funny if it were not so disgusting, the preference so many people have for issuing bonds or signing notes for things they want, over paying for them cash down. It seems impossible for them to get it through their heads that, when they issue a long term bond, they're doubling or tripling the amount they must pay. In the end they have to pay the entire principal and, in the meantime, they have to pay, year by year, what amounts to twice or three times that principal in interest.

Just as an illustration: The budget of New York city calls for the raising of a little over $400,000,000 to pay city expenses next year. Of this amount a full third, or $137,256,554.71 in exact figures, must be raised to pay interest on the city's funded debt. That is, the city might have had all it is going to have, next year, for $137,000,000 less and the taxes might have been only two-thirds of what they're going to be, if the city wasn't having to pay a third of its income for interest on borrowed money.

Now, you and I do not profess to be financiers. We don't need to know that paying for dead horse is neither pleasant nor profitable. De are not Solomons of pluperfect wisdom, maybe. We don't have to be to know that it is wiser economy to go, temporarily, without some things we want than to pay for them twice, first in interest and then in principal.

In a very real sense farming is a sort of gambling and we are all more or less gamblers. But, when we begin our annual game with the weather and other forces of natural law, we know that the game is going to be played fairly by the other side; that the cards are not stacked against us before the deal. Which is exactly what we can not be sure of when asked to sit in with some of the wonderfully smooth-talking gentlemen who profess to be simply desolated over our troubles and to be willing to devote their lives and their superior minds to removing them.—If only we'll buy stock in their Utopias.

Then there are others who are not so evidently "on the make," who are really sincere in their desire to help farmers and convinced that their own self-evolved "cures" are the only proper medicine.

Seems to me people of this sort are, often, even more dangerous than the other. Their assured conviction of their own dangerous wisdom makes them almost apostolically urgent in their propaganda, and their freedom from self-seeking predisposes listeners in their favor. They take themselves very seriously and expect their hearers to do the same.

They are fond of talking about "The Farm Problem," putting all the initials in the biggest possible capital letters. They talk in big words and bigger figures. They fairly boom with the importance of their subject.

But, just between you and me, what is "The Farm Problem?" I mean what is the one outstanding problem which all farmers face? The one which is worrying them all? The one whose solution would put them all on Easy Street? Bieet if I know or can find out. Can you?

I know that the North Stonington farmer has one problem, and the Buckland farmer has another, and the Wayne county, N. Y., farmer has another, and the South Dakota farmer still another. I know that they are all different, by reason of the different soils, seasons, crops, market conditions, etc., affecting their work.

I suspect that, instead of one big, overshadowing Farm Problem in capital letters, there are about 11 million small farm problems, confronting that number of individual farmers, no two exactly alike, no two calling for identical treatment, no two solvable by the same formula.

One farmer has a farm suitable only for raising hay. Another has a farm fit only for chickens. Another has a loam naturally meant to produce tobacco. One grows fruit, one grows cabbages, one goes in for wheat, one for milk and butter. The problem of the peach orchardist of Glastonbury is not the same as that of the potato-grower of Preston plains. That of the market gardener of Long Island is not the same as that of the corn-grower of Iowa. There is no master-key which will unlock all the different doors which shut in their various faces.

One of the most widely read agricultural papers of the east has a slogan whose exact words I have not at hand, but whose meaning is that if we farmers want things done we must do them ourselves. And I seem to recall hearing in my long-past boyhood the remark that every tub must stand on its own bottom.

You have your little farm problem; I have mine. You don't know where my shoe pinches; I don't know which is your sorest corn. But we know, each for himself, about what the trouble is. If my shoe nips the joint apart the big-toe joint, I can get another sooner one or have the pincher stretched where stretching is called for. Either procedure will ease matters for me. But neither will relieve your corn in the least. You've got to tend to that according to a different policy. And you've got to decide for yourself what that policy will be.

In my Sunday school days we used to sing a hymn telling how "Little drops of water,

Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean
And the beauteous land."

My little farm problem of how to make my farm do its best for me and for itself is a rather insignificant one. Likewise a single drop of water won't do to sail a ship on. But when enough little drops are collected they will float all the navies of all powers. Similarly, do you suppose that there would be any big Farm Problem left, after each one of us 11 million farmers had solved his own particular little one?

Seems to me there's where our hope really lies. There isn't any power in government to enforce farming prosperity, any more than there is to make a lazy farmer industrious or a short-sighed one prudent. But every able-bodied and clear-headed farmer has it in his power to do a little wiser farming, this year, than he did, last; to avoid at least one mistake, this year, which he made, last; to solve at least one more letter of the cross-word puzzle which stumped him then.

It has been said that he is a real benefactor who succeeds in making two blades of grass grow where but one grew before. The farmer who solves his own particular little farm enigma has really done more to put "The Farm Problem" out of business than 17 conventions of non-farmers, orating and resoluting however sonorously and sincerely.

"Come boys" from a leader usually gets more action than "Go boys" from a driver. If we want results we must get after them, ourselves.

THE FARMER.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Watches Buster Make His Bed

From animals a lesson take,
For e'en a bear his bed can make.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit took great care to make no sound. He didn't want Buster Bear to know that he was anywhere about. So Buster sat on one side of a young hemlock tree, grumbling to himself; and Peter sat on the other side of that same tree, waiting for Buster to move never would move.

But finally Buster started along. He was still grumbling to himself in that deep grumbly voice of his. He wanted to go to bed, and he didn't want to go to bed. He was sleepy, but he wanted to get another good meal before he went to bed. But he yawned more and more. Peter, following along behind him at a safe distance, heard him yawn, and every time he heard him yawn Peter laughed down inside. It really was funny. Buster would yawn and then would grumble.

After a while Peter noticed that they were gradually getting deeper and deeper into the Green Forest. He wondered if Buster was going back to the den he had used for several years. But Buster wasn't, for the very good reason that Mrs. Buster already occupied it. Peter didn't know this. So he was a little surprised when they reached the ledges, where Buster's old home was, and Buster merely stopped to look over there and sniff. Peter looked over there. He knew just where that cave was in the ledes, and he saw that all about the snow was perfectly smooth. There were no tracks there. You see, Mrs. Buster had gone to bed before the last snow fell. But Peter didn't know this and he was surprised when, after standing for a few minutes with his head swinging from side to side, Buster, grumbling more than ever, started on again. Buster traveled some distance and Peter was about to give up.

"I'll go just a little farther," muttered Peter. "I'll go just a little farther, and if he doesn't go to bed by that time I'll just have to give up."

It was just after this that Buster Bear stopped. There was a great windfall there. You know a windfall is where a lot of trees have been blown over and have fallen in a great pile. Some of these trees had fallen across a ledge of rock which stood high above the ground. In this way they made a sort of cave. Peter saw Buster go in underneath the fallen trees. Then Buster came out. He looked this way and he looked that way and he looked the other way, and he grumbled and he rumbled, and he rumbled and he grumbled and finally he went over to a young hemlock tree and broke off some branches.

"Now what is he doing that for?" muttered Peter to himself, seeing there was no one else to mutter to. Buster raked the branches toward the opening under that windfall. With his big paws he raked them inside. Presently he came out and got some more and did the same thing. All the time he kept rumbling and grumbling and muttering away to himself. He was making his bed. At first Peter couldn't think what it meant, but after a little he understood. Buster was making his bed.

"I do believe," thought Peter, "that this is where he is going to sleep all winter. There must be a lot of dry leaves in there, but he is going to make sure of having the right kind of a bed. I wonder if he'll go to bed tonight and not wake up until spring?"

Presently Buster Bear came out once more and sat up. He looked very tall and big and black against the white snow. He tested the air with his nose. He wrinkled his lips as he still grumbled to himself. To Peter that made his face look very unpleasant, because it showed those big teeth of his. Then, after a look this way and that way and a look the other way, he once more disappeared inside his home. Peter heard him sigh several times. Those sighs were long, heavy sighs. He heard him rustle the leaves as he twisted and turned to make himself comfortable. Then, though Peter waited for a long time, he heard nothing more.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO CALL SPECIAL ARMS CONFERENCE

GENEVA, Dec. 9—(AP)—The United States government soon will be invited to collaborate in two league of nations activities—an international economic conference May 4, 1927, and an international conference for the supervision of the private manufacture of arms.

The league council today voted to convoke this special arms conference in the autumn of 1927 provided the general disarmament conference, which has been authorized, is held over until the next year.

Both the United States and Russia will be invited to sit with representatives of the league states on the on the council which will act as a commission to prepare the draft of a convention on the private manufacture of arms and will be asked also to the autumn conference itself.

The tenor of today's discussion indicated that the council attached importance to participation by the United States, thus duplicating is collaberation in the successful conference on the control of the traffic in arms.

The report which was adopted, declares that the council bases its hope that the United States will participate in the conference on the private manufacture of arms on formal statements made by representatives of the United States at the conference on traffic in arms.

DISCUSSING MILITARY CONTROL OVER GERMANY

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 9—(AP)—Adjournment of the ambassadors's council at Paris until tomorrow without an agreement having been reached with respect to military control over Germany, caused a chill in official circles in Geneva.

It is recognized that military spheres in Paris have a powerful voice in insisting on complete German compliance with the disarmament requirements of the Versailles treaty; nevertheless, there is confidence among officials here that the German problem will be liquidated by turning it over to the supervision of the league of nations.

M. Briand even said tonight that he preferred league supervision to interallied control. The latest plan provides for an arrangement whereby league commissions would be empowered to insist upon Germany living up to all the conditions, failing which, league supervision would automatically terminate.

HUNDREDS ARE DYING DAILY IN SIANFU, CHINA

PEKING, Dec. 9—(AP)—Hundreds were dying daily in Sianfu a fortnight ago, said a belated dispatch received today which told of starvation and cannibalism in the capital of Shensi province due to the siege by provincial forces which has lasted since April.

The Kuominchun (People's Army) defenders and the Chinese populace of the city of more than 700,000, had eaten all the dogs and horses and it was asserted that flesh of the human dead had been sold to keep alive the miserable inhabitants.

Nineteen foreigners in Sianfu were in a desperate condition November 10, when the last word was received from them.

Reports that the besieguering forces of General Liu Chen-Hua have raised the siege and retreated into Honan prince, thus far have not been confirmed. They are allies of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, who controls the Peking government. The Kuominchun defenders of Sianfu are a portion of the armies of the government which Chang Tso-Lin and other militarists replaced.

HALT MERGER OF DEALERS IN OFFICE EQUIPMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Merger of Rand Kardex Bureau, Inc., and the Globe Wernicke company, among the largest manufacturers and dealers in office equipment in the United States, having combined assets of upwards of $27,000,000 and average annual gross sales of $27,500,000 was halted today. Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow entered a decree ordering the Rand company to turn over to David H. McAlpin, 3rd, of New York city, as trustee about $1,100,000 par value stock of the Globe Wernicke company now held by Rand Kardex Bureau, Inc. The trustee is directed to dispose of this stock before December 31, 1928.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Rutherford—Yes, ma'am, I have lost all my relatives.

Mrs. Smith—You poor man! How did it happen?—Exchange.

So you are the sole survivor of a shipwreck. Tell me how you came to be saved?

Well, you see, I missed the boat.—TP Bits.

Old Lady—What time does the 8 o'clock train go?

Clerk—Sixty minutes past 2.

There. I told Mary the time was changed.—Montreal Family Herald.

What is the difference between ammonia and pneumonia?

Search me.

Why, ammonia comes in bottles and pneumonia comes in chests.—The Progressive Grocer.

Butcher—Anything else?

Jones—Yes, I want a pound of liver—and include a dozen liver pills, if it's as sick looking as the liver you gave me yesterday.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Look here, Clara, what do you mean by keeping me waiting here at the corner, looking like a fool?

Well, Harry, I know I kept you waiting, but you did the rest yourself.—Stray Stories.

Mrs. Greene—Mary, how do you tell an old chicken from a young one?

Mary—By the teeth, ma'am.

How silly! Chickens have no teeth.

No, but I have.—Los Angeles Express.

Isn't it strange how some people try to get along with no household equipment at all?" remarked Juggins. "Why, those new neighbors of mine haven't a lawn mower, a hose, a stepladder, a saw or any new books."

"How do you know they haven't?" asked Hobson.

"Why the day after they moved in I tried to borrow those things."—London Tid-Bits.

Peculiarly, he has lived longer than his friends who served through the civil war. He was rejected as physically unfit when he sought to enter the Union army.

A new theory of gravitation has been advanced by Dr. Arthur Korn, a German scientist. The atoms of matter are now believed by most scientists to consist of two kinds of particles. One includes the electrons which make electric sparks. The others are electric in nature, but smaller and heavier. Dr. Korn grants the reality of these, but adds a third, his gravitative particles. They are not electrical, but concentrate between themselves the attraction of gravitation.

NORWICH TOWN

Wednesday, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, masses were celebrated at the Sacred Heart church at five and seven o'clock. In the evening at 7:30, there was a reception of the Children of Mary, a recently organized society, since the appointment to this parish of the new pastor, Rev. Edward J. Quinn. About forty young women were enrolled as members, Wednesday evening.

The act of consecration was read by the president, Miss Mary Burns. Mrs. William A. Murphy, organist, was in charge of the music. The speaker of the evening was Rev William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, Greeneville, who addressed the society in a helpful and inspiring manner. In his eloquent words Rev. Father Keefe complimented this company of young women on the large number enrolled and urged each and every one to live up to the rules and regulations of the society, also to be faithful in observing them. "Always take the Mother of God for your model; ask Her help and protection and through Her intercession, Jesus Christ Her Son, will never forsake you," said Rev. Father Keefe. Mother, was the theme of his address, in which a mother's love and devotion was beautifully portrayed to the large congregation present.

Rev. Father Keefe expressed the thought that the newly organized society would be a most valuable influence in the parish. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament brought the impressive service to a close.

At the home of Walter T. Camp, president of the Norwich Rural association Wednesday evening, a special meeting of the Community Christmas tree committee was held at eight o'clock. Frederic H. Wyant is the general chairman for the 1926 celebration, which is to take place Christmas eve at 7:30 o'clock.

Other chairmen assisting in the arrangements are: Lighting, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey; finance, Robert Bolleon. In arranging the musical programme Mr. Wyant is to secure Joseph C. Worth, as leader of the community singing, while others who will have an important part include Miss Jennie L. Congdon, Miss Bessie M. Grant, who are to have charge of the children's exercises, so kindly arranged by Miss Schaeffer, special exercise, and game teacher of the public schools.

A general invitation is to be extended the men singers of Norwich, through the courtesy of the various churches, to form a special chorus. The Norwich Council of Girl Workers, through the president, Mrs. A. C. Freeman, has arranged to have a number of the young women from the Council of Interchurch workers who are to call at the various institutions and sing Christmas carols while en route to Norwich Town to join in the festivities. When arriving at the Green about 7:15, the company will be received by Miss Jessie E. Hyde and Norwich Town girls, who are members of the Inter-church workers.

It is anticipated that the exercises will attract an even larger gathering than in former years.

The W. I. T.'s, an organized class of young men of the First Congregational Sunday school, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, teacher, was entertained Wednesday evening at Miss Hyde's Home on Washington street. Preceding the social hour during which refreshments were served by the hostess and games were played, a short business meeting with devotional period, was held by members of the class. Among those present during the social part of the evening were the wives of some of the members.

In recognition of the recent marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Odgers (Ethel Whaley) they were presented a framed picture by the class. Raymond Smith of Mystic, one of the first members of the W. I. T.'s, was present.

The December meeting of Home chapter of The King's Daughters, Mrs. William E. Manning, leader, is to be held Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home. This also will be the annual roll call of Home chapter. The names of new officers will be presented at this meeting by the nominating committee.

Mrs. James H. Albertson has returned to her home in New York, following two weeks' visit at the home of her brother-in-law, Edwin C. Guy, and nephew, L. Stanley Gay of Julian terrace. During her stay Mr. Albertson was a guest over Thanksgiving at the Gay home.

To Discuss Juvenile Courts

The annual meeting of the Connecticut Child Welfare association will be held at the Waterbury club, Waterbury, December 10th, with Hon. George C. Appell, judge of the children's court of Westchester county, N. Y., as the chief speaker. His subject will be "The Child Before the Court." Francis Hiller of the National Probation association who has just completed a survey of probation and juvenile court work in Waterbury in cooperation with the Connecticut Child Welfare association, will make his report.

John P. Elton of Waterbury, a member of the executive committee of the association, will preside at the meeting which opens with a luncheon at the club at 1.30. The meeting will be open to the public.

HOME-MADE STILL IS DISCOVERED DURING NEW LONDON TENEMENT FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9—The three and one-half story wooden building, Green and Pearl streets, owned by Abraham Bropstein, of New York, formerly of New London and occupied for commercial and residential purposes, was threatened with destruction by fire this morning. But for the excellent work done by the fire department, the entire structure would probably have been reduced to ashes, for the building is an old one. As it was the fire was confined to the upper part of the building, which was gutted, while the other tenements and stores were damaged by water and smoke for it became necessary to turn great quantities of water into the building.

All of the tenements were thoroughly drenched as were the grocery store of Abraham Goldstein and the laundry of Charlie Lem. These places however, will be out of business only temporarily.

The upper part of the building was gutted, while the roof was demolished, either by the fire or by the work of firemen in breaking through it in order to reach the flames.

The fire was discovered shortly after 11 o'clock when great volumes of smoke were seen issuing from under the eaves. Investigation revealed that the entire upper part of the building was either in flames or enveloped in smoke. The fire was centered in the tenement occupied by John Roberts colored, and family. Mrs. Roberts was at her work in a local mill and the children were left to care for themselves. The children were sent to the street and an alarm was rung in from Box 313, corner of Green and Golden streets. Acting Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and Deputy Calvin Edmunds responded together with five pieces of apparatus, including the aerial truck. The flames by that time had broken through the roof and the side of the building necessitating the fire being attacked from the front, rear and sides. Four lines of hose, one from the aerial ladder and one line of chemical were stretched into the building and after an hour's work of the hardest kind the flames were extinguished.

How the fire originated is not known. Whether children playing with matches caused the fire, or whether a defective chimney started the blaze has not been decided. When the firemen reached the building practically all evidence of the origin of the fire had been removed because of the start that the flame had before being discovered. During the progress of fighting the flames the firemen came upon a still and Sergeant John Cavanaugh and Patrolman Michael Dorsey, who were on duty there seized the still which was of the home-made variety having been made from a large milk can. This was taken to police headquarters where it is being held pending investigation. The still had not been in operation recently, for it appeared to have been placed in storage.

DRIVER GAVE NO SIGNAL, PAID $5 FOR REMISSNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9—Earl R. Edgecomb, 21, was in the police court this morning for violation of the auto operation statute which forbids an operator driving his car away from the curbing where it has been motionless unless the driver gives warning of his intention to go into traffic by extending his arm. This Edgcomb admitted he did not do. He represented that the window of the car was closed so that he could not extend the arm. That was an admission of guilty and he was fined $5. Edgecomb evidently did not understand what the law required of him. He was not an intentional offender, and had been operating a car some three years.

The police today are investigating a suspicious fire that occurred Wednesday night but which was not reported to them until this morning. Although the fire carries the earmarks of having been of incendiary origin, that fact may not be proved. Mrs. John Tudisco, 11 West Colt street, informed the police that late Wednesday night the interior of the garage was discovered ablaze, after it had been made safe for the night. Patrolman Clarence Martin was assigned to investigate the complaint and found that the garage is a two-car structure and that Mrs. Tudisco had secured the garage during Wednesday night. A short time before midnight the garage was discovered afire and with assistance the fire was subdued, but not until the garage had been damaged and the Tudisco automobile damaged some by the flames. The garage did not show any signs of having been forced and the fire did not occur where the automobile was standing, but a considerable distance away from the car.

The confectionery store of Diamond Ballasi, 33 Main street, was visited by thieves last night, but the only plunder obtained was $15, which was found in the cash register. Entrance to the store was discovered this morning when Ballasi opened the place for business and he reported it to the police. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the burglary and his investigation showed that the thieves entered the yard in the rear of the store from John street and there forced a window.

An automobile driven by Miss Barbara Hendry, 207 Ocean avenue, visiting nurse, struck two juvenile coasters this morning, but the children escaped injury other than slight bruises. The children were coasting on Hope street, which has always been considered one of the dangerous places of the city for sliding. As the automobile was passing through Hempstead street and about to pass Hope street, the sled on which were the children, entered Hempstead street and crashed against the wheels of the auto. Miss Hendry took the children to the city clinic where an examination revealed that the coasters were uninjured. They were then taken in the automobile to the school that they could resume their studies.

Joseph McGoinness was fined $5 for intoxication. He had a hangover when he appeared in court, and was quite garrulous. As he had kept away from the courts some eight years, except with one lapse, he was given a chance to stay away as long again.

Not since the winter of 1924 has the city found it necessary to clear snow from the streets as it has found the duty pressing the past week. Auto trucks with a large gang of men have been engaged since Monday endeavoring to relieve the highways of the large volume of snow that made them menacing to traffic. State and Bank streets are as clear as it is possible to make them, while today other streets have been relieved. The snow is carted to the harbor and dumped overboard. The highway department has also had a gang of men distributing sand upon walks that were slippery because of trodden down snow and ice.

Anthony and Lena Gomez, of Groton, have sold to Sidney H. Miner a building lot on Bayonet street.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold to Cornelius D. Lynch, Jennie E. Cochrane and Catherine Lynch a dwelling on the south side of Vauxhall street.

Sidney H. Miner has sold to Anthony and Lena Gomez, of Groton, a building lot on the east side of Bayonet street.

John Sile, 69, died this morning at his home, 24 Grove street after a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. John Golart, of this city. Mr. Sile was born in the Azore Islands, but had resided here many years, having been employed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad 33 years. Mr. Sile was a member of the New England Veterans' association, St. Joseph's Portuguese society and the Portuguese Fraternal society.

Thomas Gelinas, 40, died last night at his home, 13 Cutler street, Groton Bank, Groton, following an illness of several months. He is survived by his wife, five sons, Wilfred, Theodore, Leon, George and Alphonse Gelinas, and a daughter, Miss Alma Gelinas, all of Groton. Mr. Gelinas formerly resided in Willimantic. He was employed by the New London Ship & Engine company.

Director of Finances Carey Congdon, who has been ill at his home, Highland apartments, Granite street for several days as a result of a severe cold was at his office in the municipal building today for a brief time.

The police received a telephoned message shortly before last midnight from a woman residing at 48 Truman street, stating that a man was prowling in the rear of her home. Patrolman Elwood Bailey and Louis Wheeler were sent to the house, but were unable to find any trace of the prowler.

CORONER ORDERS BODY OF GORMAN WILSON HELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9—The funeral of Gorman Wilson, colored, United States Coast Guard mess attendant on the destroyer 142, who died in a New York hospital a week ago from septic peritonitis following receiving a fractured skull at the hands of George Joseph Washington, colored, also of the coast guard and who is now under arrest on a charge of manslaughter, was held this afternoon at a local undertaking establishment, the services being conducted by Richard Mansfield, superintendent of the B. P. Learned mission. While the services were being held the undertaker received a communication from Coroner F. F. Desmond of Norwich, ordering that the body not be buried, but that it be retained by the undertaker as a second autopsy may be performed. It was intended to bury the body this afternoon in Jordan cemetery.

GIVES UP DRUG BUSINESS IN NORWICH-OWNED STORE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9.—Charles M. Taylor, who has carried on the drug business at Main and State street for a period of more than 23 years, voluntarily closed the place today. He is understood to have in mind the abandonment of the business. He says he will keep the store idle until he decides what he will do. He is considering a store on Broad street. The property is owned by the Frank A. Robinson estate of Norwich and Mr. Taylor has a lease of it for a considerable time yet. He established the business in the store after the death of Frank Smith, a loser from the Storey Cotton company when that concern victimized hundreds of people in Connecticut in a sort of Ponzi scheme. Mr. Smith came to New London from Norwich where he had relatives and where he was very well known. He began business with a man named Childs, also a Norwich man, but that partnership did not continue long. The Storey company promised investors in cotton fabulous returns and finally swindled all who had invested money with the firm. The failure was the talk of the country some 40 years ago.

The Groton fire alarm at 8.30 this evening called the Pioneer fire engine company to Benham road where fire was starting in the garage of Ernest Watrous. Defective wiring was the cause. The damage was very slight only a few bags being destroyed. The condition of the roads—snow covered—made the task of getting to the fire one of peril.

Adam Cronesbury, of advanced years and well known because of his having been an itinerant clock repairer many years, was painfully injured this evening when he fell downstairs at his home. He received an ugly laceration of the scalp and was rendered weak by the shock. Mr. Cronesbury resides at 3 Harris street and about 8 o'clock, while going up the stairs leading from the second to the third floor, he lost his balance and fell headlong to the floor below. Occupants of the second floor heard Mr. Cronesbury's body as it landed at the foot of the stairs and they went to his assistance. He was bleeding freely from the scalp wound and was hardly able to stand. The police were notified and Patrolman William Riordan was sent to the house where Cronesbury was in an exceedingly weakened condition. A physician was summoned and dressed the wound.

Mrs. Dominic Menghi and infant daughter, of 499 Ocean avenue, and Mrs. Wesley Bradshaw and infant daughter, of 223 Connecticut avenue, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. Nicholas Lorello, of Westerly; Mrs. George McCulley and infant son, 230 Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

At a meeting of Thomas Hose company, No. 2, held Tuesday night, Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin was unanimously elected foreman, the election of Mr. Martin as head of the company marking his 19th consecutive term in office of the foreman. The other officers elected are: First assistant foreman, George Enos; second assistant foreman, George Herrin; secretary, Richard Carver; treasurer, Charles T. Chester; executive committee, Antone Enos, chairman; Antone Mariano, Charles Smith, William Costello and Frank Briggs.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Findlay of 202 Pequot avenue, are spending a few days in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sullivan have returned from their wedding trip and are residing at 53 Waller street. Mrs. Sullivan was formerly Miss Marion C. Jordan, for several years an operator for the Southern New England Telephone company.

NEW ENGLAND FARMERS BETTER OFF THAN WESTERN

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—(AP)—Most of the testimony given by H. W. Moorhouse, analyst, intended to show that the New England farmers are better situated economically than the western farmers, was ruled out today by Interstate Commerce Commissioner E. I. Lewis at the hearing on the application of New England railroads for a 20 per cent. increase in milk transportation rates.

John T. Finerty, counsel for the New England Milk Producers association, objected to the analyst's testimony and was sustained by Mr. Lewis over the protests of W. A. Cole, counsel for the Boston and Maine railroad. Mr. Finerty contended that milk prices given by Mr. Moorehouse, who argued that the New England farmers could and should bear the rate increase proposed, were on a retail basis. Most of the farmers sell their milk at wholesale, he said, and therefore their incomes should not be estimated on the basis of retail prices. He also contended that other prices given by Mr. Moorhouse, such as wheat prices were irrelevant.

OPPOSED TO COMPULSORY CHAPEL AT WESLEYAN

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 9—(AP)—With a small number of Wesleyan students committed to a strike against compulsory chapel Sunday, a committee of four seniors was authorized by the college senate today to confer with trustees and faculty Saturday and to urge the abolition of compulsory chapel. The committee was appointed today by President Donald M. Jack, '27 of the senate as follows: Ralph F. Bischoff, of Newton, Mass.; Harvey B. Gram of Washington, D. C., Kenneth E. Steele of Hartford; Theodore A. Rath, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Dawes, vice president of the United States, and Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, and those for 1925 to Aristide Briand, French minister of foreign affairs and Dr. Gustav Stresemann, who holds the German foreign affairs portfolio, says a dispatch from Oslo, Norway, printed this morning in the newspapers L'Avenir and L'Oeuvre.

Breed Theatre

Red Grange, idol of a million football fans, makes his screen debut in a surprisingly convincing and likeable manner in the Greater F. B. O. production, "One Minute to Play," which had its local premiere yesterday at the Breed theatre.

Grange is not only the peer of gridiron heroes and shows it in the football sequences, but has a charming screen personality and is a really excellent actor as well.

The picture is, of course, based on football, and carries the "Illini Flash" through his riotous entrance into college, his difficulties with parental orders on one hand and college loyalty on the other, to a brilliant and thrilling climax in which his marvelous genius for making spectacular runs is emphasized to great effect. A delightful romance, and plenty of comedy are added and welcome features, and the directorial gifts of Sam Wood have achieved splendid results.

Mary McAllister makes a lovely heroine, and Charles Ogle as the father, Lincoln Steadman as the college chum, Lee Shumway as the coach and Ben Hendricks, Jr., as the rival captain, all handle their parts skillfully. Edythe Chapman and Jay Hunt comprise the rest of the cast, along with George Wilson, noted All-American half-back, who leads the opposing team against Grange with convincing ability. Byron Morgan, who wrote most of the late Wallie Reid's racing stories, did both story and continuity on this production.

Palace Theatre

For this week end's vaudeville program at the Palace theatre, a show of big time, high class acts unprecedented, in Norwich or vicinities was presented yesterday. A wealth of entertainment, rich in settings, gorgeously gowned, dancing de luxe, sweet nightingale, see-saw comedy and syncopated and jazzy music. The big feature, Madamoiselle Andree, a sensational dancer, who has appeared in several of the successful comedies on Broadway. An apache dance done by Mlle. Andre is the outstanding novelty of her great offering. Billie Goldie Revue, grouped and surrounded by several pretty girls danced delightfully, executing a variety of steps that was pleasing to the eye. In between the dance an unprogramed little lady serenaded with some popular tunes. Pierce & Arrow, like the name, extolled bunches of laughs with cross fire chatter in connection with the comical situations that arise in automobiling. Selma Brats, one of the few female jugglers on the stage today, does some clever juggling, and her manipulation of cue sticks is a sure treat. A clever humorist and monologist is Tom Mahoney. The ladies in particular will develop chuckles and smiles in listening to his witty patter. The theatre-goers of Norwich need not seek better entertainment with shows the Palace theatre are showing. The film entertainment in addition to the big bill is Florence Vidor in the "Popular Sin" with Clive Brook and Greta Nissen, Miss Vidor always gives a pleasant performance and in this interesting opus of the day, "The Popular Sin", she is at her best. Her exquisite charm, quiet dignity, artistic charm will establish her as your favorite in this smart love comedy of marriage and divorce. The Palace up to the minute news completes a worthy program you can't afford to miss.

Strand Theatre

The very special prices at the Strand for today should turn out a capacity crowd. It is not merely for the price reason but also for the extraordinary program of Keith Albee vaudeville which consists of five acts and that splendid photoplay featuring Richard Talmadge in "The Broadway Gallant."

The stage offered Conlin & Hamilton as the first attraction. It is a splendid revue of song and dance.

Tom Ellis & Viola West followed with a real laughable number called "No Sir! I would not," which is full of fun.

Quinn & Keeler are jesting comediennes. They proved that the weaker sex is just as full of fun as the stronger.

Bobby Van Horn, L. L. L., professor of laughosophy in "Live-Love-Laugh" is worth the admission alone.

The Lumars closed with a sensational offering introducing the girl without nerves.

DR. CADMAN ENUMERATES CAUSES OF CRIME WAVES

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 9—(AP)—Modern civilization has beset society with more evils than the church has been able to cure, and the result is crime waves, godless pleasure, dirty drama, sex obsession and profiteering, Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches, told the executive committee of the council tonight.

"The majority of intelligent people," said Dr. Cadman, "admit that Christianity is the hope of cure or prevention for these evils. If the people who so believe were units in one practical policy, they could find the cure for the present conditions in our nation and wold.

Even in international politics, said Dr. Cadman, the league of nations "begun in a fine burst of Christian idealism," has had to endure "relentless opposition or studied neglect from many statesmen and political bodies professing Christianity."

OPPOSE REINSTATEMENT OF INSURGENTS IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—(AP)—The move to reinstate republican insurgents of the house in the party fold ran into a snag today at a meeting of the republican committee on committee which a year ago banished them from important posts on committees.

Although insurgent and administration leaders were hopeful of a peaceful settlement of their difficulties, they encountered an opposing trend of sentiment. In the committee which refused to agree to appointment Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, the insurgent leader, to the chairmanship of the pensions committee.

Members of the committee on committees demanded more information on the president degree of insurgency among the banished members, and the effect the appointment of Nelson would have on the status of other insurgents.

The question precipitated a somewhat extended discussion and the committee meeting broke up without action. Another meeting will be held next week at which the question again will be raised.

REV. C. G. MILLER DIED OF PTOMAINE POISONING

NORWAY, Me., Dec. 9—(AP)—Rev. Chester Gore Miller, pastor of the Universalist church here the past 13 years and nine years at South Paris, died today of ptomaine poisoning. He was a graduate of Tufts Divinity school.

Born in Elkhart, Ind., 60 years ago, he was a resident of California for more than a score of years. His first pastorate was in western New York for five years he was pastor of St. Paul's Universalist church in the Jamaica Plain district of Boston, and for a similar period at All Soul's church, Portland.

$10,000 FIRE IN CAPITOL FOUNDRY CO., HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Dec. 9—(AP)—Fire which did damage estimated at $10,000 by fire department officials, to the building of the Capitol Foundry company and which may cause loss to contents amounting to $70,000 wrecked the plant of hat company between 11 o'clock and midnight tonight. Cause of the fire is unknown. Eight Hartford companies and one from West Hartford fought the blaze.

NO BIGOTRY IN MAKE-UP OF JUDGE JOHN G. POLLARD

NEWBRITAIN, Dec. 9—(AP)—The day when the Masons, the Knights of Columbus and the Ku Klux Klan will meet to hold festival in a Jewish synagog, to raise money to build Baptist churches for negroes, was described tonight by Judge John G. Pollard, of Williamsburg, Va., as the ideal time.

Judge Pollard, an instructor in Williams and Mary college, war-time president of the Trowel and Trestle Board club in France, and a former attorney general of Virginia, was addressing the 75th anniversary banquet of Giddings chapter, Royal Arch Masons here on the Spirit of Masonry.

"A decent regard for the opinions of others, and charity in our judgment of others," he said, "is the true spirit of Masonry. In my younger days I entertained great prejudices. I thought men were bad because they did not agree with me. When I came to know them my prejudices faded away.

"I am a gentile to the manner born. The more I see of my Jewish friends the more completely I lose my prejudice for the race. I am a Protestant. The more I see of my Catholic friends, the more I respect and admire them. I am a democrat—an old Virginia democrat—the more I see of my republican friends the more I am convinced that they are not bad men, but good men gone wrong."

The festivities tonight brought together the largest gathering of Royal Arch Masons ever held in New Britain. Several state officers, including Deputy Grand High Priest Edward A. Klatte were present.

Senator Gould, republican of Maine, was presented to President Coolidge yesterday by his colleague, Senator Bale.

RISE IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Responding to favorable trade news, easier call money rates and another series of favorable dividend announcements, stock prices moved upward today under the leadership of the high rails and industrials. The average of 20 leading industrial shares advanced to within less than a point of the record high, gains in a number of individual issues running from 1 to 3 points. Rails gave an even more impressive demonstration of strength than the industrials, although the "railroad average" is still several points below the year's top.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent and then dropped to 4 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. The weekly meeting of the New York Federal Reserve bank failed to produce any change in the rediscount rate although an early reduction is expected in some banking quarters.

U. S. Steel common was heavily bought on reports that mill operations were again above 80 per cent of capacity, closing 1 3-4 higher at 150 7-8. The November tonnage statement, to be made public at noon tomorrow, is expected to show a substantial increase in unfilled orders. Resumption of the advance in Allied Chemical was accompanied by rumors of the early declaration of a 40 per cent stock dividend.

In the motor group, Nash suddenly leaped into prominence by jumping over 4 points to 63 1-2 but later slipped back to 62. Urgent short covering was a factor in the rapid rise. General Motors closed fractionally higher after moving within a range of 1 1-4 points. Chandler-Cleveland preferred sank to a new low on rumors of a cut or omission of the dividend at the next meeting of the board. Electric Refrigeration and Foundation Co. also broke to new low levels.

Loose Wiles Biscuit jumped 5 1-4 points to a new high record at 172. Among the dozen or so other high established in the industrial division were South Porto Rican Sugar, Eureka Vacuum, Granby Copper, Green Cananea and American Zinc preferred.

Buying of the rails was stimulated by the publication of a report showing net operating revenue in the first 10 months of the year to be the highest of any corresponding period in history, with October showing the highest monthly total on record. Coal carriers were especially strong. Pittsburgh & West Virginia soaring over 8 points to a new peak at 127 1-2 while Lehigh Valley crossed 101 to a new record top.

Secretary Mellon's annual report to congress in which he said, "We can look forward to another satisfactory year," was particularly encouraging to operators working for higher prices. Bankers were especially interested in the statement that "instalment buying does not yet seem to be menacing our financial soundness."

Cotton, wheat and the other principal commodity markets drifted lower.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling held firm around $4.84 1-2 but French francs reacted nearly 10 points below yesterday's top price, and minor recessions took place in most of the other continental rates. Brazilian exchange sank to a new low record, and the Canadian dollar was again quoted at a discount of 1-64 of 1 per cent, as against a small premium last week.

TAFTVILLE

The "S. R. O." sign was out early at the second night of the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church Wednesday evening at Ponemah hall, when members of the Dramatic club presented one of the funniest, snappiest and most melodious minstrel shows ever seen over the local footlights. The curtains rose to a southern minstrel medley, and the scene presented to the audience was a southern plantation setting, with coal black laborers and their shovels and hoes, and mammies in big aprons and red bandanas, down to little three year old pickaninnies.

Robert Cooper as the plantation owner, was the interlocutor, and the end men who made things lively for the audience were Harold Humphrey, George W. Weller, Jr., James Heap, John Thoma and Thomas Parsons. They kept up a rapid cross-fire of of new and original jokes, and when several local people came in for a share of the "knocking," the show had to be held up until the audience stopped laughing.

That part of the show which was pronounced the big hit of the whole affair was the Charleston done by Miss Mary Martin. With true professional style, Miss Martin negotiated all the difficult steps of the dance, the great delight of the crowd who used to let her resume her seat till she had given several encores. The musical numbers were all well rendered, and contributed greatly to the great success of the minstrel. Miss Dorothy Campbell was the pianist.

The vocal numbers were as follows; Sleepy Head, Miss Mildred Troeger and Miss Elizabeth Newton; Me Too, James Heap and Jack Houston, who also executed some difficult dance steps of their own invention; selections by the Hollywood Four, George W. Weller, Jr.; Archibald Torrance, Jr.; Lou Gagnon and Frederick Erlbeck; And Then I Forget, John Thoma; West of the Great Divide, Thomas Grimshaw; School Day Sweethearts, Miss Elsie Heap; Lolu Lu, George W. Weller, Jr., accompanied by trio; Tonight You Belong to Me, Miss Flossie M. Meyer; O Boy, How it was Raining, Harold Humphrey; So's You're Old Lady, Miss Ethel Holland; She Knows Her Onions, Thomas Parsons; Grand Finale, Bye Bye Blackbird and Mary Lou by the entire company.

During the singing of the grand finale, there was dancing by Miss Martin, Miss Newton and Mr. Houston, and by little three-year-old Doris Weller. The other members of the troupe were Miss Selena R. Adams, Miss Melba Monty, Miss Freida Sarcaki, Miss Edna Krodel, Lester M. Pingree, Earl Mathewson, Edwin Heap, Charles Parsons, Lawrence Parsons, Miss May Krodel and Miss Doris Weller.

Home made candy, home cooking, fancy work and novelties were sold at booths conducted by the various parish societies. The ice cream table and the quick lunch counter also had heavy patronage. It is the belief of the committee in charge that the net proceeds to be turned into the church treasury will be very gratifying.

Mrs. John Unsworth and her daughters, the Misses Nellie and Louie Unsworth of Mystic have been guests of friends in town this week.

The Basketry club held its regular weekly meeting in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building, Thursday evening.

Although sliding is good in many other parts of the town, children were again using main thoroughfares like Merchants avenue, and Providence street this week. Some minor accidents caused by colliding with automobiles have already resulted.

Mrs. Daniel Vergason of North Stonington has been a recent visitor at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson of North Third avenue.

Miss Dorothy Wood of Coventry was the guest for a short time this week of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood and family of South Second avenue.

HEADQUARTERS OFFICERS WILL MAKE INSPECTION OF PHONE EXCHANGE

Executive and operating officials of the Southern New England Telephone company are to reach here today (Friday) in the course of a two day inspection tour for inspection of the exchanges in the New London district. They were in Willimantic Thursday and their tour will also include Danielson, Putnam and New London. The tours of inspection began some time ago and have taken the officials of the company out of New Haven one or two days each week for the past few weeks to reach the 81 exchanges in the state.

In the party will be Vice President and General Manager H. C. Knight, General Commercial Superintendent J. D. Veitch, General Traffic Superintendent F. L. Moors, General Superintendent of Plant E. L. Simonds, Chief Engineer E. H. Levitt, General Auditor E. B. Baker and Executive Assistant C. E. Rolfe. Accompanying the officials of the telephone company will be O. Whitmire, manager of the branch house of the Western Electric company in New Haven and W. A. Griffin, assistant vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

On their trips the officials of the company take note of the physical condition of the outside plant of the company, stopping for a more detailed inspection of some of the unusual construction work that has been and is being carried on in the several large development projects now under way.

In their visits to the exchanges, they likewise give attention to the condition of the exchange buildings and the central office equipment on these buildings. Several building projects are now under way for the telephone company in various cities of the state and these are visited, while at the other points of call the officials gather much information as to the probable future needs in the way of buildings and equipment.

With the completion of this statewide inspection tour the directing officers of the telephone company will be completely informed by their own observations, not only of the condition of the plant as it stands, but will have information on which to base their judgment as to improvements to be started in the near future. In addition to this the officers meet hundreds of employes with whom since the organization has grown so extensively in the last few years, they have not had personal contact and this side of the trips is particularly pleasing to the New Haven group as well as to all those whom they visit.

EVIDENCE TOO WEAK FOR LIQUOR CONVICTION

After Nicholas Panagiotos of North Thames street had told a story of an alleged put up job to convict him of selling liquor, Judge Arthur F. Libby, deciding there was not sufficient evidence to convict him on a liquor violation charge, nolled the case. He was arrested Wednesday by Sergt. Myron O. Morgan and Officer John O'Neil on the evidence of an alleged liquor sale secured by a civilian working with them. The evidence against the accused was that the police aid went to the store of the accused on North Thames street, bought a glass of moonshine, paid for it with a $5 bill, marked, and then dashed out of the store handing the liquor to the police. He didn't even wait for his change. Accused came out of the store after the police aid and was grabbed by the police and taken to headquarters, being booked on a charge of violation of the liquor law.

In the store the police found a milk bottle containing moonshine. The liquor was found in a rear room which the accused claimed he uses as his home.

The name of the man who was willing to try to spring the trap on the storekeeper remained a mystery as both officers testified they didn't know his name and the accused man couldn't tell it either.

The accused stated that the police aid had been patronizing the confectionary store for some time. A short time ago the accused declined to give the man credit for fifty cents. This he said, enraged the man who threatened to get even with him.

Accused said that the man, who is a carpenter, went to the store Wednesday to do some work. He bought some cigars and paid for them with a $5 bill. While accused was making change the carpenter suddenly complained of cramps and asked the accused if he would give him a drink to relive off the cramps. Both went to the rear room and the storekeeper got the carpenter a drink, after the accused had told the carpenter that he did not sell liquor but would give him some. Instead of drinking the liquor, the carpenter asked for a little pepper to put into it and while the storekeeper was looking for the pepper the carpenter dashed out of the store with the liquor.

John T. Filburn, 21, of 61 School street, who was arrested about 2 o'clock Thursday morning on a charge of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor, was fined $200 and costs. He paid $210.50. He was also given a 30 day jail sentence, suspended for one year.

The machine left the roadway at Preston bridge and tore loose about 20 feet of the iron railing on the bridge, nearly plunging into the Shetucket river. City employees temporarily repaired the damaged bridge after the accident.

Filburn had a young woman with him in the machine when it nearly went off the bridge into the river.

PLACED UNDER $1,000 BONDS IN COLCHESTER

Miss Monica M. Cahey of 55 Colman street, New London, was placed under bonds of $1,000 and a hearing on a technical charge of manslaughter was continued until Dec. 27 when she was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Frederick Baker at Colchester Wednesday. The action is the result of the fatal injury of Miss Irene Wasoniewoski, 17-year-old senior at the Bacon academy at Colchester, who was struck by the automobile operated by Miss Cahey at Colchester a week ago Thursday night. The young woman had her skull fractured and back broken. Miss Fannie Wasoniewoski, 14, sister of the dead girl, was also struck and is now at the St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, with a fracture of the right ankle and other injuries. She was reported as doing well at the hospital Thursday. Charles Stohl of New London, went surety for Miss Cahey.

The accident occurred shortly after dark while Miss Cahey was driving from Hartford to New London and the sisters together with Miss Helen Konsar who escaped injury, were walking home from school. The Misses Mary Sweeney of 331 Huntington street and Margaret Flanagan of 343 Broad street, were riding with Miss Cahey. All three are employed as nurses at the private hospital in New London.

Coroner J. J. Desmond is now conducting an investigation into the fatality and the hearing at Colchester is being delayed pending the coroner's finding. State police of the Groton barracks investigated the accident and arranged for Miss Cahey's arraignment as a matter of form.

Navy Deserter Caught Here

David J. Dion, 21, also known under the name of Young, a deserter from the U. S. Navy since October 14, was arrested Wednesday night by Officer Michael Poupch at the Falls. Thursday morning he was turned over to the naval officials at the submarine base, navy yard. He was in civilian clothes.

ASHFORD "MAROONED" BY DEARTH OF GOOD ROADS

In commenting upon how the town of Ashford is burdened and handicapped by its highway problem, Allen E. Lincoln, member of the general assembly of 1925 from that town said this week that Ashford is the only town in the state which is without a railroad, a trolley line, a stage or even a motor bus line, because it has not even one through line for motor traffic, either trunk line or state-aid highway.

"There is a state-aid highway leading from Mansfield Center through Warrenville to Westford village, continued Mr. Lincoln, but owing to peculiar circumstances entirely beyond Ashford's control, there is an "interval" of country road of three and a third miles from Mansfield Center to the Ashford town line, and this interval is often impassable in spring mud or heavy snows, to the degree that not only paralyzes the milk transportation and other business, but make it impossible for even physicians to respond to calls. The circumstances beyond Ashford's control in this matter lies in the fact that the uncompleted interval lies wholly in the town of Mansfield and Ashford can therefore do nothing about it. [illegible] for the extensive development of the trunk line [illegible] Mansfield [illegible] passing [illegible] Mansfield [illegible] done [illegible] the [illegible] about three miles [illegible] Westford village, and it has been delayed in this by lack of state appropriation [illegible] funds being available. The completion of this interval would have given the people of this village one outlet to Willimantic, and would be of great advantage to the town. Representative Buck and Lincoln made every effort in the assembly of 1925 [illegible] recognition of these conditions and the unfairness of the situation to Ashford.

"There [illegible] another [illegible] travel, for the [illegible] people of Ashford [illegible] for many years. It [illegible] with interval from Mansfield [illegible] north of the [illegible] through Warrenville to Pineville, a distance of about ten miles, authorized [illegible] many years but incomplete. The recent [illegible] development of the "blind angle" from West Willington to East Willington has led to the suggestion that [illegible] highway department [illegible] intend to push through its work from [illegible] Willington to Warrenville and thence to Pineville but no one seems to know which line will be developed and meanwhile Ashford is still "marooned". There is a certain amount of government aid available for the completion of this trunk line interval, and it is hoped that the assembly of 1927 will provide funds for trunk line completion which will at last give Ashford the outlet long sought for.

"The problem of the local crossroads will still remain. There has been a strong feeling among the residents that the selectmen should take hold of this problem vigorously and devise some improvement. In fact, the new board which took office October 1, 1926 has made considerable improvement. It is known that Hammond Knowlton a well to do resident on Knowlton hill has made the town a substantial offer of financial cooperation for the improvement of the local highways, when the town shall show a real determination to tackle the problem; but it must be admitted that the conditions as outlined above have been discouraging. It is hoped that the newly elected representatives, Nathan Armitage and Gilbert Mathewson, republicans in good and regular standing, will be able to convince the incoming assembly that Ashford ought to be given relief."

FREEMAN INTRODUCES BILL ON PRIZE FIGHT FILMS

In accordance with an announcement made by him prior to leaving New London for Washington several days ago, Congressman Richard P. Freeman has introduced into congress a bill which will, if passed, remove the present restrictions against the importation and interstate transportation of motion pictures of prize fights. The bill has been referred to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, and Mr. Freeman in discussing the bill Wednesday said that he looked for early action on the bill by the committee.

"It is a ridiculous situation," Congressman Freeman said, "when a prize fight may be held in Pennsylvania, but pictures of it may not be shown in Connecticut theatres, and a fight may be held in Connecticut theatres but films of it may not be transported into Pennsylvania. I am going to do all that I can to promote the passage of my bill."

Since announcing his intentions of introducing the bill, Congressman Freeman has been swamped with messages of support from athletic officials, fight fans and others throughout the country, and has been editorially commended by many of the leading newspapers in the country.

The bill prohibiting the interstate transportation of fight films was passed at the time of the Johnson-Jeffries fight, when it was feared that race riots and other trouble might follow the display of the pictures of the fight. At the last annual convention of the National Athletic association, composed of the boxing and athletic commissioners of the several states, it went on record as being in favor of the repeal of the present law restricting the transportation of fight pictures, adopting a resolution to this effect introduced by Thomas M. Donohue, of New London, Connecticut's boxing commissioner. It was Commissioner Donohue who took up the matter of remedial legislation with Congressman Freeman, and secured the latter's unqualified approval and his promise to introduce a bill to repeal the restrictive law.

WETS IN HOUSE TAKE NIP OUT OF DRY APPROPRIATION

Succeeded in Eliminating Proposal For $500,000 For Advances to "Under Cover" Agents, With No Provision For Accounting Before Expenditure—Prohibition Forces Succeeded in Passing Bill of Nearly $30,000,000 For Enforcement by Various Agencies Intact.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Prohibition won a runaway fight today with house wets who sought to check enforcement activities by depriving the prohibition unit of its annual appropriation.

When the fight, led by Massachusetts and New York wets, had died down, the house passer the treasury-post office appropriation bill, with its nearly $30,000,000 for enforcement by various agencies intact.

The wets scored one victory, however, when on a point of order they eliminated a section which would have set aside $500,000 for advances to "under cover" agents, with no provision for an accounting before expenditure. It was offered by Representative La Guardia, republican, New York, and was unopposed by Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee. La Guardia made the point that such a fund would be contrary to existing law.

With passage of the bill, which appropriates $137,371,000 for the treasury and $753,483,000 for the post office department, the house had before it the second supply bill, that for the interior department, totaling $359,856,000, of which $222,708,000 is for payment of Civil and Spanish war pensions. It was reported today.

Asserting he had no objection to giving money to other enforcement agencies, Mr. Gallivan offered an amendment to eliminate the nearly $13,000,000 for the prohibition unit. That and two other Gallivan amendments which would have accomplished the same end were snowed under in a vote that brought to their feet only wet members of the Massachusetts and New York delegations to support Gallivan.

His first amendment was attacked by Chairman Madden as "unworthy" of the Massachusetts member. Mr. Madden explained that he had voted against the prohibition law and the Volstead act but that so long as they were on the statute books he would continue to vote for funds to enforce them.

The fight drew a number of old combatants in the long prohibition fight in the arena, including Representatives Crampton, republican, Michigan, and Upshaw, democrat, Georgia, dry spokesmen, and Representative Hill, wet republican from Maryland.

Mr. Crampton brought Governor Smith of New York into the discussion when he said he wondered if he is a member of the wet board of strategy and whether it is in Tammany Hall.

He said he did not believe, however, that Governor Smith "is prepared to go before the country, not only as a wet candidate for president but as the candidate of the wets who are opposed to the enforcement of the law; and the attitude of Tammany on this floor today places him before the country as that kind of a candidate."

FOUR MUSIC HALL ACTRESSES BURNED TO DEATH IN ROME

ROME, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Four music hall actresses were killed as a fire, caused by a short circuit, swept through the Apollo theatre in the midst of the performance tonight. The screams of panic-stricken women in the audience and the roar of the flames were heard in the adjoining Eliseo theatre, where a performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana" was in progress, causing a stampede among the thousand persons in the audience.

One of the actresses killed was a German; the others have not been identified, but it is believed they were foreigners, since most of the performers were recruited in Germany, Austria and England.

INVESTIGATING SLAYING OF PROHIBITION AGENTS

PERRY, Fla., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Federal and state officers tonight continued their investigation into the slaying yesterday of Prohibition Agents James Brandt and W. C. Mabray, who were shot by J. W. Buchanan, during a "raid" on the Buchanan home.

A coroner's jury which had been in session virtually since yesterday afternoon, met again tonight to continue hearing evidence. Buchanan, who surrendered to Sheriff F. L. Lipscomb soon after the shooting, was held without bond pending the coroner's verdict.

Although testimony before the jury was not been divulged, it was learned there were two witnesses to the shooting, E. W. Blue and his son, who live near the Buchanan home.

The shooting occurred in the Buchanan house where the agents went. Armed with search warrants, seeking liquor, Buchanan is said to have told Sheriff Lipscomb that he shot the agents because they insisted on going into a room which was used by his wife as a dressing chamber.

Immediately after the slayings Buchanan drove to town where he surrendered to the sheriff.

AWARDED $50,000 IN $500,000 BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Through an odd compromise a federal court jury awarded Miss Anne Caldwell, New York musical revue actress, $50,000 in her half-million dollar breach of promise suit against John W. Hubbard, wealthy shovel manufacturer.

The jury quickly reached the conclusion that a marriage contract was made but found difficulty in fixing the amount of damages. Before the tenth ballot was taken early today in the deliberations which began Thursday afternoon, one of the jurors asked that each suggest an amount, these to be totaled and divided by 12. The answer was $50,000 and became the amount of a sealed verdict returned to Judge W. H. S. Thompson.

Indications were that Rody P. Marshall, counsel for Hubbard would seek a new trial. Earl F. Reed, counsel for Miss Caldwell said he was prepared to meet any move in that direction.

COASTGUARDSMEN HAD SEEN "HARD LIQUOR" ABOARD SHIP

BOSTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Two members of the crew of the coast guard patrol boat 177 testified before a court-martial board today that they had seen "hard liquor" and ale on board the vessel while Chief Boatswain's Mate Francis P. McIntyre was in command of her.

The witnesses were Edgar A. Hier, cook and Edgar I. Peterson, coxswain's mate, first class. The trial of McIntyre the fourth coast guard officer to face court martial boards here on charges of scandalous conduct and trafficking with rum runners, began today. The seven specifications in his case alleged that he allowed liquor on board his vessel and received money from rum runners and distributed it among the crew.

Hier and Peterson said when the 177 was picketing the schooners I'm Alone, Freda Himmelman and Lois Conrad on rum row, they had seen Queen Anne Scotch, Canadian Club whiskey and Canadian pale ale on the patrol boat. Both denied knowledge of how the liquor got there. Hier said he had once received $75 from the commander.

The cook said he tried all the liquor.

"It wasn't so very good," he said. "I've tasted better."

Peterson said he seen McIntyre drink ale, but never "hard liquor."

SERIOUS STRIKE DISORDERS AT EAST BRIDGEWATER, MASS

EAST BRIDGEWATER, Mass., Dec. 10—(AP)—Additional police guarded the Old Colony Foundry company here tonight to prevent a repetition of the riot in which a dozen persons were injured this morning.

Acting Governor Allen tonight refused a request for state patrolmen, saying "it is a local matter and can be handled locally." City Marshal Herbert Boyden of Stockton, however, detailed four reserve officers to assist the local authorities.

The riot this morning involved more than 40 striking iron workers, a dozen foundry employes, three special officers employed as guards and Chief Ousell and six officers called in to quell the disturbance. It began as the employes were entering the plan to begin work.

Contestants on both sides were injured by flying fists, sticks, stones and clubs, each accused the other of starting the rumpus. The workers left the plant two months ago. A week ago the plant hired guards and gave the men until Dec. 20 to return. About 30 other employes remained in the plant.

TO REVISE COMMISSIONED LIST OF ARMY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Drastic steps to break the World war officers' blockade in the commissioned list of the regular army have been proposed to congress by Secretary Davis of the war department. They contemplate establishing a normal annual turnover of 4 per cent to reduce the "bumps" of 5,800 officers commissioned between 1916 and 1918, and now clogging promotion.

Rigid enforcement of regulations designed to eliminate officers not fully up to the physical and professional standards of the service is planned. To supplement such steps, the war secretary has suggested methods for expediting retirement of older officers, discharge of others with "a fair gratuity" to offset their loss of retirement, and establishing a normal flow of promotion for those retained.

At the present strength of the commissioned corps, 421 officers would go out of the service each year to make room for second lieutenants, 225 of whom would come from West Point.

The process of "attrition" would provide for retirement of brigadier generals and colonels of staff or non-combatant branches at 61 years, instead of 64 or on 37 years of service; combatant branch colonels at 59 years or with 35 years service.

Increase of Deaths in the United States

More Americans Killed by Autos During the Past Two Years Than in the World War.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Deaths in the United States this year probably will exceed by 75,000 the total number in 1925, Henry S. Nollen, of Des Moines, Iowa, president of the Equitable Life Insurance company of Iowa, said in an address today before the convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

More Americans were killed by automobiles during the past two years than in the World war, he asserted, estimating that the total number of death victims in automobile accidents would exceed 32,000 this year. Suicides increased 10 per cent during the year, while deaths by murder dropped seven per cent, figures so far indicate, he said.

This year's increase in the death rate, Mr. Nollen pointed out, should not be taken as indicating such a trend for recent years, as the mortality rate during the period of the past six years alone has decreased more than nine per cent.

Of the expected increase of 75,000 in the number of deaths for this year, estimated on the basis of mortality figures up to November 1, Mr. Nollen said that 62,000 could be explained by normal growth of population, while 53,000 deaths would result from the higher mortality rate for 1926. The estimated increase in deaths this year was based on the combined figures of 52 leading life insurance companies covering 37,000,000 lives and extending over the first ten months of the year.

Heart disease, responsible for the deaths of more Americans than any other cause, is still on the increase, Mr. Nollen reported. Deaths from Bright's disease, cancer and apoplexy, other leading causes of mortality, likewise have increased during the year, he said, while deaths from tuberculosis continued to decrease.

THRONGS AT THE FUNERAL OF SENATOR M'KINLEY

CHAMPAIGN, Ills., Dec. 10—(AP)—For the second time in a month, officials of the state and nation mingled with the towns folk of an Illinois community today at the grave of a son distinguished in public service.

The body of Senator William B. McKinley was buried in Mount Hope cemetery before an outpouring much like that which paid final tribute in November to the senator's late friend and comrade, Joseph G. Cannon.

A congressional delegation of thirty-three, officials of the state, business associates, and emissaries of Eleemosynary institutions benefited by McKinley's public gifts joined with men and women from humble walks of life in the services.

Among the throng was Senator-elect Frank L. Smith, victor over Senator McKinley in his last senate contest, who paid high tribute to his one-time political foe.

Throughout the services the University of Illinois, a gainer by Senator McKinley's benefactions, was in recess, and business houses, industrial plants and the interurban railroads of which the Senator once was head, were idle.

FAVORS HUNTING OF DEER WITH BOW AND ARROW

HARTFORD, Dec. 10—(AP)—Hunting deer with either bow and arrow or shotguns in this state, where deer are now protected, will be legal during the first week in December of each year if the 1927 general assembly adopts a recommendation voted today at the sportsmen's conference held at the state capitol under the auspices of the state board of fisheries and game.

A proposal to make deer legal game for archers only for one week each year was voted down and recommendation was made to the legislature by a vote of 46 to 38 that hunters be permitted to kill deer with shotguns. W. Lee White, a New York broker, whose home is in Stamford, then secured reconsideration of the adverse vote on bows and arrows and had them included with shotguns as legal weapons for deer slaying.

Stresemann Favors Parley With Moscow

Foreign Minister of Germany Surprised Spectators at Session of Councel of League of Nations.

GENEVA, Dec. 10—(AP)—Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany caused spectators at today's session of the council of the league of nations to sit up and take notice when he championed courtesy and diplomatic correction in league relations with Moscow.

Dr. Stresemann said that the Moscow government objected to the use of the word Russia, and that in deference to Moscow's wishes the country should be designated the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

His remarks were made in the course of discussion on the convocation of an international conference July 4, 1927 to frame statutes for an international union for the relief of peoples stricken by disasters such as earthquakes. The council, in voting to call this conference, included Russia, the United States, Mexico, Ecuador, Ireland and other non-members of the league to its invitation for participation.

Members of the council and league observers seemed to interpret his initiative in this matter as an intentional manifestation of friendship on the part of Germany for Russia.

In the meantime the group of foreign ministers, which has been studying the problem of bringing to an end inter-allied control of German armaments struggled for two hours without reaching an agreement. It is understood that the chief difficulty now centers on Great Britain's objection to German exportation of arms to Russia, which it is feared reach China ultimately.

Dr. Stresemann is understood to have given new assurances on this question as well as on the dismantling of German fortresses. The foreign ministers adjourned until tomorrow to await reports from Paris where the allied conference of ambassadors also is struggling with the problem of German armaments.

Indication that the league council was paying sharp attention to the Balkans was given in the warning by Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, that Bulgaria must make a better showing in connection with straightening out the affairs of Greek refugees.

FIRE LOSS OF FROM $750,000 TO $1,000,000 AT PATERSON, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 10.—(AP)—A score of silk manufacturing companies, a foundry and a novelty silk manufacturing plant were wiped out by fire tonight. When the 100x400 wing of the Van Kirk mill was destroyed. The loss is estimated by the firemen from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Rudy Uhlemeyer, a weaver, was reported missing and a search of the ruins for his body was begun.

With four other workers Uhlmeyes, rushed out of the Wellwood Silk company's plant when they saw the flames shooting up a rear stairway, but he went back to the third floor for his watch. He did not return.

One fireman was severely burned about the body following an explosion of cleaning chemicals.

The Van Kirk mill was purchased by Altschuler Brothers, silk manufacturers, five years ago. It consisted of three winks, two of which were destroyed.

An explosion preceded the fire, which wiped out or damaged the Criterion Silk Manufacturing company, the Presto Winding and Warping company, Gotham Silk company, Ramapo Silk mills, Harding and Company, United States Ribbon company, Passotume Silk mills, Samuel Holt and several smaller concerns.

WANT SANTA CLAUS BRING HUSBANDS FOR CHRISTMAS

MUNICH, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Many German frauleins want Santa Claus to bring them a husband for Christmas. They say so unabashed in newspapers which devote the better part of a page to want ads of the lovelorn.

"The Christmas wish of a daughter of the Bourgeoisie," reads an ad in the Muenchener Neuste Nachrichtenjn "is for a nice business man or government official (widower with child acceptable). I am 27 years old, have retained my girlish bloom, and am an excellent cook."

The chances, however, are slim that St. Nicholas will load down his pack with husbands, the ministry of the interior reports. But comparatively few are in a financial position to assume marital responsibilities.

SEC'Y WILBUR REFUSED TO DISCLOSE NAVY SECRETS

Called For Questioning in the Fall-Doheny Conspiracy Case, Mr. Wilbur Declined to Bring to Court Communications Concerning War Scare Secrets of the Pacific—Doheny Defense Rested Today After the Veteran Oil Man Had Withstood a Three-Hour Cross-Examination.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—The defense rested in behalf of Edward L. Doheny, in the oil conspiracy trial today, after the veteran oil man had withstood a forceful three-hour cross-examination, and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, appearing under subpoena, had firmly refused to disclose the navy department's 1921 war scare secrets of the Pacific.

Postmaster General New, the first witness in the independent presentation of evidence in behalf of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, then testified he knew Fall's reputation for honesty and integrity to be good. He was excused with cross examination. The Fall attorney's plan to complete their case at tomorrow's half-day Saturday session, probably without calling the former cabinet member to the stand in his own defense.

Doheny's cross examination revealed financial transactions between himself and Fall since the latter left the cabinet in 1923, but only a $5,000 loan just before the trial began was admitted to the record. Special Prosecutor Owen J. Roberts also drew from Doheny the statement that Fall had acted for him without renumeration, in connection with a $10,000,000 loan to the Obregon government of Mexico three years ago, when the De La Huerta revolutionary forces menaced the Obregon regime. The loan, in the form of advance payments on tax assessments against Doheny properties, has been repaid.

Previous to today's testimony, there had been no recital of money transactions between Doheny and Fall since the $100,000 cash loan to the cabinet member on November 30, 1921, when Doheny interests were bidding for naval oil contracts and leases.

Secretary Wilbur, called for questioning as to strategic considerations which impelled the war plans division to decide upon the $100,000,000 Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, naval base more than five years ago, refused to bring to court official communications from Rear Admiral Albert Gleaves, commandant of the Pacific squadron in 1921 and 1923. Other records which he brought were rejected by the defense attorneys and they let the war scare evidence rest with Secretary Wilbur's testimony that disclosure of the contents of the Gleaves' reports would be prejudicial to public interest.

The prosecution tonight considered the advisability of calling former Secretary of State Hughes as a rebuttal witness for examination as to the diplomatic situation in the Pacific at the time of the Gleaves' reports, which terminted two months before President Harding issued his invitations to the Washington arms conference of 1921.

If he is called he will be confronted by the defense with a certified statement submitted from him in the Los Angeles civil proceedings two years ago, which confirmed the testimony of Rear Admiral J. K. Robison that certain "confidential matters," were factors in the navy's oil leasing policies.

During a penetrating cross-examination Roberts broke through Doheny's direct testimony at only one point. He put into the record the oil man's statement that stock certificates given him by Fall in 1925 for the 1921 loan of $100,000 were valued at $3,500 instead of $200,000. Doheny testified yesterday that 16 shares he held represented approximately $200,000 in property.

Questioned as to certain differences between his senate and trial stories, the witness admitted frankly he had refreshed his memory as to details since his testimony before the senate oil committee three years ago.

The defense also put into the record testimony that the net profits of the California subsidiary from the operations of the Elk Hills reserves between December 1922 and March 1924, when they went into the hands of a federal administrator, were approximately 230,000. A sub-official of the bureau of mines revealed that the royalty terms of the Elk Hills lease, for the same period, netted the government some 200,000 barrels more oil than would have been secured under the standard schedule of royalties which were the starting point of the negotiations.

Doheny reiterated today that Fall had never been present in the royalty conference, and that he was motivated in his bid for the Pearl Harbor oil storage project, against the advice of his associates, by the "menace of Japan" in the Pacific.

TESTIMONY OF LOOSE MORALS IN TOMBSTONE

BOSTON, Dec. 10—(AP)—Shooting up the town used to be a nightly pastime back in the eighties when Tombstone, Ariz., earned its name, Mrs. C. K. Holt of San Jose Calif., asserted in a deposition read in Suffolk probate court today.

Mrs. Holt's testimony was introduced by counsel for the special administrators of the $4,000,000 estate of the late Lotta Crabtree in an attempt to disbredit he claim of Mrs. Carlotta Cockburn of San Gabriel, Calif., that she was a niece of the former actress and entitled to a share in the fortune left to charity.

Through the evidence of Mrs. Holt and other witnesses, the special administrators sought to show that the parents of Mrs. Cockburn were unmarried and that she consequently was not a legal heir. Mrs. Cockburn contends that she was the lawful daughter of John A. Crabtree, brother of Lotta.

Mrs Holt said she remembered that on the first night she arrived in Tombstone in February, 1881, "The town was shot up and it scared me pretty near to death."

"We could hear the shots up and down and my mother told me not to be worried, that they happened every night. It sounded like a bombardment. I did not know what it was but it seemed to be a general occurrence."

"It didn't seem to matter much whether men and women were married in Tombstone in those days," Mrs. Holt said. "They lived together just the same. She said she had never heard that Jack Crabtree was married or that any woman in the town called herself his wife.

WORST OF ALL LIES IS THAT AMERICANS WORSHIP MONEY

OXFORD, England, Dec. 10—(AP)—"Of all lies, the worst lie is that the American worships money," Gilbert K. Chesterton, the English essayist and critic believes

"An American," he told the American club at Oxford, "never talks of money in the hushed and awe-struck tone that an Englishman employes in referring to financial matters."

Though famed as a humorist, Mr. Chesterton spoke to the Americans for the most part in a serious vein. He frankly discussed the differences which exist between England and America and the misunderstandings which so easily arise from them. His plea was for a newer sort of intelligent understanding between Americans and Englishmen.

CONVICTED OF CRIMINALLY RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

MINEOLA, N. Y., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Banks scattered throughout the country which have innocently obtained possession of bonds stolen by the Gerald Chapman gang in the Leonard street mail robbery four years ago are affected by a ruling of the appellate division today.

The court sustained the conviction of John J. Phelan for criminally receiving stolen property in connection with his attempt to dispose of some of the bonds in question and ruled that the bonds were invalid for all time.

According to the district attorney of Nassau county, the decision may open the way for a number of prosecutions of those who have passed the bonds.

COUNT BALM IS GOING TO WORK IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Not only is Count Ludwig Salm-Hoogstraeten not going into European exile at the $500,000 behest of his father-in-law, but he plans to settle right down here and go to work. Oh, almost any kind of work, except of course work with the hands.

The count, who has been as silent as the other interested parties since adjournment in midflight of his separation action against Millicent Rogers Standard Oil heiress, gave rise to the rumors of a financial settlement, revealed something of his plans today over the telephone to a reporter asking him about tennis.

"Yes," he answered the first question, "I have been invited to play tennis, and I expect to do so soon. But now, I am looking for work. I would be glad to do any kind of work at all—except hand work."

"What do you mean by hand work?"

"Why, work with the hands, manual labor, you call it. I would be glad to go into any honest business or public service, and I am happy to say that I have some offers and expect to decide soon. It is not true that I do not like to work."

ACTRESS CLAIRE J. ULRICH AWARDED WIDOW'S SHARE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Claire J. Ulrich, New York actress, today won the right to proceed with court action to obtain a widow's share of the estate of the late Charles E. Whitehurst, Baltimore theatre magnate, when the maryland court of appeals affirmed a decision of Baltimore circuit court overruling a demurrer to the actress' complaint.

Miss Ulrich bases her dowery claim on a secret marriage ceremony read by the theatre magnate himself in a New York apartment. Whitehurst died intestate on Jan. 20, 1924, supposedly a bachelor. The actress seeks $135,858 of the $278,267 estate.

Judge George A. Solter, in Baltimore circuit court last Feb. 14, over-ruled a demurrer of Mrs. Anna L. Whitehurst Taylor, the theatre man's mother, and in effect adjudged Miss Ulrich legally able to press her suit. Mrs. Whitehurst appealed, and today's decision disallowed her plea.

HARTFORD YOUTH MAY FACE SERIOUS CHARGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 10—George E. McArthur, 24, of 129 Standish street, Hartford, formerly of Rumford, Me., will face a charge of disposing of an automobile purchased under a conditional bill of sale in police court Saturday morning if a story which he told the police when arrested with three companions for panhandling proves true. McArthur and three pals, Francis Maher, 22, of 127 Howell street, Joseph Doyle 17 and Robert E. Miller 18 of Providence, R. I., were arrested on Main street this afternoon by Captain Frank McLean. They were charged with panhandling. During a grilling given the boys at police headquarters, it developed that they were in possession of a Buick automobile. McArthur assumed the ownership of the car. His story was that he purchased a Ford car on conditional bill of sale in Hartford. He drove this car to Fall River, Mass., and there exchanged it for the Buick. From there he went to Providence and met the three young men from that place. He said that they started out for Hartford Friday. They were going to visit there and then return to Providence but made the mistake of choosing Willimantic as a likely place to pick up a little extra change. The police immediately launched an investigation into McArthur's doing.

Another business house changed hands Friday when the drug store conducted by Charles DeVillers and known as DeVillers Pharmacy at 873 Main street was taken over through purchase by Harvey H. Bronson who has been manager of the local Bay State Drug store for the past ten years. The property transfer was made through the administrator of the estate. The drug store stand is one of the oldest in the city Under three owners the business has been successfully conducted for 42 years. Dr. Adelard Davis opened the establishment in 1883. Fifteen years later it was taken over by former Alderman Alphonse L. Gelinas. Mr. Gelinas in turn sold the business two years later, or in 1900 to Charles DeVillers. Mr. DeVillers died recently. Mr. Bronson has made his mark here through his success in the management of the Bay State company store which he assumed on January 1, 1917 upon the purchase of the store by the company from Samuel Chedbro who had conducted it for many years. Mr. Bronson was a director of the Bay State Drug company, having resigned this office as well as the managership of the local store.

The holiday mail rush is getting under way at the Willimantic postoffice. Postmaster Frank M. Smith states that the broadcasted advice to shop early and mail early is meeting with gratifying results and outgoing mail is rapidly taking on rush proportions. Incoming mail is a little slower. The postoffice employes who enjoyed a whole day off last Christmas will not be so fortunate this year as the holiday falls on a Saturday. Arrangements are being made however, to allow time off so that the employes can join the family circle while the dinner is being served. Substitute clerks and carriers are being called in as the volume of business increases. Postmaster Smith advises that all packages be mailed by December 16th and all greeting cards by December 20th in order to insure delivery. Mail destined for the Pacific coast should be mailed not later than the 15th. All overseas mail should have been mailed December 1.

POETRY

Autumn Faith

As autumn sun burned in a sea
Of smoke and evening mist
That lightly veiled each bush and tree
Which by the sun was kissed.

"The leaves have withered and grown old!"
I heard a strange voice say.
"No, they have turned to sun-burned gold!"
Answered the Child, at play.

"The maple's flaming color mocks
The seeker for its fruit;"
"The beauty of the tree unlocks
The song that once was mute!"

"The leaves to rusty brown will turn,
Then flutter to the ground."
"Among the leaves red apples burn
Like glowing coals, and round!"

"Ripening fruit, but withering leaf—
Thus will it be for ever!"
As one who sees beyond belief,
The Child replied with sweet relief,
"And his leaf fadeth never."
—Arthur J. Peel in The Christian Science Monitor.

The "Golden Step"

I can hear the stalwart sailors singing chanties
As they weigh the dripping anchors at your bow.
The tropic sun's aglare upon your mainsail
And the spray is flashing up before the prow.

There's a puncent smell of tar upon your rigging
And the salt of seven seas—if all were told—
While the air is heavy-sweet above the hatches
With the perfume of the spices in the hold.

'Tis thus I see you sailing out of Malta
With your black hull eager for the spray.
How can it be you're just a dusty model
In an antique shop, I saw the other day?
—Anne Robinson, in "The Singing Blue."

The artist—"I have endeavored to express poverty in all its wretchedness; what do you think of it?"
Fair critic—"I have never seen anything more wretched!"—Passing Show, London.

For nearly a century all the gum used for stamps and stationery in the British postoffice department has been manufactured by members of one family in a little home factory near Aldershot. Now the little establishment has been closed, so that the gum may be manufactured on more up-to-date lines nearer London.

A gyroscopic apparatus is used at Mount Wilson observatory in which two wheels have to run at a speed of 46,000 revolutions a minute. These two high speed wheels are employed by Dr. Michelson in his attempts to determine with an extreme degree of precision the exact length of the "astronomer's yard stick," namely, the light year.

All fruits do not contain enough pectin to form jelly. This is why manufacturers add juice of apples or peelings of oranges or lemons to fruits which lack a sufficient amount of this constituent. Apples, lemons and oranges are supplied with an excess of pectin, and the addition of this substance is justifiable. Jellies made with gelatin obtained from cartilage and bone are not dependent upon pectin for solidification.

The Cross of the Legion of Honor is being sought for a clerk in the Paris markets, Raymond Bries, twenty-nine year old, who recently underwent his 101st operation for blood transfusion. Medical men in Paris regard the young Frenchman as a unique specimen of manhood and several surgeons call upon him regularly for blood. M. Bries demands no compensation and asks no questions. BOOTLEGGERS STILL TRY THE DANIELSON ROUTE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 11—Another crash is about due for bootleggers moving their loads of contraband by motor vehicles through Danielson to supply the Christmas trade. Their boldness of late has led to certain information pertaining to their activities getting into the hands of officers who hope to have some of them in court very promptly. As indicating what this is all about, it may mentioned that one man who was arrested here with a load of liquor, a few months ago, and who paid a heavy fine in the town court, still continues to travel through Danielson with his car—but not when he has liquor aboard. He has another route for the "loaded" trip. He is not sullen over his arrest here, taking it as part of the risks of his hazardous game, and even is friendly with the officers who arrested him. He is only one of a considerable group alleged to be operating between cities in various parts of New England. They do not "play" the small towns, which they go through merely in order to get somewhere else. They have no Danielson business connections. This happens to be their harvest season. It may prove to have some bad days for them.

Christmas gifts of real merit at this store include satin-quilted robes, silk negligees, kid gloves, leather and tapestry bags, lace and embroidered handkerchiefs, silk underwear, linens, etc., etc. The Alice-Eleanor Shop.—Adv.

$4200 buys a practically new bungalow on Main St., Danielson, large plot. House in excellent condition. A little down and $24 per month pays for it. W. W. Reiner, 18 Furnace St., Danielson.—Adv.

Newly elected officers of Danielson chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, are: Worthy matron, Ethel G. Ingalls; worthy patron, William Walter; associate matron, Lillian Michie; secretary, Sidney W. Bard; treasurer, Miriam Boomhewer; conductress, Mabel E. Walter; associate conductress, Beatrice Beckett.

The officers are to be installed at a special meeting on Januar 7. A rehearsal for all officers, elective and appointive, is set for January 6.

George F. Davignon, representative of The Outlet company, Providence, R. I., 'phone 296 Danielson, can be of wonderful assistance to you in helping you solve your Christmas gift problems, and at the same time show you the great advantages of trading at New England's largest department store under one roof. It's well worth a trip to Outlet Happyland to view their Christmas attractions. Why not call Mr. Davignon and let him tell you all about it? The Outlet company will cash your Christmas club checks.—Adv.

Friday the body of Harry Spencer Fitts, 21, who died at the hospital in Putnam was brought here in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy. The young man died Friday morning. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitts of Hampton and was born in Pomfret. He leaves his parents and two sisters, Mrs. William Wright of Willimantic and Mrs. Wm. King of New Haven.

The following are the newly elected officers of Leo J. L'Homme post, American legion: Commander, Herbert E. Hopkins; first vice-commander, Arthur Barnard; second vice-commander, Ira A. Warren; adjutant, William Harrington; chaplain, Joseph F. Burton; treasurer, Albert Redman; historian, Gordon J. Gale; sergeant-at-arms, James Mazzerella; post service officer, Joseph F. Burton; executive committee, James Harney, Walter H. Evans and Ernest Tetreault.

There is an adequate answer to the contention of numbers of Danielson people that they should not pay a personal tax because they pay town and borough taxes. The answer is that the personal tax revenue represents about one mill of income as assessed on the grand list. Assuming that a man, or a man and his wife, own real estate here to the taxed value of $10,000. If the man did not pay a personal tax of $2, or the man and wife a joint personal tax of $4.00, the property he, or both, hold would be taxed an extra mill, this representing an extra tax of $10. The point is that many who do not pay a property tax in either town or borough do pay a personal tax, thereby helping keep down, by at least one mill, the town tax rate.

Executive and operating officials of the Southern New England Telephone company to the number of about a dozen arrived here just before noon Friday on a tour of inspection of the corporation's central offices and other properties in the New London district. The officials spent some time at the central office, took lunch here, and then proceeded to Moosup to inspect the central oce there and then on to Norwich. Other visitations of the day included the central offices in Willimantic, where the party spent Thursday night, and Putnam.

Within the past week this area of northeastern Connecticut has had a snow fall of between 9 and 10 inches, an early December record that has not been approximated in a number of years.

Mention has been made of the ambition and industry of numbers of the students of Killingly high school who have obtained places in business houses here for spare time during the Christmas season.

PUTNAM

CLAIMS BOAT TRAIN NO LONGER MEANS ANYTHING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10.—The once popular "Boat Train" that has for years given such excellent passenger service in making connections for the boat or night train leaving New London for New York has fallen from its high estate. It is now running as a mixed passenger and freight train and its schedule is about as uncertain as New England weather during the winter months. Two nights ago it was an hour late in leaving Putnam. If the weather is as severe this winter as the Cloud Digger and other weather prophets predict, the train might as well have no schedule.

Railroad officials assert that the income from passenger trains is a negligible quantity and that if there were no freight business, the road would be better off if the train was abandoned.

A passenger bound for New York after the afternoon trains have gone, cannot reach there on the former reputation of the boat train. He either takes the bus or goes by the way of the State of Maine, or by way of the Midland division or as a last resort, drives his own car.

Richard Whalen is a patient at the Massachusetts General hospital at Boston for observation, possibly an operation. For more than 25 years Mr. Whalen has been in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, of late years in the capacity of yardmaster at Putnam. He was taken seriously ill during the summer and for a while his life was despaired of. Although he recovered from the severity of the attack, he has not been able to return to work. Specialists at the hospital hold out promise of a decided improvement if not a complete recovery.

GUY L. BAKER MAY BE PAROLED NEXT MONTH

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 10.—Guy L. Baker, assistant cashier of the wrecked First National bank, now serving his two years' sentence for self confessed embezzlement of $16,000 of bank money, had expected to be released on parole next month. He is entitled to this by reason of his having been in prison for one half of his sentence, but 60 or 90 days elapsed before he was brought to trial and although the United States district attorney was willing that his term of imprisonment should start from January, his parole application papers are dated three months later. Whether this can be corrected in time to permit his release the first of the year is problematical.

Baker was originally sent to the federal prison at Atlanta but was later sent to a United States detention prison in Ohio. He worked on the farm conected with it during the past summer and has been given special privileges and treated with confidence that followed his voluntary admission of guilt and his evident desire to pay the penalty that the law exacts from its violators. Baker's exceptional ability and knowledge of business and clerical work has been appreciated by the officials in charge of the prison in Ohio.

Ernest L. Davis of this city is at the Corey Hill hospital in Boston, where he is to undergo an operation due to kidney trouble. Mr. Davis has spent the past several winters in Florida and as the operation is of the kind that requires some time to recover from, he may have to face the winds that blow in from the bleak Boston bay instead the balmy breezes that temper the heat of St. Petersburg.

At this week's Rotary club luncheon, two Rotarians, Edgin Smith and Hibbard Ayer of Worcester were present at the invitation of Subbó Nikoloff and furnished the entertainment of the day. Both men stated that they were only amateurs, but as entertainers and musicians, the local members of the club thought them good enough to be high class professionals.

The Putnam high school basket ball team opened its season last evening at the high school gymnasium by playing the Woodstock academy team and winning their first game of the season, 26 to 9. The Putnam team is composed of Thomas O. Elliott as captain and Slye, Bove, Weiss, W. Wheaton, Jr., Cady and Donovan. Nearly all of the members of the basketball team were on the football squad during the past season.

Charles E. Richard, alderman-at-large of the city of Putnam, is acting mayor of the city during the absence of Mayor Chapdelaine in Florida.

Albert Robitaille is the new member of the special police force of Putnam to succeed Armand Bellerose, who resigned.

The annual every member canvass of the Second Congregational church for the financial support of the church and its benevolence will be held on the afternoon of Dec. 12. Thursday night there was a meeting of the canvassers at the church and a supper was served.

At the regular service on Sunday morning at the Methodist church, Rev. M. E. Genter of Norwich, who is the district superintendent, will preach the morning sermon.

The Christmas concert of the Methodist church will be held Sunday evening, Dec. 26 and the Christmas tree exercises will be on Christmas night, Saturday.

Officers of the Tri-Y club have been elected as follows: President, Helen Morse; vice president, Judith Sabin; secretary, Racifel Huribut; treasurer, Mabel Thompson. This club is composed of girls of high school age and is holding its weekly meeting at the high school. The club has already enrolled about 20 members.

Wilfred Park of Jewett City and Arthur Johnson of South Woodstock have gone to Florida to spend the winter. Both boys are graduates of the state trade school at Putnam.

Mrs. W. M. Babbitt of East Putnam is visiting her mother, Mrs. Arnold Steere at Greenville, R. I.

Miss Florence Kenyon has returned from a visit with Mrs. E. O. Summer at Willimantic.

Mrs. George Platt and Mrs. Josephine McGorty of Pomfret have gone to York, Pa., to visit Mrs. Platt's daughter and where Mrs. Platt will spend the winter. Mrs. McGorty expects to go to Florida a little later for the balance of the winter.

Mrs. William Covell and Mrs. Emily Horton have returned from a visit with Mrs. Covell's daughter, Mrs. William Murdock at Boston.

Miss Grace Davoll of Willimantic has been the guest of Miss Esther McNaught at Pomfret.

Miss Mildred Hattin who has been employed in New York city for several months has returned to her home in Pomfret.

Mrs. S. B. Overlock, wife of the well known surgeon of the Day Kimball hospital has returned from a hospital in Boston and is very much improved in health.

Mrs. Justin S. Greene continues ill at her home on Center street.

"BREAKFAST" is
BAKER'S BREAKFAST COCOA
Means Something

The United States Food Standards define "Breakfast" cocoa as cocoa containing not less than 22% of cocoa fat. Many cheap cocoas (which cannot be labelled "Breakfast" cocoa) contain not more than 14% or 15% of fat.

Baker's Breakfast Cocoa contains not less than 26% of cocoa fat, almost one-fifth more than Government requirement. The phrase Baker's Breakfast Cocoa means a pure, delicious cocoa of high quality and possessing a considerable measure of nourishment.

SECRETARY MELLON'S REPORT

Even though Secretary Mellon of the treasury department points out the prosperous conditions in this country, in his annual report, he does not believe that there has been a sufficient test of the present revenue act to warrant proceeding to the enactment of a new tax measure that would mean a cut in the taxes. He has confidence that prosperity is so firmly rooted that we can safely look forward to another year of it and he points to the improvement in the value of the dollar, the situation as to prices, the wage conditions; but just because there is a larger surplus than expected this year does not give assurance that it is going to continue. In making up that surplus there have been large payments of back taxes and certain items which will not repeat, and the folly of trying to figure what is going to happen in the future on the basis of such payments in the past must be taken into consideration. However, Mr. Mellon is committed to the devotion of a part of such a surplus as is known to exist to rebates or credits.

In not urging the continuance of the debt funding commission, the secretary declares the work has been practically completed and whatever more is necessary can be accomplished by such members as are available. This would indicate that he doesn't anticipate a renewal on the part of France of efforts to secure new terms. It may seem unnecessary at this date to reiterate that this government is opposed to cancellation of war debts, but he restates the position of the United States on this point in such a way as to set at rest any thought concerning it.

It is an old saying that "it's an ill wind that blows no good to someone," and Secretary Mellon makes use of it in pointing out that the unhealthy situation in the Florida land boom had subsided without serious injury and the bumper crop of cotton which was giving some worry to the growers has given the cotton industry a chance to recover.

Under the masterly direction of Secretary Mellon our government finances have been most satisfactorily handled. It is a distinct credit that it can be shown that there has been a reduction of nearly six billion dollars in the war debt, with over $872,000,000 being paid in the last year. Every such slice means a permanent reduction in the federal interest account.

ELECTRICITY ON FARMS

Looking ahead may be castle building or it may be dealing with facts that are bound to develop as the result of the progress of the past. There was nothing visionary about the claim of the president of the National Electric Light association when speaking to the convention of American farm bureaus at Chicago when he declared that the time was rapidly approaching when electric current will be more freely used on farms.

It is possible today to go into the country in many directions and find homes and barns that are lighted by electricity. They make a strange contrast with those which still cling to the kerosene lamp and lantern, but they attract attention and make it evident that such advantages are not restricted to the cities.

It isn't all going to come with a bound for there will be those who will not favor such a change and those who cannot afford it but even as farmhouses and buildings are now lighted by electricity it is not too much to expect that it will be employed in running the separators, the churns, the washing machines and the other machinery which will gradually find its way to the farmhouse. Electricity might be employed in fastening and unfastening the cattle in their stanchions, possibly in feeding them, even as locomotives and boilers are automatically stoked. That it will be used for pumps and even the field vehicles is possible although the gasoline engine seems now to have an inside claim in that respect even as it does in sawing wood and plowing.

But electricity on the farms, those some distance away as well as those near the cities, is increasing. Where power lines are available there is the best opportunity for such service, but the operation of a generating plant at the modern farms indicates an independence of power lines, although the steadily increasing net work of the latter is bound to be of advantage to the resident in the country. Responding to such improvements may take time and may be gradual but another quarter century will reveal a most interesting change. To the farmer electricity will be as necessary as the telephone and the auto.

POSTAL SAVING SYSTEM

At the present time the limit of the amount that any one person may keep in a postal savings account is $2,500. It is the belief of Postmaster General New that this should be changed and that depositors should be permitted to have accounts running up to $6,000 and in support of his belief he makes the recommendation in his annual report to congress that this change be made.

The postal banks do not offer as attractive returns as the savings banks but they appeal to many of foreign birth and to others who are ready to take a smaller interest return and other restrictions for what they consider a greater security because the government stands back of them. They have the effect of getting some people to save who have never been interested in such a thing, and they appeal to those with certain amounts of hoarded wealth who could never be persuaded to entrust their money with any other institution. This means that no small amount of money is brought into circulation which would otherwise be hidden at some point about the house where the danger from destruction would always be considerable, or which would have been sent out of the country.

There is no question but what the habit formed in the maintenance of a postal savings account does much to stimulate thrift and tries to create among many a greater appreciation of the benefits attached to the regular savings banks. If however there are those who have reached the limit to which they can maintain postal accounts and they are going to resort to old practices or send their funds abroad if they cannot make further deposits, there's reason in the plea that the limit should be raised to twice the existing figure.

The fact that there has been $125,000,000 placed in these accounts, representing as they probably do accounts never maintained elsewhere, shows an appreciation of the service which has been rendered for the past 15 years and urges additional encouragement on the part of the government for still greater efforts in this direction. When such a savings account is maintained funds are not being recklessly handled or hoarded.

CHRISTMAS CLUBS.

These are the days when increased attention is being given to the Christmas clubs. Started for the purpose of encouraging people to save regularly for their Christmas purchases, they mean the distribution of millions of dollars at this season of the year, and in many instances they represent dollars which had previously been wasted.

Those who enter the Christmas clubs know that when Christmas rolls around they are not going to be obliged to worry about where they are going to get the money for their holiday purchases. They are not going to be forced to buy on credit but can within the limit of their savings get what they want when they want it and have the satisfaction of knowing that they have not felt the absence of the small amount they have put aside each week.

But for many others the Christmas club has come to mean much more. It has given an insight into thrift which never existed before. It has started the habit of saying and it has set in motion no little thought concerning the waste that had previously taken place.

In many ways the Christmas clubs have been a great blessing for those who never thought they could save, but were disposed to spend all they got as fast as they got it and sometimes a little bit faster. To many they have been the inspiration for permanent savings accounts and those who have benefited from them in any form whatever can have nothing but words of praise for the advantages they provide. That they increase in numbers and amounts each year furnishes convincing evidence of their worth and the appreciation of their members.

MUSCLE SHOALS

In his annual report the secretary of war has set forth some interesting facts concerning Muscle Shoals. This big war project has been long before the country. Volumes have been said about it from first to last and millions have been spent upon it, and the end is not yet.

To those who are interested in it from any particular angle, or solely because it is a government proposition and it is believed that some definite action should be taken regarding its use, there will be satisfaction in knowing that six of the eight power units are now under test operation and the power generated is being sold to a large power company.

Possibly as the result of these tests there will be a chance for congress to come to some conclusion as to what should be done about leasing the big plant, for it doesn't appear that there is any more sentiment in favor of government operation than there ever was.

On this huge project there has already been spent nearly $44,000,000 and it is estimated that $4,000,000 more will be required to finish the job. The locks and dams are within 1 per cent. of completion while powerhouses lack 18 per cent. of being done. Begun for the production of nitrates there is still a demand for such utilization. The tests now underway should do much in the way of disclosing how successfully that can be done and what the possibilities are in addition for power development. Perhaps Muscle Shoals will some day prove as surprising in results as the Panama canal has but it is taking a long time in getting started.

EDITORIAL NOTES

And yet when winter comes spring cannot be far away.

The man on the corner says: Are you ready for two weeks from this morning?

Why are we handsome? says a headline. Now watch everyone jump to answer.

Now comes the struggle to get the Christmas presents into the house and a biding place unobserved.

In addition to his other duties it is a big mail that Santa Claus is obliged to open and read these days.

A German scientist finds that his hair grows only 264 days in the year, but even that would make some people happy.

To some winter would be all right if there wasn't so much cold weather snow and ice. Yet that combination is just what pleases others.

With another divorce among the movie stars under way a couple of others ought to be warming up so the country will not be deprived of such publicity for itself a day.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Recently a United States senator was elected in Maine which reveals some elements of tragedy. The partisan side of the contest does not concern us in this paragraph, but the ethical side points to a great danger. Had the other side been victorious, the government in all probability would continue to function. It is also a small matter that the successful candidate carried every city and town of considerable size in the state. But the amazing thing is that not more than 50 per cent of those legalized to vote appeared at the polls, and such apathy is the most serious menace to representative form of government. Such failures make it possible for political bosses to keep in office and do their nefarious work. This is possible when one half of the people are politically asleep. Unless more conscience is put into the use of the ballot the time will come when we shall be deprived of it.

We do not estimate men as much by what they say as by what they do and are. Matthew, the evangelist, deals with this question in a very practical way. Thorn bushes do not produce grapes. They would not deceive anybody even if they called themselves grapevines. Thistles are never anything but thistles in any part of the world even though they should proclaim themselves figs. Hence we knew them by their production and not by any pretention they may make. As a matter of fact a very good tree cannot bear very bad fruit, and vice versa, a very corrupt tree cannot produce very good fruit. This is a fact recognized throughout the entire vegetable world. This is probably why Matthew ends in a parable by saying "Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them." There is no better way to size up a man than by his fruits.

Do the clothes that people wear and their personal appearance generally form a correct basis of their character and ability? It is a pointer but by no means an infallible one to go by. Years ago we were warned to look out for "long-haired men and short-haired women" because they were generally regarded as freaks. Today it is only one half true, even if it is that. Today the warning holds good only in regard to the former. The long-haired man, usually uncouth in other directions, may have his peculiarities. But the short-haired woman has been clipping at both ends until bobbed hair and short skirts rule supreme among the fair—but no longer weaker—sex. It is not correct to say that bobbed hair belongs to the flapper only. Women who are teaching psychology in colleges, and who are an honor to their sex have adopted the same, and they are fine specimens of womanhood.

As far as men are concerned they have not gone into the abbreviation of dress with such abandon as women, not because of any superiority of intellect or refinement, but simply because the poor tender things would freeze to death if they did. It must be admitted that fine, well-fitting clothes do set off a man's figure to great advantage—provided what is inside of the garments are worth setting off at all. Sometimes there is nothing about the outfit that is worth mentioning but the clothes. If an expensive, fashionable suit is surmounted by an idiotic face, it queers the whole business. Unfortunately the logic is not always very close between fine textiles and the heart, in the mercy of God, it covers up. Yes, fine clothes do go a long way especially when worn by a fine man. While all need not be expensively clad they ought always to be clean. If a man puts oatmeal on his vest instead of into his stomach he is guilty of parking in the wrong place.

The day is wholly past for regarding missionaries as second-rate men who labor among the heathen because there is no place for them at home. This false idea has been radically changed. In fact only the most promising graduates of our theological seminaries are selected for missionary fields. The type of man required is well requested by two veterans who have recently retired from active service: Dr. Robert A. Hume after 52 years of heroic service in India, and Dr. Arthur H. Smith who rendered 53 years of wonderful work in China. Both men have richly earned their international reputation which two continents have given them. Dr. Smith's books on China were pronounced by President Roosevelt as the best ever written on that mysterious country. It was he who suggested the return of the Boxer indemnity money to establish schools in the Celestial empire.

Just how many carried out the suggestion of Golden Rule Sunday would be hard to determine, and it is not of much importance if all the details were abided by. The novel hint was thrown out that we eat on this Sunday a frugal meal such as the poverty-stricken people of Armenia were forced to eat and give to the Near East relief the difference in price between that and the ordinary Sunday dinner. Probably a comparatively few did this because it was not the main thing. The really important thing was a liberal contribution to this important cause. The probability is that the American people did not fall down any more than they do in other great charities. As a people we have our faults, but it is not along this line. No worthy cause is ever presented to an American audience to be turned down. The cry of Armenian children for bread has not only reached our ears but has touched our pocket books.

There are many existing bonds that tend to strengthen the coherency of college men, especially those of the same college. One of those ties is having a son follow in his father's footsteps. Another bond is the meeting of the alumni on commencement week. A third bond is the university club that has its local meetings several times a year. Still another bond of union that has recently come into vogue, is for the specialists of the college to write books along the line of their departments encouraged by the graduates and patrons of that college or university. The very best is thus offered the graduates of these various institutions at a reduced rates. For example in this way we have that splendid book by John M. Tyler, professor emeritus of biology of Amherst, entitled, The Coming of Man. Others of equal importance have been produced by the Amherst faculty.

If a good deed is done for no other purpose than to relieve any form of human suffering it is worthy of all commendation. If no response is deliberately insolent, we call it ingratitude, and ingratitude is one of the hardest things to bear. For a number of years America has been giving to the Armenian sufferers, and in every way possible these orphans and others who have been helped have shown their deep appreciation. But it has not always been so. In 1917 when Great Britain was fighting with her back to the English channel; when France had been bled white; when Belgium had been crushed, America sent millions to their aid and saved the day. Now when leniency is shown in giving these debtor nations nearly three quarters of a century in which to pay their debts it is rather hard to be called "Shylock."

The worst fault of some people is telling other people theirs.

RAYS, OBJECTS OF WORLDWIDE STUDY.

Range of rays expressed in number waves to inch	Ray or wave
63 to 31,750	Heat ray
31,750 to 63,500	Light ray
63,500 to 1,270,000	Ultra-violet ray
249,000 to 181,426,000	X-ray
181,426,000 to 4,233,333,333	Gamma-ray
$35,000,000 (range unknown)	Millikan or Cosmic ray

The Hertzian rays, the longer of which are radio waves, range from 254 to the inch to 18.6 miles.

The overlapping in range of the ultra-violet rays, X-rays, and gamma-rays, is accounted for by the fact that all gamma-rays and some ultra-violet rays are X-rays.

Geography plays its part in the advance of pure science, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"A quest for an ideal spot in which to study the sun's heat rays led Dr. C. G. Abbot, leader of a National Geographic society expedition cooperating with the Smithsonian Institution, over extensive areas in the eastern hemisphere a few months ago before he selected what appears to be the best possible location, on a dry mountain top in southwest Africa.

Science Especially Interested in Rays

"Recently, when it was desired to study a more elusive type of radiation, the Cosmic or Millikan ray, Professor Millikan found it necessary to travel to a crystal clear lake in the high Bolivian Andes; and Professor Michelson in studying the speed of light carried on experiments near Mt. Wilson, California.

"It is noteworthy that in all of these expeditions the object was to study radiant energy; but, for that matter, rays of various kinds and their effects have almost monopolized the attention of physicists during the last few years; and it is in this field that some of the most striking discoveries and advances have been made by science.

What are Rays?

"What are rays that lead serious scientists to remote parts of the earth and absorb the attention of scores of others in laboratories throughout the civilized world?

"A little more than a generation ago it not only would have been difficult to give a broad definition of rays, but it would have been almost impossible to bring to the mind of a layman any conception of the various kinds and the things they do. Light and heat constituted practically the only rays known at that time even to scientists.

"Today the situation is far different. In 35 years rays previously unknown have become the hand-maidens of civilization. They speed commerce and intercourse. They are the beneficient helpers of physicians, surgeons, and dentists. They are the invaluable agents of scientists in probing for new truths. They are even the playfellows of children.

We Use Rays Daily

"We seek technical facts about rays today, because we know so many things about their ordinary behavior. Any evening we can sit in our homes and be amused or instructed by one kind of ray—radio or Hertzian waves—as they bring voices or music to us over distances of hundreds or even thousands of miles. We know that these rays or waves reach us in fraction of a second, however, far away their point of origin; and we know that they scorn our walls of brick and stone and steel, coming to an antenna inside our rooms as unerringly as to an aerial outside.

"Many of us have had X-ray photographs taken of teeth or some other part of our bodies, and know that these rays can plunge through flesh and bone, wood or cloth, leaving on photographic plates records of things that eyes could never see. All of us are familiar, of course, with the streams of light rays that flood our rooms when we turn a switch, and with the heat rays that flow from our fireplaces and radiators. Lately science has introduced us—or reintroduced us—to less usual rays that may be our familiar servants tomorrow: the gamma-rays of radium, the Cosmic or Millikan rays, the so-called cathode or beta-rays of the Coolidge tube, and the so-called alpha-rays of radium.

"Rays may be described broadly though not very satisfactorily as carriers of energy in straight lines from a given source through 'empty' space. They may radiate from their source in all directions like pins stuck into a ball, or by artificial means they may be gathered into beams like those of light thrown out by an automobile headlight or like beams of heat thrown out by a bowl-shape electric household heater.

Two Groups of Rays

"The ray family is a large one, with numerous and diverse members. There are two groups: the true rays, and those with not quite so valid a claim to the family name. What might be called the true rays are often spoken of as 'waves,' for the most generally accepted theory of their nature is the wave theory. They are supposed to be waves in the ether, the 'substance' that we assume fills 'empty' space between the planets and stars—the same 'substance' that fills a vacuum tube when all the air and other gases have been pumped out. These waves are thought to be like the widening waves made by a pebble dropped into water, first a crest then a hollow, then another crest, and so on. They are measured from crest to crest. The crest is supposed to be light, the hollow, darkness; but they move so rapidly that the light seems continuous.

"This narrow definition which emphasizes the supposed wave form fails to include what are often loosely spoken of as 'rays': the cathode rays of the Coolidge tube and the alpha and beta rays of radium.

"Consider first the true rays or supposed ether waves. They are blood relations because they all move with the same velocity, the speed of light, approximately 186,000 miles each second. The other 'rays' have varying speeds. The true rays, however, although they travel with the same speed, differ in their wave lengths and, therefore in the frequency of their vibrations. In this they are like the waves of sound which travel through the air. Although sound waves travel at the same speed they may range from slowly vibrating low sounds to rapidly vibrating high sounds. Because of this analogy the great gamut that rays run may be considered to be like the keyboard of a gigantic piano on which they are grouped in octaves.

The Rays By Which We See

"Near the middle of this imaginary keyboard is the octave we know best, that of the visible light rays. These rays bathe us continually by day from the sun and by night from electric and other lights. As we go from violet colored light, with the shortest light waves, toward the 'bass' end of the keyboard, these rays have longer and longer wave lengths to the red rays, the longest that will illuminate an object and so make it visible.

"The next longer waves and all others beyond them toward the 'bass' are invisible. Those in the octaves closest to visible light make themselves known by their heat; we can feel them radiating from any hot body. Next come the relatively short Hertzian waves for which few uses have been found. The lengths of Hertzian waves vary from slightly more than the thickness of a sheet of paper to lengths of many miles. When Hertzian waves of 100 meters or more are encountered on the 'keyboard' we enter the realm of the most widely used radio waves.

Invisible Rays

"Going back to our starting point, the light octave, and tracing rays along our 'keyboard' this time toward the treble end, we again enter a world of invisible rays. The first of these covering about five octaves, are the ultra-violet rays. Nearly an octave of these reach us from the sun. These sun rays, shorter than those of violet light, do not illuminate objects to our eyes, but they make their existence known by tanning and freckling our skin and by producing photographic and chemical changes. These waves are so short that it takes from 64,000 to 100,000 of them to make an inch.

"Beyond the 'natural' ultra-violet waves that reach us from the sun—still toward the 'treble' end of the scale—are several octaves of other (artificially produced) ultra-violet waves. These are radiated when substances are brought to very great heat. There are more than a million and a quarter of these shortest ultra-violet rays to the inch. They merge into and even overlap the next great group, the well-known artificially produced X-rays. Thus a short ultra-violet ray is the same as a long X-ray, and vice versa. X-rays were for a long time the shortest rays known to exist. It takes more than 125 millions of the shorter artificially produced X-rays to make an inch. These exceedingly short rays are not stopped by ordinary materials but plunge into or through them so that with them we may make photographs through boards and other objects. A fraction of an inch of lead does stop them, however.

The Shortest Known Rays

"The discovery of radium brought to light still shorter and more penetrating rays given off by that mysterious element. These may be called 'naturally produced' X-rays, but they have been given the distinctive name, gamma-rays. Of the shortest gamma-rays, it takes more than 4 billions to make one inch. Gamma-rays will plunge through seven or eight inches of lead before being stopped.

"The reason that the shorter rays penetrate matter is supposed to be that the waves are so short in comparison with the molecules of matter and the distances between the molecules that they pass through the space just as a breeze passes through a window screen. But many thicknesses of screens will stop a breeze, and so a sufficient thickness of matter will stop even the shortest rays.

"Until 1925 the gamma-rays of radium were the shortest rays known, but in that year Professor Millikan discovered the Cosmic or Millikan ray, a natural ray coming to the earth from outside space but apparently not from the sun. This ray is almost inconvelably short. It would require more than 630 billions of them to make one inch. They will pass through more than six feet of lead before being stopped."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

It is rumored in London that the venerable archbishop of Canterbury is thinking of resigning and among those most prominently mentioned to succeed him in this most historic church office in England is the archbishop of York, who comes next in ecclesiastical rank. The latter is personally known to many Americans by reason of his visits to this side. On one occasion when he was visiting America, the story is told, two men in a restaurant thought they recognized him at a table. They decided that one should approach the man and ask if he were really the archbishop. The diner went, and returned sadly to his table. "What did he say?" asked the friend. "He said, 'Mind your own —— business.'" "That's too bad," was the answer. "Now we shall never know if it is the archbishop or not." Needless to say, it was not the archbishop, but a man who bore a striking facial resemblance to the eminent prelate.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What Christmas Seals Are Doing.

Mr. Editor: The following letter has been received by the committee in charge of the distribution and sale of Christmas seals for the benefit of the work of the tuberculosis commission. It is in the appreciative expression from such grateful recipients of the proceeds of the sale of these seals that those most interested in this great work find not only the personal reward for their efforts expended, but also get the satisfaction in the knowing that the money has been well expended when used for any such deserving cases as this letter indicates.

"Dear Friends: I don't like to send the stamps for it a great help to me but I scratch a dollar for you because their giving me two quarts of milk a day now, on for I am a tuberculosis man myself for I am not able to work for the past ten month and a family of ten at the table and I thank youse all for your help and kindness."

Truly yours."

In forwarding his contribution of a dollar the writer of the above communication has answered for himself the question as to what the Christmas seals meant to him and whether or not he would lend his aid to this most worthy effort; the same question has been presented to each one who has received Christmas seals through the mail and it is the hope of the committee that the question which these seals place before the people of Norwich will be answered as honestly and in as satisfactory a manner as it was by the writer of the above letter.

Sunday Morning Talk

HE IS PRECIOUS

To the believing soul Christ is precious. To those who choose Him above all else He is of inestimable value. He is a portion never lessening in value, one foes cannot take from us without our consent. Yet multitudes pass by the pearl of great price, because they do not estimate its value.

The love of Jesus satisfies the craving of the heart for affection as no human love can do. Human love is more or less imperfect; the friend of today may be the foe of tomorrow; the dearest of earth may be stricken at our side by the reaper death at any moment; the keen sickle will not fall from the hand of the destroyer because of the hands of love. They will be rudely severed and bleeding hearts will mourn on; the deeper the love the deeper the gulf when severed, but nothing can separate from the love of Jesus. The trusting heart can rest in His love without a fear that He will prove untrue. He can never more be stricken with death. We may be sure through life He will go with us through all its difficulties, trials and sorrows, smoothing the path, strengthening for the toil soothing mid his woes. The sad desolate and forsaken can lean upon His bosom and find rest, sympathy and help. All other sources of help may fail but He will never fail or forsake. His presence brings joy and peace.

He has all power in heaven and on earth, some care for us and would gladly enrich and protect but they cannot. Only He can provide for all our needs, only He can protect in every danger, only He can save from temporal and eternal ruin. 'Jesus only can meet our need.'

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Human History

The thought that human history from the beginning has been one continuous and progressive whole without a break or intermission of any kind is an idea for the clear expression and emphasizing of which we are greatly indebted to Thomas Arnold. The histories of Greece and Rome are our histories for from them has come the glorious heritage of thought and social organization which we have in their literature and in Roman law. All facts in history are in some way related, though we often lose the connection through ignorance of intervening facts or events, or through lack of knowledge of even whole enturies of human life and struggle.

The Old Testament regarded as actual human history is a series of documents pulsating with the very life and heartbeats of real men. It is no dry theology or book apart from great movement of mankind. It is the living record of one part of our race. History interprets for us the present and enables us to predict the future. It shows that there are laws which govern human relationships and that a knowledge of these laws will enable us to judge what is likely to come to pass. A study of the method pursued by the men who have written great histories reveals to us the diligence of investigation, the labor to secure accuracy, the care to be impartial observers that must characterize the writers of history as we now understand it. An important part of the work of a modern historian consists in weighing and interpreting the statements of writers of long ago who are often the only source we have of information concerning the things of which they wrote. No source of information is to be ignored. An inscription on a coin may unfold a story to the patient searcher for historical knowledge; an Etruscan tomb may modify our understanding of a passage of early Roman history; a visit to the scene of one of Caesar's battles may give us an entirely different idea of the great general's account of it.

Stories That Recall Others

He Knew.

Bobby, age three, and his grandmother were discussing a probable visit from St. Nicholas.

"And will you ask him to bring a little stick, too, that daddy can use?" said the grandmother.

"We already got one of them," Bobby ventured to inform her.

"Glad to see you getting in on time these mornings, Mr. Slowe," said the manager.

"Yes, sir, I've got a parrot now."

"A parrot! What for? I advised you to get an alarm clock."

"I did, sir; but after a few mornings I got used to it, and it failed to wake me. So I got a parrot, and now when I retire I hand the alarm clock over his cage. It wakes the parrot, and what the lrd says would arouse anybody."

YOUR HEALTH

THE SMALL BOY AND CASTOR OIL

By W. B. Holden, M. D., Portland, Ore. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Castor oil, salts, or cathartics of one kind or another, are generally found in every household. Their use for pains in the stomach or abdomen are often dangerous. They may even be deadly in their effects. They are doubtless responsible for thousands of unnecessary deaths each year in the United States.

Whereas, in many cases of severe crampy pains in the abdomen, castor oil might do no harm, its use is never essential. Cathartics of all kinds for colic should be prescribed only by the physician, and their administration should be regarded as carefully as that of the most powerful drugs.

Pain in the stomach, with vomiting, may mean an acute appendicitis. Castor oil, or any cathartic, can do nothing but harm in appendicitis. A simple case may thus be made serious, a visit of two weeks in the hospital prolonged to months; complications multiplied; and complete recovery rendered doubtful.

In all probability, the many deaths following operation for appendicitis could be directly traced to the administration of cathartics. All surgeons regard cathartics as positively dangerous in acute appendicitis.

A severe pain in the abdomen may indicate that the individual is suffering from some form of absolute obstruction of the bowel. A single dose of cathartics can do only injury, and never any good. A goodly proportion of all the deaths following operation for intestinal obstruction could be properly attributed to the use of salts or castor oil before operation.

The castor oil bottle in the family chest could with propriety be labeled "Poison" and marked with the skull and crossbones. All cathartics are poisonous when used for stomach ache with vomiting.

When your boy "makes up a face" and declares that he does not want to take castor oil, remember that he may be actually pleading for his life. Not to respect his objections may result in sending your child to an untimely death.

TWO ELDERLY PERSONS FOUND DEAD IN HOME

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 10—(AP)—Mrs. Alice Gregory, 65, and her cousin, Charles Anderson, 69, were both found dead this morning in their Easton home. Death was due to natural causes in both cases, Medical Examiner H. Le Baron Peters, stated after he viewed the bodies shortly after they were found by another cousin, George Gregory. They had been dead several hours when the bodies were discovered.

Both lived together in the same house which is located some distance from Easton Center, but with a Bridgeport mail delivery. Anderson, the medical examiner learned had been ill and it is believed that he died during the early morning and in an effort to render him aid, Mrs. Gregory was fatally stricken with a heart attack.

For two days Anderson had been confined to a bed in the house, which was located in one of the downstairs rooms. On Thursday night Gregory visited the pair and asked if they wished him to stay all night, but they assured him they would be all right.

When they were discovered Anderson was partly on his couch bed, not fully clad while Mrs. Gregory was sitting in a chair nearby her dead cousin. She had been a victim of a bad heart condition for some time.

FAIL OF AGREEMENT ON ARMAMENTS QUESTION

PARIS, Dec. 10—(AP)—"Still a good way apart" was the term used tonight to describe the position of the Germans and the allies with regard to a settlement of the armaments question. Allied military experts were distinctly pessimistic after tre council of ambassadors at a two hour session today failed to get very far in the direction of recommending that the control of German armaments be placed under the direct jurisdiction of the league of nations, instead of the interallied control commission, as at present.

The council of ambassadors simply drafted a "new report" similar to that of yesterday, and sent it to Geneva for consideration by the various foreign ministers gathered there for the league council. These ministers have it in their power to accept the claims of the Germans in good faith and settle the whole affair, but it is more likely the ambassadors will be asked to continue their efforts.

General von Pauwels, representing the Germans, is described by those negotiating with him as "a very nice gentleman very polite, but quite no-Leading in defending German practices to which the French and British military experts have been objecting."

LITTLE HOPE OF FINDING VAUGHN ALIVE; GONE TWO WEEKS

Little hope remains now of finding alive Waylo Vaughn, 55, who disappeared Thanksgiving day from the Daniel Whipple farm at Old Mystic. He has been gone for over two weeks now and in the meantime there have been rain and snow storms with bitter freezing weather near zero through which it would hardly seem possible that he would survive if he were out in the woods or country without shelter. It is supposed that he wandered away and has probably died from exposure.

The search for Vaughn has been made mostly in the Lantern hill neighborhood but without result. Boy Scouts from Mystic, under the direction of Scoutmaster William F. Holliday of Troop 15, conducted a persistent search of about 25 miles in that locality but without finding him.

A Polish family named Rosonosky, living near the Lantern hill school, furnished the last definite information about Vaughn. They stated that they saw him on the afternoon he disappeared coming from the direction of the Whipple homestead.

A few words were spoken by Vaughn but Mr. Rosonosky could not understand him. He stated that he knew the man resided with Mr. Whipple but had not seen him enough to know that he was mentally deficient or he would have detained him or turned him back towards his home. Rosonosky thought he was carrying a pair of skates in his hands, he stated.

Rumors of a man answering Vaughn's description have been rife in several places. One was that he had been seen in Noank, another that he had been given food in Poquonoc and another that he had been sleeping nights in the vacant house on the Noank road recently purchased by the state of Connecticut, but in every case when an investigation was made, it was found to be a different person.

CENTRAL BAPTIST WOMEN SEND THEIR CONTRIBUTION

The December meeting of the Woman's League of the Central Baptist church was held Friday evening in the church parlors. The meeting was opened with the devotional services led by Mrs. Charles A. Hagberg, which was followed by a delightful solo rendered by Mrs. Olive A. Potter accompanied by Mrs. William Crowe. Mrs. George A. Ashbey presided over the business session during which the reports of the secretary and treasurer were given as well as the reports of the various committees. It was reported that up to date $907 had been raised by the members of the league for the golden anniversary of the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission society, the sum of $1,000 being asked for by the society. It was decided to forward to the society $925, the balance to be taken from the league's treasury.

The program in charge of the social service committee, Mrs. Charles Burton, chairman, included a play given by the Girls Friendly circle under direction of Mrs. Herbert Richardson. The play described and illustrated the work done by the white cross committee, hospital and sewing school of the society. The girls demonstrated how sheets, pillow cases, etc., were packed for mission hospitals; also a demonstration of the work of the sewing circle conducted by Mrs. R. W. Otis. Songs, poems of flag and singing of America was given.

Participating in the play were Mrs. Herbert Richardson, Mrs. Charles W. Burton, Mrs. L. C. Glidersleeve, Mrs. M. J. Anderson, Mrs. E. Walter Phillip, Mrs Olive A Potter and Miss Annie S. Storms. Following the play refreshments were served by the domestic committee.

ASBESTOS HEATER COVERING PREVENTED HOUSE FIRE

An asbestos covering on the heater in the cellar of the house at No. 338 Main street, owned and occupied by Rudolph Henschel, no doubt prevented a serious fire Friday evening. About 9:45 o'clock Charles L. Tracy, who lives at 332 Main street smelled smoke and investigating found that it was coming from Mr. Henschel's house. A telephone call was sent in to the fire department.

The firemen found that the heater had become overheated and that wooden flooring and joists were about to break into flames. The fire in the heater was pulled out by the firemen and the furnace left to cool. Mr. Henschel had left a good sized fire in the heater and gone to the theatre. During his absence the water in the heater was forced into the steam pipes and the boiler ran dry. The furnace got red hot and had it not been for the asbestos covering would have set fire to the flooring above and surrounding joists. Mr. Henschel said that when he left the house there was plenty of water in the boiler.

TROLLEY SPLIT SWITCH AND HIT AUTOMOBILE

About 9:45 o'clock Friday night a Velie touring car owned by Lieut. F. D. Humphrey and Lieut. F. O. Johnson, naval officers stationed at the submarine base, Groton was badly damaged when it was struck by a trolley car which split the switch and became derailed at Shannon corner. Lieut. Humphrey was driving the machine and was making the turn from Shetucket street into Main St. when the trolley car split the switch there and crashed into his machine. The left side of the touring car was badly damaged. Both mudguards were bent and twisted and the rear left of the body smashed in.

Lieut. Humphrey produced a driver's license but did not have the registration certificate of the machine with him. Because of this fact he was summoned to appear in the city court on Monday. He stated at police headquarters that he and Lieut. Johnson own the machine jointly and that Lieut. Johnson left recently for his home in Chicago on leave. He could not find the registration certificate in the machine and said he believes that Lieut. Johnson accidentally took it with him when he left for Chicago. The damaged machine was towed to a Norwich garage later in the evening.

PENNIMAN'S MANUSCRIPT OF 1807 SEA TRAGEDY

A forgotten tragedy of the sea—the burning of the British eighty-gun ship "Ajax" while anchored in 1807 near the Dardanelles, with the loss of half her officers and crew—is brought back in all its horror in a manuscript account of the catastrophe written by one of its survivors.

The document is now in the collection of Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, of Philadelphia, writer on history and founder of the Maria Hosmer Penniman Memorial Library of Education at the University of Pennsylvania.

This valuable paper is the personal narrative of Admiral Sir Henry Bruce, K. C. B., who as a midshipman on the "Ajax" gave the warning that enabled half the crew to escape.

Written in 1861

The manuscript is dated Portsmouth, February 12, 1861, fifty-four years after the destruction of the ship.

Admiral Bruce prefixed to his manuscript the quotation: "There is a Providence that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will."

Then comes the title of his narrative.

"How the 'Ajax' was destroyed by fire, and how H. B., after discovering the fire, escaped and lives to tell the story."

It is sixty-five years ago that Admiral Bruce, then in the evening of his days, set down his recollections of this catastrophe of the time when ships-of-war were built of wood and not of steel.

Dark Winter Night

"It was a cold, dark, winter's night, —being the 14th February, 1807,—" begins the manuscript, "when the ship was anchored near the entrance to the Dardanelles, being one of a squadron of eight ships of the line, two frigates and two mortar vessels (bombs) under Vice Admiral Sir I. Duckworth, and Rear Admirals Sir L. Louis, and Sir Sidney Smith, assembled to punish the Turks at Constantinople for some political breach of faith, real or supposed, and for their too great leaning to the French.—The Ajax was a fine ship of 80 guns, with a first rate captain, a good set of officers, and a numerous crew; altogether 750.

"The captain was the Honble. Henry Blackwood a personal friend of Nelson, of Collingwood, of Duckworth, of Louis, and of Smith,—the lieutenants were Proctor, Brown, Mitchell, Wood, Rowe, Hamilton, Sibthorpe;—the midshipmen were 20 in number, a fine set of thoughtless, larking fellows.—

Was Poop Midshipman

"I was Poop Midshipman of the first (8 to 12) watch.—Wood was the lieutenant on that fatal night.—when, at 8:30, I went down to the gun room to get a drink of water (midshipman lived much on salt meat in those days, and the gun room was our mess place); my attention was drawn to the man in charge of the gun room, who ought to have been in his hammock, but was in the small store room under the gun room:—I hailed him to account for his being there, to which he answered

"'Come and see!'

"I jumped down and found the place full of smoke.

'Ship Must Be on Fire.'

"'Oh!' I said, 'the ship must be on fire!'"

"'I think so,'" he replied.

"I immediately reported the fact to Wood, the lieutenant of the watch, who beat to quarters and called the captain. The captain was just getting into his cot, and was forthwith at his post, dressed in a suit of flannel, which he always kept at hand for emergency, and proceeding to the lower deck, desired me to 'bring him his speaking trumpet.'"

"On giving it to him he said—'Young Gentleman, tell the officer of the watch to take the cutter and give the alarm to the nearest ship, and do you go with him.'

"We lowered the cutter from the stern and proceeded towards the 'Canopus, but we were one man short of the proper boats crew, and it blew so strong, with a short sea, that we could only reach within hail of the ship, and could not get hold of her.

"We then endeavored to get back to our own ship, but the wind and the sea continuing, we gradually drifted away to leeward; thus,—continuing to row and keep the boats' head to the sea, suddenly we saw the flames burst up at the center of the doomed ship, and her utter destruction seemed inevitable.

"To attempt a description of that awful sight is in vain; in a brief space of time the hull was one mass of fire, and you could count every port in the side, while all the masts remained in their places, and often a shot went off from the guns as they became overheated."

Cut Cables to Get Clear

The ships to leeward of the Ajax had to cut their cables to get clear of the raging fire, and to get a sufficient space between her safety, leaving their boats to pick up the swimmers, and at 2 o'clock on the morning of the 15th, cold and exhausted we got on board the Royal George, the flagship, off the Island of Tenedos;—here we were cordially welcomed, and I received a comfortable shakedown on the cockpit deck, and with feelings of overwhelming wonder and fervent gratitude, I soon fell asleep.

"About 6:30 a. m. a loud explosion awoke me, and I became aware that the remains of the Ajax were blown up; the magazine must have been very well secured to have withstood the fire so long.

"Of the ward room officers, half were saved, and half were lost. The perished were Mitchell and Sibthorpe (lieutenants), Donaldson (master), Owen (surgeon), and Boyd (captain of marines). The chaplain, Palmer, was left behind at Gibraltar. The mids were exactly divided, 15 saved and 15 drowned; and the crew were nearly divided also, about 370 saved.

Captain Last to Leave

"The noble captain was one of the last to leave the burning wreck, which had become literally too hot to hold him, and was saved by a boat of the Canopus in charge of Macpherson, a mate—the captain was an excellent swimmer, but was exhausted when picked up, and could not have held out much longer. The bottom of the ship, with some of her guns, were cast upon the Island of Tenedos, some of the men's wives, who were allowed to be on board, were saved by being lowered down from the bowsprit, which escaped the flames longest."

DELANEY KNOCKS OUT JAMAICA KID IN THIRD ROUND AT WATERBURY

WATERBURY, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, world champion light heavyweight, tonight knocked out Jamaica Kid, of New York, Negro boxer, in the third round of a scheduled 15-round title bout. It was Delaney's first appearance in the ring since he won the title from Paul Berlenbach. The champion's weight was 172½ pounds, and the Negro's 175.

The Jamaica Kid was on the floor five times in the third round before he was counted out, a right uppercut to the jaw sending him to the canvas for the final count about mid-way of the round. The first three times he was up before the referee could start his count.

Delaney staggered his opponent several times in the second, but the bounding tactics of the Negro prevented the champion from landing solid. During the first round the Kid either hung on or kept out of Delaney's reach.

In the semi-final Tony Travers, of New Haven, and Fred Bretonnel, of France, fought eight rounds to a draw The decision of Referee Young McAuliffe of Bridgeport, proved unpopular with the crowd as Travers had had an apparent edge on his opponent throughout the bout. Travers weighed in at 140¾ pounds and Bretonnel at 137¼.

A cut over Travers' left eye was opened in the first round which went to the Frenchman. The next four were about even, Travers having the best of his opponent on the in-fighting. The New Havener scored heavily in the sixth when he landed hard rights to Bretonnel's face and body. The last two were Travers' by a shade.

The bout which preceded the Travers-Bretonnel draw also was called even by McAuliffe. It was between Sammy Vogel, of New York, 138, and Chicky Clark, Holyoke, Mass., 140. Vogel started out to win the fight, bringing blood in the first round by a hard left which landed on Clark's nose, and taking that and the next two. Clark spouted blood from the first round, but rallied in the final rounds to earn a draw.

Baby Doll and Red Garron, Waterbury lightweights, slugged through six rounds as an opener. The decision went to Baby Doll.

The crowd was estimated at 4,000.

PERSSON MAKES FIRST N. E. APPEARANCE MONDAY

HARTFORD, Dec. 10—Harry Persson, Swedish heavyweight champion, makes his New England debut next Monday night when he comes to cross purposes with Pat McCarthy, clever Boston heavyweight, in the star bout of George Mulligan's show at the Hartford state armory.

The McCarthy bout will be the first gun in a busy campaign for the Swedish titleholders, his winter's work holding in prospect bouts with Sharkey, Berlenbach, Maloney and others of the big men who now hold the center of the stage.

Persson, who cleaned up all the heavyweight contenders in his native Sweden before he set sail for America, impresses the experts as one of the heavies destined to be real contenders for Gene Tunney's crown.

Harry's best essay since landing on these shores was his bout with Johnny Risko, in which he decisively defeated the Clevelander. McCarthy, too, defeated Risko here last summer, though the best he got was a draw, so the bout at the big Broad street drillshed next Monday night will be a meeting of the "I-beat-Risko" alumni.

Persson carries a real punch and McCarthy is apt to hit the canvas for the long count if the big boy from over the bounding main lands squarely with his death-dealing right.

McCarthy, whose fight against Risko here was one of the "smartest" battles ever waged in a Connecticut ring, will have speed, high-grade footwork and good ring generalship to discount the extra weight, youth and hard hitting of the Swedish champion.

Mulligan has arranged a good supporting card.

In the semi-final, George Lamson, the Cherokee Indian, will battle Battling Thomas.

There will be two preliminaries. In the first, Joe Smith, former Hartford amateur kayo king, meets George McRae of Springfield and in the second preliminary, Prince Thomas takes on Nick Fidel.

The star bout will be twelve rounds, the semi-final and second preliminary eight apiece, and the opening bout four.

MEHLHORN TAKES LEAD IN $5,000 GOLF MATCH

DEL MONTE, Cal., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Conquering a deceptive wind, Bill Mehlhorn, Chicago professional, today stroked a 73 to equal par and took a lead in the first 18-hole play of the 72-hole $5,000 Monterey Peninsula open tournament. More than one-third of the 150 odd starters had completed the round and Mehlhorn was virtually assured of low score for the day.

STONEHAM CLAIMS GIANTS DID NOT DESERT JENNINGS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The New York Giants believe they have treated Hughey Jennings, former assistant manager, with "utmost consideration," Charles A. Stoneham, president of the club, said today, in reply to assertions by Jennings that the club's officers, excepting Manager John McGraw had "deserted" him and cut him off the pay-roll after he was forced out of the game last February by ill health.

Jennings was offered his old job again for the 1927 season, Mr. Stoneham said, but did not reply to a proposal made to him in October and gave no indication of his feeling until making public in Scranton, Pa., yesterday his criticism of the club. Under the circumstances, Mr. Stoneham indicated, the Giants would accept Jennings' decision to several future relations with the organization and probably would sign Roger Bresnahan, as assistant manager. Bresnahan filled this role last season.

Expressing regret at the attitude taken by Jennings, Mr. Stoneham declared that if he had been neglected it was not intentional.

Jennings was quoted in Scranton as saying that Stoneham with other officers, had "absolutely deserted me, cut me off the payroll and from that day to this never directly asked me by wire, letter or word of mouth how I felt." He added he was "through with the Giants, much as I would be glad to go back to mingle with my real friend, John McGraw."

N. Y. COMMISSION PROPOSES WELTER ELIMINATION BOUTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The New York State athletic commission today proposed a welterweight elimination tournament among four contenders to decide a challenger for the title held by Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa.

Joe Dundee of Baltimore would be matched with Mushy Callahan, Pacific coast candidate, in one test tilt and Willie Harmon of New York with Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash., in the other under the plan suggested by the commission and likely to be carried out by Jess McMahon, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden. The winners would be brought together to determine the challenger.

Dundee and Herman both are rated high in spite of knockout defeats. Dundee was regarded as the leading title contender until knocked out by Roberts at San Francisco last Saturday. Harmon was knocked out by the champion, Latzo, several months ago, but has filed a challenge for a return match.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

The average golf professional carries a dozen clubs in his bag.

Caddies cost golf players in the United States something like $12,000,000 a year.

Billiards can boast of having more actual participats than any other sport in America.

British athletes have decided to take part in the winter sports section of the Olympic games at St. Moritze in 1928.

The completion of two new golf courses now projected at Pinehurst will give that section eight full-sized courses.

The Victoria Hockey club of Montreal will sail next month for a visit to Sweden, where a series of five games with leading teams of that country.

Northwestern university, which tied for the "Big Ten" championship this year, will open its football schedule next season with University of South Dakota.

England has 9,827 bookmakers, this being the number of certificates issued by the government under the new law which provides for the licensing of bookmakers and the taxing of all bets.

Yale and Harvard have made poor football showings in years gone by, but never in the same year did both the Crimson and Eli rank so low in the gridiron sport as was the case in the season just closed.

H. F. White did remarkably well in his first year as football coach at Amherst college, his team retaining the "Little Three" championship despite the early season predictions that the loss of Coach McLaughry would prove a serious handicap.

Leland Stanford university, University of Alabama and Lafayette college stand out as the only prominent teams to win all of their football games this year, and after Stanford and Alabama clash on New Year's day there probably will be only two teams to claim victories in all their games.

Edward Blair Mitchell, a wealthy lawyer and author who died in London the other day at the age of 54, was in his early years one of the world's greatest amateur athletes. As an oarsman he was the winner of several trophies. He was the holder of the amateur walking championship of the world, and he held the amateur lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight boxing titles of England.

It seems to be the same owl story in the national pastime. When once they have had their fling at managing a ball club, they want to come back no matter how long they have been away from the game. The latest example is furnished by Bill Carrigan, who has been prevailed on to try the task of rejuvenating the poor old dilapidated red hose of Boston.

The offspring of the great Man o' War came close to monopolizing money winning honors among the thoroughbreds this year. Records for the turf campaign crusader at the top of the three year old list with total earnings of $166,032. Scapa Flow a two year old son of the super-horse, was a close second among the juveniles, earning $21,405 as compared with Fair Star's $88,960.

Maxey Rosenbloom, who meets K. O. Phil Kaplan, at Madison Square Garden Monday in a middleweight elimination bout test, has "beaten champions and near champions, but has yet to hold a title himself. Maxey upset Dave Shade twice early this year when Shade was considered the outstanding welter contender. He also gained a decision over Tiger Flowers in a catch-weight encounter shortly before the latter lost the middleweight title to Mickey Walker.

Rushey Graham, Utica, N. Y., bantamweight probably will substitute for Bud Taylor as an opponent for Tony Canzoneri of New York, in one of the bantamweight matches on the Madison Square Garden card December 17. Taylor cancelled the match because of an eye ailment, necessitating an operation which will keep him idle two months.

The St. Nicholas club of the Metropolitan amateur hockey league has corralled a galaxy of former college stars for the 1926-27 season. The players include Freddie Potts, captain and defense of Yale's team last year and Harry Watkins, captain and centre of the strong Williams Sextet. Redl, Bulkley and Jenkins of Yale, Hock and Baldwin, Princeton, Carson of Harvard and Popham of Williams are other collegians on the outfit.

ACADEMY-SUFFIELD BASKETBALL GAME AT "Y" GYM THIS EVENING

The opening gun of the Academy's scholastic basketball season will be fired this evening at the Y. M. C. A. gym when the powerful Suffield Prep quintet furnishes the opposition. A banner crowd is expected for the initial school contest as interest is running high in this clash.

For their first school game of their season, the local school boys have been making extra preparations throughout the past few weeks, using their two preliminary encounters merely as a means of rounding into form for the school game.

The locals have won one and lost one in the two games played to date and in both have shown that they will bother all opponents throughout the season.

All arrangements for this evening's important tilt were completed Friday evening so that everything will be in A-1 shape tonight at the scene of battle. The bleachers with a seating capacity of close to 500 are in position and ready for use while officials who will handle the game, etc., are also ready for duty.

The Academy will present full strength on the floor this evening as all regulars have been pronounced fit for action. Coach McKean has been sending his charges through stiff drills throughout the past week, particularly stressing the Suffield game and its importance. A light workout was in order Friday afternoon when all candidates were put through their paces in snappy fashion.

Les Pingree will be back at center after a prolonged absence due to a scholastic ruling and his presence should greatly strengthen the team. Capt. Ray Terrington and Ducky Jackson will cavort at forwards and their uncanny shooting ability as well as their nice floor work, should be a feature in the Academy play. The guard berths have not been definitely settled as yet but it is quite certain that Jim Kelly, Artie Armstrong and Cimikoski will get first call with Cimmy at right guard and Kelly and Armstrong dividing the other guard assignment. Fenton, LaCroix, Schwartz and Jarvis seem to rank in the front line as reserve material. This outfit looms up very strong and the Academy is very fortunate in having such a wealth of material as its representative on the chalked court.

The Suffield gang is coming down confident of taking the locals measure in the initial school contest and the up-staters will play their hardest in order to accomplish what is generally considered a difficult feat. A large crowd of supporters plan to accompany their team to the Rose of New England and cheer their idols on to victory. The Suffield quintet is annually regarded as the fastest among the prep schools of the state and this year is reported as being no exception.

The preliminaries this evening will bring together two picked teams from the Y. M. C. A. Senior class. The lineups will include many of the amateur stars of the city and vicinity who are trying out for positions on the regular "Y" Senior five.

The preliminary is slated to go on at 8 o'clock sharp which should make the Academy-Suffield contest opening tap off about 9 p. m.

JEWETT CITY

REPORTS ON CONFERENCE HELD AT PLAINFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 10—The conference of six churches held its last meeting for several months with Plainfield Congregational church. Although it was a very unpleasant day the attendance was 72. The morning service opened with an organ prelude by Mrs. Henry Leach of Wauregan. Rev. W. C. Prentiss conducted the opening exercises, Rev. A. H. Clement of Jewett City leading the responsive reading Rev. C. S. Wightingale of Moosup read the scripture and Rev. William Williams of Wauregan offered prayer. Mrs. Henry W. Fontaine sang a solo. The remainder of the morning service was announced by Rev. George Rees of Central Village.

Mr. Prentiss explained that the conference which should have been held in November was postponed until December on account of the three day bazaar held in that month. He also spoke of a letter received from William Barstow, who was away but was always a regular attendant at conferences; and he gave notice of the bazaar at Canterbury. Mrs. John Pratt of Brooklyn read a paper written by Mr. Pratt on Protestant Christianity's Biggest Problem, which is bringing together the church and the men who are shaping affairs in the world, not only for the good of the church but because the men need the spiritual uplift of Christianity. The paper enlarged upon the subject, giving reasons why people do not go to church, speaking of personal contact and of patriotism, and that the church should take advantage of the wave of opportunity. The sermon was by Rev. Giles F. Goodenough of Jewett City. His text was Malachi 3:2. "But who may abide the day of his coming and who shall stand when he appeareth? for he is like a refiner's fire and like fullers' sope."

He first spoke of having everything in readiness as if Jesus were to come into our home anytime. He used the simile of the manner in which gold must be cleaned and treated before it is pure and fit for use, and of the cleansing properties of fullers earth. Applying it to personal human lives, which cannot become clean enough without God's help. A man cannot come to God until he cleans up his life. Why try to hide from Him? Study the basic facts of right and wrong. Jesus went among people because he wanted to try and help them. If anyone has Christianity enough he can anywhere among any people, and not be harmed by the experience. He said he believed there are more sins of omission than commission. Us every opportunity for His sake. Rev. Mr. Stone of Canterbury pronounced the benediction. Dinner was served in the dining room by the women of the church.

In the afternoon, Rev. George Rees conducted a praise service. Rev. William Muttart of Hampton read the Scripture and Rev. W. J. Reynolds of Lisbon offered prayer. Rev. Mr. Goodenough presented a resolution expressing the appreciation of the kind care of the women of Plainfield for their cheerful and plenteous service of tables. This was voted. He also gave notice of the ordination of Rev. Howard Arnold in North Franklin on the 14th. Notices was given of the bazaars in Canterbury and Brooklyn and of the evangelistic meetings in Jewett City and of the good work of Dr. and Mrs. Reese. The offering was received by Messrs. Hall, Exley, Winsor and Gray.

The report of the last was read by the scribe Mrs. E. H. Hiscox of Jewett City. She called the roll. Towns represented were as follows:

Hanover 0, Lisbon 4, Preston City 4, Pachaug 0, Jewett City 6, Plainfield 34, visitors 25. The visitors came from Brooklyn, Central Village, Canterbury, Wauregan, Hampton and Jewett City. Mrs. Cecil Butler sang a solo.

Rev. C. S. Nightingale spoke on The Larger Group. He spoke of what President Coolidge had statted concerning the needed revival of religion Back of law enforcement is men's love for God. Organization is often inaccurate and the teaching of the Bible does not bring out the facts. All the highest in life comes out of relationship to personality. All religeon comes out of conscious loyal relationship to Jesus Christ. What we are coming to is higher moral life. He spoke of hoping to have Dr. Rees come to the churches in that vicinity in April and hoped to have 13 churches united in the project.

Dr. Milton S. Reese, Rochester, N. Y., spoke on Passion of Souls. He said man is a soul and lives in a tabernacle. We cannot go far in evangelism until we have a passion for souls that impels one to go to them. He never saw evangelistic work until he saw tears. Our eyes have been too dry. He spoke particularly of preserving the life of children, and of the people near to us for whom we should have a passion for their souls. The forgotten secret is prayer. The things we give our attention to are social service and religious education but we do not cultivate the passion for souls. Passion comes in answer to prayer. The service closed with the benediction pronounced by Rev. J. W. Carter of Jewett City.

Learns War is Over Now

After living as a Brazilian savage for five years a Germain sailor has just been granted a pension. During the war he became a prisoner and escaped. He fell in with a tribe of Indians and for five years worked for them. It was just recently that he met some civilized men and learned that the war was over.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Yowler the Bobcat Shows His Teeth

For people who are filled with spite,
There nothing is, or can be, right.
—Old Mother Nature

Peter Rabbit did want to peek into Buster Bear's bedroom, but of course that wouldn't have been polite. However, it wasn't politeness that kept Peter from doing it. The truth is, Peter didn't dare to. Buster Bear might not be asleep. Even if he were asleep, he hadn't been asleep long enough for Peter to dare take any liberties. So Peter was satisfied to leave well enough alone and go hunt up some one to boast to.

Peter is very like a great many people in that he dearly loves to boast. If he knows something, he thinks no one else knows he likes to brag about it. I am quite sure you have seen people just like that. So Peter was very anxious to tell others that he knew where Buster Bear had gone to sleep for the winter. It never entered his head that in spying on Buster he had done a most impolite thing.

Shortly after Peter left Buster's bedroom the snow began to fall. This pleased Peter. That snow was covering up Buster Bear's tracks and his own tracks. If it kept on falling there would be no tracks to be seen anywhere around Buster Bear's winter home.

Then Peter set forth to tell every one he met that he had seen Buster Bear make his bed and knew just where Buster Bear was spending the winter. "No one else knows," boasted Peter. "No one else knows, for no one else was about when Buster went to bed."

"Pooh!" said Sammy Jay. I guess the rest of us can find out where Buster Bear is if we want to. There are not so many places that Buster can hide but that we can't find them. He probably is in his usual cave over in the ledges where he has slept before."

"No, sir!" cried Peter. "He isn't there."

"Then," declared Sammy, "he's under the great windfall where Mrs. Bear and the twins were one winter."

"No sir!" cried Peter. "He isn't there."

That was all Sammy could get from Peter, but of course Sammy's curiosity was immediately aroused. He went about through the Green Forest telling everybody that Buster Bear had gone to bed for the winter, and that he had a brand new bedroom. He said this in a way that led everybody to think that he knew where that new bedroom was, which of course he didn't. Right away all the other little people began to hunt for that bedroom. None of them likes to think that any one else knows something that he doesn't.

Now this was just what Sammy Jay wanted. He felt sure that sooner or later some one would stumble on it and that if he kept his eyes and ears open he would find out where that new home was. Sammy is a very clever fellow; he is smart enough to make use of other people.

Now Sammy gets up early in the morning. It happened one morning that just after daylight came creeping through the Green Forest Sammy, for no particular reason, flew over to a certain part of the Green Forest that he wasn't in the habit of visiting. As always, he used his eyes. Also he kept his tongue still. He wanted to see who might be there, and he didn't want to be noticed himself. Presently he discovered a grayish brown form moving silently and stealthily and keeping in the shadows as much as possible. It was Yowler the Bobcat. Plainly Yowler the Bobcat was in a bad humor. His stubby tail was twitching. Every now and then he turned to look back, and every time he did this he would draw his lips back showing all his teeth. It was a silent snarl. Once he turned and stood with his forefeet on an old log, looking back along his own trail, and his stub of a tail twitched more than ever. Then he showed his teeth again before going on his way.

"Now what can that mean?" said Sammy Jay.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S TRAITS OF CONNECTICUT INTEREST

Because President Woodrow Wilson and his first wife were for a number of seasons summer residents of Old Lyme, when the former was a professor at Wesleyan university, Middletown, there is Connecticut interest in the following from New York:

The three women in the life of the late President Woodrow Wilson are graphically described in "Secrets of the White House," by Elizabeth Jaffray, housekeeper of the executive mansion for seventeen years, in the second of her series which appeared this week in the January number of a popular magazine.

Beside the first and second Mrs. Wilson, there was a "Mrs. Hulbert"—better known as Mrs. Peck who became a "trusted and close friend" to President Wilson.

"It is difficult to give an exact picture of the frist Mrs. Wilson," Mrs. Jaffray writes. "President Wilson, I am sure, loved her deeply and she was a wonderful mother but her nature was limited. She was never the gay and amusing woman of the world.

"To speak frankly, I think that Mrs. Hulbert—better known as Mrs. Peck—filled, for some years, this part of Mr. Wilson's life. For a long period she was an intimate of the entire family. Mr. Wilson himself became interested in her through the problem of helping her son.

"Their friendship grew until Mrs. Hulbert became a trusted and close friend.

"During the first two and a half years Mr. Wilson was at the White House—the years covering the period of the death of the first Mrs. Wilson, the president's period of mourning and his subsequent marriage to Mrs Galt—Mrs. Hulbert made three visits to the executive mansion. Two were before the death of the first Mrs. Wilson.

"During the first year of the Wilson administration Mrs. Hulbert was a white house guest at one time for four or five days. At this time the president's own family was not particularly fond of her, but this did not keep her from being a guest at the white house.

Mrs. Jaffray terms President Wilson's romance with Mrs. Galt, who was to be the second Mrs. Wilson, as "a lovely old-fashioned courtship."

"After dinner the president and Mrs. Galt would walk under the trees in the moonlight hand-in-hand like boy and girl sweethearts," Mrs. Jaffray records.

The president's daughters were delighted with the match.

Mrs. Jaffray draws a picture of President Wilson as "more or less impractical," generous yet able to accumulate a "nest egg" from his salary as chief executive.

"In a way President Wilson, like Mrs. Wilson (the first) was visionary and more or less impractical. He was little interested in many of the every-day material things that fill a good part of man's lives. Food and clothes were of minor importance to him. He had no extravagances at all—except the extravagance of buying beautiful and useful books.

"Of all the men who were in the white house during the years I was there, I think President Wilson was the poorest when his administration began. But from his salary during the eight years that he was president, he was able to save enough money to buy the second Mrs. Wilson a home on S street where she now resides and to leave her a fairly comfortable income, as well as a modest annuity to Miss Margaret Wilson, his one unmarried daughter.

CHRISTMAS CAROL MUSIC FOR EVENING SERVICE

On Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church a most enjoyable hour of carol singing will be accompanied by beautiful slides on "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "Calm on the Listening Ear," and "Once in Royal David's City." The Sunday school orchestra will lead the audience in this beautiful Christmas music.

In connection with the service the hymn, "O Zion, Haste," will be dramatized by Elaine Wilson, Florence Bushnell, Susie Hargreaves, Gladys Lambert, Helen Danison, Viola Hill and Gertrude Mathews, accompanied by Miss Amie March as soloist.

Continuing the series on the decalogue, Dr. Pitt will preach on "Thou Shalt Not Steal." Announcement will be made at the evening service of the total results of the every-member enlistment campaign. Those who have not turned in their pledges previously will be called on at their homes on Sunday afternoon when the canvassers hope to find them home.

RALPH DIVITO WILL STAY IN ITALY THIS WINTER

Ralph Divito, a former Norwich policeman who has been in Italy for a number of months has lost none of his affection for this city and intends to return here in the spring, he writes in a letter to James D'Atri of 33 North Main street. But Ralph remembers the rigors of New England winters and says he has no intention of enduring snow storms here as long as he can stay in sunny Italy in comfort.

His many friends will be glad to know that they will again see him in Norwich.

I Dream't I Dwelt in Marble Halls

I dreamt that I dwelt in Marble Halls
With vassals and serfs at my side,
And of all who assembled within those walls,
That I was the hope and the pride.
I had riches too great to count,
Could boast of a high ancestral name
But I also dreamt which pleased me most
That you lo'ed me still the same.
That you lov'd me, you lov'd me still the same,
That you lov'd me, you lov'ed me still the same.

I dreamt that suitors sought my hand
That knights upon bended knee.
And with vows no maiden heart could withstand,
They pledg'd their faith to me,
And I dreamt that one of that noble host,
Came forth my hand to claim,
But I also dreamt which charm'd me most,
That you lov'ed me still the [illegible]
That you lov'd me, you lov'd me still the same,
That you lov'd me, you lov'd me still the same,

Worthwhile Things

I'm a busy wife and a mother, too,
And life has been good to me;
And for all the joys that have been my lot
I'm as thankful as can be.
But each day in my heart a longing [illegible]
As the hours come and go,
For a little time I might call my own,
When I could sit down and sew!

When I awake in the early morn
This thought comes first to mind—
That surely, before the day is done,
An hour or two I'll find
To embroider a bit on that luncheon cloth,
Or finish that scarf for Nell,
Or make French knots with those dainty silks
On an apron for Cousin Belle.

I'd like to hemstitch some towels, too.
And make a silk cushion, gay,
And dress up my windows with curtains fine,
Trimmed with cretonne and appliqué!
And the baby's rompers with stitching blue,
And the blouses for Betty and John
With the ducks on the pockets and 'round the hems—
Shall I ever get them done?

For the dishes and pails must first be washed,
And the chickens watered and fed,
And the little ones set at some childish play,
While I bathe and dress baby Ted.
There are sweeping and dusting and beds to do,
And the dinner to plan once more,
While the basket of clothes all ready to iron
Must wait till these tasks are o'er.

And then, when the sun is sliding west
There are lamps and plants to tend,
And the baby to cuddle and feed again,
And the stockings and socks to mend,
But as soon as the supper-hour is past,
And the bedtime story read,
And dear little white-clad forms have knelt
At my knees while wee prayers are said,

Then the house is still; and I think at last
Here's the time I have longed for so
But my eyes grow heavy—I cannot [illegible]
And my dreary head droops low.
So I fold my work and climb the stair,
Yet deep in my heart I know
That I've spent my day in a worthwhile way,
Though I couldn't sit and sew!

The District School

It is an old-time district school,
Low-stooping, and old-fangled,
Its corners warped and bent askew
Though they were once right-angled
Today the sloping stoop betrays
How much the sills are rotting,
While at the top the belfry seems
Half kneeling and half squatting.

It is an old-fashioned district school,
A score of years deserted
Where multiples once thrived and where
Divisors were inverted—
Today the rag-weeds flourish 'round
Where one time bloomed the clover
And where once led the beaten path
In game of ante-over.

The swallows build along the eaves
Below the ragged shingles,
Their twitter with the sparrow's cry
And robin's chirrup mingles;
I see the crumbling chimney rise
O'er windows warped and shatter[illegible]
And in the room, a sagging floor
With broken benches scattered.

It is an old-time district school
Which flight of time makes dearer,
A name, a place, a dream of joy
That memory paints the clearer—
It is the dearest spot and best
Of all I hold in yearning,
Epitome of life and love
And embryo of learning.

I muse—It seems a thousand joys
My memories encumber;
I fling a pebble 'gainst the bell
To wake its years of slumber;
It sounds—Methinks its idle spell
On rotting beam and column
Has left it sweeter than of yore,
Its melody less solemn.

I wait expectant, hat in hand,
The bell's tone fainter growing;
A scent of clover fills the air
From distant meadows blowing;
I wait to see the master's form
The narrow doorway guarding,
To see the hurrying girls and boys
Their fun and—gum discarding.

I wait in vain. The swallows flit
The ragged eaves from under;
The startled robins perch upon
The sagging ridge in wonder.
The old bell holds its peace again
Like ancient hermit brooding
Upon some long-gone memory
Of life and love's intruding.

It is an old-time district school—
Farewell to it forever—
In memory borne, a crimson leaf
Upon a sunny river;
Twill go with me a-down the tide
Of time's uncertain roaming,
The sweetest spot when life was young.
The brightest at its gloaming.

GOOD RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Members: Here are some good recipes:

Dressing for Turkey, Duck or Chicken: 2 tablespoons butter, 5 medium sized potatoes, 2 slices of streaked pork, 2 small onions or one large one, gizzard, liver, heart, 1 stick of celery or parsley, 6 milk crackers, 1 teaspoon of baking powder. Put through chopping tray and mix them in with Put crackers through first, then potatoes, then pork. Chop onions in chopping try and mix them in with the rest. Chop liver, gizzard and heart after cooking them until tender and add 1-8 teaspoon of allspice, pepper and parsley or celery. If you haven't either 1 small green pepper 1-2 teaspoon sugar. Stir dressing up with stock where you cooked your bird.

Spinach and Mushrooms: Cook spinach, mince finely, season with salt and be liberal with butter, and press in a buttered ring mold, keep hot. When ready to serve unmold on a hot serving disk and fill center with creamed mushrooms.

Peel mushrooms, break into pieces, slicing stems and cook eight minutes in 2 tablespoons each of butter and cream. Add more cream and thicken with equal parts of butter and flour melted together, 1 scant tablespoon of each will thicken a cup liquid. Meadow mushrooms (campestris) will not have to be peeled. It make cream soup of the tough part of the mushrooms and the peels.

Cauliflower and Hollandaise: Cook a fine cauliflower until tender. Place on a hot serving dish and surround with any small vegetable in season, and just before serving cover with mock Hollandaise sauce. Two cups top milk, 2 scant teaspoons of flour, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and pour over 2 well beaten eggs. I think that is a good Hollandaise sauce.

AN ESSAY ON CATS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: For the benefit of the abuting (as Nonesopretty requests) to cause a little smile, I am sending an essay on cats, the production of a bright little Brooklyn boy. It follows:

"The cat lives in the house what time she don't live over to Jones' barn. She is a good target to throw stones at and to pull her tail and make her squeak. I make our cat squeak six or ten times a day and the backs of my hands are all drawed out in lines like a map where her toes nails has been. If I had invented a cat I should have made her without them nails. Cats is full of music. They have concerts every night in our back yard, and no tickets to pay for.

Cats live on mice and what cream and beefsteak they can steal out of the pantry. Sometimes they catch chickens that makes the old hen angry and the old woman that owns the chickens angrier, and she goes out for the cat with a broom and the cat climbs a tree and sits there and laughs at her, and goes to sleep and dreams that she is a kitten again till it comes night and then she climbs down back end first and goes out to a concert to see the other cats. Thomas cats has the best voices, and can sing bass and tenor both at once. It's nice to hear 'em. Cats can climb telegraph poles and sit on the roofs of four story houses without being dizzy headed, and they can sleep with one eye open and lay awake with both eyes shut, and they can walk soft as a feather and they can run like lightning. Cats don't like to swim and they never do except it's an old cat that you want to get rid of and you do her up in a bag with some bricks and throw her into the mill pond at the bridge and then she'll bust the bag and swim ashore and run for home so's to be there when you get there so you won't feel lonesome. Cats like to get on the spare bed and they like to go to sleep on your best coat. I expect they like to hear you talking when you brush it. I should if I was a cat."

ANN TENNA.

GREETINGS FROM CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Corner Sisters: It is with much sympathy for Sister Inez I hear of the death of her husband. He will be greatly missed in the home circle.

Black Eyed Suzie: What a sport you are becoming; aren't you? Well I hope if you have taken that trip you enjoyed it.

Mayfare: Thanks for your card. I see, too, you have been on a visit. Why don't you three take a trip to the sunny south? You will be more than repaid for the little expense you undergo. I see everybody has the fever, why not your party?

Now all those sisters who love snow can have it to their hearts content. Where is the man who said snow, beautiful snow? The way its snowing tonight think he will get all he wants and a little more, too.

Interested Reader: How is your cold, have you gotten over it yet? I hope so by this time.

E. L. M.: I see you are a very busy person just now. How do you find the time? But of course friend "Dodge" helps you out a great deal. It is a swell car. I think we will do what you spoke of this coming Saturday. I will be glad when that is off my hands for that means lots of work and if we wait until January it will bring the two so near together. Am always glad when that's over.

Balsame Fir: Do you know what a sensation you have started up this way? Well you have a most wonderful one.

Saville: Did I startle you by the question I asked you? Hope not. You will hear more about it in the near future. A good joke, don't you think so?

Y. Y.: How are you coming on with your things for your Christmas sale? Suppose you are extremely busy for there is always so many things to be done at these church affairs. Hope it's a good success for there is lots to be done then.

Skipper: Have you gotten all your things done for Christmas? Every body is busy now for the time is fast approaching and will be here before we know it.

Rural Delivery: I see you are becoming a sport too, taking auto trips.

Gadabout: I am glad to see you are able to ride out. Hope you are feeling better than when last I heard from you.

J. E. T.: What has become of you? We don't see much from your pen lately. Get busy and write.

Mrs. H. J. F.: I know you will read the Social Corner so I let you know through it that you will receive a whole "bulletin" from me in the course of a few days, explaining everything and the cause of the delay. Hope it meets with your approval.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

SENDS IN VERSES

Dear Social Corner: I am not a member of your Corner, but some time ago, some one asked if some one would send in the verses of, I Dream't I Dwelt in Marble Halls. As no one has sent them in yet, I thought I would. Hoping that the one that wished for them will read them. Best wishes to you all. Yours sincerely,

HATTIE TAYLOR.

CHATTY LETTER FROM KOCHIE

Social Corner Friends: Good old New England weather hit my home town Sunday with a heavy snow storm which lasted all day long and into the evening. But to make it more impressive the telephones were well out of commission and many of us were cut off form the outside world. But the snow plow came to our rescue during the evening which put up on the map with the rest of the world.

Friends, I have just returned from a ten days stay down in Providence where I enjoyed myself greatly and came home with many new ideas to think of during the long winter months which are ahead of us for those who are fortunate enough to witness them.

Balsam Fir: Will answer your card soon. Glad to know you are busy. No weather for boating, do you think?

Nonesopretty: I am not asleep by any means. Had a wonderful Thanksgiving and ten days in Providence to get over it. Saw a lot, ate a lot and heard so much I did not even have to read the daily news. But I am wondering who you may be. You state you are a relative of mine. That's fine.

Peggy Alder: Were you snowed in also? But I hope the Good Maker provided an opening for you. But cheer up, Monday afternoon sunset was perfect with a beautiful golden west.

Dear me! Dear me. Lilac Lady comes forth and tells me she is a kin of mine, well here I am, in the "Social Corner" surrounded by relatives and friends. What a wonderful old world this is, after all. I shall soon have to get out my umbrella, muffler and old carpet bag and start out and hunt up some of these relatives of mine.

Joan: Last Saturday evening some friends drove up and whirled me away to an old fashion dance out to a wonderful old fashion farm house. Well if we didn't have one bang up time, and before I knew it some one down in North Stonington among the hills and valleys, began to play the "heel and toe" polka and I wished you could have heard it, for I know you would have stepped it out for them. It was beyond me for when I was in my teens I wasn't taught that.

Country Sister: Many thanks for the invitation to your meeting. Perhaps you are a good guesser, but guess again.

My chat is getting rather lengthy so we'll ring off. Wishing you all the best of luck.

KOCHIE.

HAD FINE TIME AT PUTNAM

Dear Social Corner Friends: When I looked out this morning (Sunday) I felt like saying, "I am thankful for a cozy home and fireside." It is a fine time to answer all the letters I owe, also to thank Buffalo for a delightful time at Club No. 4's picnic at Putnam, Dec. 2. I enjoyed the ride too. With Pep at the wheel with Butterfly and Hollyhock for company we were a jolly crowd.

1492: When you pulled up your curtain this morning did you think what father used to say to you?

Barbara: So sorry you are not feeling as well as usual. If you can not come to see me, call on the phone.

Nely Gray: Katie said, "She wouldn't" but I say she did, did, did.

Skinny: Missed you at the picnic.

Gadabout: Have you tried the cake [illegible]?

As I look across and see my neighbor carrying a snow shovel it reminds me of an old rhyme. Here it is: There are three things under the sun never will be finished, never will be done.

I'll tell you all who wish to know. It's housework, kissing and shoveling snow.

Best wishes to all from

CARO.

CARRY OUT THE KINDNESS IDEA

Dear Social Corner Sisters: How many were snowed in this morning and had to get busy with the broom and shovel? It is splendid exercise. As I have to be out all the afternoon Sunday I appreciated a good fire in the evening. I wonder how many times we miss a chance of saying a kind word or doing some little act of kindness. How much good it might do some one if we just carried out that kindness idea.

Kitty Lou: Many thanks for the pinball. Have put it in my purse and found it useful already. One kind act you did.

Ethelyn: Haven't tried the rolls yet, but am going to.

Whirlwind: Are you snowed in?

Necia: Have been going to write to you, but time goes so quickly. The girl is in the hospital again so I am on the go more every minute.

Hope every one that can will be at Mystic next Tuesday with Club No. 6. Kind wishes to all sisters.

MILKY WAY.

A WARM SUPPER DISH

Dear Sisters: I attended a meeting of Club No. 1 and enjoyed it very much. And would like to become a member of it and the Social Corner. Will send one of my favorite recipes;

A Warm Supper Dish: Use any kind of cold meat, chop or run through food cutter. Prepare a dressing as for stuffing chicken. Butter baking dish and put in alternate layers of meat and dressing. This is very good made of rabbit meat.

Wishing all members a merry Christmas and a very happy New Year

EUNICE.

ENJOYS THE CORNER

Social Corner Editor: Have been a reader of your Social Corner for some time and have enjoyed it very much. I attended a meeting of Shore Line club No. 6 at Westerly and enjoyed it so much that I wish to become a member. I am looking forward to attending the meeting next Tuesday, Dec. 14, at Mystic, Conn, which I know will be very interesting. I understand they have a very nice program prepared and also a very nice dinner is planned. Please send me a pin. I am taking for my pen name.

FOUND WELCOME IN WILLIMANTIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have been intending to write ever since I moved but each day would go by and still I put it off but I thought today was a very good time to sit down and write as it is snowing out and I don't wish to go out in it.

Well Norwich sisters I attended the last meeting of the Willimantic club and they made me very welcome and fulfilled the Social Corner motto. I was also pleased to see several of the Norwich sisters there too. I am very lonesome and would be glad to have any of the old crowd write or send even a card, my new address is 156 Mountain street, Willimantic, Conn. I go down to Norwich at least once a week as long as I keep my car running so it isn't quite so bad. We have a radio since we came here and get the near and far stations.

Merry Christmas to all.

CHOCOLATE.

ALL READY FOR CLUB 6'S MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The sisters here are looking forward to the meeting next Tuesday, Dec. 14 in Grange hall (Main building) with much pleasure and anticipate a good attendance and a genuine old fashion social time. As stated before those coming from outside this village are to provide sandwiches, salads, cake and pie. The Grange has 50 new chairs and with the others owned by the hall we are sure of a seat at the tables and plenty of table room. Trolleys pass the hall so those who have no other way of getting here can come that way. We trust some having autos in North Stonington will provide for Lucille Drew, Nancy Peck and any other members there who wish to come.

Kitty Lou: Please accept my thanks for your gift. It is in my hand bag. Hope to meet you sometime.

MAKING USE OF GLASS JARS

Dear Corner Sisters: Just a few lines this morning. Oh what a quick introduction of winter weather we got! I for one don't like cold weather but like everything else in life must take what is handed out or wished on us and smile through it like our dear sister Catnip does, as I see by this morning's paper she is in Backus hospital for the removal of another cataract. Won't the Corner writers kindly remember her with mail? Her address is, F. F. Ella Miller, Backus hospital, Norwich, or home address, 16 Thames street, Norwich.

Inez: The Corner sympathy is with you in the loss of your husband also hope you are gaining and will soon be up and around.

Has any one Longfellow's poem Rainy Day? A line in it is, The day is dark and cold and dreary. A friend of mine use to play and sing it to me as it had been set to music.

As so many homes have a radio I think that the enjoyment we get out of it evenings makes the long evening pass by so quickly. It must be a great pleasure to those living out in the country off of the state road to enjoy a concert in their homes.

Before I forget I want to tell you what I made for myself and friend out of a pint or 50 cent size glass mayonnaise jar. I took the metal cover and laid the lettered side of the cover on a board and with a nail the size of a darning needle made one hole in center of cover and nine others in a circle around cover. Then I filled jar with water and made a clothes sprinkler to dampen the laundry for ironing. As my metal one had rusted out I found this to be just as handy as the bought-en one and it dampens the clothes as even and doesn't rust. Don't make the holes too large or too many. Ten are enough. Try it and report.

I took the 25 cent size jar, put larger holes in the cover and use it for a salt shaker for cooking. A pretty glass talcum bottle I made a pepper box with small holes. These are handy on the range shelf to season food at the stove.

Some of the larger ones I use for rice, soda, tea, coffee or any dry groceries that come in paper boxes, etc., and they are very convenient and handy to use, and easy to keep clean and one can see what is in the glass jar to pick out for use in cooking. If this isn't plain I'll gladly repeat for you.

While I am writing I may as well say all wish for a warm pleasant day for the second Tuesday in the month (Dec. 14) for Club No. 2's meeting at Buckingham Memorial. Hope to see a good crowd as it gives No. 6 a chance to visit No. 2 and vice versa. By changing meeting days everybody come and enjoy a laugh with us.

E. L. M.: I thought Shore Line No. 6 met on the third Tuesday, when we were talking over our change to the second Tuesday and I see you too meet on Dec. 14. We hoped that no club day would conflict on account of visiting each club.

Remember bring food for tables but dishes are furnished at hall. Sister Ready of Club No. 1 is our hostess. We must help her out in serving.

Merry Christmas to all,

CALLA LILY, (Nov. 25).

INEXPENSIVE GIFTS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I am sending a few inexpensive gifts. Careful cutting and neat sewing transform bits of yarn and ribbon, one may have in the scrap bag, into dainty things that will please your friends.

Powder Doll: Buy a 10 cent celluloid doll, one that will stand alone steady. Crochet a chain stitch of fine yarn of a pretty color, or a ball of the multicolored yarn is pretty two, to fit around the doll's waist real snug, then slip stitch for three rows to form a belt, make shell stitch in every other slip stitch for the fourth row and join neatly, then make about five rows of the shells, which will make a full ruffled skirt. Make a chain for straps and join skirt for shoulders. Make a cap with tassel by making a chain of five and join, then slip stitch for five rows, then tighten the next row to fit over doll's head, then add 2 more rows and fasten. Wind yarn around a cardboard one inch wide about 15 times, tie in center and cut the ends, then fluff it up and sew to the top of cap. Now puncture a hole about 1-4 inch round in doll's back and fill with a nice talcum powder and seal hole with small piece of adhesive tape. Prick tiny holes in top of doll's head so powder sifts easily and put cap on to hide the pin holes. These are sold at a gift shop a friend of mine knows of, for 75 cents. They are real cute and so easy to make.

Bean Bags: Am making bean bags for youngsters, and the cost is small. Take some course material and cut two rounds about the size of a saucer, then cut a small circle in the center like a doughnut. Seam up the smaller circle and turn to the right side and turn edge of outer edges of outside 1-4 inch all around. Leave a small opening for beans to go through and fill the doughnut quite loosely, then close the slit. I then take coarse colored thread and work edges to show it up. I know little girls who are very fond of their bean bags, made as there are.

Burlap Shopping Bags: Shopping bags made of burlap and lined with a bright colored sateen are very popular at present. Take burlap the size of bag desired and transfer in the center of each side, a flower and leaf picture, or a fruit design, then fill in with colored yarn to make it look real. Make a border at the opening of bag by weaving with a needle the various colored yarns used in the center design. Make two handles of the burlap, about one inch wide and 12 inches long, and tack to either side of the bag. Work simple running, blanket or outline stitches along the edge of straps. For the sisters who crochet real well, flower and leaves can be made and sewed on instead of the other kind. The weaving is easy and new ideas come as one begins. The burlap threads are pretty even, so that the counting is not hard on the eyes. I hope the sisters can understand these directions. I have tried to make them plain.

DEATH BRINGS LOSS TO CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The sudden death of Orrin M. Price came as a shock to his many friends. Meeting him at Buckingham Memorial on our last Social Corner day and being near him when he suddenly became ill, I did not then realize it would be the last time I would clasp his hand.

I have known Mr. Price for many years, even from the time he was a young man. He served his country with distinction in the Civil war. At the close of the Civil war he returned to his native city a young man of very pleasing personality, making friends and with a tact to keep them. In a few years we see him a married man, the esteemed citizen, the kind neighbor, always ready to help in time of need. Soon he became the popular leader of the social life and a musician of ability; many enjoyable hours have been spent in his company. Mr. Price and his wife were a devoted couple of many years of wedded bliss. So, on the ever changing scene of life, the hands we knew are still; the willing hands in the service of love to an invalid wife and with the passing we see the fulfillment of unselfish devotion. In the younger years of life the call to service came and was quickly obeyed and so when the higher and final call came there was no hesitation. The spirit took its flight to join its Maker. He will be sadly missed in the lonely home, missed in the different social organizations of which he was a member and as an honored member of Club No. 5. With his removal from our midst we will still cherish the loving remembrance of his home. Social Corner members of Club No. 5 extend their sincere sympathy to the bereaved ones, especially to the one who has walked in close companionship with him for over one-half a century. Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to her in her bereavement.

GUSTA (Club No. 5.)

GOOD INTENTIONS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Does it seem possible that there are only three more weeks in this year? The year is certainly dying. It is almost time to ring out the old and ring in the new. Now's the time to think over in the last three weeks about your old grudges, and old habits and send them on the chute and send them gaily west or as Janette used to say, "send them to the place where the old dead years part themselves to the end of time."

"And when the dead past has buried its dead," get up shake the dust out of your house of intentions, polish up all of those resolutions you let tarnish last year, and take them along with you to "brighten the corner where you are" every one of the coming 365 days you have before you in this year of 1927.

Of course we all know it will be but 525, 600 minutes before you will have to think about making them all over again. Of course when you think it is only 12 months—52 weeks you can manage to keep going while some of the rest of us are hunting for a hole with a nice soft spot to fall where we can crawl in and escape the hard knocks—the distressing situation that make the brave smile. Just try to climb a little higher than the lower round of the ladder you will be a target for the knockers—but what of that?

Bruce Barton says, "God sends great souls into the world clothed oftentimes in curious attire, and one misses much good fellowship who thinks that from what seem to be, he can determine on hand what they are."

What right have we to say aught against another's ability to do any kind of labor or to show that we think him or her unworthy or insignificant of attention?

You remember a group of men who were tired. They had been walking a country road in Palestine. It was near sundown and their leader told them to keep on to the next village to see if they could find somewhere to rest. And after a time they returned saying the villagers refused to receive them, and they were absolutely left without seeing Him and His disciples or having a chance to serve Him.

To be charitable is another worthy good intention.

The beginning of the year may be sad whatever it happens to be at this moment. But sorrow will pass, shame can be outlived, grief dissolved in the tears it causes. But with the tomorrow of 1927 all that has been is past. What may be lies in your hand, as Janette says, "Wrapped like tissue paper around the gift you can give yourself, the triple gifts or the quadruple even the sextuple.

With them you will be richer than you have been, and my dear Social Corner sisters and readers the year will be what I am wishing you right now, a happy Christmas and New Year.

Dom Pedro: Many thanks for your lovely present. Isn't it for pins?

KITTY LOU.

ANOTHER YEAR ROLLS AROUND

Dear Editor and Social Corner Children: Another year is surely coming to a close. I presume it is safe to say we all of us have our ups and downs, as no two years are alike in any one's life. We all have something to be thankful for. Never a dark day but a pleasant one follows. Sickness and death comes to all and that is something we cannot help. God watching from His throne above does not allow His children to have a larger burden than he or she can carry. If we trust Him who holds the world in the hollow of His hand we can always get help or strength as the case calls for.

As we have lost a few members this year, I send my sympathy. To the sick members I send good cheer and a merry Christmas and a happy New Year to all fairy god children I send a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Best wishes from FAIRY GODMOTHER.

CLUB NO. 2 MEETS TUESDAY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Attention! Club No. 2 meets in Buckingham Memorial Tuesday Dec. 14, 1926. All members are invited to be present with us. A royal welcome is extended to all. One pleasant feature is we will not have to bother carrying dishes, as tables and dishes are provided.

Please bring something good to eat as the success of the dinner remains with us. I never knew a Social Corner dinner to be a failure yet. Also bring a Social Corner smile, a Social Corner disposition and a determination to have a good time. To anyone who will help, I say thank you now.

Yours as ever for the Corner,

SISTER READY.

WHY CLUB 6 CHANGED MEETING DATE

Dear Social Corner Members: I feel I must send a line to thank the editor for the prize. It was a surprise but of course very welcome. So many good letters were written on friendship.

O. D.: Congratulations to you. I fix blankets as you do only I use a strip of outing flannel when they are short.

Sumac: I am not the only one who has good friends. Have thought of you and Milky Way in the days of anxiety that you have been passing through.

The sisters who attended the meeting that was held in Grange hall at Mystic will remember Ruth Henson who gave a demonstration and will be interested to know that she has just been through an operation for appendicitis at the Westerly hospital. While conditions were serious at first she seems now to be doing nicely and hopes to be able to leave the hospital in another week. As she is the daughter of Sumac and granddaughter of Milky Way we all feel interested and hope for her speedy recovery.

Cosmos and I had planned to attend the meeting of Club 5 Dec. 1, but when the time came I was unable to go.

Country Sister: We won't be able to come to Club No. 2 on the 140th as our own Club No. 6 has its meeting the same day at Mystic. The reason for the change of date is that the third Tuesday brought it too near Christmas when every one is so busy. The change is for this month only.

We hope all the sisters who can will pack up their soup plates and spoons and come to Grange hall in Mystic on Tuesday the 14th and enjoy the clam chowder B. Natural and the helpers are planning to serve. As usual each one can carry salads, cake, pies, etc. Chowder will be the main dish but there will be plenty of some thing else for any who do not care for chowder.

Weus: Heard you were ill. Hope you are better.

E. L. M.

WANTS PRE-REVOLUTIONARY LETTER

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Readers: I have just had a telephone call from a reader of the Social Corner asking me to write the Corner and ask if any one has a copy of a letter written few years before the Revolutionary to Lord Dinamore then governor of Virginia by Logan, a Mingo Indian chief. It was such a fine letter that it was printed in all the newspapers both in the United States and England. If any reader has a copy would they kindly send it to the Social Corner?

Have read with interest about all the meetings and each time think perhaps next time I can attend. But it never comes right for me to go. Sister Inez has my deepest sympathy in her great sorrow and all others who have had to part with loved ones.

I wish every one a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New year.

DORINDA.

GREETINGS FROM CRETIA

Members of the Social Corner: Have any of you had a sleigh ride yet?

Koochie: Sorry it rained. If at first you don't succeed, try again.

Iola: A kind lady who reads the Social Corner page is to loan you the Analytical Reader you mentioned last week or rather week before and the two books will be ready for you any time you call. How the time passes, especially when out of our teens. Enjoyed an evening in Collinsville recently seeing the O. E. S. work dramatized. Heard much about Adelphi chapter in Springfield and desired to visit it. Wishes gratified as 10 members of Radiant chapter went up to Springfield in bus. The present matrons and patrons of the surrounding chapters did the work.

It is good mental food for us. When doing our ordinary work it is so helpful to visit different chapters and profit by it.

Thanks day is over. Really seems to me by our Social Corner page to be the only day in the year that we are thankful. Better be so than none at all.

I trust all will have a merry Christmas and a happy New Year only one day to be merry. How lightly the latter is spoken, but it means so much when we pause to consider.

CRETIA.

LOW SHOES IN WINTER

Dear Sisters: I read the letters week by week and find many useful hints and helps. There is one subject which which I think will bear discussion, it is the wearing low shoes and even slippers in winter. To me it seems both careless and wrong to wear them in snow or rain. When we see school girls going in storms with low shoes and low rubbers (if they wear any) it is no wonder they have so many colds, some wear such thin stockings it is hard to tell whether they have on any. I believe in protecting one's feet in a sensible way according to our best jupdgment, so give me high shoes for winter and zero weather.

Aunt Jerushy: What do you say? We have not heard from you for a long time. I suppose you are so busy getting the turkeys fat for Christmas you do not have time to write.

Queen Who: You seem to have a big store of recipes. Are they original?

Now sisters let us remember the shut-ins, and feeble ones and aged ones at this Christmas time. Just a simple card shows them they are not forgotten. Wishing you all a happy Christmas, I am

SISTER BARBAR.

SOME GOOD RECIPES

Dear Sisters: I am sending a few recipes for your use.

Ginger Bread: Into a cup place one teaspoon soda, 3 tablespoons warm water, 4 tablespoons melted lard, fill [illegible] up with molasses, pour over 2 cups flour, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon cloves. Bake in moderate oven.

Baked Apple Pudding: 3 large tart apples, 1 cup brown sugar, slice apples cover with brown sugar, sprinkle with cinnamon, put in oven in pudding dish. Prepare batter with one beaten egg, 1-2 cup of milk, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 table spoon melted butter, 3-4 cup flour sifted with 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder. Pour batter over apples and bake 30 minutes.

Peanut Drop Cookies: One-quarter cup shortening, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 egg, beaten separately, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 3-4 cup peanuts. Cream shortening and sugar; add egg and milk. Sift flour and baking powder together and add. Put half the chopped peanuts into mixture. Drop batter by spoonfuls on cookie sheet. Sprinkle the tops with powdered sugar and the remainder of peanuts. Bake in a moderate oven.

Plum Pudding: Two eggs, 3-4 cup sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1-2 teaspoons each soda and salt, 1 cup each raisins, currants, suet, apples and 1-4 cup chopped citron, 1 cup bread crumbs, 2 cups flour. Mix ingredients thoroughly, place in well-greased baking powder can, filling each two-thirds full and cover. Set in kettle and boil 2 hours.

Sauce for Pudding: 2 cups sugar, 2 level tablespoons of flour, 1 pint water, butter size of egg, juice 1 lemon, flavor with nutmeg.

Pineapple Charlotte: Whip 1 pint heavy cream. Work into this 1 1-2 cups confectioners' sugar; add 12 marshmallows cut fine and 1 cup drained crushed pineapples. Dissolve 2 tablespoons gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water, set in a pan of hot water to melt. Cool and add the juice of 2 lemons. Stir this into the first mixture. Line a mold with small lady-fingers. Pour the pineapple cream in and place in refrigerator for 6 to 8 hours. Turn out on serving dish and garnish with candied cherries.

Five Minute Cake: Place in your bowl 1 cup sugar, 1 3-4 cups flour, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon of salt and sift 3 times, then add a piece of butter size of a large egg. Work in with finger tips until like meal, break in egg, then add 3-4 cup of milk, stir up quickly (the beating of the cake beats the egg.) This makes 3 layers or 2 dozen tea cakes. I am never without them.

Tea Room Fudge Cake: One large tablespoon butter creamed with 1 cup sugar, 2 squares chocolate, cooked with 3 tablespoons milk and 3 tablespoons sugar until chocolate is melted; 2 well-beaten egg yolks, 1-2 level teaspoon cream tartar and 1-4 teaspoon vanilla; beaten egg whites (2) folded in last. Bake in two layers.

Frosting: Cream 1-4 cup butter with 1 1-3 cups confectioner's sugar and 1-3 cup cocoa. Add 3 tablespoons cream (add one at a time and beat after each addition.) 1-2 teaspoon vanilla and 1-4 teaspoon vinegar. Beat well.

GUESS WHO.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Centennial square was so named just 50 years ago this week at a regular monthly meeting of the court of common council. The naming of the square followed the receipt of the city government of a petition from John Turner for the privilege of setting out an elm tree as a centennial memorial at the square. The same week the Norwich Caledonian society elected William McKenzie as its president and James Lumsden as its vice president. Interesting extracts taken from the files of the Norwich Bulletin of December, 1876, are as follows.

Monday, Dec. 4, 1876—Norwich Choral union—The society has changed its headquarters to Steiner's hall and will hold its first meeting in that place tonight. It has in contemplation a series of public rehearsals, of which the first will be given about Christmas, and will have special reference, in the nature of the music, to that festival.

The season for donation parties has arrived. The donation party is one of teh most effective of our institutions. It brings pastor and people into closer and dearer relations, it strengthens the bonds of tenderness and love which unite them and usually obliges the minister to walk about two miles early the next morning to exchange four quarts of beans and a pin cushion for something to eat for breakfast.

Rose and Harry Watkins appear in Breed hall tonight in their play, Under Two Flags which is said to be an exceedingly powerful one. Their playing is good and they are supported by what is spoken of as an excellent company.

Tuesday, Dec. 5, 1876—A regular monthly meeting of the city government was held last night. A petition from John Turner for the privilege of setting out an elm tree as a centennial memorial in the public square, at the junction of Boswell ave., East Broad, South street and Providence street, and asking that a name be given to the square, was received.

Alderman Jennings suggested that it be called Centennial square.

Alderman Carpenter moved that it be called Buckingham square.

Alderman Adams favored the name of Centennial.

On motion of Alderman Gibbs, a secret ballot was taken as follows:

For Buckingham square, 1; for Centenial square, 8.

On motion of Alderman Carpenter, the vote was made unanimous and permission was given Mr. Turner to set out his tree.

Mr. Webster Park, clerk of the superior court, attempted Sunday, to stimulate a flagging fire by pouring kerosene upon it. An explosion took place and Mr. Park's eyebrows were burned off and his luxuriant beard badly singed.

Wednesday, Dec. 6, 1876—In the dearth of amusement here this winter a first class chamber concert by the well known and popular Mendelssohn Quintette of Boston will be hailed with pleasure. We understand that they propose visiting Norwich one week Saturday night.

Mrs. Webster Park died very suddenly at her home yesterday afternoon after an illness of only a few hours. Heart disease is presumed to be the cause.

The members of Victory lodge, I. O. G. T. give a social party and supper in Grand Army hall this evening.

Some boys fooling in the postoffice last evening broke a large pane of glass in one of the doors.

Thursday, Dec. 7, 1876—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Norwich national bank for the choice of directors will be held at their banking house on Tuesday, Jan. 9, 1877.

The Norwich Caledonian society has elected the following officers:

Chief or president, William McKenzie; first chieftain or vice president, James Lumsden; second chieftain or treasurer, John Cochrane; third chieftain or recording secretary, Thomas Balfour; fourth chieftain or corresponding secretary, John Martin.

A number of burglaries have occurred at Watch Hill recently.

North Stonington furnished over 70,000 pounds of turkeys for Thanksgiving dinners.

Friday, Dec. 8, 1876—The winter meeting of the state board of agriculture will be held at Middletown, December 13, 14 and 15.

The second lecture of the Greeneville course was delivered Wednesday evening by the Rev. W. H. Pendleton D. D. of Deep River, in the Greeneville Baptist church. The subject of the lecture was The City of the Great King. The Rev. Benjamin O. True, of Meriden delivers the next lecture of course next Tuesday evening, his subject being Success.

We are glad to know that Col. Ames of the Third regiment has postponed offering his resignation for the present. Col. Ames is the senior colonel in the brigade and one of the most popular as well as capable and his retirement from his command would be a serious loss to the state.

The City Guards had a very pleasant social in Steiner's hall last evening.

Saturday, Dec. 9, 1876—The streets were intolerably dusty last evening and dirt flew in clouds. The main streets need a thorough sweeping before the winter begins, but under the present appropriation the street committee claim to be unable to have it done.

The subject of discourse at the Central M. E. church tomorrow afternoon will be the "personal responsibility of liquor dealers and drinking men, whether moderate or immoderate drinkers are requested to attend.

Ulsters made like those used by men are to be worn this winter by ladies. When a woman gets one for the first time, it is said to be very amusing to see her try to put it on over her head.

Ladies gloves and stockings are worn unusually long this winter. The former button to the elbow and the latter—but let us pause here.

LYME MAN AT NEW LONDON HOSPITAL AFTER TRUCK STRIKES AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10.—Ogden Powers of Lyme, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, having been admitted this morning for treatment of injuries. He was riding in an automobile in Lyme about 10 o'clock when the car was struck by a truck and Powers was hurled to the highway. He suffered a laceration of the head and scalp, the fracture of an elbow and the fracture of his arm.

HENRY W. BENTLEY DIES AT NORFOLK, VA., SUDDENLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 10.—Henry W. Bentley, well known resident of Niantic and for many years employed as steward by the Thames Towboat company, died suddenly of apoplexy at Norfolk, Va., Wednesday. He had been employed as a boat steward practically all his life. Mr. Bentley was on one of the tugs of the towboat company that left an eastern port last week for Norfolk to tow a string of coal-laden barges east. While the tug was in Norfolk harbor, Mr. Bentley, who, apparently had been in the best of health, was stricken at his work and expired almost immediately.

The funeral of John S. Gortan was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his residence, 43 Franklin street and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners, including a delegation of Knights Templar. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of the Knights Templar acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Frank Slate, 80, died last night at his home, No. 36 Harris court. He leaves no near relatives. Mr. Slate was a war veteran, having served in the navy during the Civil war. He later followed the water, having been employed on many sailing boats, but of late years he had not been actively employed. His illness was not of long duration and was caused by the infirmities attending his advanced years. Mr. Slate is practically the last of the survivors of the old Pequot settlers, all of the original residents of that section of the city having slowly passed over the great divide.

The funeral of Charles E. Bisbein, former employe of the Rotisserie, Waterford roadhouse, who was struck and killed by a Connecticut company trolley car on Bank street Saturday night, was held this morning at 8 o'clock at 62 Washington street. The services were conducted by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of B. P. Learned mission. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

So many automobiles have been withdrawn from use since winter weather struck on that their disappearance is noticeable. The ice-covered streets Monday gave some of the autoists a scare, for skidding cars were as many almost as the number of cars in use.

The schools will close for the Christmas vacation on the 23rd. The winter term will open Jan. 3.

The week has been the quietest for the police they have known in many months. If the adage be true that a calm precedes a storm, the new year should bring activities for the guardians of the peace.

Some action to prevent the water from leaders draining roofs to drop to the sidewalks would make the walking much safer for pedestrians than it now is. There are many buildings on the principal streets of the city where roof water is emptied upon the walks, a condition that keeps ice formed much of the time during cold weather.

It is now pretty generally admitted that the fire alarm whistle operated by compressed air does not give the satisfaction that the steam-blown whistle gave to residents here. At recent fires the claim is that few people indoors heard the alarm, and that when the wind is blowing away from the residence districts few hear the whistle day or night. Conditions made the change from steam to air necessary.

New London, as usual, will provide most of the important trials for the superior court of New London county when that tribunal convenes on the 4th of January next at Norwich. This city will furnish a murder case, a bigamy case and a trial for embezzlement.

Elizabeth Ennis, 13, residing at 10 Methodist street, while riding her bicycle near her home last night was thrown to the pavement and suffered a fractured arm. She is now receiving treatment at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital.

Merrill Tryon, 23, of Noank, fell against a truck last night at Noank and suffered a deep laceration beneath the left eye. Because of the nature of the injury, Tryon was brought to New London and admitted to Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

Complaint was made to the police this morning that two automobiles had been parked in the highway for days. One automobile and which carried Connecticut registration, 8059, had been parked on Summer street two days and the other, which carried Connectibut registration, N-7320, had been parked on Cottage street three days. Both automobiles were removed to garages to await the claim of their respective owners.

Alfred Gilfin of Waterford, in passing along State street, near Bank street, early this morning suffered a fainting spell and collapsed, falling to the sidewalk and sustaining injury. He was taken in charge by the police and removed to Lawrence hospital.

Harris Kaplan of 94 Squire street; Emanuel Silveria, 129 Montauk avenue, and Thomas Hamilton, 30 Sixth street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Michael Mannix, 65, a faithful porter at the James building on Bank street, on Pearl, died last night at Lawrence hospital where he had been a medical patient for a few days. He suffered from uremic poison. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Catherine McGrath of New London, and by two nephews who are in France. Mr. Mannix possessed a disposition that few men have. He was content with whatever happened and was never known to grumble or scold. He was an old-time sailor man and his life ashore was not of long years for he preferred the sea to the land. He was a halibut fisherman in his youth and he participated in deep sea voyages. His years of out-door life hardened him to the weather, so he never wore a coat in going about. A woolen shirt that was open at the neck and which disclosed the upper part of the chest was his raiment. He never spoke harshly of people or things. He was at peace with the world generally, so he was content. Residents in the building he looked after so well and kept so clean regret his death as losing a friend and helpmate.

In spite of the efforts to clear the sidewalks and make them safe for pedestrians they were in treacherous condition today because hail covered them and the temperature was low enough to make them slippery.

Santa Claus goes round two weeks from tonight.

Acting Fire Chief Thomas Shipman has been unable to determine the cause of the fire that gutted the upper part of the three and one-half story wood-end building, corner of Green and Pearl street, owned by Abraham Bronstein of New York, yesterday morning. The fire had gained such headway when it was discovered that when the firemen arrived all evidence of the origination of the fire had been removed. Patrolman George Laboue reported to Chief Shipman today that when the patrolman was passing through Green street, between 3 and 3 o'clock Thursday morning, he detected a strong odor of burning soot and that although he endeavored to locate the burning substance, even to watching for sparks from chimneys, he was unable to do so. It is considered probable that the fire was caused by a soot-filled chimney and that it smouldered until the fire found a crevice in the chimney and then communicated to the woodwork.

Having been successful in plundering the candy store of Diamond Balasi, 81 Main street, Wednesday night when the crooks obtained $15 from two cash registers, the thieves, presumably the same as the night before, again burglarized the store last night. When Manasi opened the store for business at 7:30 o'clock this morning he discovered evidence of the second break and made complaint to the police. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to investigate the break and found out how the crooks forced entrance to the store, this time smashing a rear door, which they reached by means of a yard on John street. Both cash registers were rifled of their contents of change. This time the crooks were not rewarded with finding as much money as they did on their first visit, for less than $4 was secured. It is believed that the crooks watched the movements of the patrolman on that beat, either breaking into the store during the lunch period of the officer or after 3 o'clock when there is no officer on the beat.

A pitible case came to the attention of Waterford authorities last night when Helen Flynn, a girl of tender years, was arrested by Constable Alexander Rose because of her inability to fall into ways of vice, but by the condition of the girl it was revealed that she had already fallen. The girl was detained at the police station over night and this evening she was taken in charge by Policewoman Jane Cassidy and taken to Waterford where she was presented before Judge Frederick N. Dimmock in the Waterford town court. Judge Dimmock committed the girl to the State Farm for Women at Niantic, but that institution being filled, it was impossible to harbor the girl, especially in her condition. She was returned to New London and was accompanied by Policewoman Cassidy, who saw to it that the unfortunate girl was provided with proper temporary accommodations at the Salvation Army's Main street home.

William Hunter, a youth of 816 Bank street, formerly residing at 43 Pearl street, made complaint to the police this afternoon that his sled had been stolen from the rear of his home. The sled bears the boy's name and former address.

Because of the extremely slippery condition of both the highways and sidewalks this morning when pedestrian and vehicular traffic was exceedingly dangerous, the city's highway department had a large force of laborers assigned to work sanding grades and sidewalks. Automobiles that were not equipped with chains skidded badly while pedestrians fell in many places, though none were injured seriously.

Mr. and Mrs. George Findlay of 202 Pequot avenue, returned to their home this evening after spending a few days in New York.

There hasn't been a liquor running vessel brought to this port in so long a time that perhaps it would not be recognized as such if one were brought in. Commander Billard announced in his annual report Friday that Rum Row had been broken up and that there were no liquor carriers there at present. His statement is accepted as literally true if we are to judge by appearances. The custom house in this city is said to have a considerable stock of liquors in storage and a watch is kept at the building all night as well as during the day time. This port received a good many craft that was conveying liquor during the years that passed prior to 1926. Since then but few vessels have been nabbed at the illicit business. There was a time when they ran into Providence, Stonington and Newport, but their absence there indicates that they have been put out of business.

Some inquiry is made as to whether carolers are to go about the city singing as they did a few years ago. The custom is greatly enjoyed, especially by the people who were housed and not so situated that they could attend the Christmas services. Members of the church choirs were interested then. Perhaps they can be induced to give pleasure to the people again on the eve of Christmas.

The insurance on the Second Congregational church for the damage occasioned by fire has not yet been adjusted, and so the repair of the damage to the property is delayed. It is not believed that the side walls are damaged particularly, but that will not be known for a certainty until the adjusters have arrived and an examination that is thorough has been made.

Palace Theatre.

Never has the Palace theatre been the recipients of the congratulary comments and praise, for without a doubt the biggest, most elaborate vaudeville programme of big time acts ever seen on a stage in the theatres of Norwich is now gracing the footlights of the Palace theatre. The management deserves the co-operative patronage of the town's theatregoers for bringing such unquestionable entertainment to Norwich, from the tremendous productions, elaborate scenic effects, and big casts, it readily can be seen that no expense and efforts is being spared in giving the lovers of clean, wholesome entertainment, which they justly deserve. Your attention is called to one act that is outstanding intoday's show, in Mademoiselle Andre, recently the feature dancer of the Follies, a dancer of the highest magnitude. Miss Andre and her partner stage an Apache number that is fascinating to gaze on, receiving thunderous applause that rocked the theatre. Four other big acts offer a variety of entertainment, completing a bill that the fans will never forget. Florence Vidor, in "The Popular Sin," is the cinema attraction. Miss Vidor as usual is at her best in this interesting story of marriage and divorce.

Starting Sunday night for four days, in keeping up with the splendid shows, a big double feature show will be presented. The outstanding film sensation of years, "Variety," with Europe's two foremost picture stars, Emil Jannings and Lya De Putti. Variety is the spice of entertainment. A picture of a thousand punches. All the glamour and glitter, jealousies and romance of show-life. A gripping, colorful, romantic drama not to be missed. Co-featuring on the same show, the ace of all western stars, Fred Thompson, in his latest western thriller, "Lone Hand Saunders," will be shown. Silver King, the miracle horse accompanies the western stunt marvel in all his darings, a fast moving picture that will take your breath away. The latest Palace news, showing the latest scenes of current topics will conclude a programme that is making the Palace theatre the leading playhouse in town.

Elliott, sermon by Rev. Father Bentley, the missioner, topic "Christ Analysis of Human Nature." Offertory by S. B. Whitney, canticles by Francis W. Snow, Sursum Cords and Sanctus by Prof. Caraidge, Benedictus by J. Morley, Adeste Fidelis by Dr. J. Reading; Agnus Dei by W. B. Gilbert, Gloria in Excelis chant by C. Zuerner. Nunedimittis by J. Turle, recessional hymn "Rejoice the Lord is King," by A. H. Mesaiter. Evening song service at 7.30 and mission preacher, topic, Does the Episcopal Church Believe in Conversion. Everyone welcome. James L. Case has sold for Mrs. Agnes M. Ethier, Jr., the property owned by her and located at 4 Lee avenue, Norwich Town consisting of a tract of land about 40 by 100 feet in dimensions with a 7 room house and other buildings thereon, to Mrs. Caroline L. Freyer. The property is near Adam's Tavern and will be occupied by the new owner, in the near future.

Dance Monday Night.

Ernie Andrews and his Broadway troubadour orchestra of 11 men will be heard in Lawrence hall rooms, New London, Monday night. They have just concluded an engagement at Mallets Bay, one of the most fashionable resorts in New England.—See adv.

Breed Theatre.

Corinne Griffith, film star, is to assume the renown of Fritzi Scheff when she is seen at the Breed theatre Sunday in "Mlle. Modeste," a screen adaptation of the famous Victor Herbert operetta. Miss Griffith will play Fifi, in which character Fritzi Scheff achieved international fame.

The screen version of the well known Herbert piece will be more elaborate than it was as a stage play, advices from E. M. Asher, general manager of the Corinne Griffith Productions, state.

One of the most colorful episodes in the picture is a fashion pageant designed by Adrian, celebrated Parisian modiste. A score of Hollywood beauties, including Lillian Knight (Miss Los Angeles), act as mannequins. Miss Griffith introduces a gorgeous wardrobe of new Parisian modes in this episode.

Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

"The Keeper of the Bees" in a seven reel moving picture will be shown at 4 o'clock at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. on the coming Sunday afternoon.

This is a beautiful out of door story by Gene Stratton Porter and the parts are taken by Robert Fraser, Clara Bow, Alyce Mills and Gene Stratton Monroe. A young world war veteran has been shunted from one government hospital to another in a vain endeavor to effect a cure. Told that he has only a year at most to live, he walks bravely out of the hospital and directs his faltering steps toward the Pacific. He wants at least to reach the sea before he dies. But in a little vine-clad cottage at the head of the great cliffs he finds the "Keeper of the Bees" becomes a bee master himself, regains his health, and after many trying situations finds happiness. Gene Stratton Monroe, the little granddaughter of the late novelist plays the part in the picture which inspired Mrs. Porter to write the story. Men and women are cordially invited.

Broadway Theater

No doubt the reopening of the Broadway theater will come as a surprise to many. The management will explain this move in Monday's newspaper.

Keith-Albee vaudeville of course will be transferred back to the Broadway and will as usual bring the crowds again to see the world's best in stage offerings.

Alexander Carr of Potash and Perlmutter fame, who seems to have forsaken the stage permanently for the screen, will be seen locally again next week when his latest screen production, April Fool, will be the feature attraction at the Broadway theater on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

April Fool, which is billed as a Chadwick First Division picture is Zion Meyer's adaptation of the play, April Showers, by Edgar Allan Woolf and Alexander Carr, which served as a stage vehicle for the latter recently. Those of us who were fortunate to see the play on the stage will look forward with much hope for the screen version. The play itself was a gem, but much that was suggested or implied in the stage production promises a greater treat in its actual performance.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON
Persistent coughs and colds tend to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubes. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—(AP)—Stock prices continued to move ahead today under the leadership of the high priced industrial specialities. Trading showed a market expansion in volume, but appeared to be dominated largely by professional operators. An unexpectedly large increase of over 128,000 tons in the November unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation. Easy money rates and favorable trade news furnished the main impetus for the advance.

Rails, as a group, gave an even more impressive demonstration of strength than the industrials, with rumors of higher dividends and "buying for control" fanning the speculative flame in those issues. The average of 20 leading railroad shares advanced 1 3-8 points to within 2 1-2 points of the year's high, while the average of 20 leading industrial shares was only slightly more than half a point from the record top established in September.

U. S. Steel common changed hands in rather large blocks at times, but closed only fractionally higher at 151 1-2. Baldwin closed 2 5-8 points higher at 157 after selling nearly a point above that figure. General Motors, Allied Chemical and American Smelting showed only fractional changes.

Spirited bidding for International Harvester carried that issue up over 6 points to a new record top at 155 1-4, but it slid back to 153 3-4 at the close. Among the many other issues to break into new high ground were Crucible Steel, South Porto Rican Sugar, General Motors, 7 per cent. preferred, American Railway Express and Owens Bottle.

Revival of strength and activity in the Packing company shares, based on reports of steady improvement in that industry, was one of the features of the session. Wilson Co., preferred, soared nearly 6 points to a new top at 78 1-2 and the Armour issues and Cudahy showed substantial fractional net gains.

Increased activity developed in the low priced motors under the leadership of Chrysler, with rumors of a new combination of manufacturers stimulating the advance. Chain Store and merchandising issues continued to respond to reports of record-breaking holiday business, with Woolworth and National Department Stores stand out.

In the railroad group, Pere Marquette, Pittsburgh & West Virginia and Lehigh Valley established new high levels for all time. The speculative belief that coal carrying roads would make a more generous distribution of earnings to stockholders as a result of unusual prosperity this year was an important factor in the advance.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent. and held steady at that figure all day although concessions below the official rate were reported in the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A drop of a cent or more a bushel in active wheat futures, based on more favorable weather reports, featured the commodity markets. Cotton drifted slightly lower and coffee and sugar prices showed little change.

Foreign exchange displayed a slightly easier tone, with demand sterling and French francs holding fairly steady around $4.84 1-2 and 3.90 cents, respectively.

VIRGINIA STANDS WITH NORWICH FOR DEEPER CHANNEL IN THE THAMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 11—Virginia's senators are being urged to support the measure appropriating $320,000 for deepening the Thames river channel in Connecticut from Allyn's Point to Norwich, by directors of the Virginia state chamber of commerce. The board at the same time requested the Virginia senators to vote for the measure authorizing an annual allowance of $20,000 for maintenance of the channel.

"Coal from Hampton Roads with New England destination is discharged in Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts sound points, as well as at ports north of Cape Cod," the directors stated in the letter to Virginia's senators. "One of the difficulties Virginia faces in increasing coal shipments from Hampton Roads into New England through the Connecticut ports, is the shallow depth of some of them, where our seagoing coal barges are often unable to enter the harbors except at high tide. For this reason the port and coal mining interests of Virginia are particularly interested in all undertakings for deepening and improving the New England harbors.

"Norwich, Connecticut, located on the Thames river above New London is potentially a good customer for coal from Hampton Roads, but at present the seagoing barges are unable to reach the city docks, and are unloaded several miles below the city at a high rehandling cost. The Virginia state chamber of commerce has made a personal investigation of the situation at Norwich and the board of directors desire to bring this matter to your attention and ask you to support the appropriation bill that has passed the house of representatives and which will come up for consideration in the senate on December 14, containing an item of $320,000 for deepening the Thames river channel from Allyn's Point to Norwich and authorizing an annual allowance of $20,000 for maintenance of the channel."

CHIEF STRONGHEART HERE FROM YAKIMA INDIANS

A very remarkable and distinguished Indian has been a visitor in Norwich for a brief time this week, and was entertained by Lemuel M. Fielding of 18 Arnold street, (Chief Occom). He is Chief Strongheart, a member of the famous Yakima tribe of the state of Washington. His Indian name is Nippo (clear vision).

Chief Strongheart came to Norwich in the course of his investigations, to secure information regarding the descendants of the Mohegan tribe. He is a lawyer, a lecturer, is about 38, very pleasant of manner and of fine address. His mother and sisters reside in Washington state.

During his tour of Connecticut he lectured in Groton and when he left Norwich Thursday he was scheduled to speak in Hartford Friday evening. He was sent into Connecticut from Washington, D. C.

He was taken about Norwich by Mr. Fielding and found much to interest him in the history and traditions of the Mohegan tribe, and its famous chief of ancient times, Uncas.

TELEPHONE WIRES CUT TO HELP ROAD WORK

The wires of the Southern New England Telephone company at Marlborough, on the Hebron road, which is under construction, have been cut in several places where blasting is to be done, to avoid damage. The wires have been carried back some distance from the poles and attached to trees, and will not be returned to the poles until all blasting is finished. There is an unusual amount of blasting to be done in the building of the six miles of road, about four miles of it being laid in entire new right of way. The condition of roads as given out by the state highway department says, that through traffic on this road, although possible, should be avoided.

REVIEWED ISLAM BOOK FOR MISSIONS MEETING

The December meeting of the missions department of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church was held on Friday afternoon in the parlors of the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial, with Miss Edith M. Bliss, chairman, presiding. The spirit of Christmas pervaded the meeting with the story of the coming of the Christmas child for the scripture reading and the singing of Christmas hymns.

Following the report of the secretary, Mrs. John S. Blackmar, Mrs. Alfred N. H. Vaughn gave a resume of the address given by Mrs. C. H. Daniels, former president of the Woman's Board of Missions, on the merger of the boards of the Foreign Missionary societies of the separate organizations of the men and women, for the purpose of greater efficiency.

Mrs. Allen Latham announced that an extra donation of more than $80 for the Connecticut Home Missionary union had been raised without calling upon the members for subscriptions. This money is to be devoted to the new church at Storrs. Four members of the Park church department have recently become life members of the union, Miss Edith M. Bliss, Mrs. O. L. Johnson, Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn and Mrs. L. O. Smith.

The topic for the afternoon was of unusual interest for Miss Bliss read a carefully prepared review of the book "Young Islam on Trek" by Basil Mathews. Beginning with a poetic and vivid description of the desert scenes with the caravans of camels which have been used for centuries, until the present day when the desert is being conquered by the automobile, the changing conditions in the outlook of the Moslem life were portrayed. The derivation of the word Islam, meaning "to submit" and that of Moslem, "one who submits" was explained, and the fact that the terms were losing their original significance. Of the 240,000,000 of Moslems about 95 per cent. are ruled by other nations, bringing about far-reaching political complications when the pilgrimages to Mecca are made. Angora is a self-governed Moslem state, and Egypt, the intellectual head of the Moslem world, in 1922, became self-ruling for the first time in 2,400 years and Turkey has become a new republic and under the rule of Kemel Pasha, is becoming transformed in thought and customs but not Christianized as the new Turk is an agnostic intellectual. The changing ideas of India, in the open spaces of Arabia and in Persia where, instead of the love poems copied from Omar, nine tenths of the modern poetry has become nationalistic.

The review ended with the warning that, as the Moslem was looking toward self-government, the Christian nations must carry the true spirit of Christ. The program ended with the singing of the appropriate hymn Onward, Christian Soldiers.

A social hour followed, the tea table, decorated with a basket of Christmas greens and red candles, was arranged by Miss Mary A. C. Avery, chairman and Miss Fannie L. Bliss poured.

MOTHER AND SON BURNED TO DEATH AT NORWAY, ME.

NORWAY, Me., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Mabel Stuart, 34, and her son Walter, 5, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home five miles from this city early today. Mrs. Stuart's husband, Ernest, and their other children escaped.

Mrs. Stuart carried Walter from the burning building, but died a few minutes later. The boy lived only a short time.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Stuart when she awoke and found her bedroom filled with smoke. She aroused her husband and the children and carried Walter from the building. Mr. Stuart then returned to the house in an attempt to save his wife, but was driven back by the flames.

The family escaped in their night clothing. Mrs. Stuart's body was found in the ruins.

MAYOR OF WEST CITY, ILLS., WAS SLAIN BY GANGSTERS

Joe Adams Was Called to the Front Door of His House by Two Unidentified Men Who Shot and Fatally Wounded Him—The Gunmen Then Ran to Their Automobile and Were Driven Away.

BENTON, Ills., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Gang vengeance flared forth late today and took the life of Mayor Joe Adams of West City, near here. Adams was shot and fatally injured by two unidentified gunmen who called him to the front door of his home on the pretense of delivering a letter to him.

Adams was shot as he stood in the front door. Three bullets took effect in his body and he died 40 minutes later.

The decoy letter was from Carl Shelton, leader of the Shelton Brothers faction, the mayor's widow tonight said the men told her. Shelton was released Thursday on bond from a Peoria, Ills., jail where he had been held on a mail robbery charge.

As the gunmen ran down from the porch they fired one shot into the air, ran to their automobile and were driven away in the direction of Du Quoin, a neighboring town.

Adams, conscious a few minutes after he was shot, was able to whisper that he was not able to recognize either of the men, who were described as being youthful. Mrs. Adams also said that she did not recognize them.

In addition to Mrs. Adams, the two children, a boy and a girl were at home.

The mayor, who had been accused by Charles Birger, leader of one of the southern Illinois gangs, of being friendly to the Shelton brothers rival faction, recently had been the target of other attacks upon his life. About a month ago his home was dynamited early in the morning, but none of the family was injured. Deputy sheriffs were assigned for a time to guard the home, but they were withdrawn about ten days ago, when it was believed all danger was past.

Adams recently admitted that he was friendly to the Shelton brothers, but denied that he had ever been affiliated with them. Until about three months ago he had conducted a roadhouse near West City, but had been unemployed since that time when Birger and his followers forced him to close the place for the announced reason that he was harboring the Sheltons.

Sheriff James S. Pritchard, who assumed office last week, attributed the slaying to another outbreak of the Birger-Shelton warfare which has taken several lives in Williamson, Franklin and Saline counties within recent months. Benton and West City are in Franklin county.

Pritchard detailed all his available men to search for the gunmen, but the officers are working on meager clues. None of the persons who saw the automobile in which the gunmen drove up and escaped were able to tell the license number of the machine and opinion was divided as to the make of the car.

The killing of the mayor followed a meeting of state attorneys and sheriffs yesterday at Carbondale, in an adjoining county, to discuss methods of coping with the gang situation in southern Illinois. The meeting blamed roadhouses and machine guns as a contributing element to the situation, and urged the curbing of the roadhouse and the regulation of the possession of fire arms as a mean of combating the evil.

LARGEST CROWD EVER WORSHIPED AT GUADALUPE

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Mexico's holiest day, commemorating the traditional appearance of the country's patron saint, the Virgin of Guadalupe, to a poor Indian four centuries ago, was observed solemnly throughout the country today. Although for the first time in history the shrine of the Virgin, as well as all Catholic churches were without priests, the saint was the object of adoration by probably the largest crowds ever gathered in her name.

More than one hundred thousand—some estimates exceeded twice that number—a majority Indian pilgrims from all parts of the republic, but unusual numbers from the upper classes, congregated peacefully at the shrine. The crowds were so great that the custom of crawling upon the knees along the roads approaching the church and advancing prostrate within the church was prohibited, because this would have blockaded the already densely congested traffic and prevented many from even getting near the church.

Also because of the tremendous crowds, there was another incident unprecedented in the history of the shrine — worshippers were hurried along in their prayers.

From long before dawn until late at night an uncreasing procession, jamming the church to its utmost capacity wound its way past the shrine.

BANDIT SHOT VICTIM FOR RESISTING ROBBERY

NEW BRITAIN, Dec. 12—(AP)—A bandit who shot George E. Fredericks in the side when the victim objected to being robbed, and then held up a police officer off duty who heard Fredericks' groans and entered, was almost caught when his car stalled in a snow bank as Officer Wagner was pursuing him. The bandit leaped on a passing automobile, however and made his escape. Fredericks' wounds are not regarded as serious.

Entering Fredericks' filling station, the man pointed a gun at him and demanded his money. The proprietor showed fight and was shot. Just then Officer Wagner, passing, heard the groans and walked into the place to confront the drawn revolver. The hold up man took $15 from the cash register, while he held Wagner at bay, then leaped into his machine and sped away, the officer following in his own machine. The chase through the city was featured by exchange of shots. The only one known to have taken effect hit the fugitive's automobile, it was found when he deserted it.

MOTHER AND SON BURNED TO DEATH AT NORWAY, ME.

NORWAY, Me., Dec. 12—(AP)—Fire that roared through an isolated little farm-house five miles from this village had taken a toll of two lives in a family of seven, Mrs. Marian Smart, 36, and her 3 1-2 year old son, Walter, were the victims.

When the flames drove the family into the open in their night clothing late last night George, 6, became confused and ran back into the house. Mr. and Mrs. Smart followed, and Mrs. Smart pushed by her husband and brought the boy out of the open attic, where the four oldest children slept. Mother and son were badly burned.

With George safe in the open again, Walter dashed into the house crying for his mother. The farmer and his wife were unable to follow and were forced to watch the blazing building collapse on their boy. With the four surviving children they pushed barefooted through the drifted snow to the house of Virgil Dunn, their nearest neighbor, a quarter of a mile away. Mrs. Smart died there this morning from her burns and exposure.

22 Year Old Girl Bank Robber Out on Bail

Miss Rebecca Bradley is to Appear in Court This Morning at Austin, Texas.

AUSTIN, Texas., Dec. 12—(AP)—Charged with the single handed robbery Saturday of the Farmers National bank at Buda, a small town near here, Miss Rebecca Bradley, 23 year old Austin girl, was released from the Hays county jail at San Marcos on $5,000 bond early this morning. Tonight she is at home with her widow mother in Austin and is to appear at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning before Judge George Calhoun of the 53rd district court of Travis county, Austin.

Miss Bradley declined to talk to the newspapermen when taken from jail. She said to an Associated Press correspondent, first to greet her, "I cannot, have not and will not talk with any newspaper man. I wish to speak with my mother first."

Miss Bradley, a graduate of Texas university, is a stenographer in the office of Dan Moody, state attorney general and governor-elect of Texas. Her actions Saturday, as charged by authorities, were spectacular, ranging authorities claim, from Round Rock, a village 20 miles north to Austin to Buda, 15 miles south where a slip of a girl, posing as a newspaper woman, held up F. A. Jamison, cashier, and Raymond Howe, bookkeeper of the Farmers National bank and escaped with $1,000.

She was taken in custody here last night by Sheriff George Allen of Hays county in which Buda is located. Sheriff Allen today sketched the alleged activities of Miss Bradley.

She told him the story last night, he said, as he was taking her by auto from Austin to San Marcos, county seat of Hays county.

"She went to Round Rock Saturday morning," in a flivver," Allen said. "As she had been there several times recently, Tom Nelson, president of the Farmers State bank, took the number of her automobile. She left there and passed through Austin, going to Buda.

"In Buda she went to the bank, and posing as a newspaper woman, got behind the cage on the pretext of borrowing a typewriter. Then at the point of a pistol she held up the cashier and bookkeeper. She took $1,000 in five dollar bills and locked the two men in the vault, expressing the hope that they could get enough fresh air, and took the back road to Austin.

"Reaching Austin she put her car on a wash rack. She was with her mother about 2 o'clock for a short time. Some time during the afternoon she wrapped up $910 of the money, the 32 calibre automatic pistol, and mailed the package to herself at Austin in care of University station.

"At 5.10 o'clock she returned to the wash rack and was arrested, taken to the police station and docketed.

"Miss Bradley had no idea she was suspected until she went for her machine at the wash rack. She was identified at the police station by the victims of the robbery, Jamison and Howe. She then was placed in my custody.

"On the way to San Marcos, she told me the story. She said she had no fear to shed; that she had a lot to live down, but that she did not have as much to live down as 'Those saps in the bank who let a bit of a girl get away like that.'"

TO RELINQUISH CONTROL OF GERMANY'S ARMAMENTS

Complete Agreement Reached Between Allies and Germany at Meeting of the Council of the League of Nations—Supervision is Placed in the Hands of the League of Nations—Announcement Made by M. Briand, Foreign Minister of France, and Gustav Stresemann, German Foreign Secretary.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Conciliation has again triumphed at Geneva in the peaceful shaping of Franco German relations.

After days of doubt, almost despair, M. Briand and Gustav Stresemann, as well as Sir Austen Chamberlain, M. Vandervelde, Signor Scialoia and Viscount Ishii reached an accord today whereby inter allied control of Germany armaments will cease Jan. 31, 1927 and will be merged into a system of league of nations investigations by commissions to examine German armaments when protests are made that the Reich is not fulfilling the conditions of the Versailles treaty.

Germany regarded military onctrol as vexatious and offensive to her national prestige, and Dr. Stresemann now returns to Berlin with something definite to present to his people.

On the other hand, as a distinguished Frenchman said tonight, France by the agreement negotiated today gets continued security—that security which is the foundation stone of French national policies.

By the terms of the accord two unsettled questions—the strength of the fortresses at Koenigsberg, Kuestrin and Glogau, and exportation of war material—will be submitted through the regular diplomatic channels for settlement, primarily through the ambassador's council.

If they are not solved in this manner, they will be submitted to the council of the league of nations.

The council, Sir Austen Chamberlain explained tonight, can ask for legal or technical advice, on which presumably it would base its final judgment. The accord was not signed today, but Sir Austen made it clear that it is absolutely binding and cannot be nullified by any change of governments.

An important feature of the agreement is a provision whereby all the countries represented in the ambassadors' council may attach to their Berlin embassies a technical expert empowered to negotiate concerning the execution of any agreement bearing on Germany's fulfillment of the disarmament conditions of the treaty. This is regarded as of considerable significance, as it means a sort of mild supervision over Berlin itself. Whether these experts will remain indefinitely is not clear.

The outcome of today's meeting throws increasing responsibility on the league of nations as the mechanism guiding the relations of the nations of Europe. It gives new interest and vigor to the problem of the general limitation of armaments, toward the solution of which the United States is co-operating.

At Paris M. Briand will have the ultra nationalists to criticise his work of conciliation, and political enemies seeking to undo him. At Berlin Dr. Stresemann has the nationalist opposition, which is almost certain to accuse him of surrendering to France.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW WELL SATISFIED WITH THE WORLD

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—Chauncey M. Depew, dean of American wits, champion after dinner speaker, former railroad president, attorney, senator and public figure for the last seventy years, will greet the bright New Year without so much as turning over a single new leaf.

In the only interview planned for the Christmas season, Mr. Depew told an Associated Press representative that he would carry on as at present and let the world try to do the same.

"The world," he said ,"has been pretty good to me for ninety-three years, and I haven't got the strength now to try to change things."

Mr. Depew, who lives in Fifty-fourth street, expects to spend Christmas at home. He recently recovered from a severe cold and does not expect to do much with the turkey this year.

Some years ago he gave up red meat, and before then cigars. A moderate drinker once, he drinks nothing now, he said, and while he believes the people are not satisfied with the Volstead law he believes there will be no change.

"Why," he was asked.

He put his hand on the back of his head, thought solemnly for a moment and replied:

"Women."

A moderate himself, he would not interfere with the enjoyments of others. It was apparent in the interview, for he said he was opposed to stage censorship, found no harm in modern dances and likes the radio and the movies.

NICHOLAS M. BUTLER DEFENDS NEW EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—The universities of the worl are "the only present homes of liberty and apparently its only hope," Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university said in his twenty-fifth annual report today. Branding the criticisms against American universities as "contradictory and self destroying" in character," he attacked what he terms the "new Philistines" and launched a bitter denunciation against opponents of the modern educational system.

"If the voice of liberty be silenced in the university and the intolerance that now prevails in church and in state be permitted to invade the precincts of the universities of the world, then indeed must we be prepared to enter upon a new and dismal dark age that will case the thoughts and activities of man in common and uniform molds, there to remain until such time as the unquenchable thirst for liberty shall again effectively manifest itself among men," he said.

"No one who really believes in the power of truth feare liberty. However man may be blinded by passion or interest, we are forced to believe either that truth is real and can be found, or that there is no such thing as truth and therefore that interest or passion may properly enough be enthroned in the place that has been reserved for truth to occupy."

NEW BEDFORD MAN CRUSHED BENEATH OVERTURNED AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13.—Failing in an effort to prevent his Ford sedan, in which were two women and a child, from rolling backwards down Bigelow Hill, Hampton, about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning, William Poole of New Bedford, Mass., was badly crushed beneath the machine when it backed up a six foot embankment and capsized. Mrs. Sarah Peterson of New Bedford, one of the passengers was also injured and both she and Poole were taken to the home of Dr. A. D. Marsh, who gave them treatment until the arrival of the ambulance, which conveyed them to St. Joseph's hospital in this city. Poole had sustained severe injuries on the forehead and nose and a sprained right shoulder. He was still in a semi-conscious state later in the day and an X-ray was taken to determine possible fracture of the skull. Mrs. Peterson is suffering from a wound in the left side and an X-ray will be taken unless her condition improves. The man and woman were attended by Dr. Arthur J. Girouard.

Also in the car when it turned over was a Mrs. Preece and her child, who with Mr. Preece and the two injured people made up the party who are said to have been headed for Hartford.

The accident was a spectacular one. The sedan was being driven up Bigelow Hill and at the last bend of the steep grade the motor became stalled. Mr. Poole placed a brick in back of one of the rear wheels and started to crank the car. Suddenly the machine rolled over the brick and gained speed as it careened wildly down the incline. Poole and Preece, who had also gotten out of the car, tried in desperation to hold the machine which backed about 35 feet and then up the embankment, causing it to turn over on its side. Poole was extricated from under the side of the car with considerable difficulty. Mr. and Mrs. Preece and their child were not injured. The machine was hauled to the Hampton Hill garage. The car was not equipped with tire chains and it is believed that the strain of climbing the snow-covered hill caused the motor to stall.

DENIES MOTION TO SET ASIDE $7,000 VERDICT

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13.—A denial of the motion of the defense attorney, Howard C. Bradford, in the case of Alfred Rooney vs. Charles Robitaille, both of Plainfield, to set aside the verdict of a $7,000 awardment made by the jury, on the grounds that it was excessive, was rendered Saturday by Judge Alfred C. Baldwin of the superior court. Judge Baldwin heard the case, a suit for $10,000 during the recent civil term of the Windham county superior court. The suit was the only one heard by jury during the term. Rooney was injured when struck by an automobile owned and driven by Robitaille on the evening of Dec. 14, 1925 in the village of Moosup. Judge Baldwin's review of the testimoney relative to the defendant's loss of employment, hospital and medical bills follows: "At the time the verdict was rendered the plaintiff had lost approximately 50 weeks from his regular employment, a total of $960 in wages. He had at other employment earned $200, so that his net loss of wages was $760. His hospital and medical expenses amount to $324.95. Therefore his loss in wages and medical and hospital expenses amounted to $1,084.95. These amounts are easily determinable. The verdict was for $7,000. There is, therefore, $5,945.05 of the verdict for compensation for pain and suffering and the other elements that combine to make up the plaintiff's damages.

"The verdict impressed me as being large in view of the plaintiff's age, 53 years, his earning capacity and his general physical condition, as it was at and preceding the injury, as indicated by the evidence and his appearance. He is still under the surgeon's care; his recovery was not good and the jury may reasonably have found permanent injuries which will substantially interfere with his future earning capacity." Attorneys Harry Back of Danielson and William A. King of this city represented the plaintiff.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 13—William Harrel, a bleachery department employe in the Main street plant of the Paco Mfg. company was seriously burned with liquid caustic at the plant early Saturday morning. He was taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam for treatment, the ambulance, which had to make the run from Putnam to Danielson, being away on the return trip with the injured man in 35 minutes after the hospital call had been put in. Harrel is burned about the head, arms and chest.

He was in an empty kier when a valve was opened allowing a spray of liquid caustic to come in from another kier that was in use. Harrel's presence in the kier, a great vat, was not known until his cries for help attracted attention. Humbert Taylor, another employe in the bleachery department, injured an ankle in leaping from the top of a kier to the floor of the room to get at a shut-off valve that would stop the liquid caustic from spraying onto Harrel.

Early reports of the accident at the plant were that it had been caused by a bursting steampipe, but there was no foundation for this story.

Mrs. Anna Jane Chase Fulton, widow of Theodore Fulton, died Saturday at 2 a. m., at the home on Academy street. Mrs. Fulton had been seriously ill the past six weeks and practically all hope for her recovery abandoned for the past month.

Mrs. Fulton was a native of Danielson and excepting for a few years in Wauregan had lived her life in Danielson. She was born May 11, 1858, in a home that stood on a site now occupied by Gallup brothers and Lindner's market, at the corner of Main and Academy street. For years her home was just across the Main street, where a filling station is now located. Her parents were William Martin and Abby Ann Drew Chase, one of Danielson's old families.

Nov. 29, 1874, at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage, then on a site next north of the Danielson Trust company building, Mrs. Fulton was united in marriage with Theodore Fulton by Rev. George Fuller. Two years ago the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton brought to their home many of their great numbers of relatives and friends. Mr. Fulton died on March 1 of this year. Both for years were active members of patriotic societies here. Mr. Fulton as a member of the G. A. R., and Mrs. Fulton of the W. R. C.

Mrs. Fulton leaves two daughters, Miss Saidie Fulton and Mrs. Helen Young, both at home. There are three granachildren, Marion Fulton and Marion Fulton of Hartford, Robert Theodore and Wellington William Fulton of Danielson. Mrs. Fulton also leaves a sister, Mrs. Marion Hutchins of Danielson.

The service was attended by numbers of relatives and friends. The body was entombed at St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Barthol omew Picard, Valmore Picard, Albert Picard, Alfred Picard, Jarvis Picard and Emil Chenail. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Such recklessness is being displayed by children who are enjoying themselves coasting that many are voicing a desire for some sort of regulation to save them from death or injury by automobiles. Restricting coasting to certain streets, from which cars might be diverted during certain hours of the day, is one of the suggestions for relief from the danger. As things are now, the children slide where they please at very great risk to themselves and with constant irritation of happenings that would be deplorable.

Business houses in town reported a very satisfactory business on Saturday, with the first real rush of the Christmas season on. The buyers included representatives of many communities in the territory about Danielson.

The home of Oliver A. Downs, damaged by fire on Iverview a little more than a week ago, is to be speedily restored. The fire loss has been adjusted during the past week.

Mrs. H. P. Williams of Brooklyn has been visiting here for a few days with Mrs. E. L. Palmer.

The third and fourth degrees are to be conferred upon a class of candidates of Killingly grange on Monday evening, December 20.

Nearly 30 candidates have come out for Killingly high school's basketball team, the squad getting its practice in the new gymnasium at the school, this part of the enlarged structure made ready for use only a few days ago.

Judge James N. Tucker of East Killingly makes the following interesting contribution in his writings to a matter of general interest to all of the people of the town of Killingly:

The eight or ten acre plot of woodland, near the ruin of the old Judge Young mill, known from time immemorial as the "Island," a number of years ago was deeded to the town of Killingly by Miss A. E. Westcott of Danielson, daughter of Henry Westcott, a pioneer of cotton manufacturing in our town, with the proviso that it should henceforth, be known as Westcott park.

It is a spot of rare scenic beauty. Along its border dashes the foaming mill stream, as it makes its rapid descent of more than one hundred feet and around the base, spread the quiet placid waters that ever reflect the exquisite beauty of their surroundings.

The woodland of the park represents nearly every variety of New England growth, while its under growth consists of mountain laurel, woodland plants of luxuriant growth and ferns of rarest varieties.

Having no special caretaker and being looked upon as a special and fertile field for public plunder, twice in each year—at Memorial day and at Christmas time it has been subjected to the most shameful plunder and vandalism at the hands of those who have no eye for beauty, nor care for the rights of the town or the general public.

The beautiful mountain laurel has been broken down, trampled on and carried away in large quantities, ferns of the choicest kinds have been ruthlessly destroyed and young and thrifty evergreen trees, giving promise of marvelous beauty in the coming years, have been cut and taken away by the score.

We are glad to notice that the town authorities have awakened to the situation and promise the speedy arrest, prosecution and punishment of all offenders. These sneaking thieves and plunderers of public property will do well to remember that a special statute with extra severe penalties, applies to all devastation of public parks and gardens.

HAS LEG BROKEN WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 13—When Mrs. Herbert J. Miles attempted to start her automobile which was parked facing the sidewalk in Union square Saturday afternoon, the car shot across the pavement knocking down a man, whose name was not learned, and striking and seriously injuring Mrs. Gregoire, wife of Adolphus Gregoire, a clerk in the local postoffice.

The car crashed into the front of the office of the Putnam Light and Power company damaging the machine as well as the building but not breaking the large plate glass of the L. & P. Co.

Mrs. Gregoire was taken to the Day Kimball hospital where it was found that both bones of the lower leg were broken. The fracture was reduced and she was removed to her home. Mrs. Miles was not injured.

The annual meeting of the Putnam chapter Red Cross of America will be held at the Red Cross rooms on Union street on Monday evening. The work of the volunteers in the Red Cross roll call for 1926 has been completed and a total of $501.45 has been collected. This is an increase over the amount realized last year for this purpose as the total last year was $356.

The result by divisions was as follows: Division 1, with Mrs. Ernest C. Morse as captain, $103.00; Division 2, Miss Jennie Willis, captain, $84.75; division 3, Mrs. A. E. They lived in Putnam for several years and went from Putnam to Westerly where Mr. Fisher has since been engaged in the dry goods business. The body of Harry Spencer Fitts, aged 11, who died at the Day Kimball hospital on Friday was taken to his home in Hampton where the funeral is to be held. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fitts of Hampton and was born in Pomfret. He is survived by his parents and two sisters, Mrs. William Wright of Willimantic and Mrs. William King of New Haven.

For the first time in fourteen years, Pomfret's famous and beautiful pantomime play of the Nativity, which has been produced on Christmas Sunday will be omitted this year.

The decision to omit the play this year was not reached without careful consideration but the obstacles in the way makes it almost impossible to attempt it. Most of the actors have either gone away to school, moved from town or unable to take part for other reasons, and although many changes in the cast have been necessary each year, since the inception of the event, there would be so many more changes this year that it is thought that it would be impossible to keep up to the standard set in the past performances, according to Warren W. Averill of this city, who has always taken one of the important roles.

Miss Ella Boult and Miss Beatrice Stevens of Pomfret were the originators and directors of the show and which has always been presented without any charge to the spectators. There has usually been two performances during an evening although the players have been prepared for more should the size of the crowd require a third one.

During the years of its production the Pomfret Nativity play has become celebrated all over the country, even in foreign countries. Magazines of international circulation as well as leading newspapers have given columns and pages to the description of the drama, and each year the community of Pomfret has been the mecca for hundreds of people who have come from all over the country to witness the play

"Tight Corners" was presented at the Bradley theatre Friday evening by members of the senior class of the Putnam high school. It was given under the direction of John P. Heald of Webster, the author of the play and proved to be exceptionally entertaining.

Mr. Heald has had considerable experience in coaching high school and other amateur dramatics and this experience is undoubtedly helpful in his ability as playwright as well as director.

The cast was well selected and a large audience witnessed the seniors in their annual role in histrionics. The cast was as follows: Mr. Trumbull Lawrence Keith; Bobby Trumbull, Frank Cushman; Dorothy Trumbull, Lawrence Keith; Bobby Trumbull, Frank Cushman; Dorothy Trumbull, Edith Goyette; Shirley Latimer, Anita Brodeur; Mrs. Lattimer, Jeanette Green; Walters, the butler, Frank Larrow; Maggie Meaney, Mabel Thomnson; Algernon D'Orsay, Fred Alvord.

"Le Petite Canadian" (The Little Canadian), a comedy drama in four acts was given on Sunday night at St. John's hall on Providence street and was a dramatic treat for the French speaking people of Putnam and vicinity. The title part of the comedy "The Little Canadian" was portrayed by the ever popular comedian Nap. S. Marcia, who is well known in Putnam. He was well supported by George Levreault, R. L. Desaniers, M. P. Gignac, Raymond Lemieux, Albert J. Crepeau, Miss Doris L. Crepeau and Miss Rhea Lefort.

Between the acts the large audience was entertained with some specialties, Rodolphe Desaulniers, tenor, in some popular vocal selection; Roger Leduc in songs and funny sayings and Germaine Desaulnier, the well known young broadcast artist, in selections on the xylophone. There were two performances, one in the afternoon for the children and one at night for the grownups. The hall was well filled at both performances.

SOUTHBOUND CHRISTMAS TREES LACK FAMILIAR HEMLOCKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 13—People who happened to be in the vicinity of the railroad, Sunday afternoon, saw the many cars of Christmas trees that were in the make-up of the long regular eastern freight train, that passed through the town, south bound. None of the trees were hemlock, but were red cedar, commonly known in this section as savins. Generally, even today, the churches are able to get from the nearby woods, a fine hemlock, but in the main, the small house trees are cedar. In the opinion of many, neither the local white nor yellow pine, nor even the cedars from Griswold's swamp area can take the place of the bright green, clean hemlock. Some years ago growths of two and three years old yemlock were plenty in this section but today small hemlocks for house decoration are hard to find. In both the yellow and white pine of local woods, the sticky sap is a disagreeable feature so that most of those in use are cedar.

Mrs. Bertha Weigold sailed Dec. 8, for Panama, where she will spend a number of months with her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Weigold Jones.

Tolland citizens have decided to organize a fire brigade for the protection of the property in the town. A committee of well known citizens has been appointed to look into the matter and give the proposal service a trial. A meeting of the property owners of Tolland and others interested was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Ayers Jr., and the situation in Tolland was carefully talked over. It was claimed at the meeting that the several fire insurance companies had stated that they would be compelled to increase the rate on property in excess of the present $1.12 a hundred, because of the lack of fire fighting equipment. The interest shown by the residents in the proposed fire district indicated that some suitable arrangement could be made and the following committee was named to perfect the plans and try them out for a year: Wm. Ayers Jr., Dr. Samuel Simpson, Frank Newman Rev. Wm. C. Darby, L. E. Hall, A. Esten Clough, I. Tilden Jewett is to act as secretary and treasurer of the committee. F. S. Carpenter will act as purchasing agent. It is understood that a collection of $5 per house in the district will be asked as a start toward the movement.

Warns of Quakes

A remarkable instrument that translates the slightest tremors of the earth into sounds that issue from a loudspeaker is the recent invention of a Japanese professor, Dr. Yun Shida of Kyoto university. It is designed to give warning of the approach of earth quakes, says Popular Science Monthly.

The possible usefulness of the invention lies in the assumption that most severe earthquakes are preceded by slight shocks. Thus an audible warning of slight tremors would give people time to leave homes and office buildings before the arrival of a destructive quake.

The invention consists of a pendulum, an electric coil and an amplifier. The pendulum is so delicately poised that it responds to the slightest vibration. When it is set in motion, electricity is generated in the coil, which actuates a sound-producing device. The sound is amplified and issues through a loud speaker.

If you would keep your friends don't put them to a severe test.

NO TAX CHANGE

Tax reduction is not a matter for a short session of congress unless it can be accomplished in a non partisan manner. There isn't time enough in which to open up the whole subject and deal with other necessary business. Thus, as the result of the action of the house ways and means committee in voting against any action at this session, none of the plans which have been put forward have any chance. But while there may be no permanent tax reduction by legislation, and no temporary rebate, there is the opportunity for a permanent tax cut through the application of the year's surplus to the reduction of the indebtedness. That has been done before and it is the alternative which was advocated by the president in his message.

From the estimates it is expected that the surplus for the year will amount to about $400,000,000. It is larger than first estimated because of good conditions, but because there are certain substantial items in this year's receipts which will not appear next year good judgment dictates a delay in tax reduction until it is possible to judge more nearly what the present law is going to produce. But such a delay doesn't deprive the country of the benefit of the surplus, for when such a sum is applied to the reduction of the national debt it means a cutting of the interest account. We are now paying something like $300,000,000 yearly as interest on our national debt. That must continue as long as the debt remains what it is. It is therefore highly desirable that the debt should be reduced as rapidly as possible. Applying $400,000,000 to debt reduction would mean the reduction of the annual interest account by $16,000,000 and every time the debt and interest accounts are lowered the tax payers and the country benefit.

Thus the promise that there will be no tax reduction at this session is a good thing for the country. It will prevent the making of a serious mistake before knowing whether the actual conditions warrant a reduction. Likewise while there may be no rebate for the tax payers there will be the equivalent in debt and interest reduction. It is well the house committee has acted as it has as early as it has.

ANOTHER NEW YORRK PAROLE

Just at a time when the parole board of New York has been receiving so much criticism and when demands are being made for reforms in connection therewith, there is a new case to direct attention to the conditions that exist.

One of the state's prisoners had applied for parole and it was decided to extend it to him under the provisions that he should go to California and stay there for at least two years. Even in reaching this decision the parole board seemed to have its doubts as to whether the provisions would be carried out for after it bought the ticket and put the accused on the train it arranged for the arrest of the paroled man in case he appeared in New York city and sought the redemption of the ticket.

How well they understood the man, despite the fact that parole had been voted, is shown by the fact that he did just what they anticipated. Instead of presenting his ticket to California on the train he paid his fare to Albany and left the t- - there and returned to New York and sought the cash return for the cross continent ticket. This resulted in his detention, arrest and return to Sing Sing. He had violated his parole before he had really begun to enjoy it. He had no intention of obeying it. He was playing horse with the law and the parole board, but even though he got caught it seems strange that the board should have been trying to extend to such a one the benefit of the law when it was practically certain he wouldn't respect it.

And in addition it would seem that California had a legitimate kick over the effort of the New York parole board to dump those it desires to get rid of in that state and require him to stay there two years. It is along the line of the much used practice of wishing the undesired upon neighboring cities and towns in an effort to keep them moving. Where there's no real offense committed there may not be much objection to such a plan, but where it applies to those such as involved in this case there's good ground for objection.

TACKLING RUBBER PROBLEM

Ordinarily there might be little intie interest attached to the ratification of a lease of the Liberian government of a large tract of territory to an American company. But when this means a million acres on which it is anticipated there will be an outlay of about $100,000,000, where 350,000 hands will be employed and from which it is expected to get 300,000 tons of rubber annually it concerns a situation which is bound to interest a large part of the people in this country.

This American company is to get possession of rubber plantations which are already producing and in addition is planning to develop others which will furnish about half the rubber requirements of the world. This, in view of the time that will be required to get full production and the yearly increase in the demands may not be enough to make us independent of other markets, but there's no question but what it will have its good effect upon the monopoly which now prevails.

This country is using more and more rubber each year. The automobile business has driven the demand to new heights with no indication of a relaxation. Because of the demand and the restriction placed upon the rubber fields controlled by the British prices have mounted even faster than the demand. Driven to seek relief steps for the development of new rubber fields have been taken. Liberia will not be able to contribute the expected production for six years at least, and then only if everything goes well, for while there is certain small production now development on a large scale must be more or less gradual.

In the meantime the development of other rubber lands can be expected. Possibly the Philippines will see the desirability of encouraging such an industry, for much of its unused territory. At least the independence of this country from the grip of a foreign monopoly is needed and the Liberian experiment in an endeavor to get it is going to be watched with keen interest. Meanwhile the big rubber pool organized here will be expected to provide some relief and the whole movement in behalf of cheaper rubber may be productive of some concessions on the part of the British monopoly in order not to force the killing of the goose that lays the golden eggs.

SOME TIMELY DON'TS

As the Christmas season approaches there are certain things which need to be borne in mind in the interest of safety. It is not a time which calls for recklessness—no one wants to increase the patients at the hospital, there's no hangering for fires—and yet there are many things that may happen if caution is not used. It is thus a good time for danger signals.

As a matter of warning the National Safety council offers this advice and it is well worth bearing in mind:

Don't use open lights, such as candles, on Christmas trees.

Don't place tree near open lights, such as candles, gas or oil lamps.

Don't set tree in poor or flimsy support.

Don't operate any toy electrical apparatus under a tree or near cotton, paper or other inflammable material.

Don't allow inflammable decorations to come into contact with hot electric light bulbs.

Don't use a rickety step-ladder in decorating trees, hanging wreaths and decorations. Many people die from falls.

Don't go close to fire in a Santa Clause costume, the trimmings of which are inflammable.

Don't leave a lighted tree unwatched, especially if children are near.

Don't spoil the day or season by an avoidable accident.

This is a list of don'ts the value of which practically every one knows, either by personal experience or the suffering and losses of others. It is well therefore that there should be a reminder of those things which we know but which we are quite apt to overlook in our efforts and enthusiasm for a merry time. Be careful is a good watchword at all times.

FEDERAL JUDGES

It was a long time between the action of one branch of congress and the other in behalf of an increase in salaries for federal judges, but now that endorsement has been given to it by both houses the president's signature will put it into operation.

In granting this increase in pay the federal judges are getting no more than the position should call for. On the bench it is desirable that there should be fit men and yet it has been frequently the case that judges have resigned and returned to their law practice because they could not afford to remain as judges under the small salary paid.

On the other hand the increase in federal salaries will bring the highest paid federal judges, the chief justice, to $20,500 while the district judges will be advanced to $10,000, with other judges receiving salaries in between. And yet such salaries cannot be regarded as unjust when they are considered in comparison with salaries which some of the state judges receive.

While the standing of the federal courts has always been high, it is desirable that it should be kept high. Many would be willing to make the sacrifice which goes with a low salary in the interest of sound administration of law, but there is no reason why the salary of the bench should be permitted to keep those desirable from such positions simply because they cannot afford, in justice to themselves and their families, to live under an inadequate salary.

The increase has done much to put a check upon such a situation, to more nearly recompense the federal judiciary and to maintain the prestige of the bench at the level where it belongs. In this instance congress proves once more that large bodies move slowly.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: It is no time to forget that Christmas is coming.

Queen Marie had plenty to tell about her American trip but with the king sick, who'll she tell it to?

Those who like to show they have sand can do so in many instances by throwing it on their walks.

It makes little difference whether it is the beginning or end of a session congress always faces a raft of business.

Now it remains to be seen whether congress is going to aid such legislation as the president urged or whether its purpose will be to block it.

The statement is made that there will not be time enough to consider tax reduction at this session. But if the surplus is used to reduce the debt that in itself will mean tax reduction.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Before painting a floor, fill the cracks with putty.

For keeping your hardwood floors clean and polished a lamb's wool wax mop is almost an essential.

When buying meat, have all the trimmings sent home to be used in making stock.

Bluing added to the rinse water when washing cut glass or windows will make them sparkle.

When serving coffee jelly break it up with an egg-beather and fold in stiffly beaten cream.

If fruit is served at the table, always provide fruit knives and finger bowls.

All puddings that should be creamy and smooth, as for instance, custard, rice or tapioca should be cooked slowly.

Oranges, aside from the vitamines and mineral salts found in them contain fruit sugar which is a valuable energy food.

Pottery in a deep cream tone, lined with pastel shades of rose green or violet, makes exquisite decorations for the table.

You will find it a great convenience to keep a small supply of corks of assorted sizes and a small corkscrew in the closet.

Just as soon as linen is returned from the laundry it should be examined for necessary repairs. All mending should be done at once.

A corner cupboard is not only very attractive, but gives an opportunity to display to advantage some of your most interesting pieces of china or glass.

When closet room is at a premium a shoe bag which covers the whole inside of the closet door gives much extra space, and keeps your shoes off the floor.

In stewing meat, add water from time to time, enough to keep the meat covered, but if the broth is too watery boil it down before pouring it over the meat.

USES FOR VINEGAR

Poached eggs will retain their shape more satisfactorily if a small amount of vinegar is added to the boiling water.

Tough meat is greatly improved if it is allowed to lie in cider vinegar, diluted with water, for a few minutes before being cooked. Adding a little vinegar to the water in which a tough fowl is being cooked will make the meat more tender.

If you wish to sour milk in a hurry add to it a teaspoon or so of vinegar.

CLEANING OILCLOTH

Wash oilcloth with warm water and milk, using a cupful of skim milk to a gallon of water, and then wipe dry with a clean cloth.

CARE OF LINOLEUM

To keep your linoleum in perfect shape, wipe it once a week with a cloth wet with one part turpentine or kerosene and one part boiled linseed oil.

SCRUB WITH SODA

The only way to keep your garbage pail hygienic is to scrub it once a day with soda and boiling water, and if possible dry in the sunshine.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

When there are children in the house always keep the medicine cupboard locked and key on a nail or nook out of their reach.

Sometimes when washing blouses one's hands become quite shriveled and feel most uncomfortable. If a little salt or vinegar is rubbed well into the skin it will remove the unpleasant feeling and leave the hands beautifully soft.

After doing mussy kitchen work, do not at once wash the hands in water. First rub a little grease well into the skin. This loosens the dirt. Mutton fat is best. Hands treated in this way will never become ingrained with dirt.

In order to keep your child from having colds, now that the season is at hand one of the best rules is to make outdoor play more attractive than the indoor variety.

Prevent digestive upsets by simple food and prevent over-fatigue by regular hours. If he does take a cold keep him in bed at the first stage.

DIRECT SUNLIGHT NEEDED BY BABIES

Babies need direct sunlight, as fresh air alone is not sufficient. When a mother places her baby each day on the veranda and carefully protects him from the rays of the sun she is robbing him of a vital element. She need not worry about sunlight hurting the baby's eyes, for a child will close his eyes in strong light.

Definite sun baths may be given to a child, with 10 to 15 minutes being long enough to begin with and as soon as possible hands and legs should be exposed.

REQUIREMENTS FOR IDEAL HOUSEWIFE

There are five requirements of the ideal housewife, according to Miss Gladys Jones, head of the economics work at the Garland School of Homemaking.

In the first place, the food must be nourishing and simple, but attractively served. Secondly, clothing must be comfortable and good looking, but the sort that can be cared for at home, clean clothing and clean linen being most important.

The third requirement provides for the house to be kept well aired, ventilated and warm, sanitation being very important, particularly as regards the icebox and the bathroom. Fourth, the house must be operated so that the domestic machinery is not evident and, lastly it must have a cheerful and hospitable atmosphere.

DO GOOD WITH THEM

Go through your clothes closets and cupboard drawers ever so often and weed out the articles you are not using. There is always a worthy rummage sale whose sponsors would be delighted to get just those things you are not using.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Black georgette crepe combined with black lace is a popular choice for dinner gowns this year.

Strikingly effective are coats of bright blue velvet trimmed with red fox.

Fan shaped inserts of accordeon pleated material trim some of the newest sport frocks.

Small chains made of brilliant ornaments linked together are attached to the instep strap of black satin slippers.

Silver cloth makes many of the loveliest evening gowns, and quite often gold cloth appears as the trimming.

The tiny felt hat with the demure bow of grosgrain ribbon directly in front is a very alluring type of millinery.

Among the new pastel shades are queen blue, paradise green and Goya red, and new variations of the beige and rose tones.

The tailleur that Paris is interested in now is developed in pastel wools and is trimmed with incrustations of its own material.

Large fur cuffs identify this season's coat. Rarely are they content to stop before the elbow, and many are more ambitious than that.

Long fur scarfs are attached to coats in place of the usual collar. They may be adjusted in different ways to suit each individual.

Attractive combinations of silk and lace to be worn under evening gowns are made without backs, so that they may do service under the most low cut evening gown.

The smart woman matches her bloomers to her costume slip and many of the best shops are featuring sets of glove silk in the shades that correspond with the colors of outer attire.

An evening wrap of unusual distinction comes in chartreuse velvet and has a large bow of the velvet in the back which begins at the collar line and ends at the hem.

BUTTONS ON MANY FROCKS

Buttons form one of the favored trimmings of the latest Parisian frocks. Street frocks have either corozo or galalith buttons in various rows and designs. Galalith, especially, is held to give a smart finish to leather belts and trimmings. Some of the galalith buttons are so artfully wrought that they grace even evening frocks. On many dinner gowns one sees a profusion of crystal, mother of pearl, china or hand painted buttons, some of which are very small and made of silver or gilt.

BE OWN MODEL

Try it on a dress form. Perhaps you can produce one of the newest of evening costumes with little trouble or experience. Wide scarfs or shawls of silver gauze or the lame materials are draped over a straight, simple crepe de chine slip and worn exactly like a dress. The manner in which the shawl is draped not only may bring out the best points of the wearer but also invests the costume with individuality.

INSTEAD OF RIBBON

Instead of baby ribbon run through the neck of baby's dresses use the tiny linen tape known as hobbinette. It is just as dainty, will launder better and last as long as the little dress.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

To wash a chamois-skin put it in cold water and soap, and rinse in cold water. Wring it out dry with the hands. It will not harden or stiffen.

A good washing fluid is made by mixing equal quantities of liquid ammonia and turpentine. Add two tablespoons of this when boiling clothes.

When laundering curtains of voile, scrim or any material which has to be ironed, if they are folded so the selvage ends are together and ironed, they will hang perfectly even and straight.

Embroidery should be ironed over several folds of blankets.

To keep flatirons clean and smooth, rub them first with a piece of wax tied in a cloth, and afterward scour them on a paper or cloth strewn with coarse salt.

CLEANING SILVER

Immerse tarnished silver in a bath of very hot water to which has been added salt and baking soda in proportions of one teaspoon each of the salt and soda to each quart of water, in the presence of aluminum, says the Christian Science Monitor.

The bath may be made up in an aluminum vessel or in a granite iron vessel in which must be placed a small aluminum pan. The essentials are that the water be very hot, the aluminum bright and free from all tarnish (an easy matter with steel wool and soft scouring soap,) and the silver brought in some way into contact with the aluminum. It is not necessary that each individual piece of silver touch the aluminum as long as one piece of silver touches a piece of silver, that touches the aluminum, the cleaning will be immaculate. The resulting chemical action is the reduction of the "oxydzied silver" (which is the tarnish) back again to metallic silver. The action of all polishes is to remove the tarnish by a scouring action—actually removing that much silver.

DIFFICULT WINDOWS

If you are annoyed with windows that stick and are hard to raise, melt a tablespoon of lard and pour a little between the window frame and casing, also on the roller and the rope. It will prove a splendid help.

CARE OF RUGS

You can keep the corners of rugs from curling up if you sew some stiff material like buckram or haircloth on the underside of the corners. You can also sew the small weights that are used by tailors and dressmakers to make material fall straight.

AVOIDING BREAKAGE

When washing the glassware dip the pieces in the warm water so they will be wet on the inside and outside at the same time. Unequal expansion of the glass caused by one part being suddenly heated is what breaks them.

CLEANING SERGE DRESS

To clean a navy serge dress or suit, brush the dust out thoroughly, then dip a fairly stiff brush in hot water and rub well into the serge. Iron on wrong side and the suit or dress will look like new.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Women now have the right to vote in 25 countries throughout the world.

Mrs. Florence A. Tracy, mother of seven children, is a practicing attorney in Taunton, Mass.

The legislative assembly in Victoria, Australia, has passed a bill conferring sex equality on women.

The next United States congress will have four women members, three being reelected and one a new member.

The Illinois Women's Athletic club recently opened in Chicago, is the largest clubhouse for women in the world.

The Japan Bar association is considering the admittance of women to practice before the bar in that country.

Mrs. Catherine Glynn of Middletown, N. Y., aged 90 years, voted for the first time at the recent elections held in that state.

Poland has honored Mme. Curie by having one of the country's stamps bear the likeness of the codiscovere of radium.

Herding goldfish is the novel job taken up by Miss Violet Bowen, who tends a tank of prize fish on the farm of J. G. Gray in California.

MORE RESTFUL

Light wall paper with dainty coloring is infinitely preferable in a bedroom to papers with set figures and involved geometrical designs.

TASTELESS MEAT

Never allow your meat to boil. Boiling meat at a big temperature makes it tasteless. Start cooking meat in cold water, let it come to the boiling point and then simmer.

RECIPES

Gelatin Mashmallow Whip: Two tablespoons gelatin in one-half cup cold water, one-half cup sugar, pinch salt, four cups boiling coffee, one-half teaspoon vanilla, three-quarters cup marshmallow cream. Let gelatin stand covered with cold water for five minutes, then add to boiling coffee, add salt, sugar and vanilla and let stand until mixture has begun to congeal. Then fold in marshmallow cream, diluted with one-half tablespoon boiling water, turn into mold, wet with cold water and when stiff, unmold and serve.

Apple Sauce Fruit Cake: 1-2 cup butter, 1 1-2 cups brown sugar, 1 egg, 1 1-2 to 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1 cup unsweetened apple sauce, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon clove, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup raisins, 3-4 cup chopped dates, 1-2 cup nutmeats, 1 cup shredded citron, orange and lemon peel.

Cream butter and sugar slowly together and add the egg well beaten. Sift one cup flour and baking powder, soda, salt and spices together, add to the egg mixture. Add apple sauce and beat well. If the apple sauce thins the mixture, add the remaining half cup flour. Add floured fruit, and mix thoroughly. Pour into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven 45 to 50 minutes. This cake may be frosted, if desired.

Former Norwich Leaders

(From Norwich Bulletin, Jan. 13, 1876)

JOHN DUNHAM

The death of John Dunham, Esq., on Thursday evening, removed a citizen, who, for half a century and more, has been prominently associated with the business interests of Norwich, and who has held numerous positions of honor and trust as the gift of his townsmen. Mr. Dunham's fatal disease was pronounced by his physicians gastric catarrh. It is but a few weeks since he was able to attend to his business affairs as usual, and though in his 78th year, retained the activity and vigor of one much younger. Disease wore out his naturally vigorous constitution rapidly, however, and his death resulted at 11:30 Thursday evening.

Mr. Dunham's father owned a large farm in West Chelsea, including the fertile plains above the present village of Thamesville, and here John Dunham was born, September 24th, 1800. At about the age of 13 years his father died and he was left in charge of the farm, the management of which was under his care for several years.

He then engaged in the printing business, learning the trade at the Norwich Courier. At the early age of 23 years he purchased with Thomas Robinson the Courier of Russell Hubbard and soon after became the sole editor and proprietor of that paper, by buying out Mr. Robinson. In those days the newspaper business was very differently conducted from what it is at the present time, and the news that now is telegraphed around the world in a few hours' time was then collected by messengers, and unusual energy and speed were required in its transmission.

The paper while under Mr. Dunham's management, for its enterprise in collecting news and distributing its issues to subscribers, who were found scattered not only all over the state but from the farther extremes of Rhode Island on the one hand to eastern New York on the banks of the Hudson on the other, as well as for its recognized ability in discussing political and other questions, had a wide reputation. It advocated the principles of the old whig party and was widely quoted and quite influential. Mr. Dunham sold his interest in the paper in 1842 to D. M. Sykes and in the jobbing office a few years later to Mr. Manning.

The offices of trust and honor which Mr. Dunham has held are quite numerous. He was postmaster for four years, during the administrations of Presidents Taylor and Fillmore. He was mayor of Norwich two years, from 1847 to 1849. He was elected as representative to the legislature once or twice and also served one session in the state senate. He was elected by the whig party and his uprightness and worthy bearing gained for him the title at the capital city of Honest John Dunham. At one time he held the office of bank commissioner; at another he was comptroller of the state.

In more strictly business relations may be named his holding the commissionership of the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill road during some of its infant years. He was one of the directors of the Norwich National bank for the last 30 years of his life. For 30 years he was president of the gas company, a position he held at the time of his death.

In politics he took an active interest as long as the old whig party lasted, to which he was strongly allied. Since the merging of that party in others he has not been prominent in politics, and though generally advocating the measures of the democratic party, has not been radical and perhaps it may be said has not many times been in full sympathy with its policy.

In the famous Harrison or "log cabin" campaign he took a leading part in the public demonstrations. The system of collecting election returns for the state was inaugurated by him, and was one of the many ways in which his activity in politics and the press made itself manifest.

The Morgan excitement in Masonry brought its injury to him as well as many others, because of their membership in the organization. He felt keenly the popular distrust which was engendered, but his finest and earnest life was such as in time to break down the feelings that had arisen, and so the cloud passed away.

Since 1838 Mr. Dunham has been a member of the Second Congregational church, and has led an earnest, faithful, Christian life. He was respected for his fine character, his unsullied reputation and amiable disposition. Though decided in his prejudices, he was possessed of fine social qualities. In business he was known for his executive ability, thoroughness and good judgment. He was worthy of and possessed many friends.

From the Norwich Bulletin, Tuesday, January 15, 1878.

The funeral services of the late John Dunham occurred yesterday at the Second Congregational church, of which the deceased was a member. The ceremonies were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Dana and the Rev. Mr. Palmer. The following gentlemen acted as pallbearers: Henry E. Norton, A. W. Prentice, Frank Johnson and Amos E. Cobb. The audience which was not large owing to the unfavorable weather, was composed almost exclusively of native and hoary-headed citizens of Norwich and vicinity. The remains were subsequently interred in the old Norwich cemetery.

The boat was listing badly. The captain rushed on deck and shouted: "Who among you passengers can pray?"

"I can," a minister proudly called back through the storm.

"Then pray," the skipper ordered. "The rest of you put on life preservers. We're one short."—Emil Frith

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

History—A Development

John Fiske said that "The real history of a people includes everything about them and is therefore an aggregate of innumerable facts. It is impossible and undesirable to present all these facts or a millionth part of them and so history must be a selection from infinite details. Historic facts are not of equal value and the historian fixes upon those only which he thinks will help him show the greater features of a people's origin, rise, progress and vicissitudes. It is desirable to have at command the more important facts of history, but the most precious thing history has to offer may be missed by one who is chiefly employed in memorizing it. When history is viewed as an assemblage of unrelated facts, conquering it naturally takes the form of committing it to memory. When it is looked upon as a development—a chain of causes and effects—it appeals more directly to the reason and the understanding. Most of history we must forget, but we should strive to retain something of interest in reading history, something of power in following up a line of ordinary investigation, something of a disposition to seek for the underlying causes of events, something of a grasp of the mightier tendencies and movements of history that makes it a teacher of the present out of the wealth of its past."

Stories That Recall Others

Then What Did He Get?

Three year old James cared not for the freshly baked cakes which mother was taking from the oven. "The little one is yours, Jimmy," she said, as she hurried to answer a telephone call. When she returned to the kitchen her dismay was evident when she said: "Why James, what happened to my cake?"

"It was too long. I breaked off the end for you, mother," was his answer.

So he began calling his wares in a somewhat broken accent. And here is one of the sentences that could be understood plainly as he chanted:

"Nice, home-grown bananas, 2[illegible] cents."

POLICE MAKE SEARCH FOR AUTO NUMBER PLATES

The police were engaged Sunday afternoon in trying to round up for the Bridgeport police the number plates on the automobile stolen from that city which was found here last week in the possession of a sailor named Lane.

The owner of the machine, John Semanick of 2316 East Main street, Bridgeport, was here last week, finding the car in such a condition that he sold it to a garage man for $25. The garage man in turn sold it to a wrecking concern and the wrecker had let a Scotland road farmer take the car out for trial Sunday. It was finally located at the Scotland road farm, where it was reported the car wouldn't run.

The motor vehicle laws provide that number plates shall be turned in when a car is sold but the Bridgeport owner had not done so, nor had any of the others in whose hands the car has been.

TRINITY M. E. SOCIETY SERVES SUCCESSFUL SUPPER

The second and closing night of the Christmas sale at Trinity Methodist church drew good patronage to the church parlors Saturday.

Although it chanced that this church was on the circuit affected when the electric light went bad, about 5:15 Saturday evening, the crowd assembled for supper took the mishap good-naturedly. Most of the tables were well surrounded when the sudden darkness halted progress, but with very brief delay candles and flashlights were procured and the serving of supper went on. The lights did not return until about 5:45.

The excellent meal of baked beans, salads, brown bread, rolls, relishes, cake, tea and coffee was prepared under the supervision of Mrs. Alvin D. Lewis.

The table decorations were arranged by Mrs. Charles Browning and Mrs. Albert A. Guile, handsome flowering plants and vines from Maplewood nursery being loaned by Fred M. Oat.

Assisting Mrs. Lewis in the kitchen were Mrs. Eliza Gray, Mrs. Martin Colberg, Mrs. John A. Phillips, Mrs. Ernest Jones, Mrs. Charles Browning and Mrs. Lula Palmer.

The waitresses were Miss Hazel Phillips, Misses Hannah and Lena H. Haglund, Mrs. Andrew Crowe, Miss Stella Purvis, Miss Gladys Newbury, Mrs. Chris G. Allen, Mrs. Elizabeth Boyens and Miss Dorothy McNeely.

After the lights came on the sales were resumed and the evening ended with a very profitable auction of the remaining articles, cakes, etc. The members of the society were greatly pleased at the success of the two days' event, the patronage having been very liberal. Supper was served to about 125.

It has a membership of over 300 and its work is styled by Dr. Free as the "most noteworthy contribution of amateur science to scientific research, either in America or elsewhere and either in astronomy or any other science."

NORWICH YOUNG MAN KILLED IN JERSEY AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 13—(AP)—Two men were killed and two woman were injured early today when their automobile side-swiped a truck on the Lincoln highway between this city and Metuchen.

The dead are:—Samuel Hirsch, aged 39, driver of the car and William J. Murray aged 25, formerly of Norwich, Conn.

With them at the time of the crash were their wives and Mr. and Mrs. John Healey.

Mrs. Murray and Mrs. Healey are in St. Peter's hospital. Their condition is not serious.

As the passenger car passed the truck driven by Clemon Snyder of North Bergan, it swung into the front of the truck. Hirsch and Murray sitting on the left side of the car received the full force of the impact and their heads were crushed.

Snyder was held on a technical charge of manslaughter by Coroner Edward W. Gowan.

A telegram received here Sunday by Mr. Murray's relatives gave the information that the accident happened about 2:30 Sunday morning. The body is to be brought here for burial.

Mr. Murray was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1901, and was the son of William H., and Rebecca Paquette Murray. He was at one time employed as a waiter at the Wauregan hotel and was at the time of his death employed as a waiter in New Brunswick, to which city he removed his reddence about three months ago.

On April 26, 1925, at Hartford, he was united in marriage with Miss May Neilson. Surviving are his wife, his mother, of the Lemingwell road, his father, in Hartford at the present time, four brothers, Albert Theodore, Gilbert, Raymond and Russell Murray of Norwich and two sisters, Mrs. Aurabelle Herzog and Mrs. Jeremiah Morton, both of Hartford.

EARLY AUTO REGISTRATIONS NOT UP TO YEAR AGO

Motor vehicle registration certificates for the year 1927 had been issued for less than 40,000 automobiles at the close of business at the state motor vehicle department Saturday noon. In the past two weeks, the rate of issuance of 1927 registrations has fallen under that of the corresponding period of last year, and the number of cars now registered for the new year is more than 1,000 less than at the same time last year.

At the same time, fees received for such registrations as have been issued to date exceed by $15,000 the aggregate of those received up to December 11, 1925, and the total of fees taken in since October 1, when 1927 registration work began, has passed the three-quarter-million mark. Thus the average fee for cars now registered for 1927 is slightly higher than the average fee at the corresponding time of last year.

The department is doing everything in its power to encourage early registrations to avoid congestion of applications in the closing days of this month. It is issuing registrations this year at one more place than last year, a branch office in Stamford having been established. This new branch has done nearly as much business to date on 1927 registrations as is reported by the New London and Waterbury offices. Other branch offices of the department are at New Haven and Bridgeport, but 75 per cent. of the early registrations have been issued at the main office at Hartford.

A new ruling of the department requires all applicants for car registrations to include at least one given name in their signature. Applications which give only the initials of the applicants' given names are rejected. The ruling is intended to make for easier identification of registrants, and a similar ruling is to be made with respect to operators' licenses.

About the first applicant to fall under this ruling promptly balked at giving his "first name." One of the clerks who take applications insisted that the application could not be accepted unless one of the man's given names was furnished. "I'd rather go without my registration than give my first name!" protested the applicant. It developed, however, that he was less concerned about his "middle name," and, upon writing it into his application after the initial of his first name, was passed.

Y. M. C. A. PICTURE GIVES LESSON FROM THE BEES

At the Sunday afternoon meeting at 4 o'clock, the spacious gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. was filled, not only were all the chairs occupied, but the bleachers on both sides of the hall were mostly occupied. After the opening exercises consisting of the singing of "I Need Thee Every Hour," the scripture and prayer, Hugh Kinder sang by special request, "In the Garden," which was much enjoyed. The seven reel moving picture of the story by Gene Stratton Porter, "The Keeper of the Bees," was shown with splendid effect, and there were many uplifting lessons impressed upon the large audience.

Between the reels, Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief address, and he spoke in part as follows: "We read in the good book these words, 'not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.' We have also read those lines, 'How doth the little busy bee improve each shining hour.' We cannot think of the bees and not think of activity. A lazy person needs to study the creature we know as the bee, and the ant as well. The bee is not only busy, but useful as well. There is such a thing as being busy and not useful. There are several boys on probation from the juvenile court in Norwich; they have been busy stealing, etc. The bootleggers are exceedingly busy, but not at all useful; they are very harmful to society. There are hundreds of thousands of men and women in prisons today who have been very busy but anything but useful. Some women are quite fond of gossiping, and some men are also; these are busy enough but not useful The man who makes all the money he can forhimself alone with no thought of others, is of course busy, but certainly not useful. Thank God there are those who are both busy and useful The man who makes all the money he can for himself alone with no thought of others, is of course busy, but certainly not useful. Thank God there are those who are both busy and useful. The nurses and the doctors are busy in very important work and they are tr mendously useful. The Boy Scouts are as a rule both busy and useful The mothers who are what they should be, and I think most of them are, are among the busiest people in the world. They cook, they clean house, they sew and mend, and perform many things; they are at once busy and indispensible in their usefulness. It is said of one 'He went about doing good', this refers to the 'Man of Nazareth', My, how busy he was, ministering to the needs of humanity; the multitudes thronged about him in his three short years of ministry, and he became physically tired as day by day he blessed others with his beautiful ministry. Let us all follow his example, and keep busy helping those about us, for there are always some whom we can help."

Wm. C McKean and L. R. Church made it pleasant for the large audience, acting as ushers.

STORES HAD DARK TIME SATURDAY EVENING

Stores on both sides of Main street, westerly from the corner of Market street, with the exception of the Porteous & Mitchell Co., were without electric lights for about half an hour between 5:15 and 5:45 Saturday afternoon when there was trouble on the circuit. The dark period also affected Trinity Methodist Episcopal church where a Christmas bazaar and supper were in progress.

There is nothing in words unless they are properly strung together.

ASSEMBLY CONTAINS 222 CONNECTICUT NATIVES

Two hundred and twenty-two of the 297 members of the 1927 general assembly are natives of Connecticut, 54 of them natives of other states and 21 were born in foreign countries, according to data contained in the preliminary manual and roll compiled by the office of the secretary of the state.

Of the 283 members of the house 126 of them will represent the towns in which they were born.

Royal E. Southwick of Cornwall, who is serving his fourth term in the house, is the oldest member of the legislature. His age, 84, is exactly four times that of the youngest member, Charles N. Brush of Bozrah, who is 21. Elijah Rogers of Southington, representing the fifth district, who is 64 years old, is the oldest member of the senate and Joseph B. Griffin, 30, of Hartford, is the youngest senator.

As usual, farming has the largest numerical representation of any of the seventy-eight occupations listed by members of the general assembly as their means of securing a livelihood. Seventy-two give their occupation as farmer, besides one milk dealer, one florist, one fruit grower, one seedman, one nurseryman and two poultrymen. Lawyers, of whom are 24, rank after farmers in having the largest professional representation, with 23 manufacturers, 16 merchants, nine insurance agents, six housewives and five men who deal in both insurance and real estate. There are four each of the following in the general assembly: Clergymen, bankers, superintendents, civil engineers, clerks and contractors. Other occupations listed are from oyster cultivator to theatre manager and from state policeman to ornithologist.

There are 15 women in legislature, 14 in the house and one, Mrs. Alice Pattison Merritt, of Hartford, in the senate, where she is serving her second term. Fairfield county, with five women, has the largest delegation of that sex, at least one of whom was elected in every county except Windham.

Ten of the 15 women members of the legislature are married. Of the membership of the combined houses, 297, a small fraction more than 80 per cent., 243, are married.

Canada, the birthplace of one senator and four representatives, has the largest representation of any foreign country in the nativity tables. The others are Ireland 4, England, Italy and Germany 3 each, Austria, France and Switzerland 1 each. New York was the birthplace of 23 members of the legislature, Massachusetts being second with nine. Figures for the other states are: Maine and Rhode Island 4 each, Illinois and Pennsylvania 3 each, Iowa 2, Wisconsin, Kentucky, New Jersey, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Kansas and Vermont 1 each.

More than half of the total membership had had previous legislative experience, 129 members of the house being veterans of that branch and seven others in the house having served in the past in the senate. Seventeen of the senators have previously sat in that house and 13 of them have served in the house.

Senator Matthew H. Kenealy of Stamford is the senate senior in point of service, starting his fourth successive term in that body next month, having previously served one term in the house. Dr. William L. Higgins of Coventry is the house veteran in point of service, starting his seventh term in that body and also having to his credit one term as senator. Adrian H. Wadsworth of Farmington ranks second in point of service, with five terms in the house.

MISSION SERVICES BEGIN AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Saturday night the parish room at Christ Episcopal church was well filled for the first of the services under the who gave a splendid talk on the relation of the church and the theatre.

Sunday morning the beautiful eucharistic service was sung by the rector, Rev. C Montgomery Budlong, and a large vested choir. The missioner was the preacher bringing a powerful message to the large congregation. People were in the congregation from several cities and towns around Norwich and many of them remained over and attended the evening song service with preaching.

These mission services will be held each evening at 7:30. Before the sermon comes the question box into which the missioner invites everyone to place questions which they want answered.

"SIN IS A BAD BARGAIN" SAYS REV. FATHER GALVIN

Having read the gospel for the third Sunday in Advent, John 1, 19-28, the questioning of the priests, Levites and Pharisees of John, in the country of Bethania, beyond the Jordan, Rev. Myles P. Galvon, at the third of the four masses in St. Patrick's church Sunday preached on Advent. This period of preparation for the advent of Christ at Christmas seemed to him, he said, a special time to consider the value of the human soul, which God so loved that He sent His only begotten Son to rescue, to sanctify and to save it.

Considering the untold value then which God sets upon the soul of each of us, we should be proportionately grateful, should weigh the soul's value at its proper estimate. How many of us are like Judas, who sold his Lord for such a paltry price; how many of us bargain with the Devil, selling the soul which the Almighty created and which Christ died to save, for some unholy pleasure certain to disappoint us. For it is as St. Augustine has said, "Thou hast made us for Thyself, O, God and our hearts will not rest until they rest in Thee." If we could question the souls in Hell we would find that they would answer in the negative, when asked as to whether they have made a good bargain, in selling their immortal souls for the sins for which they are punished.

Advent should be a time of recollection, of introspection, a time to place its proper value on the human soul. Christ has asked, "What exchange can a man give for his soul?" Now is the period to think seriously, of what it meant for the Son of God to come to redeem souls, to preach His gospel of good will and right living, to institute His church to continue through all generations that same teaching. Not only is it the time for Christ's followers to think, during these few remaining days, but to do, to act, so that when Christmas comes each can look confidently into the eyes of the Infant Saviour, conscious that each is setting upon his immortal soul that value which God Himself has proved is His estimate of it.

Rev. Father Galvin assisted Rev. John J. Reilly, who read the mass, in administering communion to a large number of penitents.

THIEVES GET JEWELRY AND MONEY AT STELZNER HOME ON SUNDAY

During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Stelzner from their home, No. 34 Maplegrove avenue, off Washington street Sunday afternoon sneak thieves ransacked the bed rooms on the second floor of the house and carried away considerable loot including watches, bracelets and money. Mr. and Mrs. Stelzner left the house about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and returned home about 5 o'clock. While they were away from the house the thieves broke in through a rear window. As far as could be learned nothing on the lower floor was taken.

As soon as the burglary was discovered Mr. Stelzner notified police headquarters and the police at once began an investigation. The missing articles are as follows:

A small mahogany clock, $30 in money, a gentleman's oblong Swiss wrist watch; a Hamilton open face watch; small gold chain with Masonic charm, ladies' bracelet, silver open work, ladies gold bracelet.

ACADEMY BASKETBALL FIVE IS OUTPLAYED BY SUFFIELD QUINTET

Outplayed throughout the majority of the game, the Academy basketeers went down to a decisive defeat Saturday evening before the Suffield Prep quintet at the Y. M. C. A. gym to the tune of 37 to 14. Except for the first five minutes, Suffield held a commanding lead over the local five in the first scholastic game of the Academy's first season at the sport.

The Academy started off like sure winners when Armstrong caged a field goal after about 3 minutes of play and for a few moments the teams battled with no score but once, the upstaters started caging them the game developed into a runaway.

Using the five man defense to perfection, Suffield was able to do as they pleased during the encounter. Their passwork was all that could be desired, while in their two speedy forwards, Kulas and Capt. Schneider, they possessed two boys with uncanny shooting ability. These two aces were responsible for all of the winner's points, Kulas amassing 11 field goals and 1 foul for 23 points while Schneider was responsible for 14 points on 5 baskets and 4 fouls.

Bucky Jackson was the only shining star in the Academy defeat. Although rather diminutive in size, Jackson was able to move about quite freely and seemed to gain possession of the ball more than any other of his teammates. Because of the visitors' wonderful defense, the N. F. A. boys were forced to rely on long shots as means of scoring but their attempts met with little success.

A large crowd was on hand to greet the Academyites in their initial tilt and the crowd came prepared for an Academy victory as the cheering and enthusiasm at the start will testify. But when it was seen that there was little hope for an N. F. A. victory the cheering etc., was conspicuously absent.

The first quarter produced the best basketball with the Academy leading the half of the quarter by a single field goal but after Suffield had warmed up and become accustomed to strange surroundings they quickly scored fourteen points and Suffield led 14 to 2 at the end of the period.

The second quarter saw Suffield continue to score for the first few minutes until 21 points had been reached when subs began to dot their lineup. With the reserve material in action for the up-staters the game was closer and the locals counted on two field goals leaving the score at half time 21 to 6 in favor of Suffield.

The third quarter was little more than a repetition of the two preceding ones and the score continued to mount higher and higher as Suffield drew away from the locals. The score at the end of this period was 27 to 9.

The Suffield first stringers went into the game in the final quarter and in rapid-fire fashion scored ten points during the first part after which they seemed willing to take it easy for the remainder of the contest. Substitutes also were used in the Academy lineup during this period.

In the preliminary game an A and B team of the local Y. M. C. A. senior class engaged in a lively scramble with the A team winning 34 to 26. Much promising material is on hand for the Y Seniors according to the game Saturday. The summary:

SMALL CROWD SEES BURLESQUE GRID GAME

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—The New York Giants, of the National Professional football league, smothered the Philadelphia Quakers, champions of the American circuit, 31 to 0 today, in a post season conflict played at the Polo grounds on a field covered with patches of snow, ice and water.

Less than 5,000 fans saw Jack McBride, former Syracuse captain, slither and slide through wide holes in the Quaker line for two touchdowns, kick a 35-yard placement goal, and four boots for points after touchdowns. Thomas, Giant end, intercepted a pass for the third touchdown and Koppish, former Columbia star, raced around an end for the fourth.

The game was ludicrous in spots as the Giants pushed the Quakers about at will in the snow and ice. Often longer gains were made by ball carriers, sliding on chests and backs, than when erect. Koppish, pushed off-side into a snow-drift at midfield, needed a thorough overhauling before he could resume play.

The Quakers took the ball on downs at their goal line at one point and were allowed to kick from the 10-yard mark because the snow was three feet deep a foot in back of the goal.

SOUTH CENTRAL TOURNEY OPENS ON FEB. 10TH

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The third annual south central open golf tournament was set today by the Hot Springs Golf and Country club to begin February 10, for prizes totaling $5,000 in cash and trophies.

The date was fixed to fit the eastward movement of the galaxy of golfers attracted to southern California tournaments and will follow closely the winter engagements on Texas courses. "Wold Bill" Mehlhorn, Chicago professional, who beat Bobby Cruickshank in an 18-hold play-off for this year's championship, is expected to defend his title.

On February 9, preceding the tournament proper, there will be an 18-hole amateur professional low ball foursome and a strictly professional medal play event at 18 holes.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Red Grange and his New York Yankees completed their first season of professional football here today by defeating Joe Sternaman's Chicago Bulls in an American league game 7 to 3.

The Yankees scored their touchdown after Grange intercepted a pass deep in his own territory and carried the ball twenty yards. Larry Marks soon afterwards ran 43 yards for the touchdown.

Sternaman scored for the Bulls with a field kick.

Coast Guard Beats N. Y. A.

NEW LONDON, Dec. 12.—In a rather one sided but fast game Saturday night the Coast Guard Cadets of this city defeated the New York Aggies by a score of 37 to 19. The game was featured by the spectacular work of Purcell and Lindholm of the Coast Guard and the fast individual play of Van Orden and Wanepil, who did most of the work for the Aggies.

BATTERY E DOWNS FIVE FROM STONINGTON EASILY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 12.—By successful pass work and basket shooting the Battery E basketball team on Saturday night, defeated their opponents, the Stonington five, by the score of 40 to 25. There were times when the Stonington team showed flashes of speed but mostly their basket shooting lacked direction. The chief point getters for the Battery boys were Killam, L. Blanchard and Lamb, Killam especially proving an effective ball cager, when he came in range of the basket.

Stonington's star player was F. Previty with 13 points to his credit, while a former Stonington star player, Coffey, proved a poor second.

PUTNAM TEAM HOLDS LEAD IN BOWLING LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 12.—Putnam is still several points ahead in the six team bowling league, made up of two teams each from Webster and Southbridge, one from North Grosvenordale and a local organization. The standing at present is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Putnam	24	8	.750
Holden's	23	9	.718
Vic's Pets	21	11	.656
Texas	18	13	.437
Southbridge	8	24	.145
North Grosvenordale	6	26	.87

High scores featured the matches of the "rubber band" duck pin league rolled at the last tournament in Webster with four teams hitting better than 1700. Holden's took four from Southbridge; Texas four from North Grosvenordale and Billings and Putnam splitting two each. Texas hit the pins for 1775, Vic's Pets for 1750, Putnam 1752, and Holden's for 1771, while the other two teams of the league hit them close to 1700. High single string went to St. Germaine of Holden's who crashed them for 171. He also took high three string total with 391. High team single went to Putnam with 615 and high three string total to Texas with 1775.

Putnam still holds first place in the standing, while Holden broke the tie for second that they held the week before with Vic's Pets, taking the position of second in the standing and Vic's Pets going to third. The other teams did not change their standing. Only a few points separate Putnam from Holden's and Vic's Pets from Holden's and there may be a big change in the standing after the next matches.

With the close race in the standing much interest is being created in the matches of the league and this week large crowds will be on hand to watch their favorites battle for the supremacy. Matches this week will be Holden's at Texas; North Grosvenordale at Putnam and Vic's Pets at Southbridge.

YALE-HARVARD TRACK TEAM TO SAIL JUNE 26TH

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 12—(AP)—The members of the joint Yale-Harvard track team which will meet an Oxford-Cambridge team in England, July 9, will be allowed only about a week in the island empire before the meet, it was decided at a joint meeting of Harvard and Yale athletic authorities held here Saturday evening.

The date of sailing was not definitely determined, but will probably be about June 25, it was announced today. Either New York or Montreal will be the port of embarkation.

The winners of first and second places in the dual meet here May 21, will make up the team. The conference was attended by William J. Bingham, director of athletics; Fred A. Moore, graduate treasurer and Everett S. Gleason, manager of track, representing Harvard, and by Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic association, Alfred C. Gilbert, chairman of the graduate advisory committee on track, and Stuart N. Scott, manager of track representing Yale.

M'CALLISTER, NEW MANAGER OF INDIANS, OPTIMISTIC

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 12—(AP)—Jack McCallister, veteran scout and coach of the Cleveland Indians who succeeds Tris Speaker as manager of the club believes that the tribe "is all set" for the 1927 season, barring the vacancy in centerfield left by the retirement of Speaker.

Jack must find a centerfielder who can fill Spoke's shoes.

He will try to find a man now on the team who can turn the trick in centerfield.

McCallister's 13 years as scout and coach of the Indians received recognition yesterday when President E. S. Barnard appointed him manager because he felt Jack's intimate knowledge of the team will make him especially capable as pilot.

ROTH TO ASSIST IN COACHING WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Frank Roth, a catcher who helped the Chicago White Sox capture the world's series of 1906, had been signed as coach to assist the new Sox manager, Ray Schalk.

It was announced today. Russell Blackburne, Palmyra, N. J., another old time Sox star, is being sought for another coaching job. Roth will replace Chief Bender as tutor of young pitchers, while Blackburne is desired in place of Ben Egan. In recent years, Roth has been coach at New York and Cleveland, while Blackburne has dropped out of baseball for several years. Roth, like his new boss, Schalk, came to the Sox from the American association as a catcher.

YALE FOOTBALL TEAM BANQUETS AND SINGS PRAISES OF TAD JONES

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 12.—(AP)—The old Yale barn in Montclair today re-echoed tribute to Tad Jones as a "teacher of the finest brand of football in the United States."

Referring to criticism of the Yale coach by "apparently misguiding alumni," E. K. Hall, of the football rules committee asserted at a reception to the Blue's 1926 eleven late last night that in Jones, the New Haven university:

"Has not only one of the best experts on the modern game, but the kind of a man you and I would want our sons to be coached by."

Hall, a Dartmouth graduate, told 200 Yale alumni that the greatest menace of football today "is the man who coaches to win at any odds." He admired Yale sportsmanship, he said, because he had seen that college "take its lickings without alibis."

Preceding his address, Phil Bunnell, captain of the 1926 team, scored alumni who had been as "credulous as many youngsters in kindergarten." The effect of their criticisms, he said, had been felt by the team, which this year lost four games preceding a final victory over Harvard. Bunnell was supported in assuring the gathering that the team "loved and admired Tad" by Captain-elect Webster and "Cobbles" Sturnhahn, all-American guard selection last year. Jones said the team was "dear to his heart" because they had met the supreme test of courage by emerging from four successive defeats "with their chins in the air" to finally triumph over Harvard. "The winning teams of Mallory and Lovejoy were not put to the test that this team was," he said. "If they had been, they would have done as this team did."

Receiving the distinguished service cup of the Montclair Alumni association of Yale for conspicuous public service reflecting credit on the university, W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, added a note of regret at the breaking up of the "Big Three" through the Harvard-Princeton split.

"If we are consistently licked and we don't take our medicine without showing a yellow streak, I'll be sorry for Yale," he said.

RANKING OF RICHARDS IS NOW A PROBLEM

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—A verbal tussle over the ranking of Vincent Richards, professional star, on amateur lists is in prospect at the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis association here in February.

The executive committee of the body recommended yesterday that the U. S. L. T. A. at the coming session consider "none but amateur players in any ranking of the national association of its subsidiary associations." Richards, who joined the professional forces at the close of the past amateur, was ranked at the head of the metropolitan committee standing issued this month.

Close observers believe that the question will be thrashed out on the floor of the annual meeting and that selection of a special body to work in conjunction with the national ranking committee in drawing up a final list will probably result. Two years ago the delegates over-ruled a change in the ranking list suggested by the executive committee.

Miss Mary Browne, Howard Kinsey and Harvey Snodgrass, members of the Mills Langley professional entourage were officially "read out" of amateur tennis at the meeting yesterday. A resolution, to be sent to the International Lawn Tennis federation, barred the players from any further competition in amateur matches held under the auspices of the U. S. L. T. A.

Ormatti was obtained from the Syracuse club after the close of the past season.

He also won the 10 kilometre race in 8 minutes 43 2-5 seconds.

BOXING HOLDS FORTH AT GARDEN THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—Boxing, coming back with a rush toward the height of the indoor season, replaces the pine saucer of the six day bicycle races at Madison Square Garden this week for the entertainment of the sports hungry.

In the first of two Garden cards, a pair of New York middleweights, Max Rosenbloom and K. O. Eid Kaplan, both claiming the right to a title battle with Mickie Walker, king of the division, will settle the question of local supremacy, they are matched for ten rounds on Monday night.

On Friday night, a bill of four ten round bantamweight matches, is planned as a means of clearing the muddled championship situation among the little fellows.

Because of an infected eye, a substitute must be found for Bud Taylor, Terre Haute battler, who was to meet Tony Canzoneri, sensational New York youngster. Andy Martin, of Boston, will clash with Carl Tremaine, Cleveland veteran, Dominic Petrone, of New York, tackles Pete Sarmiento, the little Filipino, and Johnny Green, of New York, will try his drum-fire on another local product, Vic Barrone in supporting bouts.

Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, makes his debut against a heavyweight in the Christmas Fund show of Humbert Fugazy at Newark, N. J., December 20, meeting Bud Gorman, of Kenosha, Wisconsin. Charley Phil Rosenberg, bantamweight champion, is on the same card matched with Petey Mack, Jersey City featherweight. Both bouts are scheduled for ten rounds.

On Dec. 20, the heavyweight "eliminating" will settle down to serious business again in 10 round bouts at the Garden, when Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, matches his crushing right hand against the equally powerful slam from the same direction, of Harry Persson, Swedish champion. Monte Munn, the Nebraska slugger, meets another eastern challenge in Knute Hansen, of Wisconsin.

MAJOR LEAGUE MOGULS WIND UP THIS WEEK

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—(AP)—The major league baseball magnates gathering here this week to wind up their business affairs for the winter have already settled most of their troublesome problems, leaving their way clear to devote their time to player dickerings.

Commissioner K. M. Landis has been warmly endorsed by most of his constituency. Seven new managers have been announced in the two big circuits, five in the American league, and two in the National and Rogers Hornsby and Eddie Collins are almost the only headliners left who have not decided upon their jobs for next summer.

Collins has yet to settle his contract with the Cardinals. Collins recently released as manager by the White Sox, announced that he will be in the American league as usual next summer, leaving his decision to await further conferences.

Philadelphia and New York have been mentioned as having a place for him.

Hornsby and President Sam Breadon are "as far apart as the poles" in their views, they agree, with Hornsby's player contract having another year to run and the Rajah insisting on a managerial contract instead.

The National leaguers open their own meeting in New York, Tuesday, with the American leaguers here starting the same day, and they unite under the gavel of the picturesque commissioners here Thursday. His seven year term expires in November, before the next annual meetings roll around, but his re-election is regarded as a certainty.

The five new managers in the American league are expected to create an active trading market to strengthen their squads.

President Johnson assembles his followers Tuesday, with little formal business on the docket, except a discussion of the adverse weather on the late summer gate receipts.

The sessions this week will lack the official presence of two of the colorful leaders of years past, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, both of whom contend they are done with baseball now their player manager days are over.

BROWN PLAYERS STILL UNCERTAIN ABOUT TRIP

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 12.—(AP)—Another day of conferences by the Brown university committee on student activities snipped not an inch from the red tape still keeping Brown's three senior "iron men" from joining the All-Eastern eleven which will play an all Pacific team at San Francisco on New Year's day. Captain "Hal" Broda, Orland Smith and "Dave" Michel are still wondering whether they will be permitted to make the trip.

Prof. John E. Hill, chairman of the committee, said tonight that the matter had been left up to the personal decision of Prof. Fred W. Marvel, director of athletics. The latter however, says it remains for the committee's action tomorrow.

CAVANAUGH WILL BE HEAD COACH OF FORDHAM ELEVEN NEXT SEASON

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—(AP)—Frank Cavanaugh, who resigned recently as coach of the Boston college football squad, has accepted the head coaching position at Fordham university and will sign a three year contract within a few days, the university announced tonight.

Cavanaugh, who served in the World war as a major, had coached the Boston college squad for the past eight years when he suddenly announced his resignation as mentor of the Eagle outfit. He replaces Frank Gargan at Fordham, who served as head coach for five years.

After graduation in 1899, from Dartmouth, where he played on the Green eleven, Cavanaugh coached the Denver athletic club for seven years before coming east to lead Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass., for three years later. Later he returned to his alma mater as head coach for several years, leaving Dartmouth to take over the reins at Boston college, where his elevens have been among the finest in the east.

Cavanaugh will call the Fordham squad together for spring practice in Marching or April, the university announced, when his assistants will be named. "Hiker" Joy assistant to Cavanaugh.

Cavanaugh will call the Fordham squad together for spring practice in March or April, the university announced when his assistants will be named. "Hicker" Joy, assistant to Cavanaugh at Boston college, is expected to act in the same capacity at Fordham.

Authorities at the school refused to disclose the monetary provisions of the agreement.

A GOOD CIGARETTE ALWAYS HAS SMOOTH MANNERS

It is never harsh to your throat or tongue

The Town Bully is seldom the town's ablest man. And a harsh cigarette is seldom an efficient smoke. Irritating, but not effective.

Bad manners never indicate cleverness. When a cigarette bites and parches the tongue, it isn't strong or satisfying; it's just harsh.

The harder on the tongue, the poorer the smoke. A coarse stogie has an awful bite, but a poor satisfaction. A clear Havana is bland and gentle—but oh, how it performs!

A good cigarette is always smooth. Its ability to appease the taste is in direct ratio to its smoothness and good manners. That's the test of fine tobacco.

You never tire of a sweet-tempered pal. You can smoke OLD GOLDS morning, noon and night without taxing your throat or taste. They're smooth, but able.

An entirely new blend, mellowed by a new method. Plenty of punch without any punishment.

OLD GOLD

IT'S THE SMOOTHEST CIGARETTE

YOU CAN SMOKE THEM MORNING NOON and NIGHT

Mr. Gilpin was walking along State street Friday morning and when near the corner of Bank street was stricken, falling to the sidewalk. He was taken in charge by the police, who had him removed to the hospital.

William Hendel, 198 Main street, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Traffic Officer William Graham on a charge of violation of the city's parking ordinances. He will be presented in the police court Monday morning. Hendel drove his automobile to Main street and instead of parking the car beside the curb, he drove it onto the sidewalk and there left it for an indefinite period.

Edgar Graves, a negro, was looking Friday night for his wife, who, he claimed had left him without any provocation. He got into the house at 25 Douglass street and there soon became involved in a wrestling contest with Louise Brown, also colored, with the result that Miss Brown went into the street and called for assistance. Officers Feeley and Riordan responded and Mr. Graves was given a berth in the police station for the night. Saturday he was fined $10 and went to jail. He was intoxicated when he went to the Brown house and claimed that his wife was being hidden from him there.

Taras Lax, 36, a taller residing at 66 Bank street, was arrested twice this morning, both times on charges of intoxication. Lax holds a record in this city for being arrested the greatest number of times within 24 hours. His record was made Oct. 9, last, when he was arrested three times that day on charges of intoxication. He was released on bail the first two times, but held without bail the third time. The next day in the police court Lax was fined $5 and costs. This morning he was on property of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and was arrested by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman William Riordan. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $25 and at 10.15 o'clock he was re-arrested by Patrolman John Courtney, when that officer found Lax intoxicated on Bank street. Lax was held without bail the second time.

The New Haven police Saturday night requested the New London police to be on the lookout for two automobiles stolen from the streets of the former city earlier in the night. One of the automobiles is a Hudson sedan and carries Connecticut registration E-564. The other automobile is a Nash sedan and carries Connecticut registration A-1754.

The police received a telephone message shortly before last midnight that a fight was in progress at the corner of John and Potter streets. Patrolman Augustus Ray was assigned to investigate and found two youths, who had been guilty of the fighting. The youths were advised to go to their homes with threat of arrest if they failed to do so. Afterwards it was discovered that the fighters had smashed a window of the United Steel & Metal company, John street.

Patrolman George Cockell, in passing through Bank street, at 12.30 o'clock this morning, was approached by Stanley Mendekie, a sailor aboard the U. S. Naugatuck, who pointed out a man named Hollway. Hollway, Mendekie stated, was wearing a coat that was stolen from his locker at 122 Main street, Nov. 2nd, at which time Mendekie reported the theft to the police. Hollway was taken to the police station where he stated that the coat was given him by a sailor, G. D. Minter, 43 Washington street. Patrolman Cockell accompanied Hollway to Minter's home where Minter stated that a coast guard man, known as "Frenchy" Moran, first class carpenter's mate on the U. S. S. McCall, state pier, had visited Minter's home during his absence and had given the coat to Mrs. Minter. As Minter did not want the coat he said he gave it to Hollway. The coat was taken from Hollway and returned to Mendekie.

Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh this afternoon interviewed Moran aboard the Destroyer McCall at the state pier. The sailor declared that the coat was given him by a colored man named Jackson who had been employed by Nicholas Haddad, proprietor of the locker room. Jackson has since left the employ of Haddad and is said to have gone to Pittsburgh, Pa.

OBSTINATE PATIENT DYING—HIT BY NORWICH WOMAN'S CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 12—Tony Phikus, Quaker Hill, Waterford, is in a dying condition today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, ill with septic meningitis and death is anticipated hourly. Phikus' condition is attributed to his obstinacy in refusing to continue receiving treatment at the hospital after he had been injured and instead of remaining a patient there he went to his home against the advice of the hospital attendants and the staff physicians.

Phikus was driving his automobile on Williams street, near Gallows lane, on the night of Dec. 3, being en route to his home. As his car approached Gallows lane an automobile owned by Miss Susan C. Whittlesey of 21 Lincoln avenue, Norwich, teacher, bound from Norwich to New London came along. The highway was slippery and as the two cars were about to pass they skidded which resulted in a crash for the two machines came together with great force. Phikus' car was badly damaged, being forced off the highway and against a wall. He received lacerations and bruises and was taken to the hospital, where his wounds were dressed. Two or three days afterwards Phikus insisted upon being allowed to go home. He was remonstrated with and advised against leaving the hospital with a prediction that complications were likely to develop and that serious results would follow. However, he was persistent in his intention to return home, and after having signed a release, absolving the hospital from liability, Phikus left for his home. After being at Quaker Hill several days, septic meningitis developed and a physician who was summoned to attend the patient ordered his immediate removal to the hospital. After being admitted to the institution, Phikus condition became worse and Saturday it became critical. If Phikus dies, Miss Whittlesey will be arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

MEMBER OF C. G. PATROL ... FOUND DRUNK IN STREET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 13—The police tonight experienced just what they have anticipated would occur when the federal government placed a detail of a lieutenant, two chief petty officers and 12 sailors performing shore patrol duty in an intended effort to preserve order among the United States coast guard sailors, who frequent the streets of the city in large numbers until midnight nightly. One of the sailor patrol was picked up drunk and helplessly so. He was locked up at police headquarters, but at midnight he was delivered into the custody of one of the chief petty officers and taken back to his ship. The shore patrol had been on duty but about two hours when Patrolmen George Cockell and William Riordan observed a throng of men opposite the Capitol theatre. Bank street and they found a member of the patrol, drunk and down, the patrol officer being sprawled out and lying in the street. He could not regain his feet and it became necessary for the civil officers to take charge of the patrol. At police headquarters the sailor's club and belt was taken from him and he was then locked up. It later developed that the patrol had been loitering about the block and that he had been accompanied about the streets by another sailor, who had liquor on his person and that the two imbibed freely of the contents of the flask until the patrol became intoxicated. The patrol is a member of the crew of U. S. S. Wilkes, one of several destroyers stationed at the state pier. It is common talk among the members of the police department that the shore patrol, instead of performing the duty assigned, frequent places where liquor is dispensed as well as mingle with other sailors and spend their time in amusement and pleasure of their own selection, rather than performing the police duty which they were assigned.

The condition of Patrolman Patrick Sheehan, who has been ill with pneumonia for several weeks at his home on Crystal avenue, has improved so that he is now able to sit up daily.

The police were besieged again to-night with complaints from residents in various parts of the city because of the many electric lights that failed to function and left the highways in an extremely dark and dangerous condition. Some of the lights were on principal streets and others are located on streets that are traversed by many. One of the streets where the lights failed was at the corner of Green and Pearl streets, an arc light that when functioning is of great value to autoists, as well as pedestrians because being at a corner that is one of the most dangerous in the city, owing to automobile traffic. Another arc light on North Bank street failed to illumine and the patrolman on that beat reported that it has been failing to light for three consecutive nights. Still another light that failed to operate was at the corner of Bank and Division streets, where traffic is heavy.

MONTMARTRE NOW TAKES STAMPS FROM TOURISTS

PARIS, Dec. 13 (AP)—Stamp collecting is a hobby of some Montmartre policemen, who politely strip the tourists' letters-from-home.

"I beg your pardon, but are you an American?" ventures the sidewalk-pounding philatelist of the casual pleasure seeker from abroad, who perhaps displays apprehension and tries to hedge.

"Have you any new American stamps about you, sir?" the officer, whose title is "agent," hastens to inquire. "You see, I am a collector, as well as a guardian of the peace. I would like to have some of your latest issues, if you have any of the envelopes in your pockets. Already I have the Theodore Roosevelt stamps, and naturally those in red of George Washington and Madame. But I have not yet had those bearing the effigy of President Harding, and they lack to me to complete my collection."

The tourist searches his pockets, if he is not in too great a hurry to find a cabaret and the early morning is not too cold, and obliges. With a courteous salute, the policeman approaches the next wanderer by night: "Monsieur is Danish, if I do not mistake myself?" Then follows the same request.

AIR MAIL SERVICE HAS $4,000,000 IN ASSETS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Considerable competition among commercial aeronautic enterprises is expected by Postmaster General New in the bidding on January 15 for the contracts for operation of the New York-Chicago-San Francisco air mail service.

Development of the air-mail service is looked upon by the Postmaster General as one of the outstanding achievements of the postal service. About $15,000,000 has been spent and the assets in planes, shops, air fields, hangars and buildings are placed at approximately $4,000,000. Its personnel comprises 580 employes. It is probable that most of the personnel and material may be taken over by the successful contractor. There are nearly 100 planes.

Nearly sixteen million letters were carried by the New York-Chicago over night air mail services during the year which ended October 31. Since the beginning of the air mail service in 1918 planes carrying mails have traveled more than 11,000,000 miles. Thirty pilots and nine employes who accompanied pilots on flights have been killed.

ST. LOUIS PLANS TO BEAUTIFY WATER FRONT

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Mississippi river front here, long an eyesore with its delapidated buildings more than a century old, would become a show place under a $50,000,000 improvement program announced by the city plan commission.

The plan calls for construction of a 100-foot double deck street to skirt the river front for more than three miles. The two levels would be used for motor and vehicular traffic.

A bend in the river would be straightened so as to reclaim 4,000 acres of land for an aviation field and recreation park. There would be two other park strips along the river.

Money for the project would be raised either through a bond issue or by special assessment against benefited property.

Nothing is quite as [illegible] to the individual.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

The Palace theater opened last night with another great double feature bill.

Variety Paramount's latest picture is distinctly different from anything that's been shown in Norwich during the last five years.

The film opens on a prisoner—old, discouraged and weary—telling his story to the warden. We then "flash back," and the man's tale takes place before the eyes of the audience.

It seems that once on a time, 30 long years ago, this man had been a member of the world's greatest acrobatic act. They were prime favorites at the Berlin Winter Garden. Hundreds had applauded them each day.

Then—something happened which spelt the beginning of the end. The prisoner's partner had made love to his pretty wife. And she, faithless, had returned the affection, completely forgetting her husband. Things went along quietly, until some one whispered in his ear telling of her faithlessness.

There—that's variety! Imagine what you're going to see.

Scenes behind stage. On the trapeze at the Winter Garden. Marvelous acting of the principals—Emil Jannings and Lya de Putti. Great direction of E. A. Dupont, the Griffith of Germany, and marvelous photography.

One of the greatest combinations on the screen is that of Fred Thomson, F. B. O. western star, and his famous horse, Silver King. And the greatest picture in which they have appeared to date is Lone Hand Saunders, playing at the Palace theater. The story is full of novel ideas mounted on swift action and riding to romance on a thrilling path. Typical Thomson twists of humor have been generously interspersed throughout the picture, and the tremendously beautiful backgrounds which have always been associated with Fred's pictures, are more in evidence than ever. Reaves Eason is responsible for the smooth and capable direction.

Broadway Theater

With the reopening of the Broadway theater, a wonderful program of five big time Keith-Albee acts arrive today. Every vaudeville act presents artists who have been tried and not found wanting in furnishing real entertainment.

Such acts are offered you today. Croddack and Shadney, Black Flashes. Mardo and Wynn in Bring 'Em Suit, Mary Duncan, singing comedienne, Shirli Rives and Billy Arnold in Sell 'Em Cheap, and Armand-DeVore company in sensational dance diversions.

A new Potash and Perlmutter picture, in type, at least, is promised by the Broadway theater, which will offer Chadwick Pictures Corporation's April Fool for three days, beginning today. Alexander Carr, whose outstanding screen successes in Potash and Perlmutter comedies have made him seem inseparable from those amusing stories, is the star of the picture, which it is said, offers him a role that is typical of his best known screen characterizations.

April Fool which is from the well known play, April Showers, by Edgar Allan Woolf, and Alexander Carr. April Fool, which is an adaptation by Nat Ross, is a lavish production, providing striking settings that are most varied. From the tremendous exterior set of New York's East Side to the Goodman apartments on Riverside Drive, which reflects the acme of luxury, these settings offer a cross section of every phase of New York life.

Baby Peggy, one of the outstanding child stars of today, has a prominent part in the picture, being the center of an amusing kid romance that involves two other favorites, Leon Holmes and Pat Moore. After a lapse of ten years, the romance of childhood continues with Duane Thompson, recently seen with Charles Ray in Some Punkins, Raymond Keane and Edward Phillips as the principals. Other well known players are Mary Alden, Snits Edwards and Nat Carr.

Breed Theater

The showing for the first time at the Breed theater last night of the picture version of Victor Herbert's famous operetta, Mlle. Modiste, starring Corinne Griffith, brings to mind that some of the favorite songs written by the late composer are included in that piece.

Kiss Me Again, undeniably his favorite, is in Mlle. Modiste. Other old favorites are I Want What I Want When I Want It and Teach Me to Smile. The operetta as a whole is a sparkling work and has been highly appraised by music critics in every country.

Although the picture is a considerably more detailed piece the opportuneness of the song hits is still present. The Breed theater augmented orchestra under direction of Professor Herbert Smith renders a musical score comprising all the Mlle. Modiste hits to accompany the picture.

One of the most brilliant moments in the picture is the much heralded fashion pageant, created by Adrian, noted Parisian designer. This sequence can be compared only with the fashion show in Colleen Moore's Irene. A bevy of the loveliest Hollywood beauties appear in the fashion pageant. Lillian Knight (Miss Los Angeles) is one of the models.

Norman Kerry plays opposite the star, with Willard Louis in the major comedy role. Others in the cast are Rose Dione, Dorothy Cumming, Paulette Duval and Pat Somerset. Robert Z. Leonard directed.

Browns, particularly, are well regarded, and will lead in highly varied tones in many of the fabric offerings for men's wear. Blues also are expected again to have strong interest, following the active demand for overcoatings of this shade during the last few weeks.

STORE SANTA CLAUSES USE ALASKA REINDEER

FAIRBANKS, Dec. 12 (AP)—Two hundred Alaska reindeer, scattered in pairs in various cities of the states, are helping department store Santa Clauses prove to the youth of the land that Saint Nick and his steeds are ready for their annual Christmas eve ride over the housetops.

Last year one Alaska firm shipped 80 deer and the venture proved so successful that the number was increased to 200 this season.

Selected stock, all with horns, are used for this purpose. Most of the animals are donated by the purchasers to public parks, and zoos after the holidays.

WIFE TELLS STORY THAT MAKES DEAN INGE LAUGH

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Here is a story that made "Gloomy" Dean Inge of St. Paul, laugh out loud, and it was told by his wife:

A doctor who left his patient on his deathbed at night ordered the man's wife to take his temperature every hour. In the morning the physician arrived to find the bed empty.

"Yus," said the wife. "We didn't have no thermometer. So I gave him the barometer. That pointed to 'Very dry'—so I gave him two pints of ale and now he's gone to work."

Poincare's 16-Hour Day

PARIS, Dec. 11 (AP)—Premier Poincare, Minister of Finance, puts in 16 hours a day at his job, either at his office or at his home. Unless forced to attend an official luncheon or dinner, he rarely spends over 20 minutes at the table. His beverage is water. And he does not smoke.

Canada ranks third in the world's gold production.

POETRY

Reincarnation

It can not be that He who made
This wondrous world for our delight,
Designed that all its charms should fade
And pass forever from our sight;
That all shall wither and decay,
And know on earth no life but this,
With only one finite survey
Of all its beauty and its bliss.

It can not be that all the years
Of toil and care and grief we live
Shall find no recompense in tears,
No sweet return that earth can give;
That all that leads us to aspire,
And struggle onward to achieve,
And every unattained desire
Were given only to deceive.

It can not be that, after all
The mighty conquests of the mind,
Our thoughts shall pass beyond recall
And leave no record here behind;
That all our dreams of love and fame,
And hopes that time has swept away,—
All that enthralled this mortal frame,—
Shall not return some other day.

It can not be that all the ties
Of kindred souls and loving hearts
Are broken when this body dies,
And the immortal mind departs;
That no serener light shall break
At last upon our mortal eyes,
To guide us as our footsteps make
The pilgrimage to Paradise.

—David Banks Sickels.

Above the gold the sunbeams fling
With bird-songs drifting through,
God's glory is a richer thing,
And sweeter singing too.

Above the azure wide and high,
The steady, candid blue,
God's glory is a vaster sky,
Illimitably true.

Above the faintest, farthest star
In distant chaos wrought,
God's glory, infinitely far
Transcends our feeble thought.

Yet God's rich glow, and God's great song
And God's vast heaven of blue;
And God's far starlight ages long,
Comes down to me and you!

—Amos R. Wells. Collected Poems.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Wife—And if mother wasn't leaving dad to come and live with us, I'd leave you and go and live with them!—Tit-Bits.

Well, what did you do with your bathing suit?

I put it in the wash basin and it just disappeared.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

That fellow over there takes things that don't belong to him.

A thief?

No; a photographer.—Boston Transcript.

"Why so pensive, dear?" asked his wife.

"I'm trying to think what it was I used to worry about before I bought this blamed second-hand flivver," he sighed.—Pathfinder.

So you fell down on that crossword puzzle?

No, wonder. It contained the names of a vice president, a writer of a last year's best seller and the winner of a peace prize.—Punch.

Aunt Susanah—Such a dress! why the idea! I'd be mortified to death in a dress like that!

Phyllis—Yes, I expect you would, but don't feel badly about it, Aunt Susanah. A person's figure can't be helped.—Detroit News.

An elderly man was observed acting rather nervously in a department store and the floorwalker approached him.

Anything I can do for you, sir?

I have lost my wife.

"Oh, yes. Mourning goods, two flights up," promptly responded the floorwalker.—Atlanta Journal.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Watchmakers say that 90 per cent of the jewels used in watches today are synthetic.

The growing demand for glycerin as an anti-freeze compound has left comparatively little available for other purposes.

Traces of microscopic living organisms have been found in American rocks over 600,000,000 years old.

The majority of Atlantic icebergs are 200 feet or more above water, their depth under water being from 1,500 to 3,000 feet.

Thirty-seven cases of lead poisoning in Brest, France, were traced to the use of dismantled wooden ships as fuel for bake-ovens.

A hydrogen stream directed into an arc between tungsten electrodes produces a hotter flame than the one used for oxy-acetylene welding.

Tests show that an individual can do mental arithmetic as well after an inadequate night's rest, but he uses up more energy than when rested.

Anti-disess tablishmentarianism, a word composed of 28 letters and defined as "a doctrine of opposition to disestablishment; said specifically of a state church," is the longest word in the English language.

Mrs. Hester Ann Harmon, of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., at the age of 104, has lived to collect her son's life insurance. The son Edward T. Harmon, 74, died at Milwaukee. The policy, for $2,000, was taken out in 1892. Mr. Harmon naming his mother as his beneficiary.

The next time Mrs. M. Hill, of Dayton, Ky., washes her husband's overalls, she is going to look in the pockets. She boiled the overalls in a strong solution and found she boiled all the ink from a piece of paper that must have been money. She did not know whether it was a $1, a $5 or a $10 bill. At Washington the money experts in the treasury department ascertained that it was $5 and sent a new one to Mrs. Hall.

After pulling an ice wagon for years at Coleman, Tex., its owners decided to retire a faithful 32-year-old mule on "full hay". The animal was assigned to a pasture to browse away the rest of its days. But the mule refuses to view its pension as a treat and insists on jumping the pasture fence and following the ice wagon that it used to pull. The poundmaster never bothers it, and the mule is permitted to wander about at will.

The wearing qualities of silk are greatly lessened by exposure to sunlight, it has been learned from tests recently completed at the United States bureau of standards. The strength of unweighted dyed silk decreased 35 per cent, it was found, when exposed to sunlight for 100 hours. Silk of cheaper grade that had been weighted with metal to give it a rich, shimmering appearance, lost as much as from 50 to 75 per cent in general textile strength.

URGES BABY FEATURES BE SHAPED FOR FUTURE

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Lady Walburga Paget urges that a race of beautiful people, free from physical defects, be created through parents shaping their infants' faces soon after birth.

She proposes that a special profession of sculptural nurses be trained for this purpose. "The art," she says, "is now known only to some Indian tribes of Mexico. There, the great Spanish families call in an old Mammy when a child is born to shape its plastic head, features and limbs.

"The many women who are sculptors or draw would at once know where to correct baby defects. We have surgeons now who can restore features to their former shape after terrible defacing accidents; why, not, therefore, model babies?"

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—(AP)—An upward movement of stock prices, which carried the industrial average to within half a point of the record high level established in September, establishment of the highest level in over 10 years by the bond price average, a sharp rally in French francs which lifted the demand rate above 4 cents to the highest level in 13 months and easier call money rates were the high lights in this weeks financial markets.

A series of "Christmas dividends" in the form of extra and increased payments, favorable trade news including an unexpectedly large increase of over 128,000 tons in the November unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel corporation and a sudden turn for the better in the automobile industry, and optimistic statements on business conditions by administration leaders furnished the impetus for the advance in stock prices.

The rally in French francs reflected the improvement in that country's domestic financial condition as revealed in the weekly statements of the Bank of France.

Active wheat futures lost about 2 cents a bushel during the week on selling influenced by more favorable crop weather reports. Cotton advanced slightly despite another upward revision in the government's crop estimate. Sugar prices were firm on the signing on the presidential decree restricting the current Cuban crop to 4,500,000 tons.

SAYS LEAKS IN ROOF DROVE HIM FROM STRAND

Abe Davidson who closed the Broadway theatre on the last Sunday in November and transferred his attractions to the Strand on Water street, owned by Dr. N. B. Lewis and leased by Mr. Davidson, has been driven out of the Strand and back to the Broadway, he declared Sunday, by the leaks in the roof at the Strand which the owner had promised to have repaired but repairs have not been made. New stage sets have been damaged by the water from the roof, Mr. Davidson said, and patrons have been discommoded by the conditions.

Mr. Davidson is closing the Strand and is re-opening the Broadway today (Monday). Here he has a lease that runs till July 15 next, and he said Sunday that he had been making arrangements to sublet the Broadway to a stock company which would have operated the house till the end of the lease. This plan has now been abandoned since he has to have the house for his own use.

UNIVERSALIST YOUNG PEOPLE REHEARSING FOR PAGEANT

Rehearsals have already begun for the pageant of "The Consecration of Sir Galahad" to be given at the Christmas candle-light service at six o'clock next Sunday evening at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

A year ago when Mrs. Foster was in England supervising "Pageantry and Story-Telling" for the Liberal churches she visited Winchester, identified with Camelot of old, where in the ancient castle on the hill the great round table about which congregated King Arthur's knights, is still to be seen. Out of the interest in this visit to the ancient English cathedral town this pagaan of Sir Galahad, one of the knights of King Arthur's round table, was made by Mrs. Foster.

The music is to be given by the vested choir and the characters in the pageant are to be taken by the young people of the church.

MOOSE OPEN CHARTER CAMPAIGN

BRINGING IN MEMBERSHIP GAIN

Coming into the home stretch of the "open charter" campaign for new members, Norwich lodge of Moose, No. 850, held an initiation and entertainment at Moose home on Laurel Hill avenue Saturday night, concluding the programme of the evening with a delicious roast chicken supper.

The charter of the lodge was opened on October 1st, to run to January 1st, 1927, and initiations have been held every three weeks, large classes being received every month. The class Saturday evening was known as the Philip Baumgartner and Carl Pierson class, both being trustees of the lodge, and there were 16 candidates to receive the degrees. One more class is to come before the lodge before the charter closes, this class to be initiated on New Year's eve, in charge of Sergeant-at arms Henry H. Jarvis and Inner Guard Harry Smith. The class Saturday evening was one of the largest of the season and sent the membership of the lodge well over the 600 mark, making an increase of nearly 30 per cent in the lodge membership during the past year under Dictator Bernard Wunderlich.

The meeting was opened by the officers of the lodge, in charge of Dictator Wunderlich and after the class had been initiated brief remarks were made by the dictator and George Goepfert.

At the conclusion of the lodge session entertainment was provided for the 200 members present, boxing exhibitions and song and dance numbers making up the program. The first bout of the evening was between Young Mush and Leon Bruckner of Norwich, the latter now planning to re-enter the ring game after an absence of some time. The bout was an exciting one and Bruckner showed that he still possesses his old time form, packing a deadly punch in each hand.

The second bout was between Shiek Leonard, state welterweight champion and Young Leonard, a boxing pupil of the champion Although this was simply an exhibition, Young Leonard displayed fine form, giving evidence of a real fighter in the making. The shiek added amusement for his audience by his back hand work, repeatedly socking the referee when the latter tried to perform properly.

For the song and dance numbers Jack Cummings proved himself a real entertainer, Irish and Scotch songs meeting instant approval, while Irish jigs and tap dancing called for encores.

Following the entertainment the members were marshalled to the newly furnished banquet hall, where under the serving of Mrs. Kirtchner and Mrs. Schauffhauser, the following menu was enjoyed:

Roast Native Chicken
Mashed Potatoes-Noodles
Brown Gravy
[illegible] Sweet Bread
Coffee
Green Peas Celery
Cigars Cigarettes

Altogether the evening was most enjoyable and the Baumgartner-Pierson class night went down as a great success. All eyes are now turned to New Year's eve, when the greatest affair in the history of the loge is to be run off, featuring a large class initiation, banquet and entertainment by professional artists from Boston.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE ASSETS GROWN TO $2,673,979

When the December meeting of the board of trustees of Connecticut college was held last week at Hotel Taft, New Haven, only two members were absent. The meeting was devoted to a general discussion of the affairs of the college, particularly of ways and means of promoting the interest of the college with the public, especially among its friends and prospective constituency, with a view to strengthening its physical and intellectual resources Though the youngest of the eastern colleges for women, it has developed a strength and vigor and a standard that, in the judgment of its friends and officers, thoroughly vindicates its record and gives ground for its hopes.

The treasurer's report showed a very healthy financial condition, and the report of the executive committee showed excellent care of the properties and the improvement and development of the college plant. The bursar of the college, at the request of President B. T. Marshall, has recently prepared a statement showing the total assets of the college, year by year, since its incorporation in 1911, and the very interesting and significant fact is revealed that, from total assets of $1,207,578 in 1912, these assets have grown in 1926 to a total of $2,673,979. Of this total increase in a period of 15 years since the actual incorporation April 11, 1911, of $1,471,401 the sum of $1,004,237 represents the increase during the present administration and includes gifts of nearly $900,000; while to capital account from current income has been added a total of approximately $335,338. In other words, Connecticut college is revealed a strong and vigorous corporation whose actual assets in a period of 15 years have more than doubled. Its budget, which is administered with the utmost faithfulness, for the current year lies above $400,000.

At the same time, it is revealed that this strong and going institution is cramped for lack of buildings for the proper and comfortable administration of its educational program, and its endowment, though considerably increased in recent years, is still inadequate by more than $1,000,000 to maintain the faculty of excellence at fair and adequate salaries which a college of this standing should have. All available class rooms of the college are so completely occupied that not another class this current year could be organized and find a place of meeting except it were assigned to a social room in one of the dormitories. The curriculum for next year cannot be expanded by one class over the present unless the greatly needed new instruction building or two can be provided in the near future.

The specific needs of the college, in terms of buildings, are:

An adequate instruction building.

A chapel to seat approximately 800.

New dormitories with refectories incorporated in them, capable of providing accommodations for room and board of 250 students.

An administration building.

A new and adequate gymnasium.

A museum building, with adequate facilities for the department of fine arts, with galleries for permanent exhibition and studies.

A central assembly hall, with facilities for the department of music for practice rooms, chamber concerts, and the like.

Homes for faculty on or near campus.

In view of the excellent work done by the college, its standing in the ranks of American colleges, which is of the highest, the spirit and devotion of its undergraduates and alumnae to it, and the constant unusually devoted service of an excellent faculty, it is earnestly hoped by officers and friends of the college that in the course of a few years many of these greatly needed structures will be provided, and the endowment built up to an adequate figure, relieving the college of a situation which is now cramped and oppressive, and which to a degree, it must be acknowledged, hampers the even better work that the college is eager to accomplish.

Mrs. Mansfield on the Stage

Mrs. Beatrice Cameron Mansfield, widow of Richard Mansfield, the illustrious actor, has joined the Rockford Players and is now appearing with them, playing the lead part in the Veiller's mystery melodrama, The 13th Chair, which is in its second week at the Rockford theatre, Rockford, Ill. Mrs. Mansfield's engagement with the Rockford Players is an extended one.

The company is unique among stock organizations in that it rotates the leading roles among all of the actors.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bezanson of Lakes Pond was held at their home last Wednesday from 2 to 10. Mr. and Mrs. Bezanson were the recipients of many beautiful presents of silver from their friends. A special feature of the occasion was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Bezanson by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fisher of a wedding cake, the product of Mr. Fisher's skill in cake making. An invitation was issued to the Cohannie Community club and many [illegible]

THREE MILLION DIVIDEND IN HEALTH FOR STATE

A health dividend of more than $3,000,000 was reaped by Connecticut during 1925 in the reduction of preventable deaths according to a system of computation used in the annual report of Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state commissioner of health.

Evaluating the life of an adult at $5,000, a child at $1,000 and an infant at $500, the report shows in terms of dollars and cents the loss caused in the state by preventable diseases over a period of years.

In this manner it is estimated that the monetary loss in the state in 1925 was $17,896,500 as compared with an annual average of $20,985,600 in the years 1915 to 1919 inclusive, a net saving of $3,089,100.

Whooping Cough Saving, $63,000

The figures do not include the total loss from deaths but only the loss involved in the preventable percentage of deaths. Thus, in the case of whooping cough, of which it is estimated that 70 per cent of the deaths are preventable; 106 of the yearly average of 152 deaths are said to have been preventable, and evaluating the life of each of the victims at $500, the yearly loss was $53,000.

The figures in 1925, taken in comparison with the yearly average during the period of 1915 to 1919, show that the greatest monetary saving effected was in pulmonary tuberculosis. During the five-year period the average preventable loss was $6,430,000 while in 1925 the loss was reduced to $3,980,000, a saving of $2,450,000

Increases in Some Diseases

A notable saving was also effected in the loss from typhoid fever deaths, the yearly average having formerly been $485,000 while in 1925 it was $190,000, a saving to the state of $290,000 in human lives.

In a few diseases the loss for the year was greater than the averages during the 1915 to 1919 period. Cancer is shown to be claiming more victims annually, the average annual loss over the five-year period having been $360,000 while in 1925 it had increased to $238,000. A slight increase is noted in the losses from scarlet fever. Other diseases which claimed a greater number of victims were smallpox, influenza, venereal diseases and circulatory and nervous diseases.

MAN TO MAN CONFERENCES WOULD HAVE AVERTED WAR

Such Belief is Expressed by Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany—Asserts That if Statesmen Could Have Met For Four or Five Weeks in 1914 and Frankly Discussed the Situation the Great War Would Have Been Averted —Declares That the League of Nations Will Permit the Elimination of Colorless Exchanges of Diplomatic Correspondence.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 13—(AP)—The World war would have been averted Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany believes, if the statesmen in 1914 had been given as many opportunities of getting together as they have at present through the league of nations.

He voiced this view in commenting to the Associated Press on the success of the negotiations just concluded here which assured the organization of a league sytsem of investigation in place of the interallied control of German armaments to which his government objected. Remarking that not only France, but all the former enemies of Germany had contributed to his result, he continued:

"The first condition that made this possible is the existence of the league of nations, which permits representatives of the governments to confer frequently 'man to man', instead of depending on colorless exchanges of diplomatic correspondence.

"If the statesmen could have met for four or five weeks in 1914, just as the foreign ministers met at Locarno and Geneva, and discussed the situation frankly and unreservedly, I am convinced that the great war would have been averted.

"Here, then, is one great service perforced by the league of nations, which henceforth is destined to be a medium in arranging the affairs of Europe."

The league was necessary and useful for the prompt and harmonious reconstruction of Europe, he asserted, adding: "Europe simply cannot stand another war."

The Locarno security conference and the meetings in Geneva, he went on, had inaugurated a new system of philosophy in statecraft, and that was straight dealing. He paid glowing tribute to all his colleagues, representing other countries, with whom he had been negotiating.

He had special mention for Foreign Minister Vandervelde of Belgium who, the German statesman revealed, played the role of mediator in the difficult negotiations.

"And don't forget," he concluded, "that Belgium was the country with which Germany during the war and because of the war was on very bad terms. M. Vandervelde's attitude is indicative of the new Europe, based on cooperation and conciliation."

ZERO WEATHER AND SNOW IN NORTHWESTERN STATES

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—(AP)—From the Aleutians to the Alleghenies winter clamped its bitter grip today, accompanied by zero weather and heavy snow.

A cold wave whirling across the northern United States sent temperatures tumbling to the zero mark and buried the northwestern plains under a fall of snow which impeded traffic and caused accidents and death.

Tonight the fall in temperature made itself felt across Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan and the first below-zero weather of the winter was promised before morning in all the central states. To the west, over the area crossed earlier today and last night by the storm wave, thermometers recorded temperatures ranging from 6 below zero in Sioux City, Ia., to 31 below zero at Wilder, Mont., half a dozen points in Minnesota and the Dakotas reported twenty degrees or more under the zero mark.

Deaths attributed to the storm stood tonight at ten. Aged men were frozen to death in Minnesota and Iowa, while Montana and Colorado reported a death apiece in the storm, to increase the total from the four deaths in the Pacific northwest and two in Canada reported earlier today.

Drops of 45 degrees in 18 hours, and the weather bureau forecast drops of forty to fifty degrees tonight in parts of Illinois, Michigan and Indiana.

In Minnesota, where drifts ten feet deep were reported in places, passengers of a train bound for the Twin Cities waded a mile through the snow when the engine was derailed to get to a relief train.

The weather bureau forecast snow for part of the Great Lakes region and predicted the mercury would rise somewhat in the near northwest by late tomorrow.

FACING DISBARMENT HAROLD EVANS RESIGNS

HARTFORD, Dec. 13—(AP)—State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn has begun proceedings in the superior court to disbar Harold Evans from the practice of law in this state. Before Judge Edwin C. Dickenson tomorrow the state's attorney will charge that for the past year Evans paid two agents sums varying from $20 to $50 together with a commission on the amount of business solicited for him among bootleggers.

The "acts involve the character, integrity and professional standing of Evans, and render him unfit to continue as a member of the bar and an officer of this court," the complaint against him reads.

Evans announced his resignation from the bar today.

The state's attorney's office began checking upon the Hartford lawyer after two bootleggers in the police court last spring charged that Evans had instructed them to perjure themselves on the witness stand.

Evans has been practicing law in Hartford for several years. He was associated with counsel in the defense of Gerald Chapman at his trial in March 1925 for murder, but after the trial disappeared from the case.

EFFORT TO EXTERMINATE FRAUDULENT ADVERTISERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—A determined fight to exterminate fake advertisements of "anti-fat" remedies, patent medicines for incurable disease, beauty lotions, creams, soaps and other cosmetics, health belts and industrial schools practicing fraud, will be waged by the federal trade commission, W. E. Humphrey, member of the commission, told the Subscription Book Publishers' association at its convention tonight.

He estimated that such fraudulent advertisers obtain more than $500,000,000 annually from the public, a greater part of it coming from the poorer classes.

TOOK HER LIFE THROUGH FEAR OF LOSING EYES

HARTFORD, Dec. 13.—(AP)—During an attack of melancholy due to fear of losing her eyes, Mrs. Geraldine Jackson Withe, 32, wife of Stanley F. Withe, assistant director of publicity of the Aetna Life Insurance company, committed suicide at her home at 10 Stratford road, West Hartford this afternoon. Death was caused by firing a shot through her heart in the bedroom of her home. The body was found by Mrs. Withe's mother, Mrs. Louise M. Jackson of Boston, who was visiting her daughter.

MRS. MARBURY TAYLOR GAINS ENTRY INTO THIS COUNTRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Marbury Taylor, the former Georgette Lyon, French film actress and wife of Captain Marbury Taylor, whose entrance into this country was held up Sunday, was permitted to enter today after a hearing before a board of special inquiry on Ellis Island.

Mrs. Taylor was stopped from landing by imigration officials on the liner Suffren yesterday who said there was a discrepancy in her visa. She was admitted to this country under the six months visa issued to her in Paris. Captain Taylor was a wartime member of the staff of GeGneral William Wallace Atterbury and has been representing an American firm in Paris where he married Mrs. Taylor. His papers were not questioned.

He stated that his wife's papers were in order and said it was merely stupidity on the part of the immigration inspector which led to the temporary exclusion. Captain Taylor lives in Richmond, Va.

RUMANIA WOULD PLACATE ITALY AND JUGOSLAVIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 13—(AP)—Rumania is planning to offer its good services as mediator between Italy and Jugoslavia in their controversy over the Italo-Albanian treaty, it was announced today in diplomatic circles and also published in the newspapers, without denial by the government.

Rumania will propose a Balkan pact, similar to the Locarno pact. This is rather a delicate situation owing to the fact that Rumania last September concluded a treaty of friendship with Italy while she was a member of the little entente, in which Jugo Slavia is prominent, and the disruption of which, reports say, is threatened by the Italo-Albanian accord.

RUNAWAY ELEPHANT SUFFERING FROM COLD

OTTAWA, Kas., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Diamond, an elephant which escaped from the winter quarters of a circus at Quenemo, Kas., Saturday and left a trail of wrecked fences and outbuildings on an excursion through four counties, was cornered by a posse in a field near Garnett, Kas., late today.

With the temperature near zero, the tropic bred beast seemed to be suffering from the cold.

Trainers were attempting to bring Diamond into submission, while county officers sought rifles of large enough calibre to kill the fugitive should the plans for capture go awry.

Garnett school children were thrown into a panic today when the elephant appeared in the school yard there. A posse drove the beast out of town before it did much damage.

WON $43,000 VERDICT FOR DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(AP)—A verdict of $43,000 for the death of her husband was returned in supreme court today in favor of Mrs. Sadie Rayanka, of Yonkers, a few minutes after she gave birth to a child in Yonkers hospital.

George Rayanka, her husband, an engineer for the Pennsylvania railroad, was scalded when his locomotive pulling the "Atlantic City Flier," overturned near Camden, N. J., last April. Several passengers were injured.

Mrs. Rayanka, through her counsel, alleged that defective rails caused the mishap that brought death to her husband.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Admitting that he was a lame beggar for the Christmas season only, James Barry received his most substantial yuletide offering today in the form of a sentence to six months in the workhouse.

Barry was angered when a girl refused to give him alms, and struck her over the head with one of his crutches. He then ran off nimbly on the legs he had been displaying as crippled, but not nimbly enough to win a race with Police Sergeant Peter Kelly who captured him after a three block sprint.

ASHLAND, N. H., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Anything classed as a game of chance, from the penny slot machine and church raffles to poker playing and bridge, is taboo in Grafton county from now on. Backed by the attorney general, County Solicitor Clark B. Frost and a corps of assistants today began a "county cleanup" with this town.

Stores and garages offering punchboards and slot machines to customers were raided and the proprietors paid a grand total of $19.20 in fines before the local police magistrate. Among the games falling under the ban are the "guess the number of beans in the bottle for a prize" affairs often sponsored by local church organizations. The county solicitor and his aides are scheduled to continue their campaign in Plymouth tomorrow.

The agreement does not provide for increase in wages, nor reduction in working hours, two of the original causes of the strike.

House Democrats to Push Action in Tax Bill

Threaten to Resort to "Rusty" Rule For Circulating a Petition.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A rusty parliamentary key, the house rule permitting discharge of a bill from committee, is to be resorted to by democrats, in an effort to pry open the padlock republicans have hung on tax legislation, including the president's tax credit plan.

The rule, used only once in recent years, provides that a majority of the house—218 members—can, by circulating a petition, take a bill from committee and call it up on the floor for consideration.

Decision to employ this procedure was agreed upon today by democratic leaders as a last resort to bring from the days and means committee the $335,000,000 democratic tax reduction measure which was tabled Saturday along with all other revenue proposals.

The vote in committee then was strictly along party lines, republicans solidly lined up against and the democrats as a unit voting for consideration of a tax bill at this time.

Circulation of a petition, however, must be postponed 30 days, as the rule cannot be made operative until a committee has been given that much time to act. Even though it was voted to side-track a measure.

While house democrats were determining on a course of procedure, Secretary Mellon at the treasury made the calculation that the public debt would be reduced nearly $1,000,000,000 during the present fiscal year if no credit to taxpayers is authorized and no revenue bill passed.

In addition to the $383,000,000 surplus which he figures will be available for debt reduction and can be applied without congressional authorization, $556,000,000 would be available from the regular sinking fund and from war debt payments.

At the house both Representatives Garrett, the minority leader, and Garner, of Texas, the democratic financial spokesman, asserted they would not accept the verdict of the republican majority in the committee.

Representative Oldfield of Arkansas, asserted a majority of the house favored immediate tax reduction and that as democratic whip he was confident he could muster sufficient signatures to a petition to bring the Garner bill to the floor.

There are 183 democrats in the house. Oldfield is confident of obtaining the support of the two farmer-labor members, the one socialist and one independent. If all of these sign the petition, he still must obtain 32 signatures.

Garner expressed confidence that the necessary votes from republican ranks could be obtained.

POPE DEPLORES TENDENCY IN WOMEN'S FASHIONS

ROME, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Pope Pius took the stand today that what he termed the increasing immodesty in women's fashions constituted "an ugly, ruinous, catastrophic tendency which Catholic husbands, fathers and brothers should attempt to check at all costs."

The pope was addressing a thousand members of the Rome section of the Catholic Men's association. Thanking his auditors for an expressed willingness to co-operate in the campaign against immoral and irreverent fashions, the pontiff solemnly asserted modern styles to be "irreverent precisely because they are immoral, irreverent to human dignity, irreverent to body and soul."

"There is a phrase in holy writings," he went on, "which touches the basis of the matter, a phrase which God puts in the mouth of man when he makes him say: 'Lord, save me from an irreverent and shameless soul'."

SENATE DISMISSES CHARGES AGAINST JUDGE ENGLISH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A shadow of further impeachment proceedings fell over the senate today as it voted 70 to 9 to dismiss the charges against Federal Judge English of the eastern Illinois district, who resigned Nov. 4.

Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, surprised the senate by suggesting that it devise means of obtaining testimony in impeachment proceedings without the necessity of sitting as a court, because, he explained, "there are other impeachment proceedings necessary if I have been correctly informed."

NEVER HAD FLIRTATION, NEVER A SWEETHEART

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Although she is 24 years old, Dusolina Giannini, Italian-American opera and concert singer, has never had a flirtation or a sweetheart and doesn't know what a wink means she told ship reporters on her return today from triumphant European debuts.

A wink, from an incredulous reporter, meant nothing to the dramatic soprano.

"Did you get that?" the reporter asked.

"No, it was a blank," the singer replied.

She said one of her reasons for success was the fact that she always said a little prayer before going on the stage. She will rest in her Philadelphia home before starting a concert tour. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Antonietta Giannini.

Selecting the Christmas Gifts.

—:O:—

Now's the time to start enjoying Christmas. Look through The Bulletin's advertisements, note the selections which the merchants have arranged for your benefit, start early in the day and do your shopping while it is yet possible to do it in comfort.

Norwich merchants have anticipated what mothers and fathers and all the other gift givers are planning and figuring about right now. They are prepared for those who haven't started as well as for those who are nearly through their shopping.

It is for the advantage of all concerned that the holiday trading should not be delayed until the last minute. Christmas is so near that it cannot be delayed longer without encountering and increasing the jam that features the last few days.

Watch the ideas and opportunities which are set forth by the Norwich merchants and remember that everything favors those who shop early.

Remember the Days to Christmas Are Limited.

$1,250,000 Gift For College For Women

William Van Duzen Lawrence of Bronxville, N. Y., Gives Reasons For Donation.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Dislike for the "man-hating product" of American educational institutions for women motivated William Van Duzer Lawrence, retired merchant of Bronxville, N. Y., to give $1,250,000 for the establishment of a women's college here, he said when he left today for his winter home at Daytona Beach, Fla.

"Most colleges for women are overcrowded and they have become too mechanical," Mr. Lawrence said. "So much time is being devoted to sports that women who leave college upon graduation find themselves unfitted for marriage which is their real career."

Before Mr. Lawrence left for Florida he transferred securities to the trustees of the institution. Mr. Lawrence's home, Westlands, will be used as the administration building and will be the nucleus around which other buildings in the same architecture will be constructed next spring.

An instructor to every ten students with an enrollment limitation of 250 boarding students and the same number of day students in the present plan. In an effort to make the college support itself a tuition fee of $1,500 will be charged, he said.

RIDICULES PATRIOTISM PLEA OF FALL AND DOHENY

Special Prosecutor Roberts Made Vigorous Three Hour Plea For Conviction of Fall and Doheny For Conspiracy to Defraud the Government—Branded the Defense Contention That Doheny Bid on Pearl Harbor Though Patriotic Motive as "Bunk"—Arguments Will Continue Until Wednesday Morning.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—(AP)—The government today began its assault upon the structure of defense testimony in the Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy trial.

Owen J. Roberts, special prosecutor, began the concluding argument for the government with a vigorous three-hour plea for conviction of Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, veteran California oil man, for conspiracy to defraud the government in the leasing of the Elk Hills, California naval oil reserves.

He hurled verbal hand grenades at the heart of the defense case with pointed emphasis upon Doheny's $100,000 loan to Fall on November 30, 1921, upon the "war scare patriotic motive" as a factor in the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, oil storage plan, and upon the "veil of secrecy" which shrouded the negotiation between Doheny and the cabinet officer prior to the signing of the Pearl Harbor contract on April 25, 1922.

Touching on the defense contention that Doheny bid on the Pearl Harbor project because of anxiety over the strategic situation in the Pacific in 1921, Roberts said in slow, deliberate voice:

"Patriotism, bunk! They were out after the business. It's so much moonshine."

The competition which the defense contended preced the Doheny awards was described by the prosecutor as "an illusory sort of competition."

"I don't think there was an iota of real competition," he told the jury.

"This doctrine," said Roberts, alluding to Doheny's testimony that he saw nothing wrong in his loan to Fall, "is subversive to all government—inevitably supversive to honest government of any kind."

Attacking the defense position that the navy department's interest in the leasing policy precluded collusion between Dheny and Fall, Roberts said that all contracts were negotiated "and then carried out to Secretary Denby for his rubber stamp signature—that's all there was to that."

The concluding arguments began after three hours of heckling and quibbling between counsel over 76 tenders of instructions for the jury, which probably will receive the case Wednesday noon.

Fifteen of 28 suggested prosecution paragraphs and 20 of 48 defense tenders will make up the detailed instructions. The customary defense plea for an instructed verdict of acquittal was summarily rejected by Justice Adolph A. Hoehling, presiding.

Half of the government's allotted six hours were consumed by Roberts. The defense will use the entire court day tomorrow, and former Senator Atlee Pomerene will conclude for the prosecution Wednesday morning. Reading of the instructions will probably require an hour or more.

Roberts followed his assault upon the patriotic motive with a re-reading of Doheny's testimony that he believed the Elk Hills reserve might yield a profit of $100,000,000.

The defense contention that fear of drainage of naval oil through private wells dictated the leasing policy was met by Roberts with quotations from Doheny's testimony here that after the lease was signed in December, 1922, exensive drilling was held up until pipe lines and defineries could be built near the reserve.

"Do you suppose, gentlemen, that if any one was draining Mr. Doheny's oil he would not have done something about it? He's no charitable institution, is he?

"They talked about patriotism. Well, Mr. Doheny has testified he thought there might be a profit of $100,000,000 in the reserve, and it is in evidence that the Pan-American company made a profit of $791,000 on the oil they got in pay for the Pearl Harbor project. Those were the only contracts involved."

MAN COMMITTED SUICIDE RATHER THAN SURRENDER

WATERLOO, Que., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Refusing to surrender to a cordon of police, formed about the hotel to which he had been traced, Wilfrid Delodme, Savage Mills blacksmith, committed suicide here this afternoon after killing a constable and wounding a sheriff.

Delorme, wanted on a charge of pointing firearms at a neighbor, fled to his home when he learned police were trailing him. High Constable Jean Mesier and C. B. Jamieson, son of the sheriff of Sweetsburg, followed the man from his home and with reinforcements surrounded the Hotel Brooks.

Delorme barricaded himself in his room and refused to come out when the officers told him they held a warrant for him. His reply to the order to surrender was a volley of bullets. Constable Marcier fell, shot through the heart. Jamieson was hit in the hand.

Storming of the hotel room was delayed because Delorme's supply of ammunition was unknown. While a surprise attack on the killer's stronghold was planned, shot from inside the room were heard. Silence followed and in a few minutes the door was shattered. Delorme was found dead, his gun in his hand.

GIRL BANK ROBBER IS WIFE OF HER LAWYER

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Rebecca Bradley, 22-year old Texas university graduate and alleged bank robber, is the wife of Otis Rogers, young Amarillo lawyer, he revealed here tonight.

Previously the girl, who is charged with having robbed the Farmers National bank of Buda, Texas, last Saturday, had denied she was married. She had been working as a stenographer in the office of Attorney General Dan Moody, governor-elect, under her maiden name.

The announcement of the marriage was made in a statement by Rogers given out in the presence of his wife and John Cofer, Jr., Austin attorney, retained to defend the alleged girl bandit. It said they were secretly married October 28, 1925, and that "she did not go with me to Amarillo because I was just beginning my practice, and was financially unable to provide her a home there." Rogers said he came to defend his wife.

Mrs. Grace Bradley, mother of the girl said the announcement was a complet surprise to her.

At a hearing this afternoon at San Marcos, Justice of the Peace A. M. Ramsey denied bail and ordered the girl remanded to jail.

She had been released previously, however, on a writ of habeas corpus and bond of $5,000, and since Judge George Calhoun of the 53rd district district court will not pass on this this bond until tomorrow, she was allowed to return to Austin tonight.

In the event the girl is not granted permanent bond, she will have to remain in the Hays county jail until the second week in February when the Hawe county grand jury will consider her case.

84 FINED FOR VIOLATION OF IRVINGTON, N. J., BLUE LAWS

IRVINGTON, N. J., Dec. 13.—(AP)—An overworked recorder's court in this sprawling little Newark suburb, today levied fines of $2 each in 84 of the 86 cases brought before it by the arrest yesterday of storekeepers, reporters, taxi and trolley men, barbers, a pinochle player, and one youth who "did fiddle for merriment," all charged under the 1834 vice and immorality act, with breaking the Sabbath.

Ten of the remaining cases were taken under advisement by Recorder Stoddard and December 21 was set as the date for the hearing of charges against four bus and trolley operators who demanded trial by jury.

But the clearing out of so many of the cases did not remove all of the weighty problems which Stoddard found confronting him, when managers of motion picture theatres brought about the wholesale arrests in reprisal for their having been arrested two weeks ago under the same statute, and fined $1 each for operating on Sundays.

TESTIFY THAT BIRGER HAD THREATENED MAYOR ADAMS

BENTON, Ill., Dec. 13—(AP)—Relatives of "Big Joe" Adams, mayor of West City, near here, who was shot to death late yesterday by two unidentified gunmen, testified at the inquest today that threats against his life had been made by Charles Birger, leader of one of the southern Illinois bootleg gangs.

Two previous attempts had been made to kill Adams, who was a supported of the rival Shelton gangsters, and his death was the ninth in the deadly feud for control of the coal belt liquor traffic.

The inquest was adjourned until Wednesday afternoon Gus Adams, a brother of the slain mayor, said he believed he recognized the handwriting on a note used to decoy the mayor to his door, where he was shot down. Gus Adams said he desired more time to investigate.

GARVIN TOOK APPEAL IN DEER KILLING CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13—Charles E. Garvin of Scotland was fined $10 on each of two counts of a charge of illegally killing and possessing a deer, in the Scotland town court this afternoon, and given a 30 day jail sentence suspended for six months. The fines and costs amounted to $61.60 from which an appeal was taken to superior court. Garvin was represented by Attorney Edward Donnis of Scotland, a retired lawyer. To the reading of the complaint and request to plea, a demurrer was entered on the grounds of insufficient evidence. The demurrer was overruled by Justice of the Peace George N. Perry. Grand Juror Harry P. Chesbro read the complaint. Attorney Harry S. Gaucher of this city headed the prosecution and asked for a fine of $25 and costs on each of the two counts. A sort of compromise judgment was imposed in giving a suspended sentence and smaller fine. According to the allegation Garvin killed a deer on the night of November 29, last. The complaint was received by the state board of fisheries and game and investigated by Deputy Game Warden John Brecka of Warrenville. Part of the carcass of the freshly killed deer was found on Garvin's premises. The head, neck and hide of the animal had been taken to the Scotland town hall where the case was tried, to be introduced as an exhibit in the event a contest developed. Bonds of $150 furnished by John L. Base were continued in the case. In the courtroom a crowd of stalwart inhabitants of the deer infested countryside watched the proceedings of the court with interest and nodded with approval when Justice Perry stated that being an agriculturist he held no sympathy for the law against the slaying of deer. He went on, however, to say that regardless of the merits of the law it must be upheld and that a man who would violate the deer law would be as liable to violate any other. He then passed judgment. Garvin is widely known in this city but he commands little popularity.

THIRD MAN INVOLVED IN DEER SLAYING CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13—Edson Spocking of Hampton who struck the final blow to kill a deer which had been badly wounded by Porter Knapp and David Garrison who were fined in the Chaplin town court last Thursday evening for their act is himself now in the toils of the law on a charge of illegally killing the animal. Knapp and Garrison pleaded guilty to pursuing and wounding the deer and each paid a fine of $10 and costs. The case was presided over by Justice Charles B. Huss with George E. Reed as grand juror, County Game Warden John Ash of Pomfret read the complaint. Monday afternoon Spocking appeared before Justice of the Peace Samuel B. Harvey with Grand Juror Frank W. Landon prosecuting. He asked for a continuance to allow him to secure counsel and this was granted until Saturday, December 18. He is the caretaker of the Goodwin estate in the towns of Hampton and Chaplin. He came upon Garrison and Knapp as they were stalking the mentioned deer last Wednesday. The animal was severely wounded and Spocking borrowed a gun from one of the men and hit the deer over the head to end its sufferings. It is alleged taht the gun was broken, the stock being smashed, in doing this and the owner feels that Spocking should make retribution to him. A further allegation is set forth that the owner of the property on which the deer was killed had words with Spocking. This disagreement is expected to be entered as testimony. Spocking reported the affair of the wounding and pursuit of the deer and of his reasons for dispatching it.

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 13—Jewett City has among its many perquisites a full fledged rifle club, among the personnel of which are included not a few of the crack target makers in this end of the state. But when it comes to shotgun artists, "Doc" Sweet and "Doc" Browning can pepper in so many pellets into a barrel head at 10 rods, that it can be used for a fine sieve.

The twain, as is the annual custom of many local hunters, went down the Quinebaug last week to have a go at the shelldrakes that come to live during the snow and ice season in the partly frozen river. These facts will go to corroborate the stories told of many other hunters who have gone down to the Quinebaug to shoot shelldrakes. Between the two close to 100 shells were shot as the hunters persisted in their efforts to bring down one of the hard-bellied northern visitors, but they couldn't do it, and didn't. Their goose egg luck was not on account of bad marksmanship with no hits. Not so. The lower river, as the day's efforts drew to a close, had the appearance that some one had thrown a feather bed into the stream above. And, moreover, a visitor down the line Monday, reported the shelldrakes "flying low, just clearing the water," doubtless on account of the load of lead they were carrying.

The only local hunter who ever got one, and had the carcass to show, was the late W. C. Bliven, who shot one for the local Agassiz club. But then, it was claimed at the time that he owned a double barrelled Parker that would shoot around a corner.

CHESTNUT HILL

ROAD HOG FROM NEW YORK PAYS FOR LAW-BREAKING

Three high school girls of this place were driving to Lebanon Center Friday morning, with a horse and carriage when they met a large furniture van returning to New York. The truck remained in the center of the country road, leaving hardly room for the girls to drive by without going in the ditch. The horse, being a little afraid of the immense truck, swerved a little, tipping over the carriage and going up the high embankment.

Luckily the harness gave way. The girls were thrown in the road and except for bruises were not badly injured. The carriage and harness were damaged.

As the truck driver proceeded on his way, word was sent to the state police who investigated and soon brought back the driver. He was taken before Judge Kinnaird and found guilty of driving without taking proper precautions of safety for others. He pleaded guilty and paid costs of $24.80 and agreed to pay for repair of carriage and harness.

The very flavors of the forest itself
–the sweet-scented breezes of the woods, the appetizing odor of the earthen oven's blackened sides, the camp fire's dying embers
All impart their wonderful fragrances to "bean hole" beans
Now you may have what people everywhere have always preferred—beans with that "woods" flavor produced until now only by the "bean hole" method of baking beans out-of-doors in the Maine woods.
Actually very old in custom and tradition, Bean Hole Beans in this available, convenient form, is distinctly a new product, many times attempted but never before really reproduced.
It matches perfectly the old time fragrant flavors of beans baked in the old-fashioned out-of-door, earthen oven—beans flavored with the fragrances of the very forest itself.
People would have beans no other way if the method of preparation were not so difficult and inconvenient.
But even that obstacle has been overcome now and everybody may have beans like those baked in the ground—beans with that most appetizing of all baked bean flavors, plump, tender beans, prepared with molasses, brown sugar and delicious sugar-cured, prime pork.
Serve them tomorrow, but let the folks taste them before you tell them they are beans like those baked in the Maine woods.
Bean Hole Beans are named after the Maine logging camp custom of baking beans in an out-of-door ground oven called the "bean hole"

DANIELSON

DANIELSON INTEREST IN GOODYEAR CO. STRUGGLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 13—Stockholders here of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company have had their interest aroused through the legal battles now being staged for control of the great corporation, which is doing a marvelously successful business and which has a subsidiary company in this town—the Goodyear Cotton Mills, Inc.

An Akron despatch states that a surprise to the stockholders out there was the injunction suit filed in the federal court at Toledo, as it will have a vital effect on the fight for the control of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

Attorneys are quoted as saying that if the injunction removing F. A. Sieberling and the majority common stock voting trustees is made permanent, a damaging blow will have been dealt their chances to regain control of Goodyear. Mr. Sieberling at one time was president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and one of its largest stockholders. Mr. Sieberling is quoted as saying that the injunction proceeding is "a general attack on me."

The despatch says that if Mr. Sieberling and his associates are finally removed pending litigation, consisting of two suits in the common pleas court at Akron and another in the supreme court for Ohio at Columbus, will be vitally affected.

The injunction was the fourth suit to be filed in the Goodyear control fight. The first seeks to have the Laura L. T. Weiss suits attacking Goodyear control reopened; the second seeks to oust Clarence Dillion, Dillon, Read and Co., New York, and other financiers from control, and for an accounting; another suit, filed in the state supreme court of Ohio, asks for the removal of the present board of directors.

Flappers, subjected to much jibing on what they wear, how they act and generally proceed along the way of life, are laughing right out loud these December days. Their merriment is directed at the local colony of shieks. The girlies will tell you with gleefully abandon that some of the boys have taken to having their hair waved and that more of them spend hours daily developing a girlish bob. There's some information for the world. And a bit more: Rouge and lip sticks also are being sold to young men here and used by them, the girls claim, in their searching race after beauty and the favors of the fair sex. Well, if this is all true, a man might be excused for going out and socking his clay pipe through a mirror.

Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock private funeral services for Mrs. Theodore Fulton were conducted at her home on Academy street by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. A delegation of members of McGregor, Woman's Relief corps, of which Mrs. Fulton had been a member for years, attended. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Everett Colvin, J. Elmer Keen, Frank Moore and Frank Stimson. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

The body of Dayton DeForest Jordan, 65, was brought here from Riverside (East Providence), R. I., Monday afternoon to the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood. Mr. Jordan died Sunday after an illness of about an hour.

He was a native of Danielson, a son of Denison P. and Martha Jackson Jordan. His early education was obtained here and later he was engaged with his father in operating a market garden enterprise on the West Side.

At Riverside he had been employed for years as an electrician at the carbarn. Mr. Jordan has been a widower for years. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Ernest Torrey of Putnam.

Overhead equipment of the D. and P. Gas and Electric company in the central section of Danielson is now in the best condition in many years. During the past few months the company has run new wire and taken care of the requirements for the safety of its linesmen as well as assuring against breakage or excepting through unforeseen possibilities. Services in the borough are in what might be termed three sections, any two of which will function if the other happens to be temporarily cutout for any cause.

Crews of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company are this week engaged in extending the company's lines toward Hampton from a point in the western part of the town of Brooklyn. It is anticipated, weather permitting, that this line will be completed and energized to the foot of Hampton hill by Christmas.

Bids for the construction of the new plant of the Connecticut Mills company at Albany-Decatur, Ala., will be opened this week. President Obidiah Butler of the company says that he anticipates that work on the mill will be underway before the first of the year. It is hoped to have the mill completed by May. In Alabama's gracious climate construction can proceed without hindrance through a period of the year that brings ice and snow to New England. The mill is to cost about $600,000.

Nineteen girls came out for a meeting Sunday afternoon at the Congregational church at which plans for the formation of a Tri-Y group in Danielson were discussed. Secretary L. Gaffney, leader of the group, said Monday afternoon that it is planned to have a meeting every two weeks. A formal organization has not yet been made. Of the large number who attended the service the majority were residents of Hampton and communities in the adjoining town of Pomfret. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev A. Mollard, M. S. The bearers were John George, Joseph George, Ambrose Fitzgerald, Francis Fitzgerald, Arthur Murphy and Elliott Burnham.

As to personal taxes and one of the new regulations pertaining to the payment of them it may be mentioned that these taxes may not be paid now with property taxes, as was the rule for years. This is a separate tax and is being collected as such, so property owners are under the same obligation to pay this week as are those who pay a personal tax and own no real property.

It is probable that Killingly's share of the $60,000 county tax will be at least $7,000, which is more than a mill on the grand list.

Coasters on Cottage street are taking great chances of being injured because of the cross streets. Extremely narrow escapes from bad accidents already have taken place there.

Killingly's night school is going along very well, with those who have entered showing commendable interest. The school will continue in session until late in the spring.

Eric Johnson has been confined to his home on Carter street with an infected elbow, a development from a minor injury received in an automobile accident a few days ago.

PUTNAM

POSTMASTER AT PUTNAM HAS NO OPPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 13—The name of Archibald Macdonald, Sr., was among the names sent to the senate by President Coolidge to succeed himself as postmaster at Putnam. As the appointment has no opposition, he will be assured of another term of four years. He was originally appointed by President Harding to succeed Alexander Gilman, democrat, in September 1923 and resigned his office as mayor of the city to accept the postmastership.

That Mr. Macdonald has given entire satisfaction, is evidenced by the fact there has been no move to have anybody else appointed. During his term of office there have been many improvements added to the service, one of the most important of which has been the introduction of an automobile for delivery of parcel posts. Last year Putnam was one of the few offices in the state that had all of the Christmas mail delivered by Christmas eve. The carriers will not have a full holiday this year as the day followinw Christmas is Sunday and making two holidays together.

He has been stationed at the shrine for many years and is an old friend of Mr. Gilman.

NORRIS AND DAWES ARE AGREED; IT'S THE PIPE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, who has spent no small portion of his time denouncing the creations of Vice President Dawes, has at last hit upon a commodity bearing the Dawes label which he approves.

The Nebraska senator never has expressed great enthusiasm for the Dawes plan for collection of German reparations, and his comment on the suggested Dawes' revision of the senate rules has ranged both up and down from caustic.

But he smokes a Dawes pipe. Two of the famous up-side-down pipes are on the smoking table in the senator's office.

"Do you smoke them in Nebraska, or only in Washington?" he was asked.

"Both," he answered. "You know the vice president grew up in my state."

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

With the building year fast drawing to a close there is a perceptible slackening in the local building and during the past week only two permits were granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton, these being the two applications of the Standard Oil company filed last week. Two applications for small garages are on file but have not yet been granted.

There is no indication when the work on the new storage tanks for the Standard Oil company will start although the property at the foot of Shipping street is being cleaned up.

Work on many of the local projects although somewhat hindered by the unsettled weather of the past week is progressing favorably. Considerable work has been accomplished on the new home for the Dime Savings bank. At the Young block at the corner of Franklin and Main streets Contractor Sweeney has made good progress with the steel reinforcement work. Steel girders for the first and second floors have been put in place and the work of laying the first floor will start this week. Metal ceilings will be put in the corner store and the entire store remodeled.

The new steeple for the German Lutheran church on Franklin street is practically complete and aids much to the appearance of the building.

The work on remodeling the Sternlieb block on Water street is progressing with commendable speed and it is expected will be completed by the first of the month.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were nine sales of real estate, four more than for the corresponding week in 1926. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $326,075 and $30,900.

There were four sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 17 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $32,500 and $72,000.

State Building Permits

There were 538 building permits issued during the past week in the cities and towns in this state covered by The Commercial Record. These called for construction work estimated to cost $1,346,572. In the corresponding week of 1925 the number of permits issued was 299 and the total estimated cost $2,005,898. The building situation is less favorable than in preceding months, as measured by construction volume. On the other hand there have been more permits issued during the past two weeks than in the same period a year ago. A considerable amount of the new work being started at this time is of a minor nature, however.

Building Totals Smaller This Year

Official building permit figures from nearly 500 cities and towns reported to S. W. Straus and company show that the country as a whole is between four and five per cent behind for the first ten months of the year.

The 25 leading cities, where more than half of the country's building activity is at present centered, show a loss of only about two per cent during the first ten months.

New York city shows a gain in this period of nearly three per cent. Chicago and Detroit are also ahead of last year.

The ten months total for the cities and towns reporting to the S. W. Straus and company, National Monthly Building survey, was $3,705,000,000. The 25 leading cities, selected on a basis of volume reported, had a ten months total of $2,232,000,000. New York city's total was $871,006,465, indicating that the greater city will surpass its 1925 record, which was more than one billion dollars.

New London

Construction work throughout the city suffered a distinct setback this week due to the big snow storm that temporarily halted work on jobs that were still exposed to the weather. A large number of tradesmen were thrown out of work for one and two and in some instances, more days. On construction jobs where the foundations and excavations are incomplete the snow, combined with the cold spell that set in late last week has resulted in much of that work being called off until more favorable weather.

The heavy snow provided a means for the few unemployed in the city to obtain work for a few days with the city of private individuals shoveling sidewalks. Many laborers temporarily laid off because of the snow found work because of the snow.

Three proposed garages and one proposed cottage constitute the basis of the four building permits issued by the council this week. The total of permits issued is the lowest for several weeks and follows in the wake of the largest number for one month issued last month when 24 permits were issued in one week.

A local contractor has been awarded the contract for another new cottage in Ledyard street for Annie M. Hislop. The new cottage will be 24 by 30 feet in dimension, of frame construction and of modern design. Contractor Wassmer recently completed another cottage for Mrs. Hislop in Ledyard street.

Of the three garage permits issued this week all are designed for two car storage. E. H. Glynn plans to erect a frame garage 20 by 22 feet in Willets avenue, C. J. Crouch and C. J. Watrous a frame garage 10 by 18 feet in Chapel street and E. Grann a cement block garage, 20 by 20 feet in Fair Harbour place.

Work is nearing completion on extensive alterations to the Lena building in State street for the owners. Former offices of the building have been renovated and altered to provide five apartments. Plans for the work specified new wiring and plumbing together with other necessary fixtures.

Interior finishing is being pushed rapidly on the new one-story brick building erected in Main street near Church street for Sidney Suiman. The new building has a modern front with tapestry brick and imitation granite trimmings and plate glass windows.

Work has been completed on the new garages being built by Perry and Stone in Church street. The new structures comprise a three-stall section of brick facing Church street and a two-stall section of concrete block attached to the former 13 stalls located on the property. A two-story frame dwelling was razed to make way for the new garages.

A local contractor started temporary repairs to the Second Congregational church following the fire. Exposed portions of the church house are being covered and props erected under sections which are in danger of collapsing and causing further damage to the edifice. It is expected plans for the rebuilding of the church will follow immediately in the wake of insurance adjustments and work be started as soon as possible.

Work is being pushed on the rebuilding of the brick cornice of the Hull building at Main and Masonic streets. The cornice was recently condemned by Building Inspector William Gunn due to the wear on the motar leaving the overhanging bricks in a precarious position. A scaffold has been erected on both sides of the structure to permit the work in the new work the overhanging bricks are being removed to eliminate any future hazard.

Fishers Island, N. Y.

Plans for extensive additions and alterations to the Fishers Island Union Free school, Southold, Fishers Island, have been completed by Architect F. S. Langdon and will be soon received from an invited list of bidders for the work. Plans for the new work specify an addition 36 by 72 feet that will be of hollow tile, wood and stucco construction of two stories. The first floor will be arranged for a gymnasium with battleship linoleum floor, locker rooms, showers, etc. The second floor will provide an auditorium with a seating capacity of 300 persons. A stage and anterooms also will be included for the second floor. Plans specify metal ceilings. One classroom and a boiler room will be enlarged and a new corridor provided. Bids for the new work will be received as soon as the plans of the architect are approved by the grounds division and school building divisions of the state of New York. The plumbing, heating and electric wiring will be included in the general contract.

Considerable work is being done at Fishers Island, N. Y. All the roads, walks and landscape work for I. W. Bonbright have been practically completed. This work included the construction of asphalt macadam driveways, building of walls, blasting of rock and general grading and beautifying of the grounds around the estate. The work also included the construction of a tile pipe drainage system embedded in reinforced concrete together with the necessary catch basins and manholes.

Much has also been done on the George E. Hardy job where the construction of concrete pools, subgrading of roads and general landscape work is now underway. A large pond is at present being cleared and dredged for a depth of about eight feet by Benvenuti and Sons. This pond when completed will supply all the water for the concrete pools that are being constructed on the grounds.

Another job which was recently awarded the above firm is the construction of concrete foundations, walls and general grading on the proposed new W. H. Nichols, Jr., house for which plans call for a building approximately 190 feet in length by about 40 feet in width.

All of this work shall be carried on during this winter and is expected to be completed late in the spring.

Westerly

Winter weather with cold temperature and snow falls during the past week has greatly delayed progress on the High and Canal street business blocks. With the rising of temperatures work of the bricklayers has progressed for several days. At the light and power office building being erected at 45 High street for the South County Public Service company, the front brick wall has risen on the fourth floor to nearly the height of the roof and stone tablet blocks have been set in the brick wall of this store with the inscription on the left side block "1868" and on the right "1926." Screens have been placed in the third story windows to permit the continuation of cement pouring.

At the Nardone block, corner of Canal and High street structural iron girders have been placed for the third story roof and a welders torch was in use on Monday. Some progress has been made in laying the face front brick on the third story and curved girders have been set at the rounded corner at Canal and High streets.

Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi has issued the following permits for the second week in December:

Dec. 10—Angelo Gencarelli, corner Oak and Tower streets. Permit for the remodeling of residence at the corner of Oak and Tower streets.

Dec 11—Allen Seed, New York. Cottage house, 36 feet x 62 feet on Lots Nos. 6 and 7 on the plat of Weekapaug layout of building lots, east of the Weekapaug Inn, Walter C. Hiscox company, contractor.

Trees Regulate Mercury

In a discussion of the effect of trees on temperature Wesley Bailey Leach, city forester of New York, points out that if our streets and parks were well supplied with vigorous trees we should have much cooler summers and warmer winters.

He gives as his chief reason for this theory the fact that the temperature of a tree never varies, in summer or in winter, from 54 degrees Fahrenheit. "If we cross one of the avenues on a hot day," states Mr. Leach, "when the temperature is 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and pass under the shade of a tree, we are refreshed by the cool air that meets us. What makes the change? Not the shade alone, but chiefly the fact that we are in the presence of a body that has a fixed temperature of 54 degrees Fahrenheit, or 46 degrees cooler than the street temperature."

Likewise, on a cold winter day, in passing from the zero temperature of the street into a group of trees, the warmth experienced is due not only to the shelter afforded by the trees but to the warmth of the trees themselves.

Invented the Omelette

On a tombstone near Dijon, France is this epitaph. "Here lies, mourned by his family and lamented by his patrons, Jierre Mercier, restaurant manager, 1848-1906. He was the inventor of the famous Mercier omelette, the recipe for which his son, living in the Rue Dijon, this city, is the sole proprietor."

Action against the United States government will be instituted in the New York courts because of the seizure of the German Barkentine Carmen, 148 miles out of New York, last month, Joseph P. Connolly, lawyer, announced.

AUTO REGISTRATION OFFICES

In connection with a statement issued by the motor vehicles department to the effect that registration of autos up to last Saturday was 40,000 behind last year at this time, it directs attention to the fact that a at rects attention to the fact that at a new branch office opened this year at Stamford there has been done almost as much business as at the New London and Waterbury offices.

Opening up a branch office at Stamford was in response to a demand for giving better service to the people of the state. That there should be an appreciation of it by the people of that city was to be expected, so there seems nothing strange that it should be doing about as much business as two of the other offices which have been doing business several years.

It is believed that there would be similar appreciation on the part of the auto owners in other cities of the state where there is no branch office if the same effort was made to accommodate and serve them. Instead they are forced to go to other cities and they don't like the idea of driving long distances at this season of the year and then standing in line for hours in order to get served at these congested points.

There is the alternative of mailing the application to the main office at Hartford and receiving the certificates and markers by mail. That is the means which more and more are employing each year, and by the department's report 75 per cent. of those who have gotten their 1927 certificates have applied to the Hartford office. That in itself indicates that they are not getting the service through branch offices which they are entitled to. There are many auto owners but only a few branch offices.

As a matter of justice to the auto owners of those cities in the state which have no branch registration office this accommodation should be provided for them. It is time that all were treated alike in this kind of service. The test that has been made with Stamford indicates what the sentiment is and with branch offices in all cities the number of certificates for 1927 would not only be much larger at this time but there would be eliminated that unsatisfactory congestion and delay which feature the closing days of the year.

THE RESULT AT GENEVA

Under the terms of the treaty of Versailles there has been interallied control of armaments in Germany. This has proceeded without trouble but Germany was desirous of getting away from such a condition. It didn't like the idea and in the light of improved relations with the allied nations it was inevitable that it should seek a change.

What the improvement is in the European relationship is well indicated by the successful conclusion of the conference of ambassadors at Geneva whereby interallied control gives way to control by the council of the league of nations. It doesn't mean that such supervision has been done away with but it is far more acceptable to Germany that it should be in the hands of the league than that it should be carried out by the nations with which it has been at war and in which France has had such a conspicuous part. There bids fair to be less friction under the new arrangement and a greater disposition to give unbiased consideration to questions concerning armaments.

The agreement is the result of concessions on both sides, but it is a step for the better. Germany has been showing marked improvement. It has been meeting its obligations under the Dawes plan and it has been developing industry and commerce. In its relationships with its neighbors less distrust has been manifested and it was quite natural that it should chafe under the control of its military affairs by other and neighboring countries. Germany has no desire to change its military machine. There is no evidence that it hopes to gain anything in that direction through the new agreement, but it will escape from the thumb that it is under the thumb of France, while the other nations will be relieved of the unpleasant task of close supervision and turn such responsibilities over to a league of nations committee which can be quite as strict without arousing suspicion or creating offense.

The outcome is another victory for Geneva. The get together spirit is working beautifully in parts of Europe just now.

A COASTING TRAGEDY

The latest coasting tragedy occurred in Little Falls, N. Y., where four boys were killed when the sled upon which they were sliding was struck by a motor truck on the steepest hill in that city.

The arrest of the driver of the truck followed. Whether this was any more than a matter of form will be known later but it is apparent that there is a big opportunity in Little Falls for action that would prevent the repetition of any more such accidents. If it becomes necessary to forbid coasting on the streets that step is desirable in the interest of humanity. Apparently there has been no restrictions in that city and it is unfortunate that it was necessary for four boys to be killed in order to bring the dangerous situation to attention.

Only last week in the city of Providence the chief of police issued an order that all coasting in the public highways must be stopped. This followed an accident in which a girl received a broken jaw. It was evidence that traffic conditions were too dangerous and action was immediately taken to prevent any further accidents.

In the interest of safety it has been found necessary in many cities to undertake regulation or to prohibit the coasting. Knowing what could be expected as the result of other years such steps have been taken in advance of accidents. That it has been the means of saving life cannot be said but it is through such preventive measures that safety is insured. There is a dislike to seem to interfere with the pleasure of children but when it comes to drawing the line between pleasure and serious injury or death there can be no haggling. The city that has hills which can be restricted to coasting during certain hours is fortunate. Those which have not or those where traffic will not permit must accept the inevitable and develop coasting places elsewhere than in the highways and feel grateful that timely steps are taken for the protection of the lives of the children.

POSTAL RATES

Part of the time of congress is taken up with undoing of the things that ought not to have been done as well as doing the things that are needed.

This is illustrated by the bills which have been introduced by the chairman of the house committee on postoffices and postroads by which he hopes to overcome the handicaps which were placed on postal revenue when the last revision of postal rates was made.

He hopes for the passage of the bills which call for the restoration of the one cent rate on private post cards, the flat rate of one cent for each two ounces on second class matter, stampless business cards, additional charges on mail matter sent short of postage and graduated special handling postage charges on postals.

When the last revision was made it was done hurriedly. It was done for the purposes of providing more revenue to meet the expenses which had been increased by the raise in pay for postal employes. The higher rates got the wrong reaction from the public. In resentment there was an abandonment of the profitable mailing card business and through other rates it developed that the government was really handling more mail matter for less money because of the manner in which it was possible to circumvent the rate. Likewise much matter which had been previously sent by mail is now transported by other means. The post card business fell off 30 per cent. and the change in the third class rate caused a falling off of 20 per cent. in receipts.

The study of the effects of the revision has convinced the legislators that there is need of a change. The introduction of the new bills is not the first evidence of it, but the present session of congress should be impressed by the need of finding time to give consideration to this matter.

SLUM REMOVAL

Dealing with the slums is no easy task. There are methods regarded as effective and desirable until something is said on the other side. Then the situation changes.

Not so long ago the idea of cleaning up the slums of New York was advanced by a philanthropist who would replace the existing slums with new buildings. He believed that the provisions of new places of residence would solve the problem and that in view of the money that would be put into the project and the cause for which it would be done warranted the making of such property tax exempt.

It was inevitable that opposition should be raised to it. It was a big proposition and there would be difficulty in getting people to furnish the necessary money, but it was inevitable that the point should be raised that it is not the buildings but the people who make the slums and that while the replacement of the present buildings by new and modern ones might solve the problem for the immediate present they would become slums again within a year or two, because the people would not appreciate the betterment and would hasten the return of the undesirable conditions. This is claimed by the president of the real estate board of New York city, who regards it unjust to think of exempting such property from taxation while other property developed for housing requirements gets no such favor.

Getting rid of the slums is a big problem for New York city and yet no city should be better informed upon slum conditions and what makes and continues them than that very city and those who wrestle with its housing conditions. Eliminating the slums is more than a simple house-cleaning proposition.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Putting the marines on the job seems to have decreased interest in mail robberies.

The man on the corner says: As a regular diet most anything is better than prejudices.

As long as there is only talk about war in the Balkans the dark cloud may soon blow over.

Happy are those who are doing up their Christmas presents instead of worrying about what they are going to buy.

"Do not open until Christmas" tags may be an aggravation but they help in bringing about a better distribution of Christmas packages through the mail.

Perhaps those who are advocating cancellation of the war debts will make the most of the opportunity to urge the use of the surplus in helping the debtor nations to meet their interest obligations.

Interest on our national debt is about $600,000,000 and yet some seem to think we ought to go on paying that for a long term of years without paying much attention to debt and therefore interest, reduction.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13.—The matter of reapportionment of state representation under the constitution will again come up for debate, and possibly for a vote at the session which opened this week, although it is doubtful if the measure will pass at this time.

A bill introduced by Chairman Fenn of the house census committee goes before congress in his name, and not as a committee bill, but it is pretty safe to assume he has the support of some, or perhaps a majority of his committee in submitting the measure in its present form.

The bill is novel, inasmuch as it does not propose to affect the present representation, but would not become operative until 1933.

The Fenn bill has the endorsement of Floor Leader Tilson.

The Fenn bill proposes to keep the membership of the house at 435 as at present, but the apportionment of members to many states would be changed by the ever increasing population in others. The Fenn bill proposes to base representation on the 1930 census instead of the last census which was taken in 1920. This is a radical departure from former apportionments.

The bill provides that states gaining or losing in population shall have those extra or fewer congressmen elected as representatives at large until such state is redistricted.

Representatives from states where only one member of the house is sent, would be elected as representative at large. The secretary of commerce would be empowered to apportion representatives from each state according to the result of the 1930 census. Although possibly passed by the 69th congress the measure would not become effective until the 73rd congress.

The Fenn bill entirely ignores the census of 1920. There is a wide diversity of opinion in congress as to the requirement of reapportionment under the 1920 census if the terms of the constitution are complied with. Some maintain that the reapportionment is mandatory and others that it is not, and a lively scrap is pretty sure to follow if the bill comes to debate.

The constitution reads, "Enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the congress of the United States and within every subsequent term of ten years in such manner as they (congress) shall by law direct." And as representation is based on such enumeration, many members declare the reapportionment is required under the 1920 census.

Another question that arises is whether or not the 69th congress can make laws for the membership of the 73rd congress eight years hence, with each congress before that time having opportunity to revise, rescind or modify such act.

Advocates of the Fenn bill believe it a good thing for the country to have the law passed when it is still not positively known which states will be favorably or adversely affected by the change. Of course there isn't much doubt in the minds of any that New England will be hard hit by the 1930 census as a basis. It is expected that Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire and Rhode Island would each lose one member of congress, that Massachusetts may remain as now and Connecticut gain one. The west, with its strong trend to radicalism and party insurgency is expected to be the section that would gain under the 1930 census and reapportionment.

But not only would the membership of the house be changed, but such reapportionment would affect the number of presidential electors and representation at national conventions as well.

Making the measure effective in 1933 would give every state the same representatoin during the 1928 presidential campaign as it now holds. Thereafter each state would be under the 1930 census even though such census had not been taken or completed with the new apportionments made. The change would unquestionably reduce the voting power of New England and increase that of the western states, though to what extent cannot be forecasted in detail. California would gain from three to five representatives in congress with other western states close in line. It is easy to see that factional power would be even more in the foreground than at present, in all political questions of the day.

Advocates of the Fenn bill believe that trouble is sure to be a feature anyhow, and the quicker it is out of the way the better for all concerned. Many other reapportionment bills will be filed this session now the Fenn bill has set the pace, but with only three months of congress left, no action is expected. In that case the Fenn bill and all others will die automatically the 4th of March when the 69th congress ends.

New England has a pretty hard row to hoe as it is, in keeping itself from being over-ridden by the western groups; if its number of representatives is reduced, the struggle will become even more desperate. Probably New Hampshire would get one representative at large, instead of two by districts—Vermont would fare the same; Maine lose one, Massachusetts keep as now and Connecticut gain one, according to forecasts. But that will probably result ultimately, as the trend of population goes west, the question today seems to be whether to hasten or put off the inevitable loss to New England.

The diplomatic reception at the white house this week marked the opening of the official social season.

Chattering in many foreign tongues, scores of foreign diplomats and members of their families greeted the President and Mrs. Coolidge, then passed into one of the rooms especially reserved for them and the cabinet and a few other high lights of the political sky.

And for once the men almost outshone their women companions in glitter of jewels and gay colors. The men wore the court costumes of their countries. Brilliant scarlet, red and yellow, oriental and other Far East brocades and satins, topped in some cases by the red fes of Turkey, the white turban of the Indies or the cocked hat of the navy. Moreover, the men were resplendent with gay sashes, knee breeches or velvet, sparkling jewels in the way of decorations, emblazoned velvet coats, collars of diamonds, rubies and other precious stones, with the display of gold lace. The women, not only of the diplomatic corps were so bespangled that they sparkled from the tip of their jeweled hair to the tip of their Rhinestone slippers sauntered through the great marble corridors of the white house with foreigners whose complexions ranged all the way from the white race, to the dusky diplomats from the Orient and the yellow race from China and Japan. It was a touch of world court and league of nations; or like a picture thrown on a movie screen. And in the midst of it all stood President and Mrs. Coolidge, receiving this crowd of great foreigners with dignity and great personal charm. The president, in conventional evening clothes and Mrs. Coolidge beautifully dressed in white satin cut on simple lines, wearing as her only jewels a string of pearls.

But it is not to be overlooked, that "our folks" held their own in the midst of the contrasting display of sparkling gems and colors. Well bred, well poised, President and Mrs. Coolidge can always stand the test of high social life.

Senator Bingham, Floor Leader Tilson and their wives were prominent among the guests selected by the white house to share the distinction of the so-called behind the line, which now means they were accorded places in the room set apart for the cabinet and diplomats, where the senator and the congressmen towered high above the heads of the foreign dignitaries.

On Saturday Congressman Tilson was guest at the National Press club luncheon, given in honor of Will Rogers, the humorist.

Congressman Freeman has introduced a bill to repeal the law under which interstate transportation of films of boxing matches, prize fights and similar films are now prohibited from being transmitted from state to state, even though in so doing the films pass only through the state whose local laws permit such passage.

Mr. Freeman believes such prohibition should be under state and not federal laws, and that the state of Connecticut, where such films are not banned, and in certain other states where there are no restrictions, should not be held accountable to the federal government. In fact, Mr. Freeman believes very strongly in state rights and believes the transportation of films is one of the them.

THE LAST STRAW

When you looked at Hortense you saw immediately why George had married her, or why almost any impressionable and trusting young man should have wished to marry her, because Hortense had that distracting variety of beauty which makes it quite impossible to stop, look and listen.

But after you had spent an evening in their company you came away muttering, "Now-how-could-such-a-fine-fellow-as - George-be-such-a-dumbbell!" It got so that when the card club met everybody grew uncomfortable before the party was over. On the way home the other men would tell their wives fiercely that if they had a wife like that they'd well—, the variety of things they promised to do was interesting.

And among themselves the other women said they didn't see how George stood it! What he ought to do, they insisted, was to assert himself. They wouldn't blame him, they said, if he actually beat her. Maybe it would do Hortense good! People who have never been present at an actual wife beating are apt to talk largely like that.

What Hortense did, sitting there looking like a blue and gold and cream angel, was to nag, slam and belittle and humiliate her husband, sweetly and sometimes laughingly. Beyond a tightening of the muscle in his cheek over his jaw George made no sign that he felt the barbs.

"Oh, dear, that sounds grand!" Hortense would murmur when the Richardsons mentioned their coming vacation in Europe. "No hopes of us ever being able to do anything like that! I expect we'll still be taking our two weeks off at some farmhouse in the country when we are doddering old people! What's that—the Smiths have a new car? Why, they had a new one last year! George and I will be driving the same old flivver I suppose when the Smiths are on their fifteenth new one! Well, so long as it holds together and doesn't drop us out in the middle of the road!

"George! Didn't you see what I led before? And here you play a club and lose the game! You can't help it if you haven't card sense, but just ordinary intelligence ought to tell you—you never seen Harry miss a signal like that! Try to keep your mind on the game instead of mooning! George is always dreaming his life away about something else rather than the thing on hand! I tell him that's the reason he hasn't got any farther up in the world—"

"If he wouldn't be so doggone courteous to her!" the men complained. "Of course he's married to her and nobody wants him to bust up his family with a divorce but he oughta throw a good healthy scare into that girl and let her know what's what! He's got ten times her brains and to hear her you'd think she was ninety-nine per cent of everything!"

But just what George should do was a subject airily skirted and left undiscussed.

One evening at the Parkers' Hortense had been particularly exasperating. She had ended by saying that if George only would take her advice maybe he'd get a raise as Arthur had instead of their practically having to starve to death, when George without a moment's warning sprang suddenly to his feet. When he threw down his cards there was an appalled, electric silence. The prayed-for moment had come and right there before them all the storm was to burst upon Hortense! For a long moment he looked at her—and then with a murmured apology toward his hostess he sat down again quite calmly. He said he'd make it two no-trumps.

Their friends said if George wasn't such a really fine fellow and such a hard worker due to reach his goal with time and encouragement and so sacrificing where Hortense was concerned it wouldn't be so bad—but he had the habit of wearing an overcoat one season too long if Hortense wished a new fur wrap like Elsie's, and of getting his own breakfast in order that she might not have to rise so early. She had a way of looking at another woman's new diamond bracelet which, without a spoken word, was warranted to make a man feel like a criminal and if he lit his second cigar a day she could sigh daintily and infer that he was a mere ruthless bandit.

If George dropped a fork, stepped on a foot, tipped over a vase or did not part his hair straight she laughed commiseratingly and said that was just like George and he just didn't seem able not to do things he shouldn't. She invariably finished any story he tried to tell and at this universal signal for a family fight the others would wait expectantly for the heavens to fall upon her, but George resigned himself pleasantly enough to hearing her make hash of the little tale.

"Well, when you come to think of it," the men said to their wives on the way home, "there really wasn't anything George could have done to the little idiot outside of wringing her neck, and of course, we'd have had to stopped him, much as we'd have hated to!"

But the women, being women, had caught the expression in George's eyes during that moment he had stared at his wife, and they knew what George had done to Hortense in that moment was worse than wringing her neck because he had let her live—but from then on he had escaped. She had lost him utterly and finally, and she might babble on eternally without ever hurting him again.

When you come to think of it, Hortense certainly got her come-upance, and in full measure—and can spend the rest of her days considering it!—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The distinction of being the only Union veteran of the Civil war now serving in congress belongs to Francis E. Warren, who for thirty-six years has been one of the representatives of Wyoming in the upper house. Senator Warren is now in his eighty-third year and is the oldest member of the senate both in years and point of service. In 1862 he was enrolled at Pittsfield, Mass., and served for a time in the Forty-ninth Massachusetts infantry. Senator Warren is the only member of congress who holds the congressional medal of honor. The medal given him recites that he volunteered in response to a call and took part in the movement that was made upon the enemy's works under a heavy fire in advance of the general assault." This was on May 27, 1863. Later in the war Warren was wounded, and at the age of eighteen was mustered out of the service.

Biographical History

History as contained in the biographies of representative men is both delightful and profitable reading. Montaigne tells us that "the only good histories are those that are written by such as commanded or were employed themselves in weighty affairs or that were partners in the conduct of them, or that at least have had the fortune to manage others of like quality."

Our literature is especially rich in biographies and autobiographies of men prominent in American history, such as Washington, Franklin and Lincoln, and in personal memoirs such as those of Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Johnston and Longstreet. The accounts of the Civil war by the northern and southern commanders form a valuable exercise of the judgment for they show how honorable men may look at a question from different points of view. Such reading should teach self reliance and confidence as well as modesty and fairmindedness. One should first read a short and reliable

Sammy Jay Sees a Queer Performance

You'll find that there will always be A reason for what'er you see.

—Sammy Jay.

It is because Sammy is always looking for the reason for things that he knows so much about what is going on in the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest and in the Old Orchard. If Sammy sees a thing he wants to know the reason for it. He isn't satisfied until he finds out that reason.

"There is no use in seeing a thing if you can't find the reason for it," says Sammy. "You don't learn anything from just seeing things; you must understand them."

Undoubtedly Sammy is right in this. There is no knowledge without understanding. So when Sammy is puzzled by a thing he keeps studying and studying until he finds out all about it.

Now it happened that there was a little crust on the snow. Sammy had stopped in the top of a tree in the Green Forest where he could look out over the Green Meadows. He saw over toward the edge of the Old Pasture but out on the Green Meadows, a red spot. "That's Reddy Fox," said Sammy to himself. "It must be hard hunting for Reddy these days. What is he up to now, I wonder. That's a queer performance."

But just then Reddy turned and trotted away toward the Green Forest

Reddy was too far away for Sammy to see clearly what he was doing. He had jumped up in the air two or three times, and it certainly looked queer. Sammy watched for a few minutes, then spreading his wings, he flew over to where he could see more clearly what Reddy was doing. Reddy was so intent that he just didn't notice Sammy at all. He ran along on the snow for a short distance with his nose down as if he were following a track. He wasn't however. Then a Sammy noticed that his ears were cocked forward as if he were listening for something. Once or twice he stopped and seemed to be listening to something under the snow. Suddenly he jumped up in the air and, with all four feet bunched together, came down hard on the crust. The crush cracked. Sammy could see it cracking. Instantly Reddy began to dig furiously down, breaking through the crust and making the snow fly. He buried his head in the snow. In a moment he pulled his head out, shook it, and blew the snow out of his nose. He looked disappointed. But he didn't waste any time. He ran forward a step and jumped again just as before. Of course the higher he jumped the harder he would come down, so he seemed to be jumping as high as he could. Those four black feet of his were bunched right together, and this time when he struck the crust he broke right throw. How he did make his forepaws fly! The snow came out between his hindlegs in a cloud. Then once again he lifted his head looking disappointed, blew the snow from his nose, and went on to do the whole thing over again.

Sammy Jay stood on one foot and scratched his topknot with the other. "Now what," said he, talking to himself, "is Reddy Fox up to? I must look into this. I have never seen him do that before, but he did it just as if he had done it often. There must be a reason. Reddy Fox never does a thing without a reason for it. He can't be doing that for fun. I guess if I keep watch I'll find out what his reason is."

But just then Reddy Fox turned and trotted away toward the Green Forest. He was through with jumping and breaking the crust. Sammy was disappointed. He knew it would be of no use to ask Reddy what he had been about, for Reddy wouldn't tell him. Sammy flew down to one of the places where Reddy had been digging. He looked all about very sharply with those bright eyes of his. But he didn't see anything to explain why Reddy had done this thing. Disappointed, Sammy flew back to the Green Forest. "I'll watch," said he. "What Reddy has done once he'll do again. Sooner or later I'll find out what it all means. It's a queer performance. Yes, sir, it's a queer performance."

THREE ESSENTIALS FOR HOLINESS SAYS MISSIONER

Blend sincerity, purity and kindness together and you get the makings of holiness, said Rev. Walter E. Bentley, former Shakespearean actor and founder of the actor's church alliance, at his mission service Monday evening at Christ Episcopal church. Rev. Mr. Bentley is conducting a preaching mission and preparation for the coming crusade at Christ church this week with services daily. His topic Monday evening was What is the Will of God to You and his text was "This is the will of God, even your sanctification." The first part of the service was devoted to a song service and the question box. The missioner answered a number of questions that had been dropped in the question box provided for that purpose.

Rev. Mr. Bentley in his sermon said that 38 years ago he was an actor in the city of Boston and he heard a stirring sermon by Phillips Brooks. The result of that sermon has brought me here tonight, he said. I have never forgotten the text, This is the will of God, even your sanctification. Without Him we find no rest, he said. I don't think happiness is the ideal we should look forward to. I think happiness is a transient thing; it comes and it goes. God isn't much interested in whether we are happy or whether we are miserable. I think His purpose is the higher type of happiness, which is blessedness. God wants us to be permanently blessed.

If you have the eyes to see, you can see all the purposes and all the truths in the scripture. Sanctification means holiness. God wants us complete. Without holiness no man or woman shall see God. The holy see Him now in a sense. What is the platform on which holiness is built up? The first plank in that platform is reality, that sense of trying to be real.

How are we going to get anywhere unless we are real? It is a growing process. If we were perfectly sincere we would be perfectly holy. Innocence is the beginning; holiness is the end and you've got to go through hell to breach the gap. That is the road you and I have to travel. It is the road to the cross.

We've got to begin to be real. We can't fool God. Get down to rockbottom with yourself and say, from now on I'll try to be sincere. The second plank in this platform is purity. Is anyone of us here pure? It is the purity of thought that counts. It is not only the purity of the flesh, there is a purity of the soul.

The third and last plank in this platform is kindness; kindness to all. The world needs a constant, Christian kindness. Be kind to one another. Blend these three, sincerity, purity and kindness together and you've got the makings of holiness.

The service came to a close about 9.45 o'clock. Today (Tuesday) there will be two mission services at the church, one at 10.30 a. m. holy eucharist and intercessions and the other at 7.30 in the evening when there will be a song service and preaching. The missioner's topic will be Repentance and the Unpardonable Sin.

JEWETT CITY BOROUGH INJUNCTION AGAINST ASHLAND

On the ground that the Ashland Cotton company in Jewett City is generating electricity and furnishing it to tenants in the mill tenement property against the claimed exclusive right of the borough of Jewett City to furnish and distribute electric power there, petition for an injunction against the company was brought by the borough in the common pleas court here Monday morning before Judge C. B. Waller who granted a temporary injunction. Attorney John H. Barnes represented the borough in bringing the injunction proceedings in a suit by the borough for $2,000 damages against the Ashland company.

The borough of Jewett City set up in their suit that for some years past it has owned and operates an electric plant in Jewett City for the purpose of selling electric current for lighting and power purposes to the industries and for lighting streets and houses.

On or about May 5, 1919, the borough of Jewett City, by its board of electrical commissioners, duly authorized entered into a contract with the Ashland Cotton company, by virtue of which the Ashland Cotton company was permitted to use certain wires and string the same and over the streets of the borough for the purpose of enabling the Ashland Cotton company to furnish electric current for lighting purposes to tenement houses of the defendant company.

The right given to the Ashland Cotton company was given upon the consideration and agreement of the Ashland Cotton company to purchase its electric current from the borough. The electric current was to have been sold for 11 cents per KW hour, with the right of the borough to raise the price to 12 1-2 cents per KW hour. The privilege of a renewal of this agreement for three years was also set forth in the agreement, which was made by the borough of Jewett City by its board of electrical commissioners, George J. Mosher and Lloyd G. Buckingham and the Ashland Cotton Co., by Grosvenor Ely, its treasurer.

The borough of Jewett City claims that all rights and privileges which were given to the Ashland Cotton Co., under this contract have expired and have been of no force or effect since March 1, 1926.

It is further alleged that notwithstanding that the plaintiff, the borough of Jewett City, under the law has the sole right to furnish and distribute electric current in the borough which fact was and is well known by the defendant and also notwithstanding the fact that the rights the Ashland Cotton Co., acquired under the contract, which contract has expired, and become void and of no effect, the Ashland Cotton company has been unlawfully and without right or color of right, generating electric current and selling the same directly and without the consent of the borough to Jewett City to its various tenants in the borough without the consent of the plaintiff or the consent of any other proper authority has been and is now using the streets of the borough for the purposes of furnishing electric current by means of wires strung along and over the streets for the purpose of carrying electric current to its tenants in the borough, all of which is of great damage to the plaintiff, the borough of Jewett City.

COMMISSION HEARS PETITION FOR TOLLAND BUS LINE

The public utilities commission held a long hearing Monday morning at the state capitol at Hartford on the petition of George J. Gary of Stafford Springs, who runs a bus line in Tolland county, for a certificate to run a bus from Vernon Center to Leonard's corner in the town of Tolland. The distance is three miles. More than twenty-five people were present and most of them were in favor of granting the certificate.

W. J. Fleckinger, vice-president of the Connecticut company, opposed the granting of the certificate if it meant that the operation of the bus line would be in competition with the Hartford-Rockville trolley line.

Among those appearing in favor of the line was former Representative Henry E. Willes, one-time president of the Hartford Business Men's association. He spoke strongly in favor of issuing the certificate. He commended Mr. Gary for his enterprise and for his desire to give the people of this section good service. Mr. Willes runs a bus service from West Willington to Rockville.

Mr. Gary said that he had no intention of extending his line to Worcester, Mass. Alderman Stanley McCray of Rockville opposed the granting of the certificate unless Mr. Gary would give satisfactory guarantee that his busses would be in proper shape. He said the present buses used by Mr. Gary were not safe to ride. He declared that they were dilapidated and dangerous for passengers to use.

Rufus Leonard of Tolland who favored granting the certificate, replied to McCray's statements asserting that they were without foundation. Chairman Higgins of the commission, said that everyone interested might be assured that the commission would see to it that if the certificate is granted the buses would be satisfactory.

SHOT IN FOOT WHILE CLEANING HIS GUN

Leon Maynard of East Lyme is a patient at the hospital in New London with a rifle bullet wound through his right foot as the result of his rifle accidentally discharging Sunday afternoon while he was cleaning it. It was reported at the hospital that the bullet went through the foot leaving a clean wound. If blood poisoning does not set in it is said, the patient will recover rapidly.

Maynard was planning a hunting trip and had taken his gun out to clean it. While the barrel of the gun rested against his foot the weapon was discharged.

ADDRESSED BROTHERHOOD ON NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE

A talk by H. D. Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, on the New England conference held recently at Hartford featured the monthly business meeting of the Brotherhood of the United Congregational church Monday evening at the Community house. W. F. Lester presided at the meeting in the absence of President Hugh B. Campbell. As usual a supper was served at 6.30 o'clock and was followed by the meeting. After the business matters had been disposed of Mr. Lester presented the speaker, Mr. Larrabee.

Mr. Larrabee said the New England council is made up of representative people from all over New England, chambers of commerce, industrial organizations, manufacturing concerns, banks, public utilities, etc. There were 300 at the meeting, at which time the conference was definitely organized. The council was organized with a membership of 12 from each of the six states, making a total of 72. A tremendous lot of work has been put into this movement, Mr. Larrabee said. At the Hartford meeting there were 28 speakers, and nine ten-minute speakers, all crowded into two days.

Another idea of the size of the conference may be seen from the fact that at the 1925 meeting in Worcester there were representative people who were doing a gross business of eight billions of dollars. The most able men of New England believe it worthwhile to have a full free, frank discussion of conditions and problems in New England. To attempt to summarize the messages at the conference would take all night.

The message of the 1925 conference as that New England is suffering from a headache. The 1926 conference brings a message of real progress in the achievement of constructive work in New England.

New England, all told, is a small place. Barriers of state lines, sectionalism, and pride have kept the New England states apart. The 1925 conference dwelt 90 per cent. on New England's faults. Not more than 10 per cent. was encouragement. At the 1926 conference we had a report of progress in correcting some of the faults laid bare in 1925. Great credit is due those men in bringing the great industries of New England together.

New England can never be as large a factor as it once was, because the country is so much bigger and because of competition in other sections of the country. New England is not fully developed.

The real crying need of New England agriculture is co-ordination. The greatest amount of work was done by the research committee of the conference, Mr. Larrabee said. Then touching on the cotton mill situation he said the cotton mill has got to keep more closely identified with the manufacture of the finer materials. Moving cotton mills south is evading the issue.

You can't make New England quality goods anywhere but in New England. You can't take the New England people with you; you can't take the New England spirit with you; you can't take the New England climate with you, Mr. Larrabee advocated the extensive and proper advertising of New England's recreational resources. If properly done, it gets results.

These New England conferences are proof positive that something can be done in New England, said the speaker.

COMMON PLEAS COURT HEARS MOTION LIST

Several decisions were given, while a number of motions either were continued or went off at the motion list of the court of common pleas in this city Monday, with Judge C. B. Waller presiding.

Judgment in the amount of $83 less $22.18 was entered in the case of Henry H. Pettis against Harry Harryk, et al, in favor of Harryk.

The case was in the form of a petition brought by Attorney Pettis of this city, seeking a disposition of the money which he held following a real estate deal. The money was tendered as bond of good faith and after the transaction was completed, Attorney Pettis brought the action to find out just where the money should go as a question arose over it.

Disclosure of defense within one week of judgment was ordered in the case of the Union Guaranty Co. against John W. Perry.

Judge Waller took the papers and reserved decision in the case of Maggie Sabiston against Otto Andreson, Jr., in which there was a motion for more specific statement.

Disclosure of defense within 10 days or judgment was ordered in the case of William Milleski against Sterling Averill, et al.

Disclosure of defense within one week or judgment was ordered in the case of James M. Young & Sons against Frank C. Atchison.

Approval of the deed was given and final judgment entered in the case of George H Bradford against William Clifford, et al. This winds up the case, the property having been sold recently to E. A. Lathrop of Montville, for $1,125. County Commissioner Bradford brought the action to secure a sum due him with interest. Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main was given $50 for selling the property and each of the three appraisers received $10.

In the case of the Shetucket Coal & Lumber Co., of Norwich against Ralph McCracken, contractor, of this city, it was thought inadvisable to continue a motion for hearing in damages on default entered Dec. 10, 1926, until a sworn bill of particulars might be filed.

In this suit brought by the lumber company for $778.38 alleged to be due for materials furnished McCracken in the building of a house for F. C. Danz of New London, no defence has ever been made.

JUDGE WALLER HEARD AUTOMOBILE DAMAGE SUIT

Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court here Monday reserved decision after hearing the suit of John S. Janik of 313 Central avenue against Henry J. Hoeffer of Taftville to recover $200 damages for repairs to the plaintiff's automobile after a collision with the defendant's machine on June 21, 1925 on Norwich avenue, Taftville. Attorney John H. Barnes was counsel for the plaintiff and a Hartford lawyer appeared for the defendant.

Sixth Birthday Party.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Tannenbaum of 50 Broad street for their son, Melvin, who was six years old. About 30 children attended. Games were played and Shirley Manes won the peanut prize. Stephen Shields the donkey game prize, and Nathan Shields and Arnold Cohen won the Jerusalem prizes. Stunts were performed by Henry Pasnik. PUSHED OUT OF THE RACE

When Chas. McAllister of Kearney, N. J., reached the point where he had to drag his tired, aching, weary body from a well-nigh sleepless bed, he did a wise thing—bought a bottle of Foley Pills, and then "After taking Foley Pills for a time, I became all right and my pain and weakness is all gone." Foley Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, are a reliable, valuable medicine guaranteed to give satisfaction of money refunded.

READS INTERESTING PAPER UPON USE OF ROSARIES

A paper upon Rosaries, read by Miss Lucy Morse of Brookline, Mass., who is a sister of Miss Kate Morse, a former principal of the Norwich art school, made an unusually interesting feature for the December meeting of the Norwich Art Students' association, which was held Monday evening at the Converse gallery. Miss Morse's unique and beautiful collection of rosaries, or prayer beads, has been on exhibition for the past three days at the gallery and has excited much interest.

Miss Morse was introduced by the president of the association, Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, after a short business meeting at which Miss Nancy C. Lucas, Miss Rose Trumbull and Mrs. Frank Hempstead were elected councillors for one, two and three years respectively and three student members were voted into membership, Miss Field, Mrs. Coyle and Mrs. Wilson.

The paper read by Miss Morse was one prepared by Dr. Patton who had made an exhaustive study of the subject. It brought out the widespread use of prayer beads when it mentioned that probably three quarters of the human race is addicted to the use of the rosary in some form and that it probably originated in India with the Hindus in 900 B. C., this being the home of prayer devices which were made out of seeds, nuts and small pieces of wood. Rosaries are found among the Buddhists in 600 B. C., among the Mohammedans in 600 A. D., and with the Christians later. By the Catholics, the paper said, the origin of the rosary is attributed to St. Dominick, but the truth seems to be that he originated it in its present form. In the Christian religion it has taken on its most spiritual and helpful significance.

Two theories were mentioned in the paper to explain why the use of prayer beads, or rosaries, is found in so many different religions—one that it arose spontaneously in different parts of the world through the need of the human soul, and the other that it was borrowed from one to the other. The writer of the paper was inclined to think that both theories contributed to its wide distribution. In answering the question as to what is its worth, he said that while in none of the religions is it free from the influence of superstition, its value is that it stands for the release of power from unseen sources, and gives the user a sense of merit and peace.

After the paper the Art association members spent some time looking at the exhibit of rosaries which Miss Morse had collected.

SUSIE HAS PICKED UP A FEW MORE STORIES ABOUT NORWICH PEOPLE

Between Christmas shopping and her work Susie during the past week has picked up a story or two that have not yet found their way into print. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed.:

Dont the old time fly though? Just think, here it is almost Christmas time again and the old bank roll is sure going to get knocked for a fare-ye-well. Of all the flat things there ain't none flatter than a pocketbook on Dec. 26th, and believe me, Ed. mine wallet will be flat long before then. I suppose you have done your shopping early like everybody else don't do it. Say have you been around to the local stores in town and seen all the nice things what they go on display. Yep, so have I, and believe me there's quite a bunch of stuff to choose from if you can tell last year's stuff from the stuff this year.

Now don't get me wrong. I ain't knocking the merchants, it's the same in every other city. A lotta fancy Christmas stuff what was left over from last year is being dragged outa the moth balls for the present Christmas shoppers. There's a couple places in town where they have quite a lotta new and up-to-date gifts, something out of the ordinary as it were. No I ain't going to tell you what them places is; you'll have to go scouting for yourself.

Well there ain't nothing much to write about this week in the sport line only to say it was kind of tough luck for them Academy basketball team to get such a walloping from the Suffield bunch. Basketball seems to be going big this year in Taftville and Plainfield as well as at the Y. M. C. A. Say, basketball ain't the only sport what's in the limelight. The old art of throwing leather-covered punches is booming down in the Whaling town and it looks like those what like the smell on resin and the sound of good solid smashes would get plenty this winter to make 'em sit up and take notice. Say Ed., any time that sailor from off the rum chaser is slated to scrap get your old pasteboard early 'cause that kid pays a hundred cents on the dollar, if you know what I mean.

I saw the fight that other night between him and Day from New Haven and believe, me, old dear, it was some little scrap. Say, I bet that Day feller didn't know they was so many gloves made as he stopped with his face and body that night. And he couldn't tell where they was coming from either, they come down just like rain. Of course it warn't all one-sided 'cause Day throws a mean set of gloves himself but he didn't have nothing that phased young Conley. When the fight was over it was the end of a perfect Day and his face looked like a red August sunset from so much massaging. You gotta give that feller Tracy a lotta credit for the bouts he's putting on and I don't mean maybe.

Say Ed., I heard a good one on one of the local cops the other day. It seems that one of the men in blue is very athletically inclined and after his workouts to keep in trim he uses a lotta linament. One day he runs out of the linament so when he's coming on duty he buys a new bottle and leaves it in the police station while he's out patrolling his beat. Some of his friends (?) find the bottle and moved by that youthful feeling proceed to play a joke on him. They takes the bottle, carefully removes the cork and pours out the linament and then fills the bottle with kerosene and varnish. Well the athletic cop after work takes the bottle, goes home and applies a liberal application of the supposed linament and hops into bed. Now varnish in a bed ain't exactly what's considered comforting and besides the sheets stick to your body something terrible. Well anyway, next morning the cop gets up and after separating himself from the bedclothes and removing not only bedclothes but a good amount of skin he gives himself the once over to find that his body shines like a piece of furniture. Well, anyway, he says its great stuff to take the soreness out of the old muscles and works just as well as linament but it ain't so comfortable.

Oh, yes, I heard a nother too. It seems that there's a local bird what had spent a large evening with some of the boys and went home only to find that the kitchen fire was about ready to pass out too. Knowing it's going to be cold next morning if there ain't no fire, he sets about making another and hereby hangs the tale of a near calamity. He goes down cellar and grabs a pail to put the ashes in and comes up and sets it on the kitchen floor and proceeds to transfer the ashes from the stove to said pail. When he's got most of the ashes in the pail he notices that there's smoke coming from around the pail. He don't think nothing of it at first and keeps on filling the pail. When the ashes is all in the pail he grabs the pail to take it outdoors. The pail comes along alright but not so with the ashes, 'cause when he goes to throw the ashes out of the pail he finds there ain't no ashes there. He goes back and finds that the ashes is all on the floor 'cause there weren't no bottom to the pail. What does he do? Why he throws the ashes all back in the stove and goes to bed. What does he tell the wife in the morning about the hole burned in the linoleum? How should I know? I ain't no man that has to explain such things. Maybe you can tell.

That story reminds me about the feller what lives on Main street that went home the other night and found the heater blowing off steam like an engine so he calls the fire department, thinking there's a fire in the cellar. Well it's better to be same than sorry.

Well, Ed., I don't know no more to write about so I'll close.

Yours as ever,
SUSIE.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE IN PUTNAM ORGANIZED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 13.—Once again local athletes have joined together and formed a semi-professional basketball league. This movement follows the activities in other New England cities where semi-professional has made a popular stride. Now many of the heated discussions concerning the superior playing of various men and the class of team work can be settled. To all appearances the teams are about equal in strength and one organization may be considered as good as another.

The Headquarters company opens its third season Tuesday night against the Celtics, formerly known as the Mechanicsville Athletic association quintet. On the same bill the Knights of Columbus will send a strong representation to face the Belding, Hemingway Silk Sox. This game is due to produce sparks of a long standing friendly rivalry between the opposing players.

The following five teams have entered the league:

No. 1, Headquarters Company; No. 2, Celtics; NoN. 3, Knights of Columbus; No. 4, Belding Hemingway Silk Sox; No. 5, Black and White Collegians.

The schedule for the benefit of the fans is as follows: Dec. 14, 1 vs. 2—3 vs. 4. Dec. 17, 5 vs. 1—2 vs. 3. Dec. 21, 4 vs. 5—1 vs. 3. Dec. 24, 2 vs. 4—3 vs. 5. Dec. 28, 1 vs. 4—2 vs. 5. Timm Elected Colgate Captain.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(AP)—William Timm, of New York city, was elected captain of 1927 Colgate university football team today. Timm played at right end this season and has been mentioned in several all-American selections.

An aggressive wing man, Timm was particularly good in receiving good passes. It was his touchdown that gave Colgate a tie with Brown.

LANDIS EXPECTED TO HAVE SUPPORT OF AM. LEAGUE AT JOINT MEETING

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A proposed salary increase of $10,000 for Baseball Commissioner Landis was received without enthusiasm today by National league clubowners.

Although the magnates unanimously favor re-election of Landis to another term of seven years, they indicated today on the eve of their annual meeting that the circuit will oppose a move to boost his salary to $40,000 annually. Furthermore, they feel that the commissioner should increase the usefulness of his advisory council, which includes the National league president and the American league vice-president, league spokesmen said.

The magnates will go into session at 1 o'clock in the afternoon with President John A. Heydler, who will ask the owners to draft regulations to govern the annual selection of the league's champion batsman.

Indications are that the league will approve opening the season on April 13 and concluding on October 2, thus returning to the late closing date in effect last year. Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh, spokesman for the National league schedule makers, said the September 25 closing date tried out this year had proved unsatisfactory. Only one club in each league, he explained, had been able to complete play on scheduled time, and the world series was not advanced as Commissioner Landis hoped it would be.

Even Landis has been won over to the late closing plan, Dreyfuss said.

Dreyfuss announced he would carry his fight against "farming" to the joint meeting of the two leagues later this week in Chicago. He complained that one National league team alone owns six minor league clubs, which he described as not only unfair to other owners, but to the minor league player.

"We preach the draft, but we practice the 'farm'," he complained. "We're just a bunch of hypocrites."

HIGH PRICES CURTAIL NAT. LEAGUE TRADING

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—National league magnates, gathering here for their annual meeting tomorrow, unlimbered vocal guns in brisk player-bartering today without scoring effectively against a barrier of high prices.

Spokesmen for the Boston Braves said that negotiations were in progress with the New York Giants for a deal under which Pitcher Joe Genewich of the Hub team would come here in exchange for First Baseman Bill Terry. The Braves already have indicated their desire to replace Burrus at the initial base, while Manager McGraw of the Giants has held Terry for trading purposes more than a year.

Terry has been seeking a regular assignment, but McGraw has found little opportunity to use him except as a pinch hitter and utility outfielder and first baseman. A high price tag has kept Terry on the Giant roster, although he apparently has had little chance to displace George Kelly as regular first baseman.

Although Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh magnate asserted he had "nothing to buy and nothing to sell." His new pilot, Donie Bush, announced he was in the market for a pitcher, an infielder and a utility outfielder. Bush said he would like to strengthen second base, but his aspirations seemed vetoed by an announcement from Dreyfuss that Hay Rhyne probably will get the regular keystone assignment next year.

"Rhyne is a much better player than he appeared to be last year," said Dreyfuss. "I expect him to be one of the stars of the league in another season."

Stuffy McInnis announced that he virtually was looking for a whole new Philadelphia team. The Quaker boss, among other things, wants two infielders, two pitchers and an outfielder, he said.

"But that isn't saying I'll get 'em," said the erstwhile Pirate.

Baseball dopesters found two jobs for Eddie Collins, deposed manager of the Chicago White Sox. One report had him returning to the team with which he became famous—the Athletics—while another slated him for the Yanks. Eddie was not present in person to deny that he might cover second base for the American league champions, Lazzeri being shifted to shortstop, but Business Manager Ed Barrow of the Yankees said recently it was all news to him.

Zach Wheat and Burleigh Grimes, veteran outfielder and pitcher, respectively, of the Brooklyn Robins, had conspicuous places on the auction block, but Manager Robinson hadn't made any hits in the duel of adjectives when rival forces called off hostilities.

ROSENBLOOM WINS VERDICT OVER KAPLAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Maxey Rosenbloom of New York defeated K. O. Phil Kaplan, his fellow townsman, among the leading contenders for middleweight boxing honors, in a slow ten round feature at Madison Square Garden tonight. Rosenbloom weighed 159, Kaplan 157 3-4.

Babe Herman, veteran New York featherweight, won a 10-round decision from Eddie Anderson, the Wyoming cowboy, in the semi-final. Herman made his edge in experience count throughout, scoring the only knockdown in the fourth round. Herman weighed 129 1-2, Anderson 126.

Al Mancini, Anglo-Italian Welterweight, fought a draw with Farmer Joe Cooper, of Indiana, in the first of three ten round bouts. Cooper offset Mancini's clever all-round attack by more rugged punishing. Each weighed 145.

FRENCH BOXER COLLAPSES IN EIGHTH ROUND

HARTFORD, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Charles Pegulihan of France collapsed in the eighth round of his bout with Al Friedman of Boston at the state armory here tonight. The bout was a nip and tuck affair with both men hitting hard, but it is claimed that Pegulihan collapsed from apparent exhaustion without being hit. He was taken to the Hartford hospital where it was said he had concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull. He is on the danger list. Friedman was held by the police on a technical charge of breach of peace. He was released on bonds of $1,000 furnished by Arthur Boudreau of Elmwood.

ATTEMPT TO PATCH ATHLETIC BREACH DROPPED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 13.—(AP)—While Harvard athletic and student leaders maintained deep reticence, it was understood at the university tonight that efforts to patch up a truce between Harvard and Princeton had been dropped temporarily, at least. It became known that the Harvard student council will not name a committee to confer with the Princeton senior council on peace terms.

Leo Daley, president of the student council, refused tonight to discuss the latest angle of the Crimson-Tiger affair. From another source within the council it had been learned, however, that Harvard's efforts to bring about a new understanding with Princeton were in abeyance.

Immediately after the announcement that Priceton had broken off athletic relations with the Crimson, student bodies of the two institutions took steps to bring about peace. Daley and Joseph Prendergast, president of the Princeton senior council, conferred in New Haven the day of the Harvard-Yale game, and it was agreed that five representatives from each of the two undergraduate bodies should confer on terms.

The Harvard student council held two meetings but failed to name the Crimson representatives. The proceedings of the meetings were veiled in secrecy.

Slattery Beats Wallace

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, was given the decision over Mike Wallace of Cleveland, in a ten round bout here tonight. Slattery weighed 168 1-2 and Wallace 176.

Frankie Garcia, Utica, 117, defeated Mike Marcello, Rochester, 116 1-2, in six rounds. Mickey O'Donnell, San Francisco, 141, held Willie Lavin, Buffalo, 148, to a six round draw.

Cohen Wins Welter Title

HOLYOKE, Mass., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Meyer Cohen of Holyoke, tonight won the New England welterweight title by defeating George "Kid" Lee, of Worcester in the main ten-round bout of a card before the Valley A. A.

CELTICS CLASH WITH WINDSOR LOCKS TONIGHT

For the game at Taftville this evening the management has gone to extra expenses in booking the fast Windsor Locks team to furnish the opposition to the local boys who are fast developing into one of the best teams to represent the village. The visitors have in their lineup men who have made a reputation for themselves at college and who are considered the best in that section of the state.

Their lineup includes such men as Fitzpatrick, who starred for the Stafford Springs K. of C. last season when this team was in the running for state honors, Dowd of the Hartford team, Madden, who was played with the leading teams in the state, Lord of the fast Aetna five, and Griswold, former college star, with Kane and the Shelgrove brothers in reserve. This team ranks with the best in the state and the local management is fortunate in securing this attraction to show their wares against the local team. The club holds an unbroken string of victories and feel sure that it will not be broken in this game it being their first game in this section of the state.

Taftville will have a somewhat changed lineup owing to the fact that Les Pingree, star center man of the team has turned his ankle and will be unable to play. The lineup will be Mondi Normandin at right forward, Rabbit Gauthier as his running mate, Coady will jump at center with Jack Murphy, former Crescent star, at left guard and Capt. Eccleston at right guard. This team can without a doubt give any team in the state a lively encounter and should come out on the long end of the score in tonight's encounter with Windsor Locks. Dancing will again follow the game with music being rendered by Pep's Melody Boys. Fast preliminary at 7.45 between the Nordics and the Norwich Warriors.

MCNAMARA AND LINARI SPLIT $12,000 PRIZE MONEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Reggie McNamara, "Iron man" of the Professional Bicycle Riders, and his Italian partner, Pietro Linari, today split $12,000 as the winners' share of the $75,000 in prize money and bonuses awarded to the competitors in the six-day race that finished at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Although the race was one of the most sensational ever held here, the attendance, aggregating 160,000 for the week, was slightly below the record set in the December, 1925, grind which opened the new garden.

McNamara and Linari received an offer of a ten weeks' engagement in vaudeville but the Italian turned it down because of a desire to spend Christmas at home. Linari came out of the race with a badly bruised face and black eye.

McNamara accepted an offer for a shorter vaudeville tour, in which he will be joined by Carl Stockholm of Chicago and Charley Winter of New York, who finished third in last week's race, starting January 14, probably as a partner of te German rider, Otto Petri.

Harry Stockelynch of Belgium, whose collar-bone was broken in one of the numerous last hour spills, and William Coles of Canada, who suffered a splintered elbow, were major casualties reported today. Ten of the foreign riders, including Linari, Stockelynch, Georgette, Belloni and Goosens will sail for Europe Wednesday on the Berengaria.

WILLIMANTIC BOYS STAR IN BROWN VICTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 13—Sammy and Hymie Heller, former Windham high school stars and sons of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore J. Heller of 947 Main street were the outstanding players in the Brown university victory over the Boston university quintet in Boston Saturday night. Sammy, the elder, scored seven field goals and two free tries and Hymie caged two goals from the floor and five foul baskets, the scoring total of the two being 25 of their quintet's 43 points. The score was 43 to 36. Hymie was understudy of Capt. Harold Broda of the Brown football squad for the season just ended. A third brother, Abie, now a senior at Brown, is coach of the Hope high school basketball quintet at Providence.

The Ponemah Wheel club basketball team challenges the Jewett City Speedboys, Colchester Seconds, or any teams of their calibre. Out of town games are preferred. NAT. LEAGUE OWNERS DO NOT ENTHUSE OVER SALARY INCREASE FOR LANDIS

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—(AP)—There is no desire on the part of the American league club owners to supplant Kenesaw Mountain Landis as baseball commissioner, or to oppose his re-election for a seven year term, which will come up at the joint meeting of the major league clubs here Thursday.

This was apparent tonight as club owners of the American league gathered for their annual meeting tomorrow and Wednesday.

Commissioner Landis will have the unqualified support of Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, and Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, and it is considered likely no other American league magnate will raise his voice even in a whisper concerning any opposition to the renewal of Commissioner Landis' term.

It is probable that the American league may decide to boost Landis' annual salary of $50,000 to a higher figure.

The American league club owners are expected to concur in the action of the National leagues, in voting to extend the 1927 campaign into the first week in October, instead of ending the season the last week in September.

As the American league club owners seemed to have settled in advance what their decision will be on the major questions coming up, it is likely that spirited trading sessions will over-shadow the news of the deliberations of the owners.

Jack McCallister was named manager of the Cleveland Indians, succeeding Tris Speaker, in time for him to come here to negotiate trades if possible. Ray Schalk, the new leader of the Chicago White Sox, will be on hand endeavoring to find a second baseman or shortstop to take the place of Eddie Collins. The former White Sox leader has been reported variously as going to the Athletics or the Yankees.

Dan Howley, the new pilot of the Browns, has announced that George Sisler will be the Browns first baseman in 1927, closing the door on gossip that the former Browns's manager was on the market.

A word to the WIVES—

For every pipe-smoker on your list

AT THIS season, when you are being urged on every hand to "Give this" and "Give that," be assured of this truth: Nothing you could give a pipe-smoker could make more of a hit than a generous supply of Prince Albert . . . mild, mellow, fragrant Prince Albert.

Here, for instance, is the crystal-glass humidor, all dolled up in holiday clothes. It contains a full pound of P. A.—the grandest tobacco that ever lined the bowl of a pipe. There's a little sponge in the top of the humidor to keep the tobacco "just right."

Every pipe-smoker on your list would be tickled to death to find this good-looking package among his gifts on Christmas morning. It will brighten the Big Day for him and furnish deep-down pipe-joy for the days that follow. The Prince Albert humidor, by all means!

This prime favorite of experienced smokers also comes in pound and half-pound tins. At the nearest shop, you will find Prince Albert in sizes to suit every purse and purpose. If he smokes a pipe, your Christmas problem is settled . . . and settled satisfactorily.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

PRINCE ALBERT

—no other tobacco is like it!

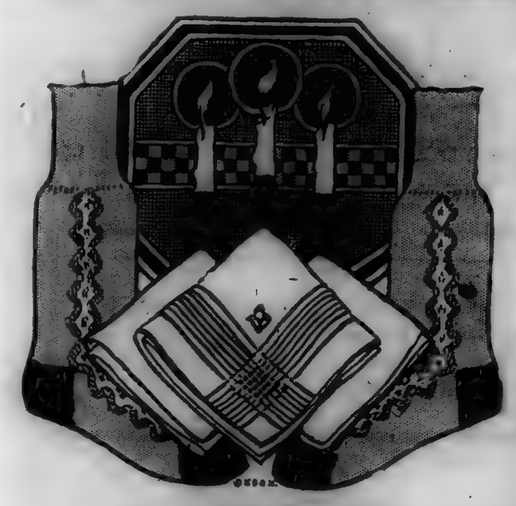
Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 95 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.



You could almost call Christmas

Handkerchief and Hose Day

From a man's viewpoint it's a pretty fine idea too. He uses his handkerchiefs to wipe motor grease off his hands and a woman might think he deliberately punches holes in his sox. Christmas is the time to get him stocked up and this is the store.

The Mebs outclassed the Noank team until the last whistle and the score was 83 to 10. This is the worst beating the Nuggets ever suffered from any team. Noank's two forwards were missing from the game, but that would not have made any difference, for New London was the fastest team that came to the fishing village in a good many years. Every man was a star. This makes two games in a row that Noank has lost. The referee was Fitzpatrick, scorer, Phelps, timer, Cammery. Dancing followed the game. NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Seventy five years ago Connecticut was the third ranking state in the union in the manufacture of woolen goods; nearly 10,000,000 yards of this cloth being manufactured in the state during the year 1850. News of 1851 as taken in part from the Norwich Courier of that year follows:

Tuesday, Dec. 9, 1851—Kossuth is receiving a wonderful welcome in New York, hundreds of people gathering outside his hotel to cheer him. New York has done everything possible to honor his presence in that city and on a recent evening a band of 900 musicians, made up of the various German clubs, serenaded Kossuth and his wife at the Irving House. At the Navy Yard salutes were fired from the U. S. S. North Carolina and frigate St. Lawrence, and the yards were manned by the crews. Kossuth was to speak in a hall in New York one evening last week but the rush of people made it impossible for all to hear him and newspapers were forced to print his address that everyone might have a chance to read it. The military parade for Kossuth was described as one of the finest ever witnessed in New York.

The government of Connecticut has also sent a communication to Kossuth, inviting him to come to this state as guest of the governor and people.

C. B. Webster reports that the enrollment at the Norwich Female academy is above expectations.

Thursday, Dec. 11, 1851—Mayor Foster presided over the session of the court of common council held December 8th, three aldermen and four councilmen being present. Eighteen bills for construction of sidewalks in the city were ordered paid, the money to be repaid the city by property owners.

The city commissioner ordered to cause the old wooden cistern on Union street, near house of Alderman Nichols to be pulled up, as the same is decayed and useless. The council then adjourned sine dine, according to Levi Goddard, clerk.

On Sunday morning last a fire broke out in the city of Portland, Me., and was not arrested until it had reduced a large area to ashes. Twenty-seven stores were burned, nine vessels badly damaged, and over $100,000 worth of merchandise destroyed.

It appears in the census returns for 1850 that in the manufacture of woolen goods, Connecticut is the third state in the union. Capital invested in woolen manufacture totals $3,733,950 over 6,000,000 pounds of wool are used annually, raw material is valued at over $70,000, value of products exceeds $6,000,000, nearly 10,000,000 yards of cloth are manufactured. In cotton goods capital is over four million dollars, 40,000 bales are used, raw material is worth over two million dollars, 8,478 hands are employed, wages equal over $30,000 a month, value of cloth is over $4,000,000 and yards of sheeting manufactured totals $1,780,700.

Saturday, Dec. 13, 1851—According to he census returns for 1850 aggregate investments in industries in the United States are as follows: Cotton goods, $74,500,000, pig iron, $17,348,000; cast iron, $17,456,000. Total investments $530,000,000, raw materials consumed, 550,000,00; amount paid for labor, $24,000,0; value of manufactured articles, $1,20,000,000 and number of persons employed, 1,050,000.

The connection of Messrs. Hicks and company with the Thompsonville Carpet factory is alleged to have been the cause of the failure of this house, considered one of the heaviest houses in New York. It is understood that $250,000 was involved in the Thompsonville failure.

The welcome of Kossuth by the government of the United States brought out much talk for and against this great liberator. The senator from Alabama was against welcoming him, stating that he was not an equal of Jefferson as a statesman, Jackson as a general, and, when compared to Washington, was not to be compared in any respect. This abuse called forth much talk in the senate, many senators rising to defend Kossuth and predict that he would bring freedom to oppressed European countries.

GROTON FERRY IS TO RUN IF FARES CAN BE RAISED

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 13—The city council at its meeting this evening received a communication from the lessees of the Groton ferry, Messrs. Sheehan and Crandall, to continue to conduct the ferry boat under the same terms as during the expiring contract, provided the rates of ferriage shall be increased. It is proposed to raise the rates and to increase the charge for autos and driver from five to 25 cents. The passenger fare is to be raised 20 per cent., or from one to seven cents per trip, even at that fare the cost of transportation being less than is charged on any other route of transportation.

It is proposed to begin trips at 6.25 a. m. instead of at 6 o'clock. The city manager did not take kindly to the proposed increase in the price of carrying autos, but he favored the raise for the transportation of foot passengers. He pointed out that the raise was 52 per cent. He said that in the few weeks before the contract of the present lessees has expired it will be known what effecton the business of the ferry the advance in rates will have. A petition with some 400 names including the officials of the Groton chamber of commerce was presented to the council and was received for record. The city manager pointed out that if the patronage of the ferry held up the increase in receipts would amount to a considerable sum. The city manager told the council they alone had the right to fix the rate of fare, but that an appeal could be taken to the public utilities commission, if the patrons of the ferry felt aggrieved.

Councilor Scott and Mayor Fox said they understood from conversation with Groton residents that they did not seriously object to the raise in rates. Councilor Scott moved for the adoption of the resolution granting the increase in fares. The vote to increase was unanimous.

Michael L. O'Connell was elected a member of the board of compensation.

Councilor Chappell announced that the board of public works had voted to seek the purchase of a new steam roller and the city manager was authorized to secure prices for the machine needed.

A petition was received asking the privilege of stringing electric lights from State street to Masonic street on both sides of Main street. The petition was referred to the city manager with power to grant or deny it. There were but three applications for building permits presented at the meeting. Two of them were for garages and one for the erection of a cottage.

PUBLIC UTILITIES HEARING ON BUS ROUTE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 15—The public utilities commission gave notice to the city council this evening that a hearing on a petition of Michael Baidelli to operate a bus line by way of State street, Bank street, Howard street and Pequot avenue to Thames street will be held tomorrow at 11.30 a. m., the hearing to be in the council chamber. Councilor Streeter told his associates that the manufacturers and residents along the Pequot avenue section favored granting the petition as the busses would be a great accommodation to the workers and others. The sentiment of the meeting appeared to favor the plan.

John Bernstein, caretaker at the Col. Forbes estate, Eastern Point, was in Groton town court this morning on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. The charge was amended to that of reckless driving, to which Bernstein pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs. Immediately following his release from custody he was rearrested for the New London police, on charges of failing to obey a traffic officer's signal and for reckless driving. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $100 and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Bernstein was in New London Wednesday and nearly ran down Officer William Corcoran, on duty at the corner of State and Bank streets, also refused to stop when Officer Corcoran blew his whistle. The whistle was heard by Patrolman William Manice midway of the block from Bank street to Main street. That officer entered the highway to intercept Bernstein and it was then that the driver, it is claimed, intentionally attempted to run the officer down. Officer Manice was forced to retreat to the sidewalk and being unable to commandeer another automobile, Bernstein made a get-away through Main street. Going to Groton he was arrested on Thames street where his auto threatened to run down pedestrians.

Christmas Again

This is the Christmas season when we are planning to make everyone happy, especially poor and needy children. A visit from Santa Claus is now rapidly approaching. The family welfare committee of the United Workers is planning to send baskets and barrels of presents to the poor and unfortunate children and homes of the city. They would greatly appreciate contributions of toys. If any one having them, in good condition, and would care to dispose of them for this worthy cause and would kindly leave them at No. 9 Washington street as soon as possible, the contributions would be gratefully received. Broadway Theater

What joy came to local theatergoers yesterday. Yes, it's all about the Broadway theater program which continues for two days more. It is a prize show whichever way one looks at it!

There are five big time KEUH-Albee vaudeville acts on the stage each one being a master in each line of entertainment.

Croddack and Shadney offer volumes of perfect harmony; Mardo and Wynn in Bring 'Em Suit, start the laughter ball rolling, followed by Mary Duncan in more than laughs with her comedy songs, River and Arnold in Sell 'Em Cheap brought the laughs to the highest peak; the closing number with a wealth of beautiful scenery offers Armand-DeVore and company, in splendid Dance Diversions.

The next two days will be laugh days at the Broadway theater, where Chadwick Pictures Corporation's April Fool, which opened yesterday, will be the attraction. This adaptation of the stage play, April Showers, by Edgar Allan Wolfe and Alexander Carr, is a veritable laugh fest, which kept the audience in continual convulsions of gulps and giggles.

Alexander Carr of Potash and Perlmutter fame, who assumes the role he created on the stage in the screen production, dominates a fine cast. A master of the technic of screen acting, he most gracefully bridges the wide gaps between the varied phases of his role. His comedy, delicate and subtle, is always amusing, and his more serious moments brought humor to many [illegible]

Breed Theater

Buster Keatons new super-comedy, Battling Butler, which comes to the Breed theater Wednesday, was produced by Joseph M. Schenck for Metro-Goldwyn release. A dominant figure in the motion picture industry and one whose name for years has been regarded by exhibitors throughout the world as a synonym for cleanliness, cleverness, 100 per cent entertainment and unexcelled box office values, Mr. Schenck, who also produces the Norma and Constance Talmadge pictures and is the chairman of the board of directors of United Artists, seldom indulges in grandiloquent phrases. But he does not hesitate to brand Battling Butler as Buster's greatest comedy triumph and recommends it without reserve. In the supporting cast of Battling Butler are Sally O'Neil, Francis McDonald Snitz Edwards, Tom Wilson, Eddie Borden, and other well-known players.

Off the Highway, a heart interest drama packed with melodramatic punches and featuring Marguerite De La Motte and John Bowers is booked for showing at the Breed Wednesday and Thursday as the second feature.

Palace Theater

Drama of the most intense sort ran rampant at the Palace last evening. Never has any one film stirred an audience to such a high pitch of enthusiasm as did the Ufa picture, Variety, which Paramount presented.

Emil Jannings is the only member of this German production known to American film patrons. If he had never done anything else, Jannings would always be remembered because of his remarkable performance in Variety. But when one knows that he is a steady characterization contributor, as was shown in The Last Laugh and Passion, there is no further need of telling you what a great actor the man really is.

The other film attraction featuring the western stunt marvel Fred Thomson in a story that revolves around the resolve of a man never to use his right hand again during the rest of his life, is the theme of Fred Thomson's latest western picture for F. B. O., showing at the Palace theater. Thomson does some remarkable gun play during the picture; it is especially noteworthy because it is all done with the left hand, a feat the star had to learn and perfect for this particular role. Silver King, much to the audience's delight, is greatly in evidence and has some splendid opportunities to display his matchless talent and versatility. One of the most thrilling scenes in the picture is when Fred, for humanity's sake, must choose between breaking his vow or seeing a life lost. His decision and the consequences form a gripping climax which is superbly directed by Reeves Eason.

The Palace management have another great vaudeville bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday with the famous photoplay My Official Wife featuring Irene Rich and Conway Tearle.

A correct guess passes for wisdom even though it is only a guess.

POETRY

The Acorns on the Roof

A joy comes in the Autumn
No other time is found,
And when the pleasure greets me
My heart leaps at the sound.
At first I wonder: "What is that?—
Some Fairy charger's hoof?"
But soon I know the rat-tat-tat
Of acorns on the roof.

Thicker they fall, and thicker,
When e'er the chill wind blows,
Until like Pixie cavalry
The eerie music grows;
And 'neath it, by the ingle,
Snug, from the cold aloof,
I revel in the melody
Of acorns on the roof.

And then, anon, at midnight,
As they less frequent fall,
Sometimes grim fancies haunt me,
And pictures that appall;
Perchance of Death I think—his knock!—
My courage put to proof,
They give my nerves a grievous shock,
Those acorns on my roof.

But soon the dark mood changes,
And Fairies chase the Ghosts;
Again my spirits rising
I dream of Pixie hosts;
Or else, indeed, more comic still,
A Fairy opera-bouffe
That wanders over vale and hill
To dance upon my roof.

Such are my lonely fancies
Beside the Autumn fire;—
Aid if you wish to mock me,—
You may, if you desire—
Still I am thrilled with keen delight,
And vain is all reproof;
I love to list them fall at night,
The acorns on the roof.
—Samuel Minturn Peck in Boston Transcript.

The Undiscovered Country

Could we but know
The land that ends our dark, uncertain travel,
Where lie those happier hills and meadows low—
Ah, if beyond the spirit's inmost cavil
Aught of that country could we surely know,
Who would not go?

Might we but hear
The hovering angels' high footfall
chorus,
Or catch, betimes, with wakeful eyes and clear,
One radiant vista of the realm before us—
With one rapt moment given to see and hear,
Ah, who would fear!

Were we quite sure
To find the peerless friend who left us lonely;
Or there, by some celestial stream secure
To gaze in eyes that here were lovelit only—
This weary mortal coil, were we quite sure,
Who would endure?
—Edmund Clarence Stedman.

Wheat and barley were cultivated by prehistoric farmers of the stone age.

The killdeer's appetite for grubbs and insects makes it one of the most useful birds on the farm.

Animals that live on vegetation fatten during the summer in preparation for cold weather, when plant food will be scarce.

A souvenir of the old Town Hall at Lebanon, N. H., is the watering trough on the meridian road near the farm of M. J. Goss. When the hall burned and the remains were cleared away an old vault was found. This was undamaged and was moved to its present location where it serves as an excellent watering trough.

At 3 o'clock in the morning a Pittsburgh policeman making his rounds found a man standing on a deserted corner with an alarm clock in his hand. "What's the big idea?" demanded the officer. "I've been waiting for you," the other replied. "I broke my glasses and can't see this blame thing to set it. I've got to get up at 5:30." Obligingly the policeman manipulated the clock and the man thanked him and groped his way back to bed.

Canada's oldest citizen, Charles (Dad) Quick, celebrated his 106th birthday at Vancouver, British Columbia. He works ten hours a day in his little saddler's shop, making racing saddles, for which he has been famous for more than half a century. "I don't want any new customers," says Dad. "I have enough orders ahead now to keep me and my apprentice busy for the next fifty years." The apprentice is Tom Brown, a stripling of 75 years, of whom Dad has high hopes, providing that he stays with the business another ten or fifteen years.

"Is it not peculiar that the encores are so much more enjoyable than the listed numbers on the programme?"

"So much so that I think they should sing them first."—Christian Science Monitor.

Ellen, 4, had just returned home after her first morning in kindergarten.

"Well," asked her mother, "how did you like it?"

"I didn't like it at all," she replied. "The woman put me on a chair and told me to wait there for the present—"

"Well," interrupted her mother, "wasn't that all right?"

"But," continued Ellen, "she never gave me any present!"—From Children.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Sugar higher, Cuban buying.

MOTOR SHARES FEATURED

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—Strength and activity of the motor shares overshadowed all other developments in today's irregularly higher movement of stock prices. The advance took place in the face of a stiffening of call money rates and a revival of rumors o motor car price cuts. As in most sessions in recent weeks, trading was largely professional in character with so-called public participation limited largely to the purchase of high grade stocks for investment, due, in part, to the low yields obtainable on most high grade bonds.

The higher call money rate followed the calling of over $36,000,000 in loans in preparation for federal income tax and other mid-month payments. The weekly statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank showed an increase of only $6,136,000 in brokers' loans in the week ended last Wednesday. The credit situation generally continues favorable, with indications of a further easing of rates after the first of the year.

General Motors and Chrysler led the advance in the motor group, the former touching 150 and the latter 43 3-4 both stocks closing at the top and showing net gains of 3 5-8 and 3 7-8 points respectively. Peerless was run up from 26 3-4 to 30 and then eased to 28, up 3 1-8 net, while Mack Trucks, Federal Motors Trucks, Packard and White showed net gains of 1 to 3 points. Hudson also closed nearly a point higher despite reports that Detroit dealers had cut prices of various models.

U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Baldwin, Woolworth and International Harvester, which were prominent on the upside last week, all lost ground today. Over a score issues, however, were elevated to new high levels for the year, the list including the three Wilson Co., stocks, Cudahy Packing, Owens Bottle, Phillips Petroleum, Otis Elevator, Detroit Edison, Corn Products Refining and South Porto Rican Sugar, Texas & Pacific Land Trust, which ordinarily changes hands in 10 share lots, jumped 150 points to a new record high price for all time at 1440 or nearly $00 per cent above the year's low of 510.

Prospects of special dividend developments on several leading carriers within the next few months had a steadying influence on the rail shares. Pere Marquette was bid up 4 points to a new top at 122, but lost more than half its gain.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The principal commodity markets were firm. Some of the active wheat futures were marked up a cent or so a bushel on expectations of a decrease in the visible supply of the commodity. Cotton closed 8 to 13 points net higher on short covering inspired by firmer foreign markets. Raw sugar advanced 1-8 of a cent a pound, but coffee prices lost ground.

Foreign exchanges were firm. A sharp advance of over 10 points in Italian lire, which crossed 4.50 cents to a new high for the year, was the feature. French francs held firm just below 4 cents and demand sterling was again quoted around $4.84 1-2.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—The counter attraction of more than $70,000,000 in new financing and a slight stiffening of money rates in advance of mid-month operations failed to check the upward movement of bond prices today. A strong market developed for all classes of obligations, with today's turnover expanding to more than $15,000,000.

The establishment of new high records for the year by French, Belgian and German and Polish issues focused attention on the foreign list although most of the gains were held to fractions. German 7s and French 8s both sold well above 107, French 7 1-2s approached 103 and the Belgian 7s held above par. A $20,000,000 loan for the Berlin City Electric company was quickly oversubscribed.

Trading in railroad liens was enlivened by a lively buying movement in the Erie issues, coincident with reports that the Van Sweringens were strengthening their position in the various Nickel Plate merger rlads preparatory to carrying out their consolidation when condition seemed the most favorable. Erie convertible 4s D advanced more than a point, Chicago & Northwestern, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific and Wheeling & Lake Erie bonds followed the rising trend of the carrier storks.

United States government obligations continued to attract investment funds. Treasury 3 3-4s crossed 103 for the first time, the Treasury 4 1-4s again sold at a 10 per cent. premium and the Liberty fourth 4 1-4s reached a new high for the year.

While the $35,000,000 5 per cent. debenture offering of the Chile Copper company was being oversubscribed, the 6 per cent. bonds which are to be retired next April at 110 sold three fourths of a point above this figure. Derry 7s, International Agricultural Chemical 5s, American Water Works 5s, Brooklyn Union Gas 5 1-2s and Dominion Iron & Steel 5s were other strong features.

Bond offerings tomorrow will include $7,500,000 Illinois Power and Light 30 year 5s, priced at 97 and $2,000,000 Electric Refrigeration Building corporation 10 year 6s at par. A $7,000,000 5 per cent. bond issue for the New York Water Service corporation will be marketed at an early date.

McCARTHY GETS CLOSE VERDICT OVER PERSSON

HARTFORD, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Pat McCarthy of Boston, outweighed 22 pounds by Harry Persson, the Swedish champion, defeated his opponent on points at the state armory here tonight. McCarthy weighed 177 1-2 pounds and Persson 200 1-2.

There were no knockdowns. McCarthy, representing an impregnable defense, made Persson miss repeatedly, so much so that the crowd was moved to laughter. Although Persson towered above him, McCarthy reached his opponent's head time and again with his flashing left.

The fight was not marked by much punching owing to the Boston battler's defensive tactics. The Swedish fighter was puzzled by McCarthy's style of fighting and could not find an opening to land many solid blows.

It was apparent from the outset that McCarthy would outsmart his opponent and that is what he did. He tied his opponent up into knots whenever danger threatened. Persson, who recently lost a fight to Bud Gorman on a foul, was always cautious about his blows, but was warned once.

The semi-final between Al Friedman of Boston and Charley Pegulihan of France, ended disastrously for the latter, who toward the close of the eighth and final round, sank to the ground. Up to his collapse he had held the lead by a comfortable margin. He battered his heavier opponent about the ring in every round and to many it seemed that he collapsed from sheer exhaustion. Friedman is being held by the Hartford police pending the outcome of Pegulihan's case.

The two preliminaries ended in knockouts.

Nick Fidel knocked out Joe Bartlett in the first round and Joe Smith, former local amateur, dropped George McRae of Springfield after a minute of fighting.

Till Gets Decision

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Oak Till of Rochester, N. Y., won the decision over Jock Malone of St. Paul, in ten rounds here tonight. Malone weighed 156 3-4 and Till 159.

Till's manager, Elmer Viedrick, will file a challenge with the state boxing commission, accompanied by a certified check for $3,500 for a match with Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion.

Leroy Beats Conway

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Russie Leroy, Fargo, N. D., welterweight, tonight won a newspaper decision over Al Conway of Philadelphia in a ten round engagement at Laurel Gardens. Leroy weighed 143 pounds and Conway 140.

In the semi-final Sailor Denny Ryan, Waterford, Conn., lightweight, knocked out Jack Connors of Los Angeles, in the second round of a ten round match.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—(AP)—Trading in today's curb market was on a somewhat broader scale with a more uniformly upward price tendency. Professionals continued to dominate the market, however, centering their operations in issues which give promise of special developments in the near future. Standard Oil, industrial and public utility shares showed few important changes.

Although most of the oil companies are expected to show unusually good earnings this year, trading in those issues continues sluggish, due to rather widespread fears that recent increases in crude production would unsettle the price structure which would be reflected in next year's earnings.

Victor Talking Machine continued to attract attention by moving up into new high ground at 130 3-4 or nearly 16 points above the price offered minority interests for their stock by the banking syndicate which recently obtained an option on the majority holdings. Central Agerre Sugar, Philip Morris, Proctor & Gamble and Pyrene Manufacturing also attained new peak prices.

A renewed demand for Deforest which carried that stock up over 2 points had a steadying influence on the radio group. Baking, motor, shipping and public utility issues also presented several strong spots, while Warner Pictures B was one of the few points of weakness.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—(AP)—Unexpected big falling-off in the United States wheat visible supply did a good deal to hoist wheat values today at the last. Moreover, a severe cold wave was in prospect, with domestic winter wheat represented as virtually bare of any covering of snow to protect the crop. Wheat closed firm, 3-8c to 1 3-4c net higher, corn 3-8c to 5-8c off, oats 1-4c to 7-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 20 cents down.

GREENEVILLE

The Community Workers met at the home of their president, Mrs. Chas. F. Sears of Prospect street, on Friday afternoon, for their regular December meeting all members being present, but one who was detained at home by sickness in her family. After the business had been transacted and the reports of various committees given, the afternoon was spent in a social time, a Christmas party being held. There was also an inspection of dolls, as each member brought in the dolls she had dressed to be used for sick or needy children, either for Christmas or whenever opportunity presents. Several of the dolls have found ready purchasers, so the members are going to dress others to fill the gap.

A delightful orchestra selection was given as an opening number for the social time in which each member took part and several guessing contests were held. Finally the women were invited to the dining room where a miniature Christmas tree and red and green crepe paper festoons graced the table, also beautiful red candles in crepe paper holders which were made and sent by the absent member, Mrs. Frank Quinley, for the occasion. The members had each brought a covered parcel which was opened at the table and which resulted in this menu being served, cheese a la spaghetti, crab meat, cheese, meat and egg sandwiches, nut bread, tapioca cream pudding, fruit salad with whipped cream, cake, crullers and coffee.

Several special meetings have been held during November and December when quilts have been tied and at the January meeting more work of that kind is planned for.

A present of $15 was given a worthy woman in need and a basket of fruit, sent to the husband of one of the deceased members. He is at present a patient in the Backus hospital. The Community Workers, under the splendid leadership of Mrs. Sears are ready and willing at any time to help in any way they can, any needy person or other good cause.

Sale and supper, 3rd Baptist church, 5 to 7 on Thursday.—adv.

Miss Elinor M. Howard of Central avenue, entertained ten of her girl friends, at her home, recently in honor of her fifteenth birthday. After piano selections by several of those present, guessing contests and games were played. Miss Rose Standish won the prize for making the most words out of Christmas, Miss Doris Peterson won the drawing prize and Miss Elsie Risley won in guessing the number of candies contained in a jar, guessing the exact number. After the social time, the guests were invited to the dining room where a miniature Christmas tree with lights was the table centerpiece and also gaily wrapped Christmas favors were at each plate. A dainty repast was served by Mrs. George Howard assisted by Miss William Lund after which the party broke up, the girls wishing Miss Elinor many happy returns of the day. Miss Howard received a number of beautiful birthday gifts from her friends, those present being the Misses Gertrude Pickering, Dorothy Edwards, Lucy Schultze, Doris Peterson, Mae Adams, Elsie Risley, Dorothy Conklin, Rose Standish, Natalie Service and Doris Lund.

The Missionary society of the Third Baptist church is to meet in the chapel on Wednesday afternoon for its regular December meeting and to tie quilts. Mrs. Irving Larkin is to be the leader for the afternoon. The society has just packed a barrel to be shipped to some southern point and has also filled two large boxes with aprons, ties, handkerchiefs, dressed dolls, toys and other things, one being sent to a missionary in Nevada, and one to Colorado, which are to be distributed among the people there as Christmas gifts. They are omitting their regular meeting this month on account of the supper to be held by the Ladies' Aid society.

The many friends of Miss Marianna Blackledge a senior at Smith college, will be pleased to know that she is making rapid recovery, having been operated on for a serious case of appendicitis over a week ago. Her mother who spent some time with her has returned to her home on Scotland road and Miss Blackledge will come home from Northampton as soon as she is able to travel.

At Old Lyme, Mrs. Sarah Dibble, plans to close her house on the Neck road and spend the winter in Northampton, to be near her son, W. P. Dibble.

THREE LAYMEN TALK TO MINISTERS ABOUT ATTENDENCE AT CHURCH

The December meeting of the Norwich Ministers association was held at the Community house at noon Monday. Following the bountiful lunch which had been prepared by the ladies, the president, Rev. J. Eldred Brown, announced the subject "Increased Church Attendance" and introduced in turn the three layman speakers: Arthur E. Story, a past president, James L. Case, president and John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Story said in part: "It is regrettable that the patronage given for our churches is so small. Governments, organizations and big business have as their foundation the Bible, the greatest book of the statutes and ethics ever gathered. To know the Bible and to know its great truths which may be unfolded to us in the church where those who are sanctified in its cause can teach us of its merit and picture to us its beauty and its promises is a very great advantage. It is here where great lessons in citizenship are taught and a devout conscience created.

Here the child is moulded for his manhood and the parent quickened in his sense of care and responsibility. Church-going men and women do more for a community than any other class of people. Increase the size of the several congregations "regardless of sects" or of creeds and we will bring about a better spirit of brotherhood. No minister can do his best with a small audience and a scant financial support. The large audience gives him inspiration, leads him on and makes him believe that his influence is being widely felt. His profession is a great and noble one and involves hard study and poor financial return. We need the help of the ministers of the gospel and they, both Catholic and Protestant, need our help more and more. No person ever left a church service without feeling better for attending. The churches need the help of business men. Take away ten financial supporters from any church and that church is crippled in its work. Only a few years ago there were two Sunday services in our churches and today, for lack of support, our churches commonly have only one service. This changed condition is largely due to indifference. If men will only make the start and get the habit of church attendance it would be a great gain to the city of Norwich. It is my hope and trust that such may be done."

Mr. Case spoke of his personal experience in attending church services elsewhere when traveling and magnified the personal power of the gifted preacher and also the pleasure of the personal word of greeting at the place of worship. He spoke further of the economic advantage of the church and stressed the danger and the sordidness of a community without churches. He dwelt upon the readiness of the business men to co-operate to advance the public spirit of community life.

Mr. O'Rourke brought the testimony of several Massachusetts cities where the chambers of commerce have cooperated with the churches in local campaign drives to increase church attendance with good results. He related instances showing the appreciation of the pastoral call in time of sickness and the expectation of consolation and guidance from the clergyman. He deplored the undue discussion of doctrinal differences and the enlarging of sectarian bickering and jealousy, and portrayed vividly the honor graciously accorded to the men of the clerical profession who unselfishly spend the years of a life time in the sustained effort or individual betterment and social uplift.

The speakers were accorded a rising vote of thanks and acknowledgment was also voted to the hostesses of the occasion.

The special committee for the revision of the constitution made a report and the recommendations were adopted. This will involve the appointment of additional committee for the sake of better social contacts with other community organizations. Such committee assignments are to be announced later.

The large attendance at the lunch and the cordial co-operative spirit shown would suggest the arrangement of similar occasions from time to time in the effort to develop the higher common interest of this municipality, in the opinion of officers of the association.

VERDICT FOR $450 FOR JEWETT CITY ADMINISTRATOR

In the common pleas court the case brought against Dmytro Feduk of Preston by R. J. Dudkowski as administrator of the estate of the late Raymond Cusker of Griswold, judgment for $450 in favor of the administrator has been rendered by Judge C. B. Waller.

Cusker, while driving a horse and wagon from Pachaug to Jewett City was injured and his wagon demolished, when struck by an automobile owned and operated by the defendant, who later died after the suit had been brought.

The decision as handed down follows:

"I find that the collision between defendant's automobile and the wagon driven by plaintiff's intestate occurred on Aug. 28, 1925, at approximately 5:45 o'clock a. m., standard time. The sun arose on that morning four minutes after five.

There was sufficient light at the time of the collision and the atmosphere was sufficiently clear so that in the exercise of reasonable care the defendant could have observed the wagon ahead of him.

There is no evidence that the defendant gave any warning of his approach or attempted to turn to the left and pass the wagon on his right.

The defendant's testimony is to the effect that when he observed the wagon he was so close that he could not avoid the collision.

I find that the plaintiff has established by a fair preponderance of the evidence that the proximate cause of the collision was defendant's failure to exercise reasonable care in keeping a lookout ahead of him and that no negligence on the plaintiff's intestate essentially, or materially contributed to the cause of the collision.

When the plaintiff's intestate left his farm at about 4:30 a. m., he had a light on the rear of his wagon. Whether the light was burning at the time of the collision is of no consequence in view of the fact that the collision occurred at about 4:45 a. m., 19 minutes before sunrise, at a time when there was sufficient visibility to make the use of lights unnecessary.

The plaintiff's intestate suffered damage in the injury to his horse and wagon and personal injuries received by him, together with expenses caused in connection with treatment of his horse and medical treatment of his own physical injuries.

I find under the circumstances disclosed by the evidence that the sum of $450 is fair and just compensation for the injuries to the person and property of plaintiff's intestate.

Judgment may be entered for plaintiff to recover of defendant the sum of $450."

LAW TO APPLY ON FINDING IN THEATERS

HARTING, Dec. 13—(AP)—A law making it obligatory for persons finding articles in theaters to either turn the article in at the box office or report their find there, will be sought in the 1927 legislature, it was said today by Henry Needles, manager of the Strand theatre here. About 90 per cent of the articles lost in theaters, including large sums of money, are returned to their owners, Mr. Needles said, but the theater management, he believes, would be relieved of much misplaced blame from the owners of articles which are not reported if it was made necessary for theater patrons to report all their finds.

The state law now provides that the finder of goods valued between $1 and $5 must report his find, including a $5 must report his find, including a place where it was found to the town clerk, and in the case of goods worth more than $5, the find must be advertised in a newspaper.

BREACH OF PEACE AND INTOXICATION CASES

A Webster, Mass., man was presented in the city court Monday morning for the third time within a year, on a charge of intoxication. On a plea for leniency, the case was continued for a year by Judge Arthur F. Libby. A local man was in court on charges of breach of the peace and intoxication. He had trouble at his home which resulted in his arrest and the case was continued. Two men were each fined $10 and costs for intoxication and another man went to jail to work out a fine of $5 and costs for intoxication. A Norwich man was given a suspended 10 day jail sentence on a charge of breach of the peace. He was arrested after causing trouble in the Gellas building entrance Saturday night.

PHIKUS DEATH ENSUES FROM SEPTIC MENINGITIS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 13—Tony Phikus, about 45, of Quaker Hill, Waterford, died this morning at 10:45 o'clock at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, death being anticipated and was caused by septic meningitis resulting from injuries sustained by Phikus when his automobile collided with an automobile driven by Miss Susie C. Whittlesey, 32 Lincoln avenue, the city of Norwich, it is my hope and trust that such may be done."

Mr. Case spoke of his personal experience in attending church services elsewhere when traveling and magnified the personal power of the gifted preacher and also the pleasure of the personal word of greeting at the place of worship. He spoke further of the economic advantage of the church and stressed the danger and the sordidness of a community without churches. NORWICH BUREAU FILLED EVERY HELP APPLICATION

HARTFORD, Dec. 13.—(AP)—A slight decrease in the demand for labor in November made it impossible for the five state employment bureaus to furnish positions to as great a number of applicants for employment as during October, according to figures contained in the monthly report which was issued today by the state department of labor.

The report shows that 69.8 per cent of those applying for employment were supplied with situations as against 78.9 per cent during the month of October. The decrease was greatest in the number of positions supplied to men, since only 63.1 per cent of the applicants secured situations as against 76.2 per cent in October while the percentage of women applicants supplied with positions decreased only from 82.9 to 80.2.

The actual number of positions secured during the month was 2,953, of which 1,519 were for men and 1,434 were for women. Applications for employment were received from 2,443 men and 1,787 women, a total of 4,230. The applications for help asked for 1,612 men and 1,584 women, a total of 3,196. Of the total number applying, 92.3 per cent were furnished with help against 90.5 per cent during the month of October.

The report shows that every application for help received by the Norwich bureau was filled. One hundred seventy one applications, 100 for men and 71 for women, were received and persons found to fill each position. The bureau received during the month 431 applications for employment, 313 from men and 118 from women.

The greatest amount of business was done in the Hartford bureau, where there were 1,196 applications for employment, 894 applications for help and 836 positions. Positions were secured by the other three bureaus as follows: New Haven, 768, Bridgeport, 675; Waterbury, 503.

ASKING ONE WEEK IN WHICH TO HUNT DEER

If the 1927 general assembly adopts a recommendation voted at a sportsmen's conference held last week in Hartford, under the auspices of the state board of fisheries and game at the state capitol, hunting deer with either bow and arrow or shotguns will be legal in the state during the first week in December of each year. Game Warden Robert B. Chappell, of New London, representing the New London County Fish and Game association, and Joseph Harrington, also of New London, representing the newly formed New London County Sportsmen's club, were present.

A proposal to make deer legal game for archers only for one week each year was voted down and recommendation was made to the legislature by a vote of 46 to 25 that hunters be permitted to kill deer with shotguns, W. Lee White, a New York broker, whose home is in Stamford, then secured reconsideration of the adverse vote on bows and arrows and had them included with shotguns as legal weapons for deer slaying.

Mr. Chappell stated that he favored including the bow and arrow in the recommendation because he believes that such hunting would prove pleasurable and also it would be the introduction of a new and interesting sport.

The bow and arrow proposal was made by Frederick C. Walcott, of Norfolk, president of the fisheries and game board, who suggested limiting deer hunters to those weapons, immediately following a proposal that the conference go on record as favoring "a week's open season to kill deer—and as many people—as possible." He said the sportsmen would get a real "kick" in learning to use primitive weapons, which, having been successfully used against lions and black bear, would, in his opinion, be successfull against deer.

There were about 10 present at the conference, both morning and afternoon sessions being held, with the closing feature an exhibit of motion pictures and slides on game sanctuaries by Jack Minor. President Walcott announced in an address at the morning session that the 1927 legislature would be asked to appropriate $225,000 to buy 35,000 acres of waste land for the use of the state wild life commission for recreation purpose and game sanctuaries. Purchase of this land, he said, will bring the total land in this classification owned by the state to 65,000 acres. Future plans, he said, call for the acquisition of 200,000 acres for use as recreational spots and sanctuaries.

More For Trout Stocking.

Another request for a legislative appropriation was forecast in the report of Superintendent Titcomb of the fish and game department that continuation of the state stream leasing and stocking projects would result in a request for authorization for additional means for raising trout. The stream leasing plan, originated in Connecticut, provides for the state stocking certain streams with trout in return for owners of riparian rights on these streams granting fishing rights to licensed anglers and certain definite rights of way from the highways to the streams. The conference unanimously endorsed the project and the proposed appropriation.

The state distributed 58,000 adult trout in streams here during the past year, Mr. Titcomb said, most of them bought outside the state. It will be possible, he said, to buy land adjoining the present hatchery in Burlington and have a capacity of producing fish with a market value of $35,000 at a cost of $20,000 for rearing. The bill for the appropriation, he promised, will be so drawn that it will be possible to use the funds for retaining ponds in other sections of the state if that is deemed advisable. Stocking streams, he said, would eventually become a self-supporting proposition.

Oppose Poison Pellets.

The conference also acted favorably upon proposals to prohibit the importation of any new species of fish into the waters of the state unless sanctioned by the fish and game commission, establishing a closed season for calico bass, prohibiting the sale of striped bass of less than 12 inches in length and establishing a closed season on wild turkeys and quail. After considerable discussion, it was decided to recommend that no changes be made in the law on pheasants. A proposal to lift the restrictions on shooting pheasants when the birds were on private preserves and had been bought by the proprietors of these preserves was voted down. The conference voted to memoralize congress in favor of barring from the mails publications which advertise various poison pellets for the destruction of fur bearing animals as one means of curbing the distribution of these poisons and the resulting deaths of many valuable dogs.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 131 N Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

EDGEWATER, N. J., OFFICIALS INVOLVED IN RUM SCANDAL

Mayor and Chief of Police Have Been Indicted For Conspiracy to Violate Federal Prohibition Law— A United States Customs Inspector and a New York City Marine Police Sergeant Also Were Indicted—Indictments Resulted From Investigation of Landing of a $2,000,000 Cargo of Liquor and Alleged $43,000 Bribery of Agents and Police.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Thirty three defendants, including the mayor and the chief of police of Edgewater, N. J., a United States customs inspector and a New York city marine police sergeant were indicted today for conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law.

The indictments were the outgrowth of eight months' investigation of the landing of a $2,000,000 cargo of liquor from the rum-runner Eker in April last and the alleged $43,000 bribery of agents and police.

Mayor Henry Wissel and Police Chief James A. Dinan of Edgewater; Edward A. Ritz, a customs inspector living in Union City, N. J.; John J. Lowery, sergeant of the marine division of New York; Alexander F. Flannery and Edward Pickering, detectives of Edgewater; Eustace R. Smith, Paul Demonstreaux and James Devlin, owners of the Edgewater boat repair yard; George Rosenbaum of Newark, N. J.; Henry Kramer ofPhiladelphia, Louis Smith of New York, said to be a buyer of whiskey in Montreal; David Perlo of Montreal; Cecil Kinder, Clifford Kinder and D. Turner of Chicago; Ernest Gould, alias "Red" Reynolds of Providence, R. I.; Maurice Borden, of Newport, R. I., and members of the Eker's crew were named in the indictment.

Mayor Wissel, assistant United States Attorney Herman T. Stichman said, was alleged to have received $50,000 and Sergeant Lowery $20,000 from the rum ring. Smaller amounts were said to have been paid to other defendants.

The steamer Eker was seized in the Hudson river near Yonkers on April 26 with $500,000 of alleged whiskey malt and 6,000 gallons of alcohol aboard. Records found aboard the vessel indicated that large amounts of liquor and alcohol had been landed while the vessel was anchored near the Edgewater boat repair yard and that thousands of dollars in graft money had been paid officials, Mayor Wissel included.

Captain Bernard M. Reaves escaped at the time the vessel was seized but was later captured and returned to the Bahamas to answer to the British government for kidnapping George Pindar, negro constable of Nassau.

Pindar, who was still being held prisoner aboard the craft at the time of the seizure, told United States commissioners that $8,000 cases of liquor had been transferred to the shore when the vessel lay off Edgewater.

On Oct. 13 last, 19 men, including Cecil and Clifford Kinder, Eustace Smith and "Red" Reynolds were indicted as members of the rum smuggling ring at which time authorities uncovered evidence that $43,000 had been paid customs officials and police to enable the Eker to enter New York harbor with its huge cargo.

TAXI DRIVER WITNESSES HIS WIFE'S LEAP TO DEATH

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Margaret Kipchak arranged the first meeting with her husband in four years today, but she invited a third to attend the reunion and that one was death.

Kipchak, a taxi driver, was at his stand today at 125th street when a woman with a gaily crimson hat was seen to climb hesitantly to the rail of the Riverside drive viaduct 115 feet above. Then the hat disappeared; fear for the moment had conquered grim resolve.

Again the gay hat appeared above the rail and again it disappeared. A crowd gathered in the streets and shouts were raised to attract attention of pedestrians on the viaduct who might prevent the impending tragedy.

But a third time the flaunting crimson hat rose and this time the trim figure of a woman could be seen balanced on the rail. Briefly she looked down at those below her, her body stiffened and she plunged headlong into space.

A patrolman turned the body over in the street and Kipchak pressed forward with others for a glance at the pathetic form of this woman who had so wanted and so feared to die.

"That is my wife," he cried, and fell unconscious to the street.

When he was revived he told police that five years ago he and his wife, then but 17 years old, had separated. For four years, he said, he had not seen her nor known where she was. She had been a sufferer, he reported, from melancholia and this he believed must have led her to decide to end her life in such dramatic fashion.

GIRL BANK ROBBER WAS RELEASED ON $6,000 BOND

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, Texas girl bank robber, was released late today on $5,000 bond. She was given her liberty by District Judge George Calhoun pending action of the Hays county grand jury which convenes Feb. 28 at San Marcos.

At the hearing on the bond, Mrs. Rogers, a graduate of the University of Texas and a stenographer in the office of Attorney General Dan Moody, was identified as the girl who last Saturday held up and robbed the Farmers National bank of Buda of $5,000.

Sheriff George Allen of Hays county testified that Mrs. Rogers admitted the robbery.

F. A. Jamison, cashier of the bank, and Raymond Howe, bookkeeper, who were backed into the vault at the point of a pistol by the girl bandit, identified Mrs. Rogers.

The defendant, who was presented in the courtroom, smiled when Jamison said he "stopped" promptly and complied with the bandit's instructions when the pistol was directed at him.

"I've got a lot to live down, but not as much as those two men who let a little girl hold 'em up with an empty gun," Sheriff Allen quoted Mrs. Rogers. "In fact, I feel sorry for them. They ought to leave the country."

$60,000,000 RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The bulky $60,000,000 rivers and harbors bill finally got before the senate today and immediately drew fire from western senators.

Formal reading of the measure, usually dispensed with, had been completed when the day closed.

While the senate at the last session agreed to vote on the bill not later than next Tuesday it was pointed out today by some opponents that the number of amendments which may be offered is not limited and each senator is allowed fifteen minutes on each amendment after Tuesday.

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Bench warrants were issued today in criminal superior court by Judge John H. Booth for Joseph Kincaid, connected with the Bow and Arrow inn at Cromwell, charged with violation of the liquor laws, and against Norman W. West arrested last night in a raid by local police. The warrant on West was served at police headquarters, where he was held.

CREW MUTINOUS ON WRECKED FOUR-MASTER

WILMINGTON, N. C., Dec. 14—(AP)—A mutinous crew demanding their captain to relinquish his command, while the skipper held them off single handed with a gun was pictured as having occurred on the four masted schooner Charles A. Dean, wrecked on the Frying Pan shoals in reports received here today.

Coast guardsmen, summoned to the schooners aid, had not been permitted late today to board her by the captain and after procuring rifles at their station, returned to make another boarding attempt. No word of their second effort had been received here tonight.

When guardsmen first approached the schooner in their patrol boat, they said they discovered the captain, standing aft with a gun guarding the helm, while the crew was shouting demands that he surrender.

The schooner went ashore while a heavy gale was blowing. She was described by the coast guardsmen as "hard and fast" on the shoals.

Four tugs were dispatched from here and Southport, North Carolina, to attempt to pull the ship from the rocks. The captains of the tugs, however, did not expect to release the schooner until high tide late tonight.

The Charles A. Dean is a 1100 ton vessel and was bound from Savannah to Baltimore with a cargo of cross ties.

Frying Pan shoals are off the mouth of the Cape Fear river.

SENATE VOTES TO LOOSEN UP THE IMMIGRATION LAW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.— (AP) —A spirit of Christmas season good will imbued the senate today and as a consequence happy family reunions of 35,000 aliens' wives and children, barred from the United States by immigration restrictions may result.

By a vote of 38 to 37 the senate adopted a proposal of Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, to permit entry regardless of quota restrictions of wives and children of aliens, admitted prior to July 1, 1924, who have applied for naturalization.

The proposal was offered as an amendment to a house bill, which would grant entry 'outside of quota restrictions to American women who lost their citizenship by marriage to aliens. The house bill was passed 44 to 31, but the house has to consider the Wadsworth amendment.

The amendment was offered, Senator Wadsworth said, for "humane as well as practicable reasons." It encountered stiff opposition, being described as "the opening wedge in the breakdown of the restrictive immigration act."

APPEAL BY CATHOLIC EPISCOPATE OF MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—(AP)— The Catholic episcopate has issued an appeal for contributions for the aid of more than 50 teachers of the government schools who, the episcopate says, have been dismissed because of their loyalty to the Catholic religion, and therefore refused to sign an agreement to support the government's religious policy.

Many of these teachers and their families are suffering, and the request is made for contributions for at least $5,000 pesos monthly for their benefit.

The episcopate's statement asserts that numerous government public schools have been closed for lack of attendance, or have a scanty attendance because Catholic parents are not sending their children to the lay schools.

New[illegible]m Relief Bill Presented in Senate

Contains Essential Features of the McNary-Hagen Bill, Without Objectionable Provision.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—A new farm relief bill in last year's gown altered to fit this season's demands appeared in the senate today, but a controversy over whose name should grace it prevented its introduction in the house.

The measure, embodying the essential features of the McNary-Haugen bill, but shorn of most of its objectionable provisions, was offered by Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, father of the bill which has weathered two year of stormy wrangling and the new chairman of the senate agriculture committee.

A companion bill was turned over to Representative Purnell, republican, Indiana, and Representative Fulmer, democrat, South Carolina, with a request from senate farm leaders that they introduce it jointly, thus indicating support from the three great farming regions—far west, middle west and south. Both Purnell and Fulmer are members of the house agriculture committee.

Representative Purnell immediately expressed his complete approval of the measure, characterizing it "as the best farm relief bill yet to appear in congress," but until he obtained the views of his superior on the agricultural committee—Chairman Haugen, he said he did not want it to go in with his name.

In similar terms, Representative Fulmer expressed the opinion that the new bill would draw additional votes from the south. He said he was willing to introduce the measure, but he wished to add a provision making the equalization fee not applicable to cotton for two years after passage.

Meanwhile, Chairman Haugen withheld final approval until opportunity for further study was afforded.

The bill is understood to embody the latest views of a substantial number of farm leaders in both houses.

Rep. Dickson, republican, of Iowa, a farm leader, said he considered the measure the most finished piece of legislation to ease the farm situation that could be devised.

Willimantic Man's Tale of Rum Running

George B. Latham Asserted He Was Making Venture to Win Wager—Had $3,100 in Bills.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Dec. 14—(AP)—George E. Latham of Willimantic, Conn., admitted to customs patrolmen today that he had lost a wager when they arrested him for smuggling liquor in his automobile. His new coupe carried an elaborate smoke screen attachment. Latham had $3,100 in bills with him. He was released in $800 bail late today.

Latham was arrested in Sunderland Hollow late last night when border patrolmen found 36 bottles of Scotch whiskey in his car. The arrest was made near the spot where a customs officer was shot to death in October and a second officer wounded. Latham promptly handed over a revolver, which he had carried in a coat pocket, the officers said.

He suggested that if they would give him a mile start they could not catch him, the agents said, but they declined to accept the sporting proposition. They said he also offered to "settle" telling them he had $2,000 with him.

While held for arraignment before the United States commissioner, Latham claimed that he had made a wager that he could travel to Canada to bring back a load of liquor, the customs officers asserted.

He was held by the United States commissioner on a charge of smuggling and furnished cash bail. He arranged also for the recovery of his automobile, which had been seized.

His departure was delayed, however, by the operations of customs agents who removed the smoke screen equipment from the car. The equipment was said to rank with the best ever seen here. A tank in the front of the car contained a liquid which could be released by a lever. Flowing into the exhaust it produced clouds of smoke.

LATHAM FORMERLY WAS LOCOMOTIVE FIREMAN

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 14—(AP)—George P. Latham, arrested today near St. Albans, Vt., with a load of liquor in a car with a "smoke screen" attachment, lives with an unmarried sister in Coventry, about five miles from here. He was at one time a fireman on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

About a year and a half ago he lost his leg in a head-on automobile accident near Manchester, and was awarded damages in a suit growing out of the accident.

He left here last Thursday, saying he was going to Canada, and a postcard from him to a local garage proprietor was postmarked at Montreal early Monday morning.

SENATOR FRAZER NOT GIVEN HIS FORMER RANK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—The well laid plans of republican leaders to bring Senator Frazier, the North Dakota insurgent, back into the party fold have gone slightly awry because he was not given his former rank on all committees.

Frazier's disappointment over his committee assignments has disturbed those who were instrumental in getting the republican conference to vote unanimously today to welcome him back into the councils from which he was ejected two years ago, because he supported Robert M. LaFollette for president.

Senator Frazier declared he had been led to believe that he would get his former rank on all of his committees, but that he had been so placed on only one, Indians affairs, and left low down on the list of others. He made the discovery late today but declined to say what he would do about it.

"I guess it is all right if they want to do that way," he added. "It is all their doing anyway. I haven't asked them for anything."

DISTILLING EQUIPMENT AND LIQUORS SEIZED

WESTPORT, Dec. 14—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents, state police and local authorities today seized an elaborate distilling equipment and large quantities of assorted liquors in a house and garage, adjoining the Bedford estate, Green's Farms. The house is located on property belonging to E. T. Bedford of Westport and New York, president of the Corn Products company.

William Erbe, 45, for 17 years employed as house man by Mr. Bedford, was arrested, charged with violation of the prohibition laws, and will be given a hearing here Thursday.

Mr. Bedford, to whom police had confided their suspicions of Erbe's activities co-operated with the authorities in the raid, and gave them permission to enter the estate at any time without a search warrant.

Bail was fixed at $1,000 and was furnished by John Brock, superintendent of the Bedford farm.

FALL-DOHENY CASE WILL BE GIVEN TO JURY TODAY

Closing Arguments Developed an Acrimonious Verbiage Between Owen J. Roberts, Government Prosecutor, and Frank J. Hogan, Chief Defense Attorney—Throng in Courtroom Was Electrified by Display of Earnestness and High Pressure Oratorical Acrobatics

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP)—Six hours of vitriolic argument took the Fall-Doheny case today to the threshold of the jury room.

Tomorrow, under present plans, the jury will retire, probably about 2 o'clock, to deliberate its verdict convicting or acquitting Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, lessee of the Elk Hills, Calif., naval oil reserve, on trial for conspiracy to defraud the government.

The crashing finale of acrimony and left-handed bouquets today between Owen J. Roberts, government prosecutor, and Frank J. Hogan, chief defense attorney, electrified the thronged court-room as few anti-climaxes of dramatic evidence have done.

The argument ranged from whispered earnestness directly into the faces of the twelve young jurors to high pressure oratorical acrobatics.

Practically every one called to the witness stand in the four weeks' trial was either initiated in the Ananias club or put down as a most forgetful fellow.

Mr. Roberts said Mr. Hogan did not call the most important witness and Mr. Hogan called Mr. Roberts "a Philadelphia lawyer."

Roberts ended his five-hour plea for conviction shortly before noon with the direct charge that, in November 1921 "Albert B. Fall knew that this $100,000 loan (from Doheny) was dirty business."

Hogan began his argument with a regret that the law prohibited his "even suggesting" as an answer to "character wrecking" by Roberts "the remedy of early days of the pioneer west."

Then Hogan launched into a minute analysis of the Pearl Harbor oil storage lease and Elk Hills negotiations, interpolating epigrammic summations of the evidence as he saw it.

"Do you believe Mr. Doheny is a crook?" he dramticaly asked the jury.

"Did you ever hear of a briber taking a note?"

"Would two men who could make a cats-paw out of the secretary of the navy and a fool out of an old sea fighter put their necks in such a trap?"

Touching on the patriotism motive challenged yesterday by Roberts as "bunk," he said:

"Gentlemen, the artist who addressed you yesterday knows what bunk is—he got away with all he could—but he did not convince you gentlemen that this venerable old gentleman (pointing to Doheny) is a trafficker in the noble impulse of love of country."

As the Fall-Doheny case moved nearer the jury room, the District of Columbia supreme court, in which it is being tried, was asked today by counsel for Harry F. Sinclair to quash the indictment charging him and Fall with conspiracy in the leasing to Sinclair interests of the Teapot Dome, Wyoming, naval reserve.

They were to have been arraigned Friday, but instead arguments on today's motion will be heard then. Sinclair's counsel contended that he had been singled out for unusual prosecution, designation of special counsel to handle the case for the government infringing on his constitutional rights.

At the Fall-Doheny trial Roberts devoted the last two hours of his argument today to challenging the testimony of Doheny, his son, former secretary of the Navy Denby, Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, retired and other defense witnesses.

"The essence of the defense case," he said, "has been to excuse, explain —and forget."

He asked why J. J. Cotter, vice-president of Doheny's Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, who had conducted the negotiations with the navy and interior departments, had not been called to the stand.

"He sat within twenty feet of this witness stand for days and was never called to the chair. Why?"

At another junction, Roberts, touching on the defense contention of patriotic motive in Doheny's determination to bid on the Pearl Harbor project in spite of opposition from business associates, told the jury.

"And you are asked to wrap the flag of the United States around Mr. Doheny and call him a great patriot—all because some admiral was running around the town with a war scare in his pocket."

Hogan insisted the government's case was based on character wrecking, and charged that Roberts had handled former Secretary Denby on the witness stand "like a pick pocket in a police court."

He again called the words of President Harding to the defense, reading to the jurors extracts of a white house letter on June 7, 1923, in which the president said he was familiar and in sympathy with all that had been done in the oil leasing programs.

"How I wish I had the strength to break in twain the traducers of President Harding's name," he said in an earnest whisper at another point.

At another dramatic moment he turned full upon the press representatives and charged that Mr. Roberts had addressed himself not so much to the jury as to "the vacant eyed half wits who laughed when Secretary Denby was described as a chump and a boob."

STEAMER AND FREIGHTER COLLIDED IN THE SOUND

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 14—(AP)—Steamer Concord of the Colonial Line, bound from New York to this city and groping its way through dense fog in Long Island sound, collided with the steel-hulled freighter Morgan about eight o'clock this morning. No one was injured and the only damage to the steamer was that about 15 feet of wearboard on the outside of the guard was torn away, according to Captain George P. Ollweiler, commander of the Concord.

When the Concord arrived here at 5.15 o'clock tonight, 12 hours late because of delay in sailing caused by the fog, Captain Ollweiler declared the passenger boat was between Captain's island and Huntington, L. I., when he and his pilot heard what they believed was a double blast from the whistled of an approaching steamer. They suddenly saw the Morgan bearing down upon the Concord. Before they could avoid a crash, Captain Ollweiler said, the freighter struck the Concord a glancing blow on the aft port quarter. Both ships stopped Captain Ollweiler said, saw that no serious damage had been caused, and then proceeded on their courses.

BELIEVES STAMFORD MAN WAS VICTIM OF AMNESIA

STAMFORD, Dec. 14—(AP)—Search for Henry Schofield, well known Stamford resident, missing from home, who recently was bound and gagged in his place of business by bandits, who set fire to the place, ended tonight when Scofield called his wife by telephone from Deposit, near Birmingham, N. Y. He told her he had just gained consciousness in the home of friends in that town. Mrs. Scofield, whose husband qualified as an air pilot, during the World war, believes he was a victim of amnesia.

The young man left his home yesterday to keep an appointment in New Haven. Although he parked his car at the Stamford station and was seen to purchase a ticket for New Haven, he did not keep his appointment and when he failed to return, inquiries were made and his disappearance reported to police.

Scofield is in the hay and feed business in Glenbrook, a member of the Davis-Scofield company. He is the son of Isaac M. Scofield, who has held numerous public offices in Stamford.

NORWALK DEFAULTING TAX OFFICIALS SENTENCED

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 14—(AP)—Attributing their action in stealing $20,-970.77 from the second taxing district of Norwalk to a "foolish sham," Judge Alfred C. Baldwin in the superior criminal court today sentenced Arthur Sterling, 28, and Percy Dann, 30, both of Norwalk to jail for one year.

Dann and Sterling were arrested in August of this year when a check-up of their books in the office of the commissioners of the second taxing district of Norwalk showed a shortage. Investigation showed that the peculations of the pair had been spread over a period of four years. Dann, it was shown had appropriated $16,272.20 and Sterling $14,697.57. The money represented water taxes paid into the office by residents of the district. Dann was Sterling's assistant in the office.

AGATHA CLARISSA CHRISTIE, NOVELIST, HAS BEEN LOCATED

HARROGATE, York, England, Dec. 14—(AP)—Agatha Clarissa Christie, writer of mystery tales and wife of Colonel Archibald Christie, whose mysterious disappearance from her home at Sunningdale on the night of December 3, has kept the whole countryside astir, came direct to Harrogate, and has been resting and enjoying herself ever since. She has even followed in the newspapers the stories of her disappearance and the wide search that was being made for her.

Colonel Christie came here today and identified his wife, who has registered at a hydropathic establishment under the name of Mrs. Trasenell of Cape Town, South Africa, saying she had just arrived from that place.

The morning after Mrs. Christie, who is the daughter of the late Frederick Miller of New York vanished from her home her automobile was found abandoned in a hedge along the road. Searching parties consisting of scores of police, residents of the district and friends of the missing woman, aided by airplanes and tractors combed the entire area of Surreydowns and dragged for days a sinister piece of water known as the "Silent Pool."

All the while Mrs. Christie was resting peacefully at Harrogate. She had written a letter a week ago to Colonel Christie's brother, saying that because of ill health she was going to a Yorkshire Spa for treatment. Seemingly little notice was taken of this letter, but today came word that a woman was staying at a hydropathic establishment at Harrogate upon whom suspicion had fallen as being the missing lady.

Col. Christie immediately went to Harrogate.

It now appears that Mrs. Christie arrived at the hydropathic institution on the night of her disappearance from home. It is said that she even read all the newspapers regarding her disappearance.

Discovery came through curiosity of a maid servant, who noticed a similarity between the features of the new guest and the pictures of the hotel authorities to the coincidence. The police were notified and they got in touch with Col. Christie.

CLAIMS STANDARD PAY TENDS TO CUT PRODUCTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 14.—The Relations of Employer and Employe was the topic of an instructive talk given on business methods program at the Rotary club luncheon in the Nathan Hale hotel Tuesday noon. President James P. Bath was in charge of the meeting. Rev. Theodore D. Martin of Hebron was a guest and he led in several songs. Andrew W. Bryne of the Hartford Rotary club was another guest. A report of the recent ladies' night was given by Albert O'Neill. John F. Abern announced that a fellowship meeting would be held next week with a special Christmas program.

Mr. Reilly, a member of the business methods committee, was introduced by Charles B. Pomeroy, chairman of the program. In part Mr. Reilly said that the tendency in industry today was to pay men according to their earning capacity. In every industry there are men employed who are more or less capable and by paying wages according to the employes he produces more and at the same it encourages the less capable employe to strive for the same efficiency as his fellow worker. Efficient work reduces the labor costs and therefore the price to the consumer. This is also a benefit to the employes, because they are a large part of the consuming public. On the other hand industry claims that there be standard wages paid—that is, all men getting practically the same amount, the capable man is not inclined to do any more than the less capable and as a result of this lack of effort production is reduced and the labor cost for manufacturing is increased. In summing up he stated that whatever can be said pro and con the cold fact remains that industry cannot be prosperous without capable workmen and workmen cannot be prosperous without efficient industry; and when both industry and its employes are prosperous the community in which they exist will become prosperous.

Jackson, chairman of the police committee. The signals are to be given a 30-day tryout in competition to the overhead type which has been placed there. Several minor accidents were reported as a result of a heavy fog that settled over this section Monday night and continued well into the forenoon Tuesday. A Ford touring car got out of management coming down Bolton Hill and the machine crashed through a fence. The occupants were not injured, however. Shortly before midnight a Ford coupe driven by a traveling salesman turned turtle on the highway near the underpass at Andover. The driver saw that he was in danger as he approached the east entrance to the underpass and when he veered the car to avoid striking the stone abutment, the machine turned over. The damage was slight.

The sophomores put one over on the freshman class of the Connecticut Agricultural college early Tuesday morning and frustrated the annual strategic movements of the "freshies" from staging their pig roast. The spot selected was near the Crandall residence and the time had been set for 4 o'clock. Without any suspicion that there had been a "leak" anywhere in their well-guarded secret the freshman class marched in groups to the grounds in the wee small hours of the morning but instead of an appetizing roast pig meal they walked into a nest of belligerent and exultant "sophs". Victorious in a battle of wits the upper classmen again held their own in a brief skirmish and the pig roast ended as a flat failure.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

The Stafford Springs borough election, usually a very tame affair, turned out to be quite a spirited contest Monday. As a rule there is only one ticket, the citizens in the field and it was thought that this was all there would be this year. The citizens caucus nominated John J. Quinn for warden, defeating the present incumbent, Walter Scott by 52 votes in the caucus. Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Scott moved to make the nomination of Mr. Quinn formal and unanimous several of Mr. Scott's friends decided to run him as an independent candidate and immediately laid plans for a well organized drive upon the candidate of the caucus by writing in Mr. Scott's name in the blank column. Sample ballots were distributed among the Scott supporters. These ballots were identical with the official sample ballots excepting that there was a square instead of a circle at the head of the party column, and Mr. Scott's name was printed on this sample ballot for warden. The name of Enos E. Penny appeared on the sample in opposition to that of Richard Murray for borough clerk and treasurer and that of John R. Parkhurst for tax collector to oppose Patrick J. Murray. The samples were used in teaching the voters how to vote the "written in" ticket. How well the voters were drilled is shown from the fact that Mr. Scott received 303 votes. Mr. Penny 202 and John R. Parkhurst 174. Mr. Quinn on the regular citizens ticket received 370 votes being elected by a majority of 67 Richard Murray was elected clerk over Enos Penny by a majority of 252 and for treasurer he had a majority of 255. Patrick J. Murray for tax collector defeated John R. Parkhurst by an even 300 majority, receiving 474 votes, and his opponent 174. MR. STANDPATTER GETS THE WRONG PACK

"What's this?" says Mr. Standpatter, who has been smoking the same cigarette since Hector was a pup, without knowing why. "The clerk gave me the wrong brand!"

2.

"Um—OLD GOLD! Well, I burn up a lot of money—so I might as well burn OLD GOLD."

3.

"Not bad!" said he as he tried the first one. "Pretty good!" as he inhaled the second. "GREAT!" as he finished the third. "Why haven't I tried them before?"

4.

The answer's easy. He had stuck to the old and was blind to the new. Columbus would never have found America if he had clung to the same old brand of navigation.

5.

OLD GOLDS are different—because they pack a might of satisfaction without a bite of harshness. You can smoke them morning, noon and night—with never a dreary moment or a weary after-effect.

NEED FOR TRAIN STOPS

Evidence in connection with the operation of trains continues to show that the human agent cannot always be depended upon, that he may not be where he is supposed to be and that more and more need exists for safeguarding transportation by installing automatic train controls.

Because of the dense fog in New Jersey three passenger trains were wrecked. The report in connection with one of the accidents stated that the engineer passed all signals. It is supposed that this was due to the fog obscuring the markers or lights which were set for his guidance and inasmuch as he saw nothing he made no effort to halt his train, plunging on into the unknown as if all was clear. Had there been a train control system in operation the train would have been brought to a stop in accordance with the signals whether the engineer acted in accordance with the signals or whether he failed to see them and therefore did nothing.

Another case was that of a train in Pennsylvania last week, the engineer of which was hit by a freight as they passed. He received such a blow that he died at his post, but none of the crew knew what had happened. His train continued as usual and no suspicion was aroused until the conductor noticed there was a failure to halt at the usual points. He acted at once and pulled the emergency cord. This attracted the attention of other members of the crew, the dead engineer was found, the power shut off and trouble prevented. The train control acts in just such instances for the protection of train crews or all those who are being transported.

If the interest of safety the reinforcement of the engineer is needed. In this age of speed the quicker such a selection can be assured the fewer train wrecks there will be. Whether the fault lies in the engineer or whether there's a dead hand at the throttle the automatic stop will provide no more safety than is required, while there is need for fewer of the needless accidents resulting from the failure to respect signals.

CHRISTMAS CARDS

The Christmas card idea has grown with the years. There are those who make much more of it than others, but it is a nice little reminder on Christmas or New Years that you are not forgotten. Possibly such sentiment might be expressed in a different way, but that would probably prove less satisfactory all around.

The Christmas and New Year custom of sending cards has outlasted the picture postcard idea. This many seemed to think they must follow every time they went out of town until the new postal rate put a damper on it, but that never had the same effect upon the holiday cards which invariably go in an envelope and carry first class postage.

But the holiday cards have aroused the opposition of a Providence letter writer who points to the fact that thousands of dollars are spent for them that could be used to provide food and shelter for many a shivering soul, that it means a large addition to the work of the postal employes and that it would be much better if those who are in the habit of sending cards would step to the phone, call up the person and say a pleasant word instead of mailing it.

Large sums are spent for cards which might be otherwise used, but in view of what may be given in that direction it is a question if it would be wise for the business of the postoffice department it is more rather than less of such profitable business that is desired while turning to the telephone instead of to cards would simply mean the swamping of the exchanges and a generally disagreeable attitude on the part of the army who couldn't get through their calls. Think of trying to get through 50 to 100 such calls Christmas morning when everyone was trying to do the same!

The card idea has never appealed to some people. Great numbers are happy to get just such a greeting and until something better is made possible it will not be seriously affected by the voiced or written opposition of those who do not like it. The holiday cards have a hold upon the people which will not be easily shaken.

GAS AS WAR WEAPON

Just what this country will do in regard to the plan which has come out of Geneva for the purpose of banning the use of gas in future wars remains to be disclosed. Like most matters it has friends and opponents.

There are those who are willing to entertain the hope that there will be no more wars, and in that case there would be no use for poison gas in that connection, but others are not as optimistic.

The opposition to the use of poison gas is not recent. It existed long before the last war, where it was used only after the enemy had employed it and it became necessary to fight gas with gas, and unless there is some understanding among the nations against its use it can be expected that it will be developed far beyond anything ever employed as a war weapon.

The effort to prohibit its use rises from the same desire that prompted the move for disarmament. There are those who insist that we should ratify the protocol unless all the other nations do. It is not to be supposed that we would tie our hands regarding the use of gas in war and leave other nations unrestricted. That would be suicidal and there could be no thought of such a thing. If an agreement of the kind is going to be entered into it must apply to all. If that should mean all who sign it, it would of course leave those who signed it unrestricted as against nations which did not sign it.

Advocates of the use of it has referred to it as a most humane weapon in war, but they say nothing about the effect taht it would have upon the non-combatants as well. Because they can refer to the small per centage of deaths in the war from gas in the last war is hardly a fair test for gas was not developed for that purpose it had been banned and therefore received little attention and stood in a far different light from what it would had there been no ban and had it been ready for use from the very beginning of the war. Sentiment against gas as a war weapon appears to be quite as strong as the sentiment against war itself.

MERCHANT MARINE DECKBOYS

In different ways someone is learning almost every day that we learn by experience. The shipping board has recognized this in more than one instance, but the latest seems to be in connection with the deck boys on its vessels.

Impressed by the desirability of creating interest among those young men who have a desire to enter the merchant marine, the board created the jobs of deck boys on its ships. In the past there was a deck boy on the deck and in the engine room, invariably filled by experienced seamen and no American could get the job unless he had had previous experience. But there existed the need of getting young men acquainted with ship duties, giving them experience, so that such a class could be called upon when there was a desire to fill other places of greater responsibility.

The idea was a good one, but as is often the case, there were those who sought such jobs temporarily as during the vacation period so as to have something to do and earn a little money between the sessions of school. In very few instances did any of them who were appointed have any intention of sticking to the merchant marine. They were looking out for themselves for the time being and when the vacation period was over the job was thrown up and the time and money the board had devoted to such preliminary training was wasted.

Such being the case it can be appreciated that the board is justified in its announcement that only those who have intentions of remaining in the merchant marine will henceforth be given deck boy jobs. The purposes was not to find something to do for vacationists but to benefit the merchant marine and it is the logical decision that the board makes when it indicates that it will draw the line sharply in the future.

NEW JERSEY'S BLUE LAWS

Eyes are directed to Irvington, N. J. from many directions because of the sudden enforcement of the blue laws. It was a case where there was no partiality. Everyone who was found working last Sunday was placed under arrest. Probably there were those instances which the majority could applaud, while there were others which arouse indignation.

In Irvington it was a case where the moving picture houses had been closed on Sunday through the enforcement of an old law. The theatres resented this action, but they seemed to show [illegible] over the manner [illegible] It does not [illegible] by [illegible] should remain dark on Sunday, but through the [illegible] of those who desired to accomplish this end they were closed because of the existence of a law, three quarters of a century old, which was dug up and made to fit the situation. What was more natural than that the theatre managers should insist that those violating Sunday laws in other respects should be raked over the coals?

The thorough manner in which the job was done created greater attention than would otherwise be the case. Even those who are strong advocates of proper Sunday observance recognized the probable effect of the whole affair.

Irvington and other communities have had their attention directed to the old blue laws and it is invariably the case that when such demonstrations take place that they create an insistent demand for the elimination of the same and the remodeling of dormant legislation. It is the reaction as much as the temporary effect that will bear watching.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There are other places in Illinois which are getting as notorious as Herrin.

It is about time for the order of Good Fellows to make its yearly appearance.

These are quiet days for the highway departments unless the weather man can keep the snow coming.

The man on the corner says: Not a good time of year for thinking that "man wants little here below."

Sandwiched in with the Christmas shopping some thought should be given to the New Year's resolutions.

It has been a long time since there was an outburst in the Balkans, but the Albanian situation may provide the turn in the road.

Reference is made in the news to a wedding that took place in the street, but possibly the knot will hold better than some that were tied in church.

Just because the senators from Missouri have announced they are going to vote wet though the state voted dry, it isn't to be expected that any senators in wet states will decide to vote dry.

The suggestion is made that New Bedford should elect Mayor Ashley to that office for life. It is a good one and year by year it may be carried out but from the service he has been giving that wouldn't be long enough.

FROM LUCILE'S DIARY

Last week it seemed to me that I simply must have a breath of country air and I decided to run out to Brownhurst to see my old friend, Carol Nodine. She was in the garden when I arrived.

"Why, Lucile," she exclaimed, "from where did you drop?"

"I dropped from the crowded haunts of men to this heaven of flowers and butterflies," I replied laughingly. "I've been longing to see you, and it suddenly occurred to me that I might help you with your spring work. I've brought the most fetching garden smock. I suppose you know that every one is wearing smocks this season."

"Yes, I keep reasonably abreast of the styles, but for my kind of gardening I find nothing so good as these khaki knickers."

"They are practical," I said, inwardly wondering how she could wear such an ungraceful costume, but if she were satisfied with her appearance, of course, it did not matter to me, and I quickly resolved not to give her the charming smock I had brought her. I knew that I could use an extra one very nicely myself. "I'll run in the house and change my clothes. Shall I have the usual room?"

"No, Lucile, the guestroom is all torn up waiting to be repapered. Just go into my room for the present. Now I must finish putting in these seeds," she said casually, but as Carol is not a gushy person I was not hurt by the lack of a warmer welcome.

"You're as picturesque as Maud Muller," she remarked, when I rejoined her. "It's too bad that Tom and Ned aren't here to see you in that flowered smock and wide hat."

"Oh, aren't they here? I met Tom the other day and he told me that his brother, the captain, was passing his leave with you."

"Yes, but Tom has taken him on a little motor trip, and I'm seizing their absence to get all my indoor and outdoor cleaning done. I'm afraid it will be dull for you, Lucile."

"Oh, I shall be contented. I've already been out to the stable to pet that beautiful horse I heard neighing there. When did you get him?"

"Victor is Ned's choicest possession. We are to have him while Ned is in the Philippines," Carol sighed. "It will be a responsibility, but, of course, Tom will enjoy riding him."

"Aren't you going to ride him yourself?" I asked.

"No, indeed. He isn't used to women, and he's very high spirited," she answered, and I could not help thinking her a weak sister in some ways. When she went to the house to prepare luncheon I slipped around to the stable again. Victor seemed so gentle that I could not resist mounting him. I put on the bridle without trouble, and then with the help of a chair I climbed on his bare back. He stood still for an instant. Then like a whirlwind he tore out of the barn, across the lawn, over the peony and lily bed and took the fence in a tremendous leap, which landed me, fortunately, on the soft ground. As I picked myself up I saw him galloping down the street at high speed.

"Oh, Lucile, what have you done?" cried Carol, coming to me with a wild look of distress. "I told you he wasn't used to women."

"Don't worry, dear. I seem to be all right," I said.

"But Victor? No telling what will happen to him." Carol was wringing her hands. "Oh, why did you ever get on him?"

"I thought I could prove to you that a woman could ride him, so that you could enjoy him. I meant to do you a kindness, Carol."

"If he is lost or injured Ned will be heartbroken," she groaned. "I must telephone to the village for some one to head him off."

While she was in the house Victor, covered with lather, came back, led by a young man, who took him into the stable. I ran to tell Carol that all her anxiety was for nothing.

"Please, please, Lucile, don't go near him again," was all she said, and she went out into the garden and looked despondently at the young lilies and peonies that Victor had trampled. Indeed, she was so distrait all the rest of the day and that evening that I decided to leave early next morning, especially as I did not enjoy sleeping on the library couch. It certainly would have been much more hospitable of Carol to have given up her room to me, but in some ways she is very thoughtless.—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Who's To Blame

Jane had been unusually naughty one day and her mother found it necessary to scold her before putting her to bed. After she had put out the lights and left the room she heard Jane saying her prayers, and as she listened she heard her say:

"Dear Jesus, if you make me naughty tomorrow as you did today, I'm never going to ask you to make me good again!"

Personal Experience

A few days ago in one of the English classes this little episode occurred: The teacher had asked the pupils for the following day, to write an editorial, and in giving suggestion had said that "puppy love" would be an interesting topic to work up. A member of the class, who was busy copying the assignment when the above statement was made, looked up and innocently inquired: "Does it have to be a personal experience?"

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Fiction

Fiction which includes two closely related forms, the novel or romance and the drama, has two functions; the more important being the interpreting and reflecting of life, the holding of the mirror up to nature, as Hamlet called it, and the giving of pleasure as a result of the presentation.

The romance which may be in the form of a novel or of a drama, differs from the ordinary novel as chiefly in dealing with the unusual and improbable, including the supernatural. The novel performs today a great part of what the drama performed practically alone in the days of Elizabeth and James.

The close relation of the drama and the novel is seen in the fact that the same story may be told in both forms and it is common today to see a successful novel presented as a drama on the stage while on the other hand, novels have sometimes been written from plays.

NEW BOOKS

Neighbors North and South. By Walter Lefferts, Ph. D. Cloth, 391 pages, with index and maps and illustrations. Published by The J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $1.50.

We can't all pay personal visits to our neighbors on the north and south, but how would you like to go in imagination with some young Americans who did? Several American girls and boys are taken on a journey through the Hawaiian islands, Alaska, Canada, the West Indies, Mexico and Central America. In their own way, with a touch of fun now and then, they comment on the noteworthy features which meet their view. When explanation is needed, explanation is furnished on the spot, carefully avoiding tedious or technical treatment.

Of course they have a guide who can explain all that puzzles them and tell them the curious history of the interesting things they discover. It's just like seeing for yourself these picturesque lands about which you read and wonder and the people who live and work there.

It is a book that gives much valuable information. The pictures also help for they are fine and clear and give vivid impressions of fascinating and famous sights. It is a fine book for children.

What Price Progress? By Hugh Farrell Cloth, 323 pages, with index. Published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York. Price $2.50.

This is a volume written for the purpose of giving a faithful picture of the position of American industry in relation to the progress of science, and it gives a comprehensive view of the present state of the industrial arts in America.

The author deals constantly with elements as they exist in nature and with the synthetic products which science has been able to derive from their manipulation and combination, and the manner in which results have been accomplished will be both enlightening and surprising. The book shows how man has accepted the challenge of modern industry and in many instances more than satisfied the demands made upon it.

The chapters are in each instance a group of illustrations, with the chapters devoted to generalizations at the beginning and end. Heat, power and light; gas and gas engines; iron, copper and aluminum; paint, silk stockings and dynamite; sugar, milk and alcohol; rubber, cement and fertilizers are the titles, respectively, of half the chapters. It is shown how the cracking process has practically doubled the production of gasoline. The perfection is made that aluminum will some day replace iron and that bakelite may make the furniture of the future. It is possible that the change from steam locomotion to electric is not so distant. The electric engine is a simpler machine and its development is just getting under way. If half the steam railroads were electrified the annual saving in coal would amount to 40,000,000 tons, while the last triumph of the Bell Telephone laboratories is the perfection of an alloy which makes it possible to send five times as many messages on a submarine cable.

It is a story of the progress that has been made, the work involved in it and a glimpse of the steady struggle under way to meet new conditions.

The Vanishing Rights of the States. By James M. Beck, LL. D. Cloth, 126 pages. Published by George H. Doran company, New York. Price $1.50.

At a time when the question of states rights is getting increased attention there will be interest in this new book by Mr. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States in which he returns to his great theme of our form of government and supplements his non classic history of the Constitution by a forceful discussion of the rapid destruction of the reserved rights of the sovereign states. Basing his argument on an incident of contemporary politics, which may soon develop into constitutional crisis, Mr. Beck challenges the power of the senate to nullify the action of a sovereign state by refusing to seat an elected senator. The subject broadens as the author vigorously discusses the grave question whether written constitutions can survive the passions of party strife.

The book is written to challenge the attention of thoughtful persons to a very serious question of constitutional law. Mr. Beck has ever been a defender of the Constitution against its critics and enemies and in his latest book he maintains that same consistent position to a high degree. The book deals with the Vare and Smith cases in Pennsylvania and Illinois in particular and the author holds that there can be and will be no serious effort made to prevent them being seated as United States senators without a violation of states' rights.

YOUR HEALTH

HELP FOR THE HARD OF HEARING

By L. W. Oaks, M. D., Provo, Utah
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Perhaps no ordinary health problem occasions so much economic loss and mental agony to the individuals affected as does loss of hearing.

Surprising as it may seem, there is also no common disability which is more readily remedied than is deafness, if it be taken in time. People lose their hearing, in the great majority of instances, as a result of deday in getting competent help.

The individual who goes to an unears invariably lives to regret his lack earg invariably lies to regret his lack of forethought. Such "treatment" as he receives there is given for the purpose of making him feel that he is going to derive some benefit, in order that his purse will be freely open to the charlatan who dupes him. Whatever the method used by the untrained may be, no definite benefit to the hard of hearing is accomplished. There are but two results that are bound to accrue: (1) the individual's hearing continues slowly to grow worse; (2) the person loses, because of his bitter experiences, all confidence in competent doctors, as well as in the incompetent one at whose hands he has suffered, which is manifestly unfair to himself.

There was a time when the treatment of disease was almost wholly a matter of invoking the mysterious and supernatural; but that day is long past. Following in the footsteps of men like Pasteur, Lister, and Gorgas, we are today earnestly endeavoring to dispel the darkness of ignorance, superstition, and to establish truth and reason as our guides in learning to know our bodies.

Deafness, in the great majority of cases, is due to trouble in the nose and throat, which interferes with the function of the Eustachian tubes, which connect the middle ear with the throat, up behind the soft palate. These little tubes, are necessary to proper hearing, as they allow air to go through into the middle ear, thereby keeping the pressure the same on both sides of the ear drum.

When this pressure equality is disturbed it means a progressive loss of function of the finely adjusted structures that carry air vibrations over the inner ear, with consequent loss of hearing.

The Gorgas Memorial recommends that these conditions be taken in hand early, by someone who understands the underlying principles, in order that they may be corrected. The longer proper treatment is delayed, the greater the length of time required to produce results, and the more uncertain the likelihood of complete return to normal of the hearing ability.

No man is properly qualified to treat deafness unless he first proceeds to study thoroughly your trouble, with a view to discovering the underlying cause, in order that he may begin by eradicating it.

Holy Land Crusade

After 900 years England is to have another crusade to the holy land. With full pomp and ceremony 100 knights and ladies of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem will start on a pilgrimage to some of the ancient strongholds of the order famous in history. The Countess of Cromer, the Dowager Countess of Airlie and Countess Haig will be among the women pilgrims, while among the men will be Viscount Galway, Lord Lamington and Maj. Gen. Sir Percival Wilkinson. A special steamship chartered by the order will carry the pilgrims through the Mediterranean. They will embark from Venice March 7. An admiralty order of 1730 directs all ships of the navy to salute the flag of St. John, and as this order has never been canceled it is presumed that the salute will be received during the cruise. The Order of St. John is the oldest and only survivor of the many orders founded during the crusades.

More Value than the Price Suggests

In the year just drawing to a close the price of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars was materially lowered.

Yet during this period more important improvements were incorporated than in any year in Dodge Brothers history. Advances were made in engineering and body designs. The cars possess a greater degree of smoothness, silence and ease. They are more comfortable, more beautiful.

Current prices — made possible, of course, by constantly mounting sales — are therefore not an obvious measure of value. Prices, in fact, have never told the full story of Dodge Brothers dependability and basic worth.

But now, more than ever before, there is far more value than the price suggests

Never a Marcel Wave

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is ever-curly, with never a Marcel wave. And it always has a glow. The reason lies in a hair dress made exclusively for me. It was perfected for me by great experts when I had my long hair bobbed. Now all toilet counters supply it under the name Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c.

I cannot conceive of a girl or woman going without it when she knows. No one who sees my hair will do so. Nothing else I have ever found makes hair so lustrous, so wavy, so fluffy, so abundant. My guarantee is enclosed with every bottle, so it costs you nothing if it doesn't please. Go try it at my expense.

TESTIFIED TRUCK COULD BE PUSHED WITH ALL BRAKES ON

Testimony that brakes on a motor truck that Samuel Kalmonowits of Colchester was driving in New London on Sunday afternoon, July 25, 1926, were so loose that the truck could be pushed by hand after the brakes were set was given by Officer Augustus H. Ray of the New London police force when he testified in the superior court here Tuesday afternoon in the trial of the suit of Louise Mensis of New London against Kalmonowits for $20,000 damages. The suit is being heard before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury.

The Kalmonowitz truck struck Louise Mensis, a girl of 14, as she was alighting from a one-man trolley car at the corner of Broad and Raymond streets, inflicting injuries from which it is claimed she will suffer permanently. She walks with a cane now.

It is alleged in the complaint that she received concussion of the brain, her right thigh was broken, both sacro-iliac joints separated, acute pulmonary edema, and lacerations on different parts of her body.

In opening trial of the case, Attorney S. Victor Prince, counsel for the plaintiff, first called to the stand Percy L. Allen, a civil engineer, to explain a map of the locality of the accident. He was followed by Charles H. Daley, operator of the trolley car, and William E. Lang, a passenger on the car. Dr. Charles Kaufman, who attended the girl after the accident, testified to her injuries and said that he considered them permanent. He gave her quite a thorough examination on the stand before the jury. At the time of the accident, he said he hardly considered it possible for the girl to recover.

Officer Ray testified that while Kalmonowits was inside the police station, where he had reported the accident, the officer went outside and tested the brakes on a Dodge truck that was standing across the street from the station. He said he put the emergency brake on and pushed down on the foot brake with his hand at the same time. He was then able to push the car and had to turn it into the curb to stop it, he said.

Dr. Kaufman corroborated the officer, saying that he saw Ray make the test.

Other witnesses testifying were Edwin G. Swanson, Patrick J. Hogan and Robert Young Mensis, father of the girl who said that his expenses on account of her accident had been about $1,000. He produced hospital bills for $244, nurses' bill for $106 and Dr. Kaufman said his bill was about $650.

Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, counsel for the defendant, called Kalmonowitz to the stand as the first witness for the defense.

Kalmonowitz, who said he is a fish peddler, testified that he was driving north on Broad street with two other automobiles ahead of him as well as the trolley car. The trolley stopped once and after it started again the other two machines passed it. He followed along in his truck and was half way up on the trolley car when it slowed up to stop at the next corner. He claimed the girl jumped off the trolley car and struck the left fender of his machine, although he pulled the machine off to the right and he claimed he came to a stop eight or ten feet away from where he hit the girl.

He went back and helped pick her up and put her in a machine that took her to the hospital. Then he ran his car over to the other side of the street and gave his name, car registration and operator's license number to the trolley conductor, and then drove to the police station to report the accident.

Kalmonowitz claimed that he left his car about two blocks away from the police station, which was a different location than where the car was that Officer Ray examined and found the brakes in bad condition.

Kalmonowitz testified that the brakes on his car had been re-lined six days before the accident.

On cross-examination Kalmonowitz said he supposed anyone could make a mistake and his mistake was when he thought he could get past the trolley car although he did everything he could to avoid the accident.

The case will be concluded today (Wednesday). The following is the jury:

Frederick A. Gallup, Norwich; John F. Hollowell, Frank R. Ayer, Frank A. Krug, J. Guy Ayer, Preston; George F. Brown, Colchester; Clark H. Standish, Wilton H. Hoxie, Lebanon; Irving R. Main, North Stonington; Edward A. Bishop, Bozrah; Louis H. Smith, Franklin and Daniel Day, of Sprague.

OVER $100,000 FROM FANNING WILL FOR COLLEGE

As one of four of the residuary legatees under the will of David Hale Fanning, Worcester corset manufacturer, who died Jan. 20, leaving an estate of nearly $3,000,000 the Connecticut College for Women will receive between $100,000 and $150,000. The residuary estate is now being settled by the Old Colony Trust Co. of Boston, as trustee. President Benjamin T. Marshall of the college said Tuesday, and it is expected that the settlement will be completed by the latter part of next month or early in February. Officials of the Old Colony Trust Co. stated that unless wholly unexpected claims develop against the estate, the total amount of the residuary will be more than $400,000 and probably less than $600,000. This will be divided into four equal shares, one share each going to the Connecticut College for Women, the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Hahnemann hospital and Talladega college, Alabama. This share will be in addition to the sum of $25,000 which each was given outright under the terms of the will.

Mr. Fanning founded the Royal Worcester Corset Co. and built up his fortune in the business.

STATE INSURANCE DAY PROMISES MUCH INTEREST

Final plans have been completed, and the stage is fully set for the third annual observance of Insurance day in the state of Connecticut at Hartford today (Wednesday).

James L. Case of this city, chairman of the general committee in charge of the event, stated that in its opinion the program as prepared, was even more complete and far reaching in the subjects to be considered, than either of the preceding Insurance day events.

Because of the fact that several cities have been recently placed under the dean rating schedule, agents and companies alike are particularly interested in the application of the new rates. Nelson J. Worley, Connecticut manager of the New England exchange, will discuss this subject, and fully explain its operation. An opportunity will also be given for those present to ask questions regarding this particular operation in the various communities.

Inasmuch as the commonwealth of Massachusetts has enacted a compulsory insurance law to become effective Jan. 1, the address of John W. Donlan of Boston, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Insurance federation, will be listened to with much interest, as rumors have been concurrent through the state that a similar bill would be presented to the incoming Connecticut legislature in January.

Because all classes of insurance will be represented in the gathering, various speakers will consider some phases of each of the four insurance classifications: Life, fire, casualty and surety.

At the luncheon, Winslow Russell of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company of Hartford will preside, and short after dinner toasts will be responded to by the guests, the general theme being, "Just a Word About Insurance for About a Minute by Our Guests."

The banquet speakers for the evening are to be Dale D. Butler, representing the agents of the state; Hon. Francis B. Stoddard, former superintendent of the state of New York, and Edwin Mortimer Allen, recently elected vice president and assistant to the president of both the National Surety and the New York Indemnity companies.

Professional artists from New York have been secured to care for the lighter side of the program, and the third annual event of the insurance interests of the state promises to eclipse all former efforts that have been made along these lines.

Sessions will be held in the Travelers Insurance company auditorium at 10:30 a. m. and 3 p. m. The luncheon and banquet will be served in the Hotel Bond ball room.

CONTINUES MISSION SERMONS AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

The unpardonable sin is the mortification of the soul, sure death, said Rev. Walter E. Bentley, missioner, in his sermon at Christ Episcopal church Tuesday evening. The missioner, a former Shakespearean actor and founder of the Actor's Church Alliance, who is conducting a mission this week at the church, was preaching on the topic, Repentance and the Unpardonable Sin. The service opened at 7:30 o'clock with the usual song service and devotional period, followed by the answering of questions found in the "question box" provided for this purpose by the preacher.

The missioner took his text from Matthew 12: 31-32—Therefore I say unto you, Every sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men; but the blasphemy against the Spirit shall not be forgiven. And whosoever shall speak a word against the son of man it shall be forgiven him; but whosoever shall speak against the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, nor in that which is to come. He was pronouncing their doom.

The missioner went on to speak of three examples of the unpardonable sin mentioned in the Bible. Then he concluded, "When I arrived in this counlonger reach Him. He has shut it out, he said. I wandered up Broadway and the thing that impressed me was the blasphemy I heard on all sides. Today that blasphemy is passing away. You've heard the name of God Almighty trailed in the dust. You've heard the name of the Saviour trailed in the dust. Did you ever hear a word against the Holy Ghost? Never. The power of the scripture has made it impossible. Yet, speaking against the Holy Ghost is not the unpardonable sin. Jesus says, he that speaketh a word—and we take it literally. It isn't that at all. Then what is it?

God Almighty has placed us in the world to work out our own salvation. Jesus Christ came and by His death placed us on the main line. He said, I am the Way! The Holy Spirit is calling everybody, pleading with everybody all the time. The problem is how far we hear and how far we obey. What must be the danger of continual resistance of the Holy Spirit by man? Why, he reached the condition where he can't hear, he can't heed. That is the unpardonable sin. The Holy Spirit can no longer reach him. He has shut it out. He has driven the Holy Spirit away and thus he has committed the unpardonable sin.

God can knock at our hearts but if we do not open the door from the inside He can't get in. We can damn ourselves or save ourselves, just as we will. Pain is God's angel in disguise. Let the pain cease and mortification set in, then look out. The unpardonable sin is the mortification of the soul, sure death. Forgiveness is dependent on repentance. It is possible that we can go on refusing to repent so that in time we can't repent. When we reach that point we don't want to repent. We want to go on doing the things we have been doing.

Forgiveness means "forth giving." God giving to us our freedom. He can hold it out to us but if we don't take it how can we get it? We make our religion a comfortable convenience. That is the reason we are not getting any where. We all have got to be on the watch.

This (Wednesday) afternoon at 4:15 o'clock the missioner will hold a service for women and in the evening there will be the daily song service and preaching service beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The topic will be "What We All Need and How To Get It."

ROCK NOOK COMMITTEE RECORDED MEMORIAL TRIBUTE

A tribute to Miss Mary St. John Rudd was entered on the records of the committee of the Rock Nook children's home, at its meeting Monday and was read at the executive committee meeting of the United Workers on Tuesday. Miss Rudd's death occurred, Nov. 24, 1926.

The tribute is as follows:

"Miss Mary St. John Rudd joined the committee in 1905 and for twenty one years she has freely given her loving services for the home. She was a woman, beautiful in character, full of kindness, wise in her opinions and charitable in her judgments. Thus she was always a most valuable member, faithful in whatever capacity she was called to serve. Chairman of the farm committee for many years, she took great interest in making the surroundings of the home beautiful and the playgrounds suitable for the children. She showed her wise judgment not only in the every day problems, but also in those concerning the future good of the home, when during these years such question arose, owing to the enlargement of the work. The children and the older members of the home will miss her. The members of the committee have not only lost a faithful and efficient fellow worker, but also a valued friend. In the coming days we shall sadly miss her kindly smile and her gracious presence. With deep sorrow we record the death of this beloved member."

DANNY MURPHY MAY LAND COACHING JOB WITH PHILADELPHIA NATIONAL CLUB

According to Bill Brandt, baseball writer for the Philadelphia Ledger, Danny Murphy, local veteran big-leaguer may return to major league baseball next season as coach of the Philadelphia National league club. Stuffy McInnis, now manager of the Phillies, broke into the big show with the Athletics when Danny was captain of that outfit and has always been a first friend of the local luminary.

Brandt in reporting the account of the National league meeting writes as follows to his paper:

"The biggest development of interest today was the conference between McInnis and Danny Murphy, who was Stuffy's preceptor in the days when Stuffy was just a boy out of Gloucester high school, studying to be a $100,000 infield member.

"I have had a host of applications for the job of coach and assistant manager," said McInnis. "Some wonderful letters and fine men. If we can come to terms with Dan, I would like to have him with us next year."

This makes Murphy the favorite in the race for the job recently vacated by Benny Meyer. Dan, since his retirement from the captaincy and coachship of the Athletics two winters ago, virtually retired from baseball.

His appointment as McInnis' lieutenant would be as popular in Philadelphia as the acceptance by McInnis himself of the managerial toga. Danny Murphy's name and ears are so familiar to Philadelphia fandom that he seems like a local boy, and the McInnis-Murphy combination would revive many mellow memories of the Elephants of 1910.

When Eddie Collins was picking an assistant for his Chicago job he named Billy Lauder, the old Phillies' third baseman, who, as baseball coach at Columbia university, had given Eddie his first inklings of what an infield was supposed to represent.

McInnis has the familiar impulse to do good by a man who helped him when he was a breaker-in.

Danny Knows His Baseball

Murphy's big league career started with the present century, and covers its first quarter with fair thoroughness. Dan had a job with the Giants in 1901, but left that orginization for the Athletics the following season.

He was Connie's first choice and only choice second baseman until he bumped into Bill Carrigan's hips along in 1908. The injury gave Collins a chance to play second base after trying everything else. The play was the making of Collins, but Murphy is not back at second base yet.

Murphy's two-fisted hitting prowess brought him back into the Mack line-up as right-fielder, however, and he succeeded Harry Davis in the captaincy of the old A's when Harry went to Cleveland as manager in 1912.

Murphy's career with the Athletics stopped in 1914, but after managing various minor league outfits he came back as coach and captain in 1921. He was with the Mack machine in that capacity until the end of the 1924 season, when he was succeeded by Earl Mack."

This is good news to Norwich fans who have always maintained that the Athletics would have made a much better showing had Murphy remained as coach instead of Earl Mack. Murphy is a natural leader and his baseball knowledge is unlimited as has been demonstrated time and again when he was leader of the Athletics. Danny's Norwich friends have predicted that it would not be many seasons before he felt the baseball urge and was back in the show once more.

SHARKEY TO BOX MONTGOMERY AT BOSTON

The next big Boston fistic attraction will mark the appearance of Jack Sharkey of Brighton, heavyweight champion of New England, in a 10-round bout with Sully Montgomery, former Centre college football star and one of the hardest-hitting heavyweights in the country.

Sharkey made himself immortal last October when he defeated Harry Wills in 18 rounds at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn. Every other white heavyweight was dodging the black menace, but Sharkey, outweighed 30 pounds, walked into Wills for round after round, until the latter, all but knocked out, took the easiest way, and after several warnings, was disqualified for holding.

Since then Sharkc has been resting on his laurels. A first-line opponent was difficult to obtain, but finally, by offering large inducements, Tom Goodwin, Boston's leading matchmaker, enticed Sully Montgomery to sign a contract.

Sharkey and Montgomery are well acquainted, for they met before in a bristling 10-rounder at Mechanic building, and Sharkey was awarded a hair-line decision. It was as fine a heavyweight contest as Boston ever saw, and since both have improved since that night, their battle of next Monday night should be an epic of the ring.

Today, Sharkey stands out as Tunney's leading challenger, because of his Wills victory. Within a year if his plans carry through, he will have earned $515,000. To do that, he must first defeat Montgomery, one of the most vicious big men in the ring today.

FRIEDMAN HELD ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

HARTFORD, Dec. 14—(AP)—Severe blows on the head, causing hemorrhage of the brain, were found by Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello, to be the cause of the death of Charles Peguilhan, French light-heavyweight boxer, who collapsed in the eighth round of a battle against Al Friedman of Boston in this city last night and died this morning without recovering consciousness.

Friedman, who was arrested after the bout was held on a technical charge of breach of the peace, was released from custody today after the charge had been changed to manslaughter under $2,000 bond. The case will be heard Dec. 23, after Coroner J. Gilbert Calhoun has investigated.

Commissioner Thomas Donohue, of the state athletic commission, which has charge of boxing in Connecticut stated that as boxing is legalized in this state and the laws had been complied with there can be no cause for criminal prosecution. Prosecutor Carlson qualifies this statement by saying that obviously the result of the coroner's investigation would determine what action should be taken.

The body of the young French fighter will be shipped back to France, to his home town in Pau in the southern part of that country. A subscription, headed by Harry Persson, the Swedish boxer, raised $400 this afternoon and it is expected that funds enough to carry the body and Robert Eude'ini, who managed the youth, back to Peguilhan's native land. A cablegram was sent yesterday to the father of the dead boxer.

TAFTVILLE CELTICS BEAT WINDSOR LOCKS TEAM

Tuesday evening one of the largest crowds of the season saw the Taftville Celtics hang up their fourth straight victory when they won handily over the Windsor Locks five 46 to 31 at Parish hall. The game was by far the best game of the season and the visitors furnished plenty of opposition, especially toward the latter part of the game. Taftville took the lead early in the contest and at half time was leading 18 to 16. The second half opened strong with the Celtics piling up points until the last few minutes when Windsor started a scoring attack that netted them a number of points but not enough to make them dangerous.

In the preliminary game the Nordics took a runaway game from the Warriors by a score of 40 to 2. The summary:

TUNNEY BEING SUED ON CONTRACT BREACH

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—The first step in a legal effort to recover $18,000 from Gene Tunney, heavyweight boxing champion, for an alleged breach of contract, was made today by Timothy J. Mara, well known sportsman. A subpoena, answerable within 20 days, was served on the titleholder.

Although details of the action were withheld, Mara is said to seek a percentage of Tunney's share in the gate receipts of his championship fight with Jack Dempsey.

In discussing the action, Billy Gibson, manager of the champion, declared tonight that Mara had "absolutely no claim against Tunney."

"Any agreements that were reached by Mr. Mara involving Tunney were made by myself while Tunney was in California," said Gibson.

"Mr. Mara agreed to execute a commission and gave me every assurance that he could and would execute such a commission that I was not in a position to do myself. Mr. Mara subsequently failed to live up to his promises."

A public exchange of opinions will not help the least toward settling the question, Gibson said, adding that the courts were the "proper place to determine the issue."

TWO HOCKEY LEAGUES HAVE BROKEN RELATIONS

CHICAGO, Dec. 14—(AP)—The National Hockey league has broken off relations with the American Hockey league, it was stated tonight by Major Frederic McLaughlin, president of the Chicago club in the national circuit.

The American league, it was said, violated their agreement when they changed their name from the Central association and laid plans to become a major league circuit. Details of a suit against the National league individuals and club, filed at Toronto, were contained in a letter to Major McLaughlin said he received today, but President Edward Livingston of the Chicago club of the American league said his organization had taken no such steps and contemplated none.

The storm center of the controversy is the acquisition by the Chicago Americans of two players, "Cyclone" Wentworth and Teddy Graham. Both were members of clubs in the Canadian Amateur Hockey league, and, according to word from Frank Calder, of Montreal, president of the National league, neither player was properly signed. Wentworth came from the Windsor club, while Graham was a member of the London, Ont., sextet.

PLAINFIELD TEAM CLASHES WITH MERIDEN TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 14—The second clash between the Plainfield Town team and the Meriden Endees in the race for state basketball honors is slated for the Plainfield Community house here Wednesday evening. Last Saturday Plainfield after leading practically all the game was nosed out in the final minutes by the Meriden outfit 32 to 28. This victory has been a thorne in the side of the Plainfield team during the past week and the team is out to even up the series.

The game Saturday night at Meriden was one of the fastest encounters seen in Meriden this season and the game tomorrow night is expected to be exactly as interesting. Plainfield will use the same lineup that includes, Mundi Normandin, Disinger, Norris, Benson and Madden. On the Meriden team is Bissell who played last season with the Plainfield team.

The C. F. C team of Norwich hooks up with the Buddies in the preliminary game which is slated for 8 o'clock.

SEYMOUR PARALYSED BELOW WAIST AS RESULT OF BOUT

DANBURY Dec. 14—(AP)—Physicians at the Danbury hospital here tonight announced that Morgan Seymour, 21 year old amateur boxer, of Carmel, N. Y., injured here Friday night in a bout, was paralyzed below the waist.

Seymour, it was thought, was recovered from his injury. In a bout with Frank Pasquence, of Danbury, under the auspices of the Pastime A. C. both boys went through the ropes and Seymour struck his head on a seat. It was thought he had only a slight skull fracture, at the base of the brain at first.

Specialists will be in Danbury tomorrow to examine the youth. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Seymour, farmers of Carmel, N. Y.

CROSS-COUNTRY RUNNING AT AMHERST DROPPED

AMHERST, Mass., Dec. 4—(AP)—Indefinite suspension of cross-country running as an intercollegiate sport at Amherst college was approved by the faculty committee on athletics today.

The action, announced by Dr. Paul C. Phillips, secretary of the committee, followed a recommendation made by the student council last week "that cross country be abolished as a form of intercollegiate competition until there shall be sufficient interest to warrant its renewal."

The original petition was presented by Phillip S. Chase of Syracuse, N. Y., track manager. The sport will be continued on an intramural basis.

PRO GOLFERS WINTER TOURNAMENT ARRANGED

MONTEREY, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Organization of the Professional Golfers' Winter Tournament association, embracing virtually all of the leading professionals in the country with the exception of Walter Hagen, was announced today by James D. Hartnett of Monterey and New York. Its function will be to do away with the somewhat uncertain present method of scheduling open tournaments and instead will substitute annually a list of competitions beginning in the Pacific northwest and ending in Pinehurst, N. C.

This season the association's schedule calls for tourneys at Sacramento, Dec. 17-18, $2,500; Los Angeles, first week in January, $10,000; El Paso, January 22-23, $3,500; Shreveport, La., February 4-6, $4,500; Hot Springs, Ark., February 9-13, $5,000. In addition dates are to be arranged between the Sacramento and Los Angeles tournaments and between the latter and the El Paso event. Other points in Texas, including Houston, will be visited as will the principal cities of Alabama. All of March will be spent in competitions in Florida and the continental swing will end at Pinehurst.

During the 1927-28 season the golf army will travel over a larger semi-circle as plans are under way to start at Vancouver, B. C., on Nov. 4. Three other tournaments will be held in the north at Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. Hartness who heads the new association, took the first American professional golf team to England in 1921.

It is expected that Hagen, national open champion, will join the association, but no word has been received from him as yet, Hartnett said. At present Hagen is appearing in exhibition matches in California.

MEETING TO MAKE BIG TEN A "PLAYING LEAGUE"

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP)—To decide whether the western conference shall become a "playing league", to the extent of arranging sport schedules to determine championships, representative scholastic, financial, alumni and athletic leaders of the conference will meet here late in January.

Major John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the big ten, announced tonight that the meeting was arranged at the request of the football coaches and athletic directors.

Three important problems are to be presented to the assembly; whether the conference is a "playing league"; athletic schedules, and equality of competition.

"In great many of the alumni," said Major Griffith, "and also the public, are insisting that the conference should determine championships formally each year, and with that in mind, are insisting that schedules be arranged for that purpose . . .

"The athletic directors will request the presidents, faculty representatives, alumni and others, to assist them in reaching a uniform agreement which shall effect the ten universities alike in the matter of remission of tuition, the granting of scholarships, loan funds, the activities of alumni secretaries and so forth."

YALE HOCKEY TEAM TO TRAIN AT PRINCETON

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 14.—(AP)—After its fourth practice session in the rink of the eastern states exposition at Springfield, Mass., tomorrow, the Yale hockey squad of 21 men besides coach, trainer, manager and assistant manager will leave Thursday for Princeton, there to train on the Tiger rink until Jan. 3.

The itinerary calls for practice in Princeton Friday, Saturday and Monday, after which the squad will break up for the holiday recess, reassembling the 27th in the New Jersey town. The Tiger lair will be headquarters for the Blue through the game with McGill at Madison Square Garden Dec. 30, and until departure for Springfield, to meet Massachusetts Tech there Jan 3. It is hoped that the New Haven arena will be ready for use by that time, so that practice may be held at New Haven.

A tentative line-up for the opening games of the schedule includes three veterans. Frey, who made one of the goals in the 3-1 victory over McGill last winter, will probably be at right wing and Captain Noble, who scored another of the points against the Canadians, is scheduled for left wing. The other probable veteran will be Wheelock at goal. Besides these, the outstanding contestants appear to be Lapham for left defense and Manville for right defense.

TAFTVILLE CELTICS PLAY AT DANIELSON THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 14.—The Celtics of Taftville will make their first appearance of the season here Thursday evening with the Danielson Town team furnishing the opposition. This is a basketball game that tops all others of the season todate for interest, inasmuch as the Celtics defeated Danielson at Taftville the past week, something no other team has been able to do so far this season. Danielson has victories over the Five Aces of Webster, over the Cheney Brothers South Manchester team and over Orient lodge team of New Bedford, all taken easily.

Danielson promises to be in fine form for Thursday evening's go. Not a whit daunted by defeat by the Celtics in Taftville, the Town team says that it will be returned the visitors Thursday night. That means a game, for the Celtics are admittedly fast and clever and capable of putting up a real contest.

The Danielson Buddies and a Plainfield team are to play a preliminary game that has the promise of being better than the average.

LORD BURGHLEY MUST SHORTEN VISIT TO AMERICA

CAMBRIDGE, England, Dec. 14—(AP)—Because of a recent ruling of the Olympic Games association that no contestant may spend more than three weeks of each year in athletic competition outside his own country, Lord Burghley, internationally famous hurdler who contemplates entering the Pennsylvania relay races in April, will be forced to make his visit to the United States as brief as possible.

The English runner and four Cambridge companies plan to spend ten days in America.

NATIONAL LEAGUE APPOINTS THREE TO CONFER WITH COMMISSIONER LANDIS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—While disclaiming any desire to curtail the powers of Baseball Commissioner Landis, the National league simultaneously with a similar move by the American league in Chicago today appointed a "steering committee" of three club owners to bring about closer working relations and greater harmony between the two major organizations.

The action of the two leagues forecast definitely the re-election of Landis for a seven year term at the joint meeting of the leagues Thursday in Chicago.

Before winding up their session here today, preparatory to leaving for the mid-western city, National league magnates made it clear that they were a unit in support of Landis, although they tabled for later discussion a proposal to add $10,000 to the commissioner's present annual salary of $50,000.

The newly appointed steering group will have Landis as an ex-officio member. Its chief purpose will be to smooth out the occasional ruffled surface of major league relations as well as to establish closer working arrangements with Landis.

The independence of the commissioner's rule has caused some dissatisfaction among the magnates and National league men, while they see no curtailment of his powers in today's developments, believe more harmonious relations will result from the new arrangement.

Minor league relations, rules and by-laws, as well as inter-league matters, will come under the head of "steering committee" business, it was explained by John A. Heydler, president of the National league.

The National league members of the committee will be William F. Baker of Philadelphia, Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburgh and William L. Veeck, of Chicago.

In effect this group, with Landis and the American league members, will replace the present advisory council, composed of Landis, Heydler and Frank Navin of Detroit, vice president of the American league. The council has been inactive ever since friction arose between Landis and Ban Johnson, the American league's chief executive, who originally was a member of it.

The National league endorsed the use of the resin bag by pitchers for 1927 after listening to reports by President Heydler showing the increased effectiveness of boxmen last season, when use of the substance was officially sanctioned.

Definite arrangements of the 1927 schedule was deferred pending consultation with American league men in Chicago, but it is understood the two circuits are in agreement on a later closing date which will end the season on October 2, a week later than this year. The opening date probably will be April 12.

All National league records for attendance were shattered in 1926, President Heydler revealed. Approximately 5,000,000 spectators filed through turnstiles in the eight parks, an increase of 600,000 over the previous year, 1925. The Chicago Cubs led the league with an attendance mark of 800,000. Pittsburgh, New York, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Boston and Philadelphia ranked in that order on the attendance scale.

The club members rejected a proposal by President Heydler to fix a minimum number of games in which a batsmen could figure to gain recognition as the league hitting champion. The chief executive at first suggested that three-fourth of the games be considered a minimum, then lowed it to 100 games but the magnates decided any arbitrary standard might work an injustice on the batting contenders.

The point was brought up because many of the top-notch batsmen in the National league this year played in considerably less than the full number of games, among them three Cincinnati players—Bressler, Hargrave and Christensen, each of whom played an average of only about 100 games.

The club owners re-elected Cullen Cain for a three-year term as manager of the National league service bureau. Directors for 1927 are August Hermann of Cincinnati, William F. Baker of Philadelphia, Samuel Breadon of St. Louis and Wilbert Robinson of Brooklyn.

N. Y. COMMISSION FAVORS DONOHUE'S PICTURE BILL

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—At the request of Thomas Donohue, chairman of the Connecticut boxing commission, the New York state athletic commission today went on record as favoring a bill that would repeal the law preventing inter-state transportation of fight films.

Delaney Starts Training.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, world's light heavyweight champion started training here today for his coming heavyweight bout with Bud Gorman next Monday night. He will weigh about 175 pounds for the bout. Pete Reilly, his manager announced.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—

The re-alignment of major league managers leaves only four playing pilots on the list for 1927—Bancroft of the Braves, Harris of Washington, Hornsby of the World's Champion Cardinals and Schalk of the Chicago White Sox. McInnis may try his hand out at first with the Phillies but is unlikely to be a regular. There were seven playing managers last season but Speaker, Cobb and Collins have passed from the fold.

Rogers Hornsby was the only National league manager absent from the annual meeting in New York. In his stead Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, engineered tentative negotiations for reserve material. The world's champions are standing pat on their regular line-up for 1927.

Jack Schaefer's billiard tour of Europe, for which he sails today on the Berengaria, calls for the most extensive foreign competition by any American cue star since Willie Hoppe went abroad twenty years ago to bring back the balkline titles. "Young Jake" expects to visit most of the European capitals in a two months' trip. He has called off a projected jump to South America to return to the United States in time for the world's championship tournament in March.

Jack Delaney's showing against Bud Gorman, the Wisconsin heavyweight, at Jersey city, next Monday night, will be closely watched by observers who believe that the handsome French-Ancanadian will establish himself as Gene Tunney's outstanding title contender. Gorman has been an erratic performer but will have a weight advantage of probably 20 pounds over Delaney and figures to give the light heavyweight king a real test.

While the two major leagues were appointing committees to revive the advisory board, Commissioner K. M. Landis, who dispensed with that board several years ago in his management of the diamond, was in retirement at his hotel here "indisposed." The American league committee made no effort to call upon him tonight, indicating they would await the joint session of the leagues Thursday to confer with Landis.

Rumors that Walter Johnson was seeking connection with an insurance firm, to retire from baseball, were set at rest tonight by Bucky Harris, the Washington manager.

"Johnson will be with us in 1927," Harris said, "and as long as we want him and you can look for him to have as good a year in 1927 as he had last year."

Club dues are estimated to cost the golf players in the United States between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 a year.

At least 15 nations are expected to compete in the winter sports section of the Olympic games at St. Moritz in 1928.

The displacing of seven major league managers since the close of the season is furnishing gossip a plenty for baseball fans this winter.

Few turf fixtures anywhere in the world attract a larger at endance than does the annual renewal of the Melbourne Cup race in Australia.

Ice hockey was not introduced into the United States until the early '90s, when Canadian teams played exhibition games in several eastern cities.

Argentina is now producing polo ponies said to be superior to those used in any other country. One of the Argentina ponies sold recently for as much as $13,000.

In the season of 1901 the University of Michigan football team amassed a total of 550 points to none for their opponents. But "them days are gone forever" in college football.

The first intersectional football game played at Pasadena in connection with the Tournament of Roses took place Jan. 1, 1902, when Fielding Yost led his Michigan gridiron warriors to victory over Stanford by a score of 49 to 0.

Probably the only football team of vegetarians in the country is that of Battle Creek (Mich.) college. Battling on a no-meat diet, the team showed wonderful endurance powers in the season just closed, winning all but two of its games.

C. W. Chen, who holds the national pole vault championship of China, is now a star on the track team at Norwich university, Northfield, Vt. While a student at Tsinn Hua college in China he is said to have cleared the bar at 11 feet 6 inches.

The title "Panther," by which the University of Pittsburgh football players are so well known had its inception in the statues of a springing panther which adorn a bridge near the university campus. This animal was adopted as the nickname for the Pittsburgh grid team in 1910.

In the days when John L. Sullivan was still the idol of the pugilistic world some clever schemers had a perfect imitation made of the famous $10,000 belt presented to him by Boston advisers. The belt was made of imitation gold and jewels and though it cost $1,000 the schemers cleaned up a neat little fortune exhibiting it through the country as the real $10,000 belt.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—Donnie Bush, new manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, addressed Wilbert Robinson, of Brooklyin in the language of the trading marts. Why you haven't any trading materials, "rotund" Robbie said.

"Is that so? I've got 16 pitchers," Donnie answered.

"That's nothing, I have 18 myself," said Robbie, and there was no trade.

Joe McGinnity, baseball's iron man, who could pitch double headers on successive days for the Giants years ago, has been released as coach by Brooklyn after serving one year. McGinnity although now 55 retired from the playing field only a season ago.

Harry Williams, president of the Pacific Coast league, declared today that the minor leagues should contribute a $10,000 increase to Commissioner Landis' salary if the majors fail to do so. The minors for some time have expressed a willingness to shoulder a portion of Landis salary in return for the benefits derived, but the big circuits have preferred to stand all the expense.

Rumors flitting about the Waldorf-Astoria concerning the ultimate destination of Eddie Collins had him lined up with Pittsburgh today. For two days the wise ones were sure the former White Sox manager was headed for the Yankees or Athletics. But Donnie Bush, new Pirate pilot, is afraid Collins legs wont stand up under the strain of another playing season at second base. There is also talk that Tris Speaker would bob up in the Pirate outfield but it was not regarded seriously.

Greater liberality in permitting balls hit into the stands to go unclaimed and an increasing practice among the players of giving away autographed spheres has added to the high cost of the game, National league club owners were told by their president, John A. Heydler.

Mr. Heydler gave these reasons for the use of a greater number of balls in 1926 than ever before. A total of 4,178 dozen or 50,148 were put into play last season, an increase of 3,93 over 1925.

German Smokes Cheap

Germany's financial condition is apparent from the sort of stuff Germans smoke. According to statistics, 48 per cent of all the cigarettes smoked in this country are the cheaper kind—three pfennigs each.

The cheapest variety at 2 pfennigs are little smoked, obviously because the quality is so bad. Though the Germans once were cogar smokers, in the last year only 342,000 cigars that cost more than 4 cents each were consumed.

BURIED CITIES SEEN IN THE CASPIAN SEA

Russian sailors, who are as good at seeing things as are sailors from other lands, report the discovery of numerous buried cities in the Caspian sea.

During a voyage from Persia to Baku, Comrade Atasev, commanding Caspian sea trade fleet, was amazed by the rapid changes in soundings shouted by the lookout swinging the lead. Looking over the side of his vessel when off the Shikhovo coast he reports he discovered the streets, houses, palaces and minarets of a city on the bottom of the sea.

The city has been identified as Khara Bashagen. Sailors say that when the water is clear other cities may be seen in the shallows near Ignatievo. A sunken causeway extends from Baku fortress and, coming to the surface on Bailoge Cape, disappears again under the waves.

Scientists say these cities were submerged in an earthquake hundreds of years ago.

"Pigs Is Taxes" in China

"Pigs is pigs," but according to Chinese military officials they are more than that—they are a gold mine of revenue. Hence when the new regime took control of Shanghai and looked around for possible sources of income it decided to impose a tax on every pig that enters Shanghai.

The city magistrates gave orders that the headquarters and social club of the Shanghai pig dealers be closed and sent a posse of Chinese police to see that his orders were carried out until the new tax was paid. The levy proved unpopular from the start and led to curtailed demand for this luxury by Chinese buyers.

In Movie, Can't See It

In the new film, The Circus Princess, which is to be shown soon for the first time, the leading role is played by the producer's daughter, Tilly Feindt. Miss Feindt, though only 16 years old, is an excellent actress. German movie laws forbid the entrance of children under 18 into movie theaters, except to see films specially produced for children. The question has arisen whether Miss Feindt is to be permitted to witness herself on the screen.

AMERICAN LEAGUE CLUB OWNERS QUALIFY APPROVAL OF JUDGE LANDIS

CHICAGO, Dec. 14—(AP)—The American league's approval of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, voted unanimously at the opening of their annual session tonight, was qualified by a move to restrict the commissioner's authority.

The league magnates appointed a committee to confer with Landis, assure him of their endorsement for another term, and ask for a conference on certain undisclosed changes the league wishes to effect in the terms of the commissioner's contract.

The job of presenting the proposition to the commissioner was given to Colonel Jacob Ruppert of the New York Yankees, Phil C. Ball of the St Louis Browns and E. S. Barnard of the Cleveland Indians.

They were delegated to assure Landis that the league first will vote to re-elect him, and then ask for a conference on the modification which the league wishes, at some later date.

The magnates opened their session with the ormalities of awarding the pennant to New York, adoption of the annual report of the treasurer and then took up the Landis matter, which was quickly approved.

The Landis committee then started in search of the commissioner. While they declined to discuss the nature of their proposals, it was understood they wished to have Landis indicate that he will permit the representatives of the National and American league to confer with him from time to time, thus re-establishing the advisory board.

Provision for this board was in the original contract of Landis, but some of the club owners say that Landis has paid no attention to that provision for more than two years. The authorised representatives of the leagues on the board are President John Heydler of the National league, and Vice President Frank Navin of the American league. Navin is president of the Detroit Tigers.

The visiting club owners with likely performers around second base were quickly drawn into negotiation by Ray Schalk, new manager of the Chicago White Sox. A successor to Eddie Collins, is badly needed, and Schalk asked for terms on Marty McManus of the St. Louis Browns, Frank O'Rourke of Detroit and Aaron Ward of the New York Yankees. The Ward proposition has been under consideration for some time, with the Yankees understood to be holding out for one of the Sox best pitchers.

Schalk also made an offer for Roger Peckinpaugh of the Washington club, the fourth big league infielder he is willing to buy for Collins place.

Eddie Colling had not arrived at the gathering tonight and it was said he did not expect to come. Asked if he had signed Collins for the Athletics, Connie Mack said:

"The only new player I have added is Outfielder Wilson of the Waco club of the Texas league. I have nothing to say about a deal with Collins."

When the league directors adjourned, it was announced that Frank Navin of Detroit had been re-elected vice president, while the directorship this year went to Mack of the Ataletics, Ball of the Browns, Navin and Clark Griffith of Washington.

The Professional Ball Players association requested the league executives to set aside a portion of the league receipts each year, to take care of needy ball players. Colonel Ruppert, Bob Quinn of Boston and Mack, were named as a committee to study the offer, and report back to the league meeting next February.

The old rule of 1905 prohibiting the world's series teams from playing post season games, was revised tonight by the American leaguers. An amendment authorised the pennant winning teams to play exhibition games after March 1 with any team they wished, except that they shall not play the opposing half of the world's series in their home towns.

You'll Find It

To get acquainted with Lucky Strikes is to discover a new charm in cigarettes, an extra goodness.

You'll realize at once that in addition to their being made of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, there's something more which gives them their unique superiority.

This "something more" is the costly, added process of toasting. It makes Lucky Strikes better in three ways:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

The added process of toasting brings extra goodness which accounts for the growing popularity of Luckies.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON CLUB MAY HOLD LICENSED DOG SHOW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—A meeting of dog fanciers, members of the Windham County Kennel club and all others who may be interested, to be held at the home of Joseph Birch on the West Side Wednesday evening may result in a dog show being held here in January or February.

The meeting is to discuss the plan, and all interested may attend. At the past two fairs of the Windham County Agricultural society at Brooklyn there have been dog shows and they have proved very interesting to the public at large and have brought out a goodly number of entries. This live interest is what is inspiring Wednesday's meeting to hold a winter show. Mr. Birch is particularly anxious to have as many anclers at his home as find it possible to attend.

Notices have come to his friends here, including numbers of business men with whom he has done business for years, of the sudden death in Worcester last Thursday of Martin L. Capron, a traveling salesman known all through this section of the state.

Announcement of his death was very much of a surprise to all who knew him here. He visited Danielson to call on merchants regularly every Friday. A week ago last Friday he made what proved to be his last visit to Danielson, and at the time remarked to one of his friends here that he had not felt so well in years. He was about 70 years of age.

Mr. Capron had been a traveling salesman about 40 years, and was known in this territory all of that time. For years he represented Daniels Cornell, a Providence house, leaving them a considerable number of years ago to go with a Worcester concern. At the time of his death he was with the Johnson and Kettle company of Worcester.

Mr. Capron, a very fine man who was engaged in business in Danielson for four or five years, leaves his wife and a daughter.

Funeral services were held at Worcester and the body entombed, burial to be at Dennisport on Cape Cod in the spring.

After an illness of about four days with pneumonia, Joseph Mondor, 27, died Tuesday morning at his home in Pineville. He was a native of Manville, R. I., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi L. Mondor. Mr. Mondor is survived by his wife.

MERCHANTS WANT SNOW CLEARED FROM MAIN STREET

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—Representatives of various business enterprises in Danielson have been insisting for a week and the chorus became louder Tuesday, that snow swept off Main street by plows and piled along the sides of the thoroughfare without snow shoveled off the sidewalks should have been removed at once. Failure to remove it has left a narrowed way for travel on a street that usually is jammed with traffic. When the rain and fog of this week came to partly melt it and pack it down a slushy, slippery condition resulted that has increased the demands for an arrangement under which snow would be carried off this street after each of the winter storms. As to the removal of this snow, the point is raised as to whether that work should be done by he town or by the state. Main street is a double trunk line highway. The state plows clear it when it gets choked with snow, and in the past town teams have carted heavy accumulations of snow away. Business men feel that it should be possible to effect some arrangement about the snow removal, so that present conditions will not recur again this winter.

The drive for the sale of Red Cross seals in Danielson will be in full swing from now until Christmas. Among stations to be established where the seals may be bought is the postoffice lobby. The sale of these seals is for a very worthy purpose, the raising of funds for the nation-wide fight against tuberculosis, the great white plague. In buying these seals, which are ornamental for holiday mail and other packages, one testifies before the world to his or her interest in afflicted humanity and of a real effort to bring health and happiness to some unfortunate being.

Sanford D. Pratt, 66, a resident of this town for many years, died Tuesday morning at his farm place near the Chase reservoir in the East Killingly section of the town. Mr. Pratt had been in failing health for about a year. He was born in Fishville, July 11, 1860, a son of Albert and Eunice Green Pratt. As a resident of Killingly, Mr. Pratt had been engaged in farming for many years. He leaves his wife.

Moran's Shoe store open evenings until Christmas.—Adv.

"Where do you get the money for the Christmas boxes sent to veterans of the World war who are now in hospitals?" is the question asked of the American Legion auxiliary. This question has been answered as follows by an auxiliary member:

"We sell Poppies in May and send a small percentage of poppy money to the national welfare committee, a small percentage to the state welfare committee and put the rest into our own welfare fund which is used to meet distress in veteran's families in our own community; to answer any unusual calls of distress and to fill our 16 Christmas boxes which go to Allingtown hospital this year. These boxes contain each, woolen socks and cap, handkerchiefs, stationary, pencil, flashlight, hard candy, chewing gum, and things a man can use for pleasure in a hospital.

Thanks to the generosity of our Danielson merchants, we are able to spend our money for these things to the best possible advantage, as all give substantial discounts. Alfred Reed, a member of Leo L'Homme post, has helped pack the boxes. Another good friend takes them by auto to New Haven headquarters, thereby saving us the express.

As we have few cases of distress to meet in Danielson, we contribute from our welfare fund to the community Christmas tree.

A proposal that will be before the next legislature, relative to a one week open season for hunting deer, is regarded as likely to have considerable support from the Windham county delegation. Deer have become so numerous hereabouts that the damage they create runs into thousands of dollars each year.

Steel girders that are to enter into the construction of the new plant for the Connecticut Mills at Albany-Decatur, Ala., will be included in the first of the material ordered.

Mrs. John Gebert is at her home here after having been a patient at a Worcester hospital for some time and is steadily improving in health.

WESTERLY

THOS. SULLIVAN INJURED BY FALL FROM LADDER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I, Dec. 14—Thomas Sullivan of Rose street, Pawcatuck, a painter in the employ of the C. G. Stanton company of Westerly sustained injuries yesterday morning while employed at Watch Hill which necessitated his removal to the Anderson hospital, 22 Cross street.

Sullivan was at work on some wooden shutters on the second story of the summer home, "Pinecroft," on Niantic avenue, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Otto A. Screiber of New York city. In some manner unknown the foot of the ladder slipped and Sullivan was thrown heavily to the ground. In addition to numerous bruises and scratches, it was found that a broken left arm and a severe nose was also sustained. The injured man was attended by Dr. J. Gordon Anderson. It will be several days before the man will be able to leave the hospital.

An Oak street resident who had imbibed too much "extract" was observed on Tuesday afternoon leaning heavily on the railing of the High street overhead railroad bridge. Fearing the man might pitch off onto the tracks below the Westerly police department was notified and Patrolman LeRoy H. Norman was sent to the place and for his own protection the man was brought to the police station to be detained until he became sober.

Work on the equipping of the 1,000 gallon Seagrave combination pumper with 300 gallon booster tank, was continued all day Tuesday by representatives of the manufacturers under the observation of Chief George E. Egger. The pumper was located in the rooms of the R. I. Ones, about 7:30 o'clock and during the evening and on Tuesday proved an attraction for those interested in fire equipment. About noon time the truck was taken out for trial spins and in the afternoon taken up to the Stillmanville bridge for tryout. On Saturday next a thorough tryout will be given the pump before the Westerly fire engineers and the representatives of the New England Board of Fire Underwriters.

Announcement has been made of the favorable progress of the annual campaign drive for membership in the Westerly Sanitary corps, in that more applicants than ever before are being received. At the present time the returns show a gain of nearly 50 per cent over the number of subscriptions received at the same stage of the drive a year ago.

The Westerly Sanitary corps, which was organized during the World war by Dr. F. I. Payne, performed valuable service in the flu epidemic of several years ago, and is ready at any time to undertake disaster relief work. When there is no epidemic of diseases or other time of great emergency, its work consists principally of furnishing ambulance transportation in cases of accident or illness.

Westerly veteran patriotic societies were represented on Monday evening at the meeting held in Providence in the state wide campaign to locate and mark properly the graves of all Rhode Island soldiers. They prepared to attack the problem by dividing the state into 13 districts, each of which will be investigated by a local committee.

Present at the meeting were Walter F. Thorp of Pawcatuck, commander of the Rhode Island state department of the American Legion; Rogers E. Trainer, former commander of Merrill post, American Legion and a member of the Westerly town council; Franklin C. Smith also a former commander of Merrill post, D. Girard Shea and Michael F. O'Connell, commander of Robert Brucker camp, United Spanish War veterans of Westerly.

Addressing the veterans in the American Legion headquarters at the Strand building, Walter M. Baker, president o the state committee, outlined the manner in which it is planned to conduct the survey. He announced, too, that the Boy Scouts of American had volunteered to co-operate with the veterans in searching for unmarked graves.

Sentiment expressed by the speaker and the attending commanders indicated clearly that the ex-service men expect little assistance from the government in securing headstones for the graves. Money available through the state board of soldiers' relief and proportionate expenditures in each case, by the city or town involved, are the means to which the committee will turn, Mr. Baker explained.

Local committees will begin their work in each of the following districts, which are so laid out as to embrace every city, town and village in the state.

Providence, Woonsocket, Blackstone Valley, North Providence, Bristol county, Newport, Cranston, Scituate, Pawtuxet Valley, East Greenwich, Wakefield and Peace Dale, and Westerly.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Double Reward

Patience and persistence will
The fund of knowledge surely fill.
—Old Mother Nature.

It was a week before Sammy Jay again saw Reddy Fox going through that queer performance of jumping on the snow crust and then digging. This time Reddy was in the Green Forest. Sammy kept his tongue still, a thing he can do very successfully when he wants to, and, keeping out of Reddy's sight, followed along.

Just as Reddy had done out on the Green Meadows the other day he was now doing. He would cock his ears as if listening, then steal forward, jump way up in the air, come down with his feet all bunched together hard on the crust, break it, and dig frantically. Then he would pop up with a disappointed look on his face, blow the snow out of his nose, shake it out of his fur, and go on.

"I am going to stay right here," said Sammy to himself, "until I find out what this means. Reddy isn't doing that for fun. He does do some things for fun, but he isn't doing that for fun. A little patience, Sammy, a little patience, and you'll find out all about it."

Now, Sammy wasn't the only one who needed patience. If Sammy had but known, Reddy was giving a beautiful example of patience and persistence. Had he not been both patient and persistent he would have given up after one or two disappointments. But no one knows better than does Reddy Fox the value of both patience and persistence. Without them Reddy would have starved to death long ago. There are times, especially in winter, when patience and persistence are all that will fill an empty stomach. No one knows it better than does Reddy Fox. Ever since he was a little fellow Reddy has been training himself to be patient and persistent.

Now, Reddy was hungry this morning. He was very hungry. It was nothing new. At this time of year Reddy was hungry most of the time. It was very seldom that he had his stomach really filled. But this particular morning Reddy was unusually hungry. This snow crust made hard hunting. For a whole week he had hard hunting. You see, Reddy lived very largely on mice, and now these mice were quite safe with the crust above them. They were quite safe, but not wholly safe.

"I'll get one if I keep at it long enough," Reddy kept saying over and over to himself. "Yes, sir, I'll get one. This crust is bad for me, but it would be worse if it was so hard I couldn't break it. Whoever keeps at a thing long enough is bound to succeed. Ha! There is a mouse down under there as sure as I live! If only I can break through quick enough, I'll get it."

Reddy suddenly jumped high in the air and down he came on that crust and broke through. It seems as if these four feet of his began to fly before they hit the snow. For a minute Sammy Jay couldn't see Reddy, he was so hidden by the cloud of snow he was throwing out. Then he stopped digging. Up came his head. As usual, he blew the snow out of his nose. But this time there was no disappointed look on his face. Instead, there was a very pleased look. In his mouth was a mouse. Patience and persistence had been rewarded.

But Reddy wasn't the only one whose patience and persistence had been rewarded. Sammy Jay had his reward. He had found out what he wanted to know. He had found out what Reddy Fox jumped on the crust for. He was hunting mice down below. Sammy's curiosity was satisfied and he had gained in knowledge.

"Reddy is smarter than I thought he was," said Sammy. Which was a very great compliment, because Sammy had always considered Reddy Fox very smart indeed.

It seemed as if those four feet of his began to fly even before they hit the snow

UTILITIES COMMISSION FAVORS PEQUOT AVENUE BUS, NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14—The public utilities commission came here today and gave a hearing on the application for a permit from Michael Baldelli to operate buses over a route extending from State street to Thames street, off Pequot avenue. The application was not opposed, except in so far as to protect the Connecticut company from competition. Mr. Baldelli has operated bus lines out of New London many years and gives excellent service wherever he is established. It is now proposed to run a line of buses through State, Huntington, Tilley, Bank and Howard street to Pequot avenue, thence to Thames street. There are several factories situated in the Howard street and Pequot avenue section and these, with the Coast Guard academy at Fort Neck are expected to provide abundant patronage for the buses.

Lieut. Commander Derby, speaking for Commander Hinckley of the Coast Guard, represented that there were 550 persons at the Coast Guard academy and that nearly all would be convenienced by the establishment of the bus line proposed. He pointed out that sailors from the Coast Guard station have been assaulted when crossing the bridge over Shaw's cove late at night. This danger, he said, would be eliminated by having the bus line. A representative of the Corticelli Silk company told the commissioners that the buses would be a convenience to employes at the plant on Shaw's Neck, and representatives of the manufacturers were reported as favoring the plan, though none of them appeared in person.

Stephen McMahon, from the bus station on State street, declared that he was approached some fifteen times daily for information as to how to get to the manufacturing section along Pequot avenue and as to the conveyance that would take inquirers there. He said the cost of a taxicab was the result every time. Mrs. Porteferici, who operates a boarding house on Pequot avenue, declared that the conditions now are a nuisance to her patrons. The Connecticut company does not want the buses to come into competition with their lines and asked that such competition should not be created. Objection was made to the operation of the buses all day to accommodate school children who used the buses only in the early morning and at the close of the school. The route which the buses shall take was regarded as following a zigzag course, but that is to be a subject of regulations and the city will approve the course to be followed. The commission announced that it looked with favor on the establishment of the line, but withheld approval until such time as the route was fixed.

PROWLER SHOT AT GOAT SHED

ACCUSED OF VILE ERRAND

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14—Santo Scira, employed by the city's water and sewer department, attempted to slay Alexandro Mariotti, 50, of Goshen street, in the rear of the Scira residence, 118 Shaw street, last night. Scira found Mariotti at the entrance to a shed where goats are harbored, the lock of which had been forced. Scira emptying both barrels of a shot gun into Mariotti's body. Scira was presented in the police court this morning charged with assault with intent to kill, but because of the critical condition of Mariotti the case was continued a week. Scira's bond was fixed at $10,000. He was unable to provide a surety and was remanded to jail. Should Mariotti die, which it is expected he will, Scira will be held on a charge of murder. This afternoon at the hospital it was stated that Mariotti's recovery was doubtful, in fact Dr. Charles Kaufman stated that every indication and symptom was that Mariotti would die. Mariotti received the contents of one shell in the back, shattering the flesh a distance of eight inches, some of the 70 shots that entered his body piercing the lung. Mariotti also received 15 shots in the left leg and 30 shots in the right leg.

Mariotti's mission to the goat house is not known, but is surmised from the condition of his clothing when he was found partially conscious on Ann street, but a short distance from the yard of the Scira home and to where he staggered until he collapsed. So disarranged was Mariotti's apparel that the police contend that the injured man had either attempted a bestial attack upon one of the goats or had already done so when Scira, who had been watching for a visitor to the goat house, appeared. According to Scira, last night made the third time within a few nights that entrance to the goat house had been forced, and it was because of the previous entrances that he lay in wait for another visit. When Mariotti, whom he did not know, was found at the goat house door and when Mariotti refused to make known his purpose there, Scira opened fire, the contents of both barrels entering Mariotti's body as he was attempting to leave the Scira premises.

JEALOUS ADMIRER STABS DOROTHY LEWIS, COLORED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14—Jealousy resulted in an attempted murder this morning when Theodore Morris, colored, of 690 Bank street employed as cook at a local restaurant, attacked and wounded Dorothy Lewis colored, with a knife, at the residence of James Bowser, also colored, at the Bowser home, where the Lewis woman has been residing, against the wish of Morris, who claims to be engaged to the woman. Morris is under arrest charged with assault with intent to kill. The Lewis woman is being held in bail of $500 as a material witness.

Morris went to the home of Bowser early last evening in search of the Lewis woman, but when he arrived there he was unable to gain admission for he one answered his repeated alarms at the door. He went away, but returned at 10:30 o'clock and this time he was more successful in gaining entrance for Bowser and the woman were there. The two men and woman engaged in conversation a long time, particularly so because Morris had with him a flask of liquor and the three partook of the liquid refreshments until a late hour. Morris was invited to spend the night at the house and he accepted the invitation. He arose about 5:30 o'clock and went to the restaurant where he obtained a boning knife and returned to the Bowser house. About 7:30 o'clock Morris and the Lewis woman engaged in a war of words during which Morris told the woman to choose between himself and Bowser. When Morris was told by the Lewis woman that she did not intend to further accept his attentions, Morris went into a rage and pulling the knife from his pocket made a rush for the woman. The woman also did some rushing for she ran toward a closet. Before she could open the door, however, Morris sank the knife deep into her left arm as he aimed at her breast. The woman, then entered the closet where Morris again attacked her, but did not inflict further wounds for the woman directed at Morris a kick which landed upon his abdomen, causing him to retreat in pain. Morris fled from the house and went to his place of employment where he informed his employer that he would not work today, leaving the place. Two hours after the assault Bowser went to the police station and reported the assault upon the woman. The Lewis woman was brought to police headquarters by Patrolmen Henry Sylvia and Thomas Lyden and when the nature of her wound was revealed she was taken to Lawrence hospital, where the wound was dressed. She was brought back to the police station and held to appear against Morris. He was sought by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and finally located at the home of a woman named Baker on Talley street. Morris was unable to furnish a surety on his bond of $2,500.

This evening the Lewis woman was taken back to the hospital as her wound necessitates medical treatment.

Edward Downey, of Westerly, a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Association hospital, was discharged today.

Lester Martin, 17, of 3 Peterson street, North Attleboro, and Leo Dion, 69 Fisher street, also of North Attleboro, were arrested this morning by Patrolman Thomas Lyden, the boys having run away from home. The police of North Attleboro have been requested to notify the parents of the boys to come to New London and take charge of the rugaways.

Painters and paper-hangers are having their slow season at present. The season has been a good one for them, but the rush has ceased.

Harold Sargent, taxicab driver, residing on Terrace avenue, who lost his automobile by theft Nov. 22, when it was stolen from Church street, has obtained information as to the whereabouts of the automobile. The car was recovered in Cumberland, Mass., the day after it was stolen, but not until today did the police of that city notify the New London police that they were in possession of the auto and requested that Sargent be notified and asked to go to Cumberland and claim his property.

MISSING HELEN BORKMAN IS FOUND AT THAMES VIEW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 14. — Helen Borkman, 15, daughter of Mrs. Anna Borkman, 46 Fourth street, who has been missing from home since Nov. 23, was arrested this evening by State Police Officer Bernard Kennerson and turned over to the New London police after the girl had been taken into custody in Waterford. The girl has been staying with a family named Workman at Thames View since she ran away from home. This evening the New London police got the tip that the girl at the Workman house was the missing New London girl. As the house is outside the jurisdiction of the New London police, the state police were requested to make an investigation. Officer Kennerson, accompanied by Policewoman Jane Cassidy, went to the Best View house and found the girl there. She was arrested and brought to this city and provided with accommodations for the night at the Salvation Army lodging house. The girl left home mysteriously and it was at first believed that she had gone to the home of her sister in Rochester, N. Y. Instead she went to the Workman house where she remained without communicating with her mother. The mother of the girl has petitioned to have the daughter placed in a state institution as an incorrigible. Action in that matter will be taken tomorrow.

John Berntsen of Groton was fined $10 in the police court today for disregarding the signals given him by traffic officers. John fairly made the officers scramble to avert being run down.

A "cut rate" tobacco store is to be established in this city.

The icemen do not seem to be worried over the outlook for a crop of ice. In a period that was a couple of generations back it was said that if a crop was not harvested before the first of January the chance of getting it was slight. Now it is a rare thing that any ice is cut before the new year comes. There probably will not be any crop secured in this year, for there are only two weeks in which the crop can form and that is a short time for the freezing and harvesting.
